The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

Delwin is one of the handsomest grandsons of the great Moor; in color, he is a dark dapple bay, sound as a dollar, outside of his broken hind leg, and the best of feet and legs; 15.1½ hands high, and weighs 1,000 pounds; he is one of the finest-formed horses for great speed in the land; has the same level head and intelligence that his half-brother, Guide, 2:16¼, has; in color and form he resembles Harry Clay 45 (sire of the dam of Electioneer and George Wilkes, 2:22), more than any horse that we ever saw. Delwin has the same blood lines as the handsome grandson of The Moor, Stamboul, 2:11; he has two crosses of American Star 14, also of Clay, one of Hambletonian 10, sire of the dam of Stamboul, 2:11; one to Mambrino Chief, sire of the dam of Director, 2:17, and two of the great Pilot Jr., sire of the dam of Nutwood, 2:18¾, combining altogether the same blood lines that lay in the grandest stallions, living or dead—Arion, 2:10¾, Stamboul, 2:11; also the first yearling to beat 2:30, and who trotted the fastest last quarter in that mile that was ever trotted by any yearling, 34 seconds—Freedom, 2:29¾.

El Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¾; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

As the dam of Green Mountain Maid and grandam of Electioneer, Shanghai Mary may be called the foundation stone of the Electioneer family, which now holds practically every best on record. Glen Fortune is inbred to this great old mare once through his sire, Electioneer, and again through his dam, a granddaughter of Shanghai Mary.

Glen Fortune's oldest colts were foaled in 1891, and show up splendidly in the kindergarten, where they may be seen any week day.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives EXERCISE WITHOUT CONCUSSION, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

By RYSDYK'S HAMBLETONIAN, Sire of ELECTIONEER, GEORGE WILKES, and forty-one trotters in the 2:30 list.

WILKESDALE is a seal brown, sixteen hands high; bred at Highlawn Farm, Mass. He very closely resembles his sire, Alcantara, four year old record 2:23 (trial 2:17), and a study of his pedigree will convince anyone that if there be anything in inheritance, we may expect extreme speed from his produce. His sire, Alcantara, at fifteen years old has forty-seven in the 2:30 list, and has five producing sons, two of whom have sired two-year-olds that entered the 2:30 list this year. His full brother, Alcyone, died when only ten years old, yet he is the sire of twenty-five in the 2:30 list, among them being McKinney 2:12½, fastest record for a four-year-old stallion. Another half-brother, out of Alma Mater, is the sire of Strong Boy 2:12, fastest four-year-old record for a pacing stallion. Wilkesdale's dam is herself a trotter, record 2:30, and is in the list of great broodmares, being the dam of Miss Alice 2:17¼ (who was shown trials the past season in 2:14); Thornton, 2:26¼, and Wilkesdale 2:29, all sired by Alcantara. Thorndale 2:22¼, the sire of his dam, is also the sire of Sue, the dam of Egthorne 2:12½, one of the sensational trotting stallions of the past season.

ALMA MATER, his grandam on his sire's side and Dolly, (the dam of Director 2:17, etc.) on his dam's side, are among the few of the great producing dams, Wilkesdale was taken out of the paddock the 1st of October last, soft and in no condition for trotting, yet in less than two months he gained a record of 2:29 in third heat, trotting the second heat in 2:29½. After his stud season closes he will again be placed in training, and under favorable circumstances will no doubt trot under 2:20.

TERMS—He will make the season of 1892 at Wolf's stable in Stockton, Cal., at $75, for the season, from February 1st to July 1st, with usual return privileges for mares that fail to get in foal this season.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

The Fast Trotting Stallion
SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681,

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾; Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted—so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17¼, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

SIROCCO is a handsome bay with black points stands 16-1 hands high, 16 2½ over the hip; weigh about 1,150; five years old, and one of the best and speediest sons of Antevolo. He is remarkably intelligent, kind, and a splendid individual. Trial, quarter at three years old .37 to 150-pound cart without regular work. DON MARVIN

Five-Year-Old Record 2:28.

DON MARVIN is a beautiful seal brown, foaled 1884; bred by Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Cal; is 16 hands high and weighs 1200 pounds; sired by Fallis, 2:23 (sire of four in 2:30 list), he by Electioneer. Dam, CORA (dam of Don Marvin, 2:28, and Elected [trial] 2:26) by Don Victor, (sire of the dams of five in the 2:30 list) by Belmont. Second dam, CLARABEL (dam of Clifton Bell, 2:24½, and Rebecca, dam of four in 2:30 list) by Abdallah Star. Third dam, FAIRY (dam of Stoner Boy, 2:29½, and Sweepstakes, sire of 22 in the 2:30 list, and three other producing sires and dams) by Rydsyk's Hambletonian. Fourth dam, EMMA MILLS (dam of four horses that have sired 2:30 performers) by Seely's American Star.

DON MARVIN is a horse of great natural speed. His record was made with scarcely any preparation, after making a large season in the stud, and is no measure of his speed. His oldest colts (only five in number) are three years old this spring. One of them with very little work trotted quarters last fall in 36 seconds, and could have easily entered the 2:30 list in his two-year-old form had he been given an opportunity.

DON MARVIN will make the season of 1892 at $40, with usual return privilege, which makes him the cheapest horse in the State, record and breeding considered, having what no other public stallion has on the Coast—Four producing dams.

The Standard Stallion
WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16¼ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1111, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¾, trial 2:25¼, by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27, and the dams of Executor, 2:21¼, Ranchero, 2:21¼, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22½, Sir Walter, 2:18½, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddie Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS $50 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

WHEN YOUR BLACKSMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is gloriously mistaken. However, don't point out the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing of both heels and the entire wearing surface.

THE PERKINS ALWAYS LEADS!

Responding to the frequent requests of many of the leading horseshoers of the country we now offer as the latest production in the line of improvement

THE NEW

We claim that in this form of Horse Shoe are combined more real merit and greater variety of points of excellence than any machine shoe ever before made.

It will average 25 per cent. lighter than the corresponding sizes of the regular brands of flat shoes, and will wear longer.

It is the true Frog Pressure Shoe.

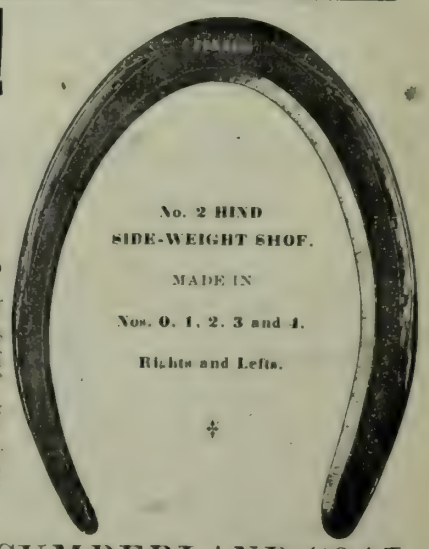
It is perfect for speeding and trotters, and driving horses, and is better than the flat shoe for any purpose.

It will not pick up stones, snow or mud. It will not throw mud of gravel, and clay soil can not pull it off.

It is sold for about one-half the price of the hand-made Toe-Weight Shoe, and at a price per set but a trifle above that of the first-class flat shoes.



Every intelligent horseshoer well knows the superior advantages of this shoe.

The expense of turning this style of Shoe by hand is large, and for that reason its use has been limited, although it is a well-known fact to the horseshoers that a large proportion of the horses wear the outside of the Hind Shoe faster than the inside.

They are made concaved, in order to avoid throwing mud, stones or snow, and it is almost impossible to pick up a stone with them.

The price we put upon them is about one-half that of the cost of the hand-turned, and now within the reach of all. They are put up in all cases with Rights and Lefts in the keg.

PRICE { No extra charge for assorted kegs - - - $7.50 PER KEG.

THE BLOOD HORSE RACES.

Donna Lilla Beats Grandee a Head Because Dennison Roda Stupidly.

ALLIANCE A MIGHTY GOOD MUD LARK.

El Rayo at Home in Heavy Going—Motto Wins by Six Lengths in a Romp—Heavily-played Bert Hart Finishes First.

Castro Wins the Rich Racine Stakes by a Nose From His Stable Companion, Orrin—Applause Gathers in Some First Money at Last—Captain Al Astonishes the Admirers of Sheridan—Charmion's Game Victory—Ulster Leads From Start to Finish—Hercules to the Front—All the Events in Detail.

MUD LARKS warbled sweetly to a minority of those who attended the races this day. The track, with its thick coating of thin mud, resembled an unkempt Kentucky turnpike after a right smart thawing-out in the month of March. Alliance, with the veteran George Evans up, sailed in a surprising winner of the opening event in such style that many put him down in their memory dungeon cells as "dangerous"—in slippery going. El Rayo seemed perfectly at home this afternoon, and after he had won away off from Fannie F. et al. several of those present were of the opinion that it would have taken a sure-enough cracker-jack to have beaten him to-day. Charley Dennison, on Grandee, the overwelming favorite in the third race, should have been tied on the gray colt in a straight-jacket, and the money of the public would not then have gone glimmering disgracefully into the pockets of the bookmakers, as it did. If this alleged jockey is not daft, his riding to-day would never go to prove that he is not, for a novice could at least sit stark still on the favorite colt and win the race. Instead of this, Dennison for some reason that is not possible of explanation (except the theory, temporary aberration of the mind, advanced, be correct), pulled up on Grandee ten yards from the wire and lost the race by a head. Grandee outclassed his field as far as diamonds in beauty surpass cobble-stones, and if Daniel Dennison, Charley's father, only makes his word good and keeps the boy out of the saddle in public races forever he should receive a vote of thanks from a suffering thoroughbred-loving populace, who lost in the neighborhood of $15,000 on the chances of Grandee. W. O'B. Macdonough, owner of the colt, felt very bad over the outcome, for he knew that nine persons out of every ten present lost money on Grandee through the insane "finish" made by the rider, Dennison. Donna Lilla, the winner, however, belonged to Dave Bridges, who has had little luck at the present meeting, and few begrudge the veteran his good fortune. Motto, on the outside, in the good going, had on her running clothes to-day, and taking the dry track all the way, won by six lengths from the favorite, Montana, who had followed through the deep mud. Many of the daily papers "roasted" Starter Ferguson on the send-of in this race but when one looks into the difference in the condition of the track on the inside, middle and outside it is at once apparent how a filly naturally quick to get away could open up a gap at the outset and make the start look many times worse than it really was. Bert Hart, on whom a ton or two of money went, won the fifth and last race easily, but had King Hooker got away well the result might have been very different. The attendance was up to the usual good average, and the bookmakers assuredly got enough Grandee money in to make them a little winner on the day.

Following is a detailed description of the day's racing:

TWELFTH DAY—FRIDAY, APRIL 29, 1892.

Aerolite, for some reason as yet unexplained, was made favorite in the opening event, five-eighths of a mile, for two-year-olds, in which there were five starters. Adolph, the crack Cheviot colt, had been scratched in the morning. To a first-class send-off Aerolite forged to the front, Estrella being second and Lady Marion third. This was the order until nearing the three-quarter pole, where Panchita and Alliance moved up rapidly from the rear—especially the latter. Alliance caught Aerolite eighty yards from the wire, and walked right away from her, winning by a half length in a romp, Aerolite second, a length from Panchita, third. Estrella was fourth, and Lady Marion, who apparently did not relish such miserable going, was last. Time, 1:06½.

SUMMARY.

BAY DISTRICT TRACK, Friday, April 29, 1892.—First race, purse $400; $300 to first, $75 to second, $25 to third; for two-year-olds; winners at this meeting to carry five pounds extra; non-starter to carry their entitled weight; horses beaten once allowed three pounds; twice, five pounds; three times, ten pounds. Five furlongs.

Four came to the post in the second race, one mile and seventy yards, and El Rayo was a scorching first choice in books and auctions. Fannie F. had lots of friends, who remembered the old saying, "A Wildidle for the mud." However, the Grinsteads are some pumpkins in the swimming line themselves. El Rayo was sent to the front at once, and the further he went the better he seemed to like it. At the quarter he was leading Pearl two lengths, Fannie F. third; at the half the favorite's lead was three lengths. In the run to the three-quarters El Rayo was eased up some, and his field made a trifling gain, but it amounted to nothing, and he won with great ease by two and a half lengths. Fannie F. passed Pearl an eighth from the wire and beat her out for the place three lengths. Edith was never in the hunt. Time, 1:55¼.

Now came an event which will go down into racing history as one occasioning a larger volume of cuss-words and more fist-shaking than any race that has taken place in this glorious State for many, many moons. In fact, so large an amount of gas escaped skyward that a dark cloud formed over the grandstand, and several mariners present predicted that it would burst and flood the track so that the remaining events would have to be postponed. Grandee opened up at 8 to 5, but as almost the entire play was ou the gray colt, the post odds were 4 to 5. It was a great betting affair, and as Grandee had previously shown his superiority over a much better field than the one he was now called upon to beat, there was reason for the heavy play on the grand gray son of Warwick and Helen Scratch. Mezzotint was first to poke her nose in front, but at the half-pole, three-sixteenths having been traversed, Grandee, Mezzotint and Martinet were nose-and-nose, Donna Lilla close up. Grandee assumed command nearing the three-quarters, and entered the homestretch half a length in front of Donna Lilla, Martinet third. Grandee opened up a little till within an eighth from the wire, where Dennison seemed to lose control of him, and he swerved toward the inside rail. At length the colt straightened out when Donna Lilla was but a neck away, and was, without doubt, winning all right, when to the surprise of everyone, Dennison pulled up on Grandee about thirty feet from the wire, allowing Donna Lilla, a rank outsider, to win by a head. Two lengths away came Martinet, and the time for the race was 1:12¼. Loud and deep were the groans of the players of Grandee, but the race was lost by the imbecile work of a jockey that never did a great deal of good work in the saddle anyway, and nothing remained but to play even by cursing in fourteen different languages. Dan Dennison was one of the deepest mourners, and declared that never again could his son Charles mount a horse that he was interested in.

Montana was made favorite in the fourth race, seven-eighths of a mile. Motto was next in public favor, while Bessie W. was played a little. Lots of trouble was given in effecting a start, a number of the horses buck-jumping, while some refused to budge from the post. Motto, on the outside, in the good going, got a little the best of the send-off, and having taken it into her sulky mind to run, opened up a gap of about four lengths by the time the quarter-pole was reached. Montana was second, Blondinette third. Motto kept on in the dry path she was treading, and was six lengths to the good when the half-pole was reached. There was no change until the homestretch was struck, where San Pedro came up from the rear rapidly and took third place. Motto won by six lengths, Montana, apparently a very tired horse, second, one length from San Pedro. Time, 1:31—fast work on such a track.

Heavy commissions on Bert Hart made him a very warm favorite in the last race of the day. King Hooker, Tom Stacey and Joe Ellis were well played for place, and to some extent straight. Joe Ellis forged ahead at the flag's fall. Bert Hart was second, Hello third, King Hooker fourth. At the half it was Joe Ellis, Bert Hart, King Hooker. Bert Hart now commenced his move, and dropped into the homestretch nearly a length in front of Joe Ellis, who in turn was over a length to the good of King Hooker. Bert Hart went on in front unmolested, winning by a length. King Hooker, in a

THIRTEENTH DAY—SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1892.

Mud to the contrary notwithstanding, to-day's racing was splendid and much enjoyed by the large and enthusiastic crowd that gathered at Bay District track to see the six events. The principal drawing card was the Racine Stakes, which brought out a select field of five. The struggle between the two colts, Castro and Orrin, both trained by that capable conditioner of thoroughbreds, William L. Appleby, will long linger in the minds and stir the hearts of those who saw it. Castro got the verdict in the very last jump by less than an inch, and at the drawgate he was a neck behind Orrin, whom the people were hailing as winner. Castro has won all the two-year-old stakes at the meeting (two in number), and can now be classed in the same category as Gano and Racine, two horses afterward famous as three and four-year-olds. The sire of Castro, Sobrante, also won the Gano Stakes, while Sonoma, half-sister to Sobrante, once won the same stake, but was disqualified for fouling. Thus it will be seen that the stake belonged to Castro by the law of entail. Charley Trevathan, the lucky owner of the winner of the stake, worth about $1,350, was one of the happiest of mortals, for he not only owned a grand colt, but knew that he was a good one—and backed his judgment to a considerable extent in the books. Colonel Thornton was little less jubilant than Trevathan, for was not Castro bred by the enthusiastic owner of Rancho Resaca? Old Applause showed an astonishing reversal of form, for on the previous day he had made no showing against Bert Hart, King Hooker et al. However, there is an old saying that everything comes to the horse who waits—until he meets a crowd of skates. Captain Al fooled a whole lot of folks when he beat Sheridan, but the Owen Bros. can thank Narvaez for the victory, for he went out with the horse, took the only good streak in the whole course, and made Sheridan take to the mud or stay behind. Charmion showed herself to be the gamest sort of a filly, for she appeared beaten at the three-quarter pole. Ulster won his race in slashing style, and the opinion is prevalent that the colt will be a hard one to down a little later in the season. Hercules won the last race, and Dan McCarty bought him at $1,550 or $350 over his entered selling price. Inkerman would have landed the race, though, in all probability, had he got off well.

Following is a description of the racing in detail:

Joe Ellis was most fancied in the opening race, three-quarters of a mile, with seven starters. Applause had many friends, because he had Narvaez as a pilot, and was played nearly, if not quite, as strongly as the kicker king from the Garden City Stable. Applause was first to show after the send-off, Joe Ellis next, Washington Bartlett third. Applause was the leader by half a length at the half, Ellis and Bartlett head-and-head. Joe Ellis got a strong move on in the run to the three-quarters, and Applause fell back third behind Bartlett. In the stretch Applause, on the outside in the dry part of the track, sailed up to the front like the Applause of yore, Donathan beat a merry whip tattoo on the sides of Joe Ellis, and Bartlett fell back fast. It mattered little, however, for Applause won by three quarters of a length. Joe Ellis, second, was a length and a quarter from Joe Stacey, third. Time, 1:19½.

The Racine Stakes brought five good youngsters to the post, and coin poured in thick and fast on the various contestants. A grand start was effected, Oporto being first away, Castro second, Orrin and the others in a bunch. A few strides and Castro had taken up the baton. A merry pace he was setting, too. Orrin was his closest rival, and at the half-pole it was Castro first by nearly a length, Orrin second, Sir Reel at his saddle-girth. At the three-quarter pole the same order of things prevailed. Orrin here commenced his run, almost joined Castro, and with the latter half a neck away they ran until half-way down the straight, where Castro stumbled slightly, then caught his stride quickly and came after Orrin with a wet sail. Hammer-and-tongs it was that whole last eighth between Orrin and Castro, with Sir Reel about a length away. One jump from the wire it was nothing but a dead heat, and in one of the gamest rallies and hottest finishes ever seen at the Bay District track, little Castro stuck his aristocratic nose out in front less than an inch as they passed the winning post, and the stake was landed for his lucky owner, Charles Trevathan. A length behind Orrin came Sir Reel, third, and the time was 1:20¼. The first quarter was timed in 0:24¼, the half was gone in 0:51, the last quarter, where the track was very slow, in 0:29¼.

Captain Al went out at once under Narvaez's vigorous riding and took the dry track. Book-betting—Charmion 3 to 5, Castanet, 6 to 5; Centenella 4 to 1.

A heavy rain now set in, and a terrific plunge was made on Ulster, who was backed down from 6 to 4 to 3 to 5. A good-sized play was made on Braw Scot and Queen Alta for place. The distance was one mile, and six came to the post. Ulster went to the post at once, attended by Braw Scot, Lottie Mills third. Queen Alta was last at the send-off. At the quarter it was Ulster first by three-quarters of a length, some distance between Braw Scot, second, and Lottie Mills, third. Ulster opened out more daylight in the run to the half, the relative positions being unchanged, except that Queen Alta was now fourth. At the three-quarters Ulster was leading by two lengths, Braw Scot a little over a length from Lottie Mills. In the homestretch Ulster, in the good strip on the outside, was eased up, and Braw Scot came up to him in such shape that many imagined Ulster was beaten. Less than a sixteenth from home Hill gave Ulster his head, and he drew away handsomely from Braw Scot, winning the race easily by three parts of a length, Braw Scot second, a length from Lottie Mills, third. Time, 1:48¾.

Bert Hart, on the strength of his good mud performance of the day previous, was backed down in the books from 2 to 1 to 7 to 5. Inkerman was well supported, and just before the horses went to the post a barrel or two of Hercules coin forced the odds from 4 to 1 down to 2 to 1. Regal was first to show in front, King Hooker next to him, Hercules third and coming fastest. At the half-pole Hercules was leading Regal two lengths, he half a length in front of King Hooker, Bert Hart next, Inkerman absolutely last in the field of seven. Hercules' lead was a little over a length as they swung into the homestretch, Bert Hart now second and running so well that his admirers were much encouraged. Once straightened out Inkerman came from the rear like a meteor, passed everything but Hercules, and had he not been jostled in the last hundred yards would in all likelihood have beaten the Oregon horse out. As it was, Hercules won by a neck, Inkerman second by three-quarters of a length, Bert Hart third. Time 1:18¾. Dan McCarty bought Hercules at $350 over his entered selling price. B. C. Holly also being a bidder.

FOURTEENTH DAY—TUESDAY, MAY 3, 1892.

A leaden sky lowered over a fast track to-day, and a crowd of over 2,000 saw the five events run off. Regal won the opening race in good style and in fast time, but Inkerman, who got off seventh in the field of ten, would probably have captured the race had he been sent off on even terms with Regal. Janus won the Pacific Derby in a walk from a poor field, and the outsider, Borealis, got the place from Elmwood, on whom considerable money was lost. Janus, the winner, however, went to the post a favorite, and could have run the distance, had he been pressed, in 2.39 or 2:40, instead of 2:42¼. Estrella got off in front in the third race and was never headed. A fight for the place resulted in the Darebin—Iris filly snatching the honor by a nose in the final jump. Lottie Mills proved herself a really good mare by picking up 122 pounds and beating a field she was conceding huge lumps of weight to. The time, 1:28½, was more than excellent, and the bookmakers were whip-sawed terrifically when Braw Scot got the place. Montana, the beautiful bay horse from the Holly stable, won the concluding race in a romp, Initiation getting the place as easily as the son of Storey did first honors. Four bookmaking firms withdrew from the field of speculation, leaving only nine to get the worst of the deal. There was some little squealing at the way Fannie F. performed in the last race, but anyone who has watched the work of the mare will remember that she is generally held back until the homestretch is reached.

Inkerman was a kind of lukewarm favorite in the opening event until within two minutes of the start, when coin poured in swiftly on Sanborn's horse. After quite a long wait the flag fell to a rather straggling start, but all were under way. Regal was in front, attended by Henry T. and Jim R. Inkerman got away seventh. Regal flew away from his field, and was four lengths to the good of Henry T. at the half-pole, he three parts of a length from Inkerman, now third. This was the order clear into the homestretch, except that Inkerman had lessened the gap between himself and Regal by over a length. Regal was not to be caught, however, and passed the wire two lengths in front of Inkerman, who beat Henry T. a head for the place in a hard drive. The time was 1.14¾—about the last race of the meeting. Inkerman must have run in 1:14 at the very worst.

Now came the Pacific Derby, mile and a half, in which there were four starters. At first Elmwood was a slight favorite, but a heavy introduction of Janus coin into the boxes of the bookies set the odds the other way, Janus going to the post at 3 to 5, Elmwood at 6 to 5. Elmwood and Janus got away together, Joe Stacey third, Borealis last. At the three-quarters and past the stands it was Elmwood first by about a length, Janus second with his head pulled around close to his shoulder, Berealis even up with the beantiful, big chestnut from Sacramento, Stacey last. At the quarter-pole, three-quarters having been traversed, Elmwood was a length and a half in front, Janus half a length from Borealis, Joe Stacey a bad last. Janus now commenced his move,and past the half-pole he was head-and-head with Elmwood, Borealis a length away, Joe Stacey out of it. From this point Janus gradually drew away, leading Elmwood a length and a half into the home-stretch, he a length in front of Borealis. Janus went on and won by two lengths, pulling up. An eighth from home Borealis came at Elmwood, and after a short struggle passed the Milpitas colt, to the surprise of the majority present getting the place from Elmwood by an open length. Time, 2:42½—at least two seconds slower than Janus could have gone the distance had he been pushed at all.

The third race was a selling affair for two-year-olds, distance five furlongs. Panchita was played with a vengeance, many bookies marking her off their boards altogether. Estrella was also plunged on just as the horses went to the post, and in fact everything was backed to some extent. Panchita buck-jumped and cavorted in imitation of the circus mules she had no doubt heard of, and Martinet also did a little hamfatting at the post. At length, after nearly half an hour's wait, the flag fell with Estrella in front, Martinet second, the Darebin-Iris filly third. This was the order until the head of the homestretch was reached, when the Iris filly went up second. Estrella went under the wire without being headed on the journey, winning by three parts of a length. In a sharp fight between Martinet (who came again) and the Iris filly, he latter gamely responded to Morton's calls, and got the place by a head. Time, 1:03½.

Romair opened favorite in the fourth race, seven-eighths of a mile, Lottie Mills going at 3 to 1 for just a minute, when oh, my countrymen, what a torrent of coin rained in the white-faced little mare with her heavy impost of 122 pounds. Soon the odds on her were 2 to 1, then 8 to 5, then 7 to 5, at which figure she went to the post. Braw Scot was played as if he had already pocketed the place. The flag fell with Lottie Mills a neck in advance, Braw Scot second and Early third. Lottie was moving very fast, and passed the quarter-pole a length to the good, Early a head in front of Braw Scot, Romair fourth. The order of things was unchanged until soon after passing the half-pole, when Early commenced to fall back badly and Braw Scot to move up, attended by Romair. A sixteenth from home Braw Scot got up to Lottie Mills' neck, but Nicols called on the pretty bay daughter of Col. Clark, and she pulled away sufficiently to win by nearly a length, Braw Scot a length and a half away from Romair, who was ridden in a half-hearted way by Fred Ross. Time, 1:28¼—a wonderful performance with the weight up.

Montana was considered a "moral" for the last event on the day's card, a handicap for all ages, distance one mile and seventy yards. Initiation and Fanny F. were well-played for place. Bartlett ran away with little Peters, going about half a mile at top speed, and losing what chances he had. Initiation took the track at once, and set a good pace, Montana lying second and Bartlett third past the stand, quarter and half-poles. At the latter place Initiation's lead was half a length only, King Hooker close up to Bartlett, now faltering in his steps. At the three-quarter pole Initiation was still half a length to the good of the favorite, who was now coming fastest, and catching Initiation easily when once straightened out, cantered in a winner by one and three-quarter lengths, Initiation second, three lengths ahead of King Hooker. Time, 1:47. Fanny F. was pulled back last at the start, and wound up in fourth place. It was another poor handicap, for Montona should have had an impost of 125 pounds to equalize matters somewhat.

FIFTEENTH DAY—THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1892.

A forbidding sky and frequent showers kept many away from Bay District track, yet the crowd that braved the gods of the winds and rain was an encouraging one to the management, being variously estimated at from 1,700 to 2,000. The fifth race did not fill, consequently but four events were run off. However the track was fast and the sport first-class in every respect. Joe Ellis won the opening event by half a length, but had the distance been about thirty yards farther Hello would have carried off the coin, for he was coming like a shot at the finish. Orrin won the second race, also five furlongs, by a scant head and under the whip from Dick O'Malley, who is rapidly coming to the front. Romair upset the calculations of the talent when he easily beat Lottie Mills in ordinary time. The race was a pretty one, and the winner fought for his head all the way down the homestretch. From this out Romair will be a hard one to defeat, for he is as strong as a lion, and has a great turn of speed. About the best betting race of the entire meeting was the fourth race on the programme, and when El Rayo won, with Captain Al in the place, the bookies were hit hard in the bank account. All in all the pencilers suffered severely pretty much all day, getting the worst of it in three out of four races.

In a field of ten selling-platers Joe Ellis opened at 6 to 5, but a lively play on the somewhat erratic horse forced the odds down to even money at the post. Ida Glenn and Oporto were nibbled at to some extent. Joe Ellis darted away with the lead at once, attended for a few jumps by Fairlawn and Ida Glenn. Past the half-pole Joe Ellis led by about a length, Ida Glenn second, Fairlawn third. Coming into the homestretch it was Joe Ellis first by a length, Ida Glenn second and tiring, Oporto third and running encouragingly to his backers, Hello fourth and also labeled "dangerous." The favorite caught plentiful doses of lash nearly the whole way down the straight, and ran well under the punishment. Hello came like a new Fourth of July rocket in the last hundred yards, passed Oporto close to the wire and was gaining fast when Joe Ellis passed under the wire but half a length to the good, Hello second, a head in front of Oporto. Time, 1:02½—very speedy for selling race gallopers.

The second race was a handicap for two-year-olds, dash of five furlongs. Orrin was at all times a favorite, but there was a strong play on Grandee and Charmion. After a tedious wait of perhaps half an hour at the post, occasioned chiefly by obstructionists Panchita and Castanet, the flag cleft the air with Dick O'Malley slightly in front, Orrin next, Castanet lapped on him. This was the order until the homestretch was reached, Orrin getting into the straight first by a neck, Dick O'Malley second, Castanet third, Grandee next and moving well. Dick O'Malley came at Orrin like a game bulldog, and the latter had to be ridden out hard and whipped a little to be enabled to get the verdict by a head from O'Malley, who showed vast improvement over his form last week. Nearly a length behind Dick O'Malley came Grandee, third, Charmion close up to him. Time, 1:03½. This was a really good piece of handicapping.

A good field of four appeared in the mile dash for three-year-olds, and Lottie Mills, although conceding weight (and big lumps of it) to everything, was made the favorite, being backed down from 4 to 5 to 3 to 5 in a jiffy. Romair Hennessy up this time, and many present fancied his chance immensely. As usual, Lottie Mills went away in the lead, but Romair soon went up to her, and the pair raced head-and-head past the quarter, three lengths in front of Folly, who in turn was two lengths to the good of Queen Alta. It was hammer-and-tongs between the white-faced bay filly and colt to the half, where Romair was leading Lottie a head. Queen Alta was third and gaining. At the three-quarters the positions remained totally unchanged, and when the field straightened outfor the run down the homestretch Romair just had his head in front, and a hot tussle ensued for an eighth. Hennessy here let loose of the big son of Argyle, who had been fighting hard for his head, and drawing away with great ease, Romair won the race from Lottie Mills by half a length, the latter four lengths from Queen Alta, third. Time, 1:43½.

The concluding race, mile and a sixteenth, brought out one of the finest fields in point of quality of the entire meeting, and every one of the five was supported. However, a strong tip got out on El Rayo, who opened at 2 to 1 in the books, and in a very few minutes odds on the son of Grinstead had been cut down to even money or 4 to 5,and he reigned a favorite in the auctions also. Esperanza was first away, Sheridan being second, and San Pedro, on the inside, third. The latter went up fast, and was leading Sheridan at the quarter-pole an open length, El Rayo lapped on the Sacramento horse, third. The favorite had now warmed up to his work, and passing the half was head-and-head with San Pedro and coming much the strongest. El Rayo pulled away from his field gradually from the half pole, Captain Al moving up nicely into second place, a length away from Sheridan. Into the straight it was El Rayo first, with a slight streak of daylight between himself and Captain Al, who had a length the best of Sheridan. El Rayo sailed away handily, and won the race with ease by two lengths, Captain Al, whipped out, in the place by two lengths, Sheridan third. Time, 1:49½.

The Summer Meeting.

In another column of this issue will be seen the advertisement of the programme for the summer meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. The association offers the liberal sum of $10,800 in purses for four days' racing, to be given at the Bay District track on August 6th, 9th, 11th and 13th. It is expected that the association, will offer at this meeting an opportunity for contests against the watch which can take place between the heats of the regular events of the day, and add to the interest of the occasion. A number of breeders will join the association to avail themselves of this privelege, as not many opportunities will be offered this year to start their horses against time and secure records, for record meetings cannot be held under the new rulings.

Read the Notices.

If there are any advertisements that need to be carefully read, the ones inserted by the various associations should receive first attention for dates of entries may close and opportunities may be lost because of heedlessness on the part of the reader. In our issue this week there are three important advertisements of this description which we wish to call to the notice of horsemen for the entries advertised in them will close May 15th: The Oregon Breeding and Speed Association of Salem, Oregon, the Fresno Fair Grounds Association and the Salt Lake Driving Park Association. This trio of meetings should receive the endorsement and support of every horse owner. Liberal purses are offered and the conditions are most favorable.

Get Ready for Haying.

THE busy season for the farmer is near at hand and all of his harvesting machinery must now be overhauled and attended to; perhaps it will becomes necessary to purchase a mower or a hay rake. The Knowlton Mower is acknowledged to be the very best in the market, while the ne plus ultra of hay rakes for use in California is the "Buckeye." None are made so simple, and none have answered every requirement as well as these. They are strongly made, the teeth are well-tempered, are easily handled and do not get out of order. See the advertisement.

THE Fair Associations throughout the State would do well to formulate their programmes as soon as possible, and get their advertisements in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN at an early date, thus showing the horsemen here what inducements will be offered them not to take their horses outside of the State. The Montana, Denver, Washington and Oregon associations are hanging out rich purses which will prove tempting to our horse-owners and drivers.

The Capital Turf and Driving Club races commence next Tuesday. A large number of horsemen from San Francisco will attend. This meeting promises to be one of the most successful ever held in Sacramento.

The Sires of Ten or More.

In these days when young stallions are making reputations as phenomenal sires of speed, exhibiting in their sphere as much precocity as do the baby trotters of the turf, it is nothing like as easy to class trotting sires as it used to be. Up to within a comparatively short time the merits of a stallion, so far as his being a sire of speed was concerned, were determined solely by the number of his get that had entered the 2:30 list as trotters or pacers. In those days precociousness in a sire was practically unknown, and if a stallion had a representative in the 2:30 list by the time he was close to a dozen years old he was considered to be doing very well indeed. But now all this is changed, and the stallion that is not at the age of ten years—having been given a fair opportunity in the stud—able to demonstrate his capacity as a sire of speed, is deemed a little behind the age, and it is no uncommon event for a stallion that is only seven or eight years old to have sired standard speed at the trot or pace.

For this reason it will not do, in considering the respective merits of trotting sires, to be guided entirely by the number of their get in the 2:30 list, and yet, as a general proposition, no better one to follow can be found. It is not so many years ago that the list of stallions that had ten or more of their get in the 2:30 list was not a very long one, but examination of the records up to the close of 1891 develops the fact that in this category there are now ninety-six stallions, some of them, as will be shown later on, being so young that their success is absolutely startling. The list is as follows:

The first thing naturally to be considered in connection with these ninety-six stallions that have risen above the common in the matter of siring standard speed at the trot and pace is, How are they bred? A casual glance at the list shows a decided preponderance of the blood of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, so far as the male line is concerned, and careful perusal of the names develops the fact that, outside of Hambletonian himself, sixty-four of the horses mentioned above are descended directly from him, as follows:

[illegible]	27
[illegible]	11
Great-great-grandsons of Hambletonian	2

This is exactly two-thirds of the whole number of stallions that have sired ten or more 2:30 or better standard performers, and although the superiority of this strain of blood in the production of trotting and pacing speed is universally conceded a direct statement of this sort, compiled from the official records, is worth yards of argument. There is also information of a valuable and interesting sort to be obtained by an analysis of the breeding of these stallions in the female line. In this particular the tried and tested blood of Mambrino Chief shows up grandly, that horse having sired the dams of nine of the stallions in the list, while his most prepotent son, Mambrino Patchen, is represented by four. The stallions that have sired the dams of two or more horses in the above list are:

Mambrino Chief	9
Sedly's American Star	7
Mambrino Patchen	4
Pilot Jr.	4
Alexander's Abdallah	4
Rysdyk's Hambletonian	3
Abdallah	3
Harry Clay	3
Volunteer	3
Edwin Forrest	2
Woodford	2

When it comes to the question of the average rate of speed in those of their get that have beaten 2:30, the pursuit of knowledge becomes absolutely fascinating to one who is interested in blood lines and has made somewhat of a study of them. For instance, taking 2:23 as the standard, it is found that only ten of the ninety-six horses in the above list are eligible, and unquestionably the best of these, all things considered, are Guy Wilkes and Sidney, while right after them comes Director, it being a curious and perhaps a significant fact that all three of these phenomenal young sires were owned in California, and have passed most of their lives there. The horses with ten or more representatives in the 2:30 list, whose get have in point of record averaged 2:23 or better are:

Name.	Foaled.	Sire	Av. Rec. of get.
Guy Wilkes	1879	Geo. Wilkes	2:21
Sidney	1881	Santa Claus	2:21½
Mambrino King	1872	Mambrino Patchen	2:22
Director	1877	Dictator	2:22
Pocahontas Boy	1865	Tom Rolf	2:22½
Hamlin's Almont	1872	Almont	2:22¾
Alcyone	1877	Geo. Wilkes	2:22¾
Pancoast	1877	Woodford Mambrino	2:22¾
Gambetta Wilkes	1881	Geo. Wilkes	2:23
Kentucky Prince	1870	Clark Chief	2:23

Guy Wilkes, Sidney and Director, who, when age is taken into account, must be admitted to outrank the others in this list of ten, were foaled, respectively, in 1879, 1881 and 1877. In the matter of siring trotting speed as opposed to that of the pace, Guy Wilkes and Sidney are on a par, each having put ten in the list, but Sidney has no less than eight pacers, some of them cracks, like Fausta, the yearling champion at the gait; Gold Leaf, 2:11¼; Adonis, 1:11½; while Rupee, the fastest pacer by Guy Wilkes, is credited with 2:14¾. Foaled two years later than Guy Wilkes, his nearest competitor among the great sires of the century, Sidney, equals him in number of trotters, and far outranks him as to pacing speed. The ten trotters by Guy Wilkes average 2:21¾, while the average of the ten by Sidney is exactly two seconds slower. But in pacing speed Sidney fairly outclasses Guy Wilkes, his eight sidewheelers in the 2:30 list having an average record of 2:17½, with a yearling among them at that, while the two pacers sired by Guy Wilkes average 2:16¼. In his day Guy Wilkes has had a three-year-old champion in Sable Wilkes, and a king among two-year-old stallions in Regal Wilkes but to offset this Sidney puts forward the champion yearling trotter of to-day in Frou Frou, 2:25¼, and the best yearling pacer in Fausta, 2:22¾, Gold Leaf, four years, 2:11¼, Adonis, fastest gelding, 2:14¼. Director is also prominent among sires of champions, as he has to his credit the pacer Direct, that holds the world's record, 2:06, at that way of going, and on two occasions has lowered the pacing race record for three consecutive heats. With Direct and his champion all-age record for pacers in his list, Director's eleven trotters and one pacer average 2:22, or not quite as fast as the get of either Guy Wilkes or Sidney, while with Direct out, the discrepancy between Director and the other two California sires who figure in the select list of ten would be still greater.

It is a noticeable fact, by the way, that of this list of ten stallions the average record of whose progeny is 2:23 or better, no less than three are by George Wilkes, a trotter with a record of 2:22, they being Guy Wilkes, Alcyone and Gambetta Wilkes. Sidney is by Santa Claus, also a developed sire, as his record of 2:17¼ amply proves, and Pancoast is by Woodford Mambrino, 2:21½; Mambrino King is by Mambrino Patchen, brother to the 2:18¼ trotter, Lady Thorne; Director is by Dictator, brother to the 2:17¼ trotter, Dexter; Pocahontas Boy is by Tom Rolf, 2:33¼; Hamlin's Almont, by Almont, 2:39¾, and capable of a much higher rate of speed, while Kentucky Prince is by Clark Chief, an undeveloped stallion.

Taking these ten horses and considering them from the point of developed speed as applied to themselves, we find that Guy Wilkes has a record of 2:15¼; Sidney one of 2:19¾ (pacing); Director one of 2:17; Pocahontas Boy one of 2:31; Hamlin's Almont one of 2:26; Alcyone one of 2:27; Pancoast one of 2:21¾; Gambetta Wilkes one of 2:26, while Mambrino King is commonly understood to have trotted a trial in 2:26, and Kentucky Prince was driven a half mile as a three-year-old in 1:11½, for the benefit of Col. John W. Conley and Mr. G. H. Brasfield, who went to the farm of his owner to see the colt, the performance taking place over a poor half-mile ring with the stallion in no condition for that sort of work. It therefore appears that every stallion with ten or more representatives in the 2:30 list, the average record of whose get is 2:23 or better, has a record of 2:30 or better, or has publicly demonstrated the ability to step a mile in the time indicated by those figures, while three of them have records better than 2:20. The average record of the eight stallions in this list with records is 2:24, and the other two showed in public that they could beat 2:30 four or five seconds. This showing, which is a simple presentation of cold facts from the record books, and not the rosy imaginings of a fervid enthusiasm, is one of great significance in these days, when people are naturally anxious for some definite information as to what the developed sires are accomplishing in comparison with stallions who have no place in the record books or authenticated trials at a 2:30 or better rate of speed. This select list of ten stallions contains a horse—Pocahontas Boy—that was foaled as far back as 1865, and another—Sidney—whose natal day came in 1881. A majority of the horses, however, would come under the head of young sires, that is, young to have ten or more in the 2:30 list, and this is also a fact affording instruction and food for thought to breeders, inasmuch as it demonstrates in the clearest possible manner the giant strides that have of late been made in breeding up the American trotting horse to a point where definite results in the way of siring speed are expected and demanded of a stallion while he is yet young in years, especially if by his breeding or performance on the turf his services have been sought for by the public, or he has been mated with so exceptionally good a class of mares by his owner as to draw attention to his work in the stud.—Wallace's Monthly.

Orrin A. Hickok's String.

Next Monday morning Mr. Hickok will leave Pleasanton for the East with his string of trotters and pacers. Besides some that he will take from the San Mateo Stock Farm, he will have the following: The bay stallion Prince Warwick, sired by Alcona 730, dam Warwick Maid, by Almont Mambrino 761; second dam Lady Warwick, by Delmonico 110; third dam a daughter of Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22; fourth dam by Hunt's Commodore. This horse was in the Eastern circuit two years ago, but got no record. Mr. Hickok decided to have him start on the California circuit last year, but Warwick was unfortunate; a quarter-crack appeared, and the heavy-built, strong-limbed stallion was thrown out of training and given a long rest. He is in good fix at present, and will trot inside the charmed circle without trouble; he is pure-gaited and a bold, resolute mover.

The seven-year-old gelding Adonis, by Sidney, 2:19¾, out of Venus (dam of Cupid, 1:18), by Captain Webster, that got his mark of 2:11½ at Cleveland, Ohio, July 30, 1890, and shortly after was brought to California, where he was turned out on account of lameness, is also in the string. Adonis has been jogged some, and Mr. Hickok believes he has entirely recovered. Whether he will pace as low as his present record, is a question which will only be solved in his races this fall.

Everyone in the Eastern States remembers the old gray mare Lucy that went through the circuits in 1880, 1881 and 1882, pacing against such side wheelers as Rowdy Boy, Sleepy Tom, Mattie Hunter and Sorrel Dan. She got a record of 2:14 and was brought to California and bred to Guy Wilkes, 2:15½; the result of this union is the chestnut pacer, Chris Smith. This gelding was sent East in Mr. Hickok's string two years ago, but "went wrong;" he was brought back to this genial climate and has so far recovered as to be deemed worthy of entering the list via the Eastern circuit.

Two years ago Mr. Hickok purchased the chestnut gelding Ariel at the Palo Alto Stock Farm for a very low figure, more as an experiment than anything else, for he always contended that Whips would be a great sire, and as this colt was by Whips out of a thoroughbred mare, he wished to have his ideas verified and also see what kind of a trotter he would make from such a "hot cross." He persevered as soon as he ascertained that Ariel was a trotter and to-day he takes great pride in holding the lines over his pet. Ariel may not trot as fast as others in his string, yet an easier driving or a gamer horse he does not want.

Guy Wilkes has sired a large number of horses that have entered the list, and a number of others that would also enter the charmed circle if they were handled, but it is a question that will be decided this fall whether he ever sired a better-moving or a gamer trotter than Mr. Spreckles' mare Hulda. She is out of a mare by Speculation 928, second dam by Bull Pup, a son of January St. Lawrence that was brought to California many years ago and died at Salinas. Hulda is by a grandson of Hambletonian 10, out of a mare by a son of Hambletonian 10, and if she does not (barring accidents) add more glory to the fame of her sire and the "Hero of Chester" every horseman in California will be disappointed. She has no record but will be good "green goods."

There is another one that perhaps Mr. Hickok will take East, he is a large, fine-looking bay gelding that has been working in the lead of a six-horse team on Senator Stanford's Vina ranch and was sent to Mr. Hickok to be worked a little in order that he might make a good roadster. He is by Whips out of Josie by Hambletonian 725, second dam Young Josselyn by Speculation, and is six years old; and, although he has only been handled six weeks, he can pull a Chicago cart at a 2:24 gait to-day, and if trained would add another gem to the coronet which is becoming brilliantly bright as it rests above the name of Whips 2:27½.

Mr. Hickok will go through the Eastern circuit with a small string, it is true, but, like many other experienced drivers, he believes it is better and more profitable to take a few good ones than a long string of poor ones. He will try and return to California early in the fall.

He had quite a number of horses that he considered were the making of fast ones, but owing to his time being limited in which he could develop their qualities for speed he was compelled to leave them until his return.

Rupee was Injured.

While the horses from the San Mateo Stock Farm were being placed upon the cars an accident occurred by which the fine stallion Rupee, 2:14¾, was so badly injured that it was deemed advisable to let him remain in California to see if he would fully recover. In loading the large car a strong plank is laid from the platform to the car and the horses are led over it and backed into the stalls provided for them—which run lengthwise in the cars. The car was nearly filled when Rupee was led on to the platform; for some unknown reason he began to back as soon as he was inside the doorway, his shoe caught in the edge of the gang plank, pushing it off, and the horse fell between the car and the platform; his forelegs and half of his body were resting in the car while his hindquarters were suspended in the air. After much difficulty he was released from his perilous position, and, on examing his injuries, Mr. Corbitt decided to let him stay on the farm until he recovers. It is hoped that he will be able to be sent East with Mr. Hickok, when that trainer starts. [The latest news regarding him was to the effect that besides a bad scratching and a number of severe bruises he was in a fair way to recover].

Who Uses Spelterine?

This question can be easily answered by applying to any of the prominent trainers and drivers. It is endorsed by veterinarians, used by horsemen, and proves to be superior to any hoof-stuffing ever thought of. When once tested it recommends itself. It is far superior to linseed meal and cheaper than it or any other hoof-stuffing ointment. It is a natural product which retains moisture for hours and never gets hot. In allaying inflammation of the hoof it is perfectly wonderful.

—JOHN MYLES O'HARA.

A number of local sportsmen enjoyed a lively time at the Lincoln Gun Club grounds on Sunday last pulverizing Blue Rocks.

Major Newell, of the Selby Smelting and Lead Company is shipping thousands of rounds of this leading firm's goods to Portland this week for use in the coming tournament at that point.

The printer made us appear as saying, in a note in this department last week that the "universal tendency is to shoot before and behind the birds" when what we wrote was "below and behind the birds." A very amusing and absurd error as then printed.

Letters forwarded to Mr. Harvey McMurchy and awaiting him here, indicate his early coming. He will find that the "L. C. Smith" has lost nothing in the eyes of the sportsmen of the Pacific Coast since his visit last year. The Hunter Arms Company have in him socially and in a business sense a fitting representative.

Mr. James Mortimer is a true sportsman in every sense of the word, being an active member of the Westminister Gun Club and a devotee of the trap. It is a matter of regret that lack of time amid the pressure of other engagements, including the races and a visit to Palo Alto, prevented his enjoying a day at the traps while here.

"Dead-shot F. F. F., is the powder I would use if I were shooting for my life," said an old and experienced trap and field shot, in our presence recently. "I agree with you," said another equally experienced man standing by. But yet it stands upon record that the best shooting ever made at the trap has been done with Schultze or English E. C. Doubtless any of the three will kill equally well with any other. A mere matter of fancy settles one's choice.

The rush and activity of life in all of its several departments seems to be conducive of a general demand for recreation in some form. From the earliest period men have ever sought to be amused. In no way can outdoor sports be said to be disadvantageous. On the contrary they are productive of much good. They are healthful, cheerful and invigorating and should be upheld and sustained by every one. The devotee of the gun, in the field or at the trap, always derived a full measure of pleasure in the sport. We would be pleased to see the interest in the gun become many times increased, and we note with satisfaction that the sport in this line has far more interest in it than ever before. The ratio of increase which has been made in the past few years has been most astonishing. Millions of inanimate targets were fired at last year and this year even this enormous record will unquestionably be beaten. There are far more live birds used at the trap to-day than ever before and, practically speaking, the demand seems to be, in a very pronounced sense, to be limited only by the supply. In the east we are informed that it is becoming difficult to obtain the number of birds desired for trap shooting. That the breeding of pigeons will become an industry of no mean dimensions for this purpose we confidently predict. From the regularity which marks the presence of the lovers of this sport at the trap, it is safe to say that few if any forms of amusement take stronger hold on the minds of men.

Have you ever met the handy man with the revolver? The one who has long since discarded the use of the gun and rifle as being weapons, which his superior skill has long since caused him to regard as being fit only for amateurs? We met one last week. True, when he went to Texas, in the days long since recorded in the voluminous volume of the past, he took with him a gun and rifle but now he says they are discarded and have been for years, only his favorite forty-five Smith & Wesson revolver is now carried when he goes afield. Buffalo, deer, antelope, turkey, all kinds aquatic birds and grouse as well have fallen to his aim. We listened in awed and complimentary silence, but when he stated that quail was by him killed on the wing with regularity and ease, it was with an effort that we repressed a smile. "Yes, sir," he said with the air of one who had become so familiar with repeating the story that it seemed to him a truth which no one should question, "I have furnished my entire family with quail, all they could eat, with this weapon, killing them on the wing." He looked as if he expected some complimentary remarks on his wonderful skill with the revolver, and we asked, "Do you shoot the heads of the quail, invariably, so as not to mutilate their bodies?" He looked at us for a moment, while a pained expression crept over his face and he replied with the usual invitation: Have one with me? Thanks. The usual poison.

The Recreation Gun Club.

On Sunday last the Recreation Gun Club met at Oakland Shooting Park for the purpose of contesting the third monthly match of the season this for organization. The weather was, heavy, low dark clouds filled the sky shutting out the sun, save here and there where it broke through the rolling and disjointed masses of cloud, gilding their edges with brilliant light, which dazzled the eye when contrasted with the darkness of their central forms. The membership of this club, to a goodly number, were not to be outdone by the weather and a fair representation crossed over the bay to the park on the nine o'clock ferry.

While the train rumbled along its serpentine way, hugging the eastern shore of the bay the rain played "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" and "Wait 'Til the Clouds Roll By" on the window panes. Arriving at their destination they made a dash for the sheltering shed which is walled about by California weather and cracked many a joke to keep their courage up to concert pitch. "Gentlemen, this reminds me" said an irreverent one, "of the man who, under even more trying circumstances than this showed remarkable faith that the clouds would roll by. It was during one of the heaviest showers revealed by the records that this individual found himself forced to flee to Mount Ararat to escape the flood. As the waves came on higher and higher he sought refuge in a tall tree which grew on the mountain's summit, from his lofty perch now brought to a level with the trouble sea he hailed Noah, but the barge floated on. "Well," said he, "it matters but little, this is only a sun shower anyway!" With almost equal faith the sportsmen dashed for the club house as if bent on breaking the Pacific Coast sprinter's quarter-mile record. The weather clerk was bent on playing pranks; one moment the sun smiled through the tangled fragments of cloud as a shooter would go to the score and the next a heavy cloud, hurrying before the wind would dash the glistening drops upon all with a sort of bless-you-my-children accompaniment which would cause a hasty scurrying into the club house. This condition lasted but a short time and then the weather became settled and presented a beautiful face to the sport. The birds were a very good lot with a full contingent of exceedingly lively ones.

"Slade" carried off the honors of the day killing his twelve birds cleanly and in good form. Not only was this a triumph for this ardent devotee of the trap but in a measure also for his favorite load of wood powder.

Messrs. Barney, George Jackson and H. C. Golcher secured ten birds each and formed the next class.

Mr. R. L. Palmer, of Tacoma, a guest of Mr. A. W. Allen, scored nine birds, Kyle keeping him company. Messrs. Smith, Haas and Schroeder killed eight each. Twelve birds cannot be said to be much of a test of one's skill at the trap as on this occasion if any other member of the club had been called upon to shoot at the three first escapes of Mr. Haas, it is to be doubted if the result would have been different.

The following pools was then shot off:

The money followed the above markings. Another pool resulted as follows:

Golcher	1	1	1	2	1	2—6
Haas	1	1	1	0	2	2—5
Smith	2	1	0	1	1	1—5

Kyle	1	1	1	1	1	0—5

Jones	0	0	0	1	0	1—2

Another pool gave the following result:

Kyle	1	2	1	2	1	1—6
"Slade"	1	0	2	2	1	2—5

A "freeze-out" participated in by Haas, Barney and Smith resulted in a win for the latter on fifth bird. Uncle Robert Liddle and "Jones" had a couple of private matches in which the veteran trap shot came off victorious.

Accidents will continue to happen, and men doubtless will go on until the close of the chapter surprising, at times, themselves as well as friends. We append something of this nature, which then took place. The "accident" only referring to first score below.

C. W. Kyle	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	*	0	2	1	1	1	1	1—20

Mr. Barney stood in this last shoot at thirty-two yards and Kyle, an amateur shot with "L. C. Smith" gun, at twenty-six yards, the latter killing 20 out of 22 birds fired at, using second barrel but once, and that for safety while the bird was on the ground. Mr. Barney killing 13 out of 15 fired at at thirty-two yards, testing nicely his skill and also his new "Greener." This closed the sport of the day.

Mr. C. A. Loud, a former resident of this place, who has spent some years in Oregon, is now visiting in the city renewing old acquaintanceships and rehearsing with the veteran gun men the stirring times when every man's dooryard stretched away into limitless cover for all kinds of game birds and animals, on which they preyed at will. Those were the days which will ever remain as a rich oasis compared to the comparative desert now presented the sportsman, and this is true even though plenty remains. Mr. Loud was an interested spectator at the pigeon match of the Recreation Club on Sunday last.

The Country Club.

On Saturday last several members of the Country Club assembled at Oakland Park for the purpose of engaging in a practice shoot. The birds were a very fair lot and kept the gentlemen on the alert to bring them down. The shooting commenced at noon and occupied the day. When it is stated that there were forty-five dozen birds used on this occasion, it will convey an idea of the rapid and regular work of the ten gentlemen shooting. Some of the scores stood as follows:

F. D. Atherton	2	2	2	2	0	2	1	2	0	1	0 1—9
R. H. Sprague	0	1	2	2	0	1	2	0	0	1	1 1—8

R. E. Wilson	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2	0	1	1—11

F. D. Atherton	0	2	1	0	2	1	0	0	1	2	1	0— 7

A six bird pool followed. The score.

J. M. Adams	2	1	1	2	1	2—6
F. R. Webster	0	2	2	2	1	1—5
R. H. Sprague	1	1	1	2	1	0—5

Six-bird pools followed until the birds were used up, in which Webster, Wilson, Tubbs, Tallant and Sprague made clean scores repeatedly. This informal gathering proved a most interesting season of sport and all returned to the city well pleased with the outing.

The degree of skill required in grassing birds at the trap can never be acquired without a thorough understanding and observance of the several flights and angles presented, unless one depends entirely on practice. Even then one cannot hope to succeed until the practice has been sufficient to instill into his mind fully and fixedly the relative position of bird and gun when an effective shot is made. Every good shot has doubtless a perfect system or plan which he follows in shooting in order to be successful. To illustrate. One man swings his gun with the bird and fires while the gun is in motion, always leading his bird by some inches to that of a foot if the flight be other than incoming, in which case he leads it but an inch or so, virtually firing at the head of the bird. Another man takes note of the direction of flight and speed of his bird and throwing the gun at a chosen point from one to three or four feet in front of the bird fires, depending on the speed of the bird to equalize the stationary position of his gun. To this class of shooters fully two-thirds or more of the average shots belong. In shooting at the trap in order to be successful there can be but little of the much talked-of swinging with the birds for the birds must be killed before you have any time to do the swinging act. To know how to shoot and to put that knowledge into practice is two very different propositions. A man may know how to construct a watch—may have the plans to a nicety—in his mind, yet he might not be able to perform the skilled work necessary to the construction of any one of its simplest parts. The best of theorists must have practice in the execution of their own plans. What we do claim is that any one having the desire to learn to shoot may do so and that more or less readily provided they first have definitely fixed, in their mind, the proper theory. Nothing was ever successfully accomplished, eliminiating the element of accident, unless the force necessary to the execution of the work was intelligently directed according to some definite and well-digested plan. There are occasional exceptions to all rules, but even these, in pigeon shooting at the trap, are only peculiar applications of the same theory or plan. Smile at theorists if you please, but actual demonstration will establish the rule. Every man has, from the very nature of the case must have a theory which he follows in shooting, and when we say he has become "rattled" we mean he has become confused as to applying his usual ideas in shooting and consequently "falls down."

Recognizing the importance, and having full faith in the ability of the State Sportsman's Association to accomplish the work to be done in this State in order to bring the sentiment of the public up to the proper level to insure the enforcement of the fish and game laws the Recreation Gun Club, at a meeting held on the first of the week joined the Association in a body and instructed its Secretary to notify the State Sportsmen's Association of said action.

It is to be hoped that every gun club in the State will do likewise in the near future. The dues are only one dollar per year and the Association is anxious to centralize the sportsman of the State, so that in the unity of this organization a force for good may be brought into active operation. There can be no questioning the fact that this work is of the first importance to every lover of rod and gun. Every sportsman, and every lover of gun and rod is included in the term sportsman, should join this body and assist in every way possible in enforcing a due observance of the laws designed to protect and foster the propogation of fish in the waters of this State, and the importation and breeding of all kinds of desirable game, birds and animals. Our forests and streams need preserving. Will you not lend your name, influence and dollar to this end? If so, and you are not already a member of the State Sportsman's Association, join it at once by enclosing your name and one dollar to the Secretary of the Association at 313 Bush Street, this city.

Mr. R. L. Palmer, of Tacoma, has been in the city for several days visiting friends, and participated in the pigeon shoot of the Recreation Club on the first of the week. He reports a very favorable outlook for the coming tournament in June, to be held by the sportsmen of the northwest. The abundance of game in that section makes the life of practical sportsmen there one to be envied. Grouse, quail and Mongolian pheasant in abundance, furnish attractions for the gun in the open field that thrill every nerve with delightful experiences. We trust that a number of the sportsmen from that section may find it convenient to attend the State tournament, to be held here in the fall.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, n their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

The California Kennel Club's Show.

The third bench show held by the California Kennel Club was opened at the Republican Wigwam at the corner of Eddy and Jones streets this city on Wednesday morning last.

Owing to various causes of delay in getting the dogs in order, owing, we are inclined to think, to the numerous delays caused by exhibitors in presenting their dogs, the judging did not commence until about 3 o'clock P. M., but when once under way everything moved off in good form. The attendants presented the dogs in the ring promptly and they were disposed of by Judge Mortimer with a promptness which showed him to be thoroughly familiar with the classes presented.

The day's judging closed with the pointer classes and every one who was in a position to judge impartially, found no fault with the awards.

Mr. D. J. Sinclair, late of Montreal, and a kennel man of some experience in the northwest as well, together with W. G. Cue, filled the position of assistant secretaries acceptably, posting the awards on the blackboard promptly and giving material aid to the press generally in securing the awards as made. Mr. J. J. Jamison as Ring Steward, and Captain Thomas Higgs as Superintendent, discharged their duties ably, and as a result everything in connection with the event was all that could be desired.

In Pointers and Fox Terriers there is a notable falling off in the numbers exhibited compared with last year's exhibit. The Mastiffs and St. Bernards were well represented, while the Great Dane Class can hardly be said to equal that of last year.

Among the visitors from a distance we noticed Mr. W. L. Wasington, the well known fancier of Irish Setters. It is safe to say that he found but little here to interest him in this breed. The local fanciers were present in goodly numbers, although from well known causes many of them owning splendid dogs did not appear as exhibitors.

In the crowd which filled the hall we noticed William Schreiber, F. R. Webster, Raymond E. Wilson, J. B. Martin, Henry Huber, E. T. Allen and H. C. Golcher.

A. B. Truman was about the hall constantly with an eye to keep things moving promptly.

On the whole the show has been fairly well attended, and Judge Mortimer's decisions have given well nigh universal satisfaction, although some exhibitors, who have failed in having their dogs placed to the front, are feeling, as usual, disappointed.

Owing to the fact that these columns go early to press, we are compelled to content ourselves with presenting the awards only, in this issue, leaving our comments on all classes for next issue, preferring to present them all together. The awards are as follows:

Handling Field Dogs.

What is the matter with the dog men? Every week we read in the sportsmen's journals articles in favor of and against certain ways of handling field dogs; what is necessary for a dog to acquire to make him a field dog, how retrieving injures how and keeps him from "getting there" to take the prize. What does it all amount to? There are sportsmen and would-be sportsmen. One from the love of field sports has from early youth been accustomed to owning good dogs, at least so good that he did not consider it worthy of notice to own one who was staunch on all game birds and had bird-sense to find them. This old moss-back does not know much more, for the would-be has joined the ranks of an advanced crowd who has found out there is money in the dog, if rules could be devised so that some of the qualities of the least use could be made to count as the most valuable. So much has this great humbug speed been written and talked about in connection with the field trials that the most important quality of all is a field dog. Nose is hardly alluded to and as we carefully read the accounts of the trials and notice the many flashes, one who has owned, what he had supposed to be only a good, fair dog, is led to think he has quite a good one. Is it not an absolute fact that the sportsmen who have nerve attended any of the field trials, are deceived when they are led to believe that those field trial winners are any better than scores of others bred the same or as good, and sometimes better? And is a dog any better, or is he as good, when not under subjection as to being regulated in his speed, a field dog who dererves any rank above the ordinary should be good on all game birds, no matter where they are located, and a field trial dog, so called and known as such on account of having taken in a prize is of no more use to a sportsman than to have a pleasant profitable day afield, than a trained track horse, is to have a pleasant afternoon's ride behind—let him go, and if he gets there first he becomes a stud dog to humbug the world he's with, for it is a stud dog they are after and not birds. Yet we have the best material for good field dogs at the present time, ever in the world, and the field trial handlers are as competent to break and handle them. Yet they have no reason to desire a change of scales that would compel them to have the dogs under better subjection. Nature gave the nose and style, also the speed, to encourage the increase of speed, to the sacrifice of a carefulness, not to flash, is to impare the most essential quality in the field dog. And for a field dog to run wild and only be staunch is of no use, endurance beyond what any sportsman desires to carry him through, is all he asks of his dog and the main difference in a field dog from a gentleman's field dog is, one is intended and gotten up for money-winning purposes, the other for pleasures in the field after birds.

Mr. James Mortimer.

The kennel club shows of the Pacific Coast have again come and gone. They have been judged by Mr. James Mortimer, of New York, whose name has long since become familiar to every one in the fancy as the able and efficient manager of the great annual bench shows held in New York City. The position so ably and satisfactorially filled by Mr. Mortimer, gives a fair index to the character of the man, which a personal meeting with him only serves to more deeply impress. Practical, straightforward and unassuming, yet withal genial and courteous, he has made friends limited in no sense even by the number that have had the pleasure of meeting him personally.

As a judge he has given the best of satisfaction, and it goes without saying that he will, in the future, be earnestly solicited to return to the Pacific Coast in the same capacity which marked his recent visit.

The fact that he is interested in the Hemstead Farm, but twenty-two miles from New York, on which all kinds of fancy stock is kept and bred, marks him as a lover of all classes of domestic animals. This farm comprises five hundred acres, which is a large one for that section of the country, and furnishes ample accommodations for the horses, cattle, swine, kennels, poultry yards and race-course for which it is already noted. The kennels contain the famous pointer Champion Duke of Hessen and Champion Robert le Diable," and other splendid dogs. Mr. Mortimer intends securing in Arizona and New Mexico a drove of "Rocky Mountain Nightengales," or vest pocket editions of the donkey, usually termed burros, and ship them to his farm above mentioned. These little curios will prove quite a drawing card, as the average boy or girl would prefer one of them as a gift to that of the most speedy thoroughbred.

J. B. Martin of this city, has placed his fox-terriers Blemton Reefer and Blemton Shiner in the stud. Reefer has won fourth prize at New York and first and special at Los Angeles this year, he has beaten some high class dogs in the East and last week he defeated Champion Blemton Volunteer. He is unquestionably the best fox terrier on this Coast and as his breeding combines the Champion dog of England with that of the Champion bitch of America, and as he is related on both sides to high-class winners, he should certainly be a success in the stud. Blemton Shiner has proven to be the most successful stud foxterrier brought to this Coast, having sired Randy, Roxy and Qidy, First Prize winners,, Bonnie Buzz, a double second prize winner and Nailer and Golden Chip, Third Prize winners.

Mr. Martin also has some pups for sale out of the prize winning bitches Blemton Rapture and Golden Chip. Mr. Martin has splendid accommodations for bitches in season.

Mr. C. A. Sumner is to be especially commended for the very excellent condition in which he presented his Foxterriers in the recent Los Angeles bench show. Thev showed the evidence of careful, painstaking and intelligent work. Slick as moles and tough as badgers were every one of them.

Mr. George T. Allender was present at the show in charge of those two grand pointers belonging to Mr. Henry Huber, Duke of Vernon and Sally Brass II. These dogs had no opposition in their classes, or in the show, of this breed, for that matter.

Mr. W. L. Washington, "Kildare," was an interested visitor to the show, and we noticed him paying particular attention to the Irish setters, the breed in which he is especially interested.

What some men do not know about running a kennel club show was strikingly illustrated in the late event held in this city.

Some Things to Love.

Some love the rifle, rod and line,
To these my heart will oft incline;
But flash of gun, or whirr of reel,
Is not so sweet as buzz of wheel—
When horses strive to win the heat
With throbbing hearts and pattering feet.

"Hey, boy!" "On, girl!" the drivers cry.
They're head and head, which will pass by!
"I fed you, girl, and stroked your mane,"
One driver said, "when babe you came."
"Go on, my boy!" the other said;
He shifts the bet and lifts his head.

So whirls and turns the striving wheel
Behind the heads on fire, to feel;
The driver's voice, the cheer on cheer
When thousands stand expectant near.
The horse he wins, nor makes a break;
"Steady! my girl, the heat you take."

The boys who love the trotters all,
Lead them, covered, to quiet stall;
To rub the coat, smooth down the mane,
Bandage the legs, that, fresh again,
With springy step and flashing eye,
They may again for victory try.

A Pheasant's Wing.

A pheasant's wing neatly pressed and adorned with a bit of pink ribbon, tied in a bow, and attached at the point of severance from the body of the bird, adorns the wall of my room over my study table. What a flood of found recollections awaken and sweep through the chambers of my mind as memory brushes the accumulating dust of years from fond scenes endeared by a multitude of pleasurable associations.

Not much of a memento? Well, no, perhaps not, but do you not know that a little thing, a mere nothing to others, becomes to me a priceless treasure because of its associations? You are not given to treasuring up mementoes? Then you have not learned one of the essentials in securing pleasure, and especially is this true of the sportsman's life—one who seeks to delve in Nature's innermost recesses and cull a sentence here and there from her most interesting pages, that in after years may serve the better to recall a wealth of treasure as a review is taken of the past—a sort of invoice of one's stock of experiences.

The pleasures of attending the outing on which I succeeded in bagging that pheasant are peculiarly interesting to me. You would enjoy hearing about it? All right. Have a cigar and make yourself physically comfortable. Strange, isn't it, how nearly allied are mental pleasures with those of the animal? Let me enlarge a parenthesis to say that I always find the seductive influence of the weed to be possively stimulating when falling into reminisence, paradoxical as that may seem. The soothing effects of the cigar seems to act upon the man much as nursery tales of wonderland or the mother's lulabys upon the child. An excellent cigar, did you say? I have found them so. This box was sent up with the compliments of a friend, an ardent admirer of field sports. Every body who loves a good cigar and a good dog knows him. The effect of the first one of these weeds was peculiar. You'd like to heaa it? Very well, here it is.

MY CIGAR.

The fragrant smoke from my cigar
Curls up in wreaths of blue;
Pdly my thoughts drift now afar
From old scenes to the new.
My youthful hours I live again,
Old visions come to me;
Freedom from care without a pain
Is drawn from memory.

CHORUS.

There is no hour so sweet to me
As when I live afar
In those loved days of memory,
While smoking my cigar.

It serves to sooth the cares of life
And banish every pain,
It lulls to ease all thoughts of strife
And warms life's chilling rain.
No aid so potent now to me,
No friend so good and true;
Would that all hearts could float so free
As its light waves of blue.

CHORUS.

There is no hour so sweet to me
As when I live afar
In those loved days of memory,
While smoking my cigar.

I envy not the lord his wealth,
Though poverty my lot;
No blessing adds to ruddy health
When troubles are forgot.
True magic balm for every heart—
Worker of visions fair—
Before thy charms cares all depart,
And dwell not anywhere.

CHORUS.

There is no hour so sweet to me
As when I live afar
In those loved days of memory,
While smoking my cigar.

"Does a cigar effect you that way often?" asked my friend, "for if it does," he added, "I'd advise you to quit smoking altogether. You know that tobacco is said to have the effect of producing softening of the brain in some cases!" "But come," he added, "are you not through with that parenthesis? Really it's all very fine but I'm anxious to hear about that pheasant's wing." "All right," I replied, "I'll tell you."

It was in the latter days of September that I paid a visit which proved to be one of the most pleasant of a number of delightful ones, spent at my uncle's, a farmer and stockman of that long-since famous dairying regions in the hills of Kentucky. I alighted at the station nearest his mountain home while it was yet early in the afternoon of one of those delightful Indian-summer days which visit that region much later in the season than is their wont elsewhere to do.

I had but fairly struck the platform before my cousins, Bob and Kate, were at my side welcoming me with that genuine heartiness of greeting which makes one feel that their coming has been pleasurably anticipated. Did you never experience that feeling? I tell you, my dear fellow, there is a wealth of genuine pleasure to be derived from it. Bob grasped my gun and grip and saw that my trunk was safely transfered to the light spring wagon in which they had driven a distance of eight miles to meet me, while Kate was kindly piloting me to a convenient seat in the conveyance, the while chatting eagerly of things social, personal and general. So much to ask about the "folks at home" and the many people she had met the winter before, while on a visit to the city. I could not get an audience, though I'm something of a talker myself, but when cousin Kate held the floor I, with most others, kept a discrete silence. To do otherwise would be but exertion lost. This, all who knew my beautiful cousin, acknowledged, and hence she was encouraged by reason of the quietness of her auditors, to talk on.

Kate was rightly named. Saucy, piquant, vivacious and wilful, and I will do her the justice to say really beautiful. Not that restful, passive beauty so often to be met with, which owes its principal charm to the reflection of ones condition and environments, but rather that form which reveals its chief interest and charm from activity of mind and graceful movement of form—a sort of power to create and evolve beautiful scenes and impressions.

We were soon seated, and cousin Bob cracked his whip over the magnificent span of bays and away we whirled, raising a spiral cloud of dust from the roadway, which floated on the quiet air much as a low-lying cloud, until it settled on scrub-oaks and bushes which lined the winding roadway on either hand. Presently we entered the more wooded hills, where the road led in and out of the shadows of the trees, which caused our way to be checkered with the gold of the autumn sun.

"How is Bess?" I eagerly asked of my cousin when I at length had an opportunity to speak.

"Oh, really, I had forgotten about your great interest in Bess when you were last here, and I must say that the balance of your friends might feel a bit jealous if they knew that this was was your first question. But I'll gratify you. Bess is well and active, and as vivacious as ever. We all think her more beautiful than ever, and she is much admired by all the young men of the country. I am almost inclined to be real jealous of her myself, as she takes up so much of the time and attention of all my gentlemen acquaintances. We reached the house just as the setting sun flecked the grassy hillside, which led up to the lawn, with its last lingering rays, touching with a kiss of glory the scarlet of the oaks, the russet of the maples and the deep green of the sweet gums and chincopins. Aunt Ellen came out to meet us and gave me a kindly welcome, while Tobe grinned as usual, showing a double row of ivories, while the whites of his eyes gleamed like silver rings from their encasement of ebony. Tobe was always glad to see me, for it was his privilege, and one which he regarded highly, of accompanying me on my outings with the gun through the neighboring hills. Then came old Mammy, who by the divine right of having spanked three generations of the family, had long since become a priviledged character.

'Brese yo' honey, 'pears like yo' been keerd fo' pow'ful well during de yeah. Yo's a little pale, but a few days in de hills 'll be bringin' de color back to yo' cheeks."

Later I met Bess, and to say I was glad to see her expresses my feelings but faintly, and I may say without any undue feeling of self-complacency that she exhibited a feeling of genuine delight in meeting me again.

We were soon on an easy footing, so much so that although cousin Kate could not go with us, she consented to accompany me on a short ramble in the hills on the following morning in quest of pheasant, which Tobe alleged to be 'playin' on ebber ole log in de hills back ob de paster lot, frum daylight 'til dey gets tired."

We were up early and away. The sunlight turning the dewdrops into flashing pearls and diamonds as they clung to leaf and vine, and flower, as we passed along, rendered the scene one of peculiar beauty and enchantment.

We had passed but a mile from the house when, pausing in a secluded spot, we listened for the music of the gamy birds. All was as silent as the grave. Not a breath of wind even to cause a tremble of the finely balanced leaves about us. Hark! Away off down the ravine to our left was heard the familiar sound of the birds. Again and again was the music repeated dying away in musical waves as the sound re-echoed through the forest-covered hills.

Bess then drew my attention to the thick cluster of undergrowth to our right. Listening we heard a gentle rustle of the leaves as of a bird treading about, just startled from its rest. Being on the alert, we cautiously moved forward when a brown flash of light springing from the cover, described a curve over the underbrush and through the trees. My gun belched forth a challenge for the bird to halt, but as the blue smoke curled away nothing but falling leaves and twigs were seen to be effected by the shot.

Missed by Jove, thought I. Not so with Bess, she was gone. I awaited some moments for her return, then walked into the bushes but could discern nothing. I followed on down the direction which the bird had taken in his flight and soon found Bess snuffing about unwilling to quit a certain spot though acting in a very peculiar manner. Finally she ran about with her head up in the air, pausing finally under a tree, the trunk of which was covered with vines and foliage. I decided to make a close inspection which resulted in my finding the pleasant impaled on a short dead limb of the tree, having flown with such force against it as to drive the twig clean through its body. I secured the bird and found that not a shot had touched it. I had succeeded in confusing it however and causing it to dash blindly to its death. Would you not preserve the wing of a pheasant so secured? Perhaps, answered my friend, if I only knew where the fool birds would commit suicide for my benefit.

Influence of Previous Sire.

You have had so much correspondence on the above subject that I have hestitated to add my quota to it, says Florence Marryat in English Stock-keeper, but as Mr. Wynne says in his letter of the 11th inst. that he "shall be very glad to be sat upon," I submit the following story for his consideration. The first dog I ever possessed was a small red wire-haired Terrier bitch, of about 8 lb., which was imported from Ireland. This little beast being allowed to run loose mated herself in her first season to a black-and-tan Terrier, and was sent to my gaandmother's stables at Wimbledon House to pup. Mr. Lukey, the great Mastiff and Maltese Terrier breeder, lived near Mrs. Marryat, and seeing this little bitch, who was very shapely, came to an agreement with the coachman to send her to him on the next opportunity, as he wanted to infuse some more vigorous blood in his breed of Maltese. In consequence he bred from her four or five years following, taking a pup from each litter. Some of the cross-pups were quite white, others different shades of red. But in every subsequent litter to the first there was one black-and-tan pup, which was in coat, color, and form essentially a black-and-tan Terrier. Also, I possess at this moment a black-and-tan broken-haired Toy, who mated herself, four years ago, during my absence, with a yellow mongrel with a tail curled like a Pug. She pupped last year to a thoroughbred black-and-tan Toy, and the only pup that survived has a tail curled exactly like the mongrel's, which, of course, ruins it. Now for mental influence, irrespective of sex. My father, Captain Marryat, had three young Pointers sent him from some particular strain—a liver dog and bitch and a fawn bitch. The two bitches were kept in the same kennel and run, and were very fond of each other. When the liver bitch came in use she was put to the liver dog, and threw a litter of fawn-colored pups.

I have been rather surprised to read some of the letters on this subject, because I thought the influence of a previous sire was an accepted possibility even with the human race. Medical men will tell you so, and I know of a case myself where the mother married a man with Eastern blood in him the first time, and secondly a very fair Englishman, and several of her children by the second marriage are as dark as those by the first. I have seen them all, so know it to be true.

Teaching Dogs to Retrieve.

Mr. A. C. Collins treating on the question of retrieving at field trials in American Field, in speaking of an incorrigible puppy says:

"Here was a chance to work a pet theory of mine. The owner was going to shoot the puppy. I informed him that I thought that the puppy could be taught to retrieve in one week. A broad, incredulous smile overspread the puppy owner's face. He said: 'If you can teach that puppy to retrieve I will give you (never mind the amount), it can't be done.' I replied: 'I will teach that puppy to retrieve in one week and will not charge one cent.' Now for my method. I took the puppy in the city—he had never been in a city before. When I went to my office the puppy was led and talked to. I then procured some small crackers and small bits of meat. The first day I took a small towel and had it sewed into a ball with some feathers sewed on the outside. When I had a few minutes to spare I would place my hand on the puppy's muzzle and gently open his mouth and place the ball in his mouth. Of course when I said 'fetch' he 'flopped' on his back. By degrees he seemed to get some confidence in himself and probably reasoned that he was not being harmed. When he got so that he would stand and hold the ball in his month and the word 'fetch' did not strike terror to his young heart, I rewarded him with a bit of meat. I never allowed him to spit the ball out of his mouth. I would gently but firmly place the ball in his mouth and hold my hand so as to clasp his muzzle if he attempted to drop the ball after using the work 'fetch,' and leading him a few feet I gave him some crackers and a little meat. Then I would leave him for half an hour. I am satisfied that in those thirty minutes the puppy did some lofty thinking. He reasoned that he got nothing to eat until he had performed certain acts and those were not painful.

"After the second day he appeared quite anxious to proceed with his lessons. At the end of the fifth day I could hide that ball anywhere in the office and saying 'fetch' he would hunt it up and scamper to me, sit down in front of me and hold the ball until I was ready to take it. On the sixth day I procured a fresh killed quail and threw it out and commanded the puppy to 'fetch.' Did he 'fetch?' Well, I guess not. When he found the quail, he simply 'flopped' on his back and churned the atmosphere with his feet. Well, this was getting interesting—to me. I went to the incumbent canine, lifted his puppy form to an upright position and gently placed the quail in his mouth and quietly said 'fetch.' He brought it to me somewhat reluctantly, however. I then gave him a cracker and chained him to my desk with the quail within easy reach and a dish of boiled beef heart just out of his reach. After he had collected his scattered thoughts I said 'fetch.' He appeared to be more interested in the dish of meat than in transporting game. After many futile efforts to secure the meat he commenced to look the quail over—he would go very near it, then jump back. I paid but little attention to him for an hour, when he whined, and when I looked up from my work he was sitting by my side with the quail in his mouth. I took the quail and carefully smoothed his feathers and then I gave the puppy a good mouthful of meat. Then the quail was put in the same place and I said 'fetch.' Suffice it to say I got that quail very quickly—then another reward. Inside of two hours the puppy was working in tall weeds for that quail—and got him too. He was as perfect a retriever from land or water as we had in this section of the State. This puppy was trained without an ax, club, check cord, spike collar, kicks, cuffs or oaths. Others can be trained the same way. It is not necessary to take a whip to teach a child his A, B, C's. You teach the child that a certain formed letter is A; the child does not learn this at first sight but he has to think. After awhile he can fathom the mystery."

Feed your horse as near the ground as possible; when eating low down more saliva becomes mixed with the food, aiding digestion. This is the reason why some men always feed out hay on the floor—the natural place for a horse to pick it up.

Gen. John E. Turner, the well-known trainer, was asked about a horse's characteristics that he was driving. He said, "The old rascal is very fast, but he is always listening to you, and appears as if he is afraid I will say, whoa, and he will not hear it."

Lee Shaner has about thirty trotters and pacers in his string at the Petaluma race track. He has some young Sidneys that will be "hot goods" during the races if they keep on improving. It is his intention to go to Salt Lake with a stable this year.

Says a practical horseman: Don't strike your horse with a fork handle or strike him over the head; if he needs punishing use a small whip—every-day clubbing or striking does no good. Make him respect you and the whip, and have him fear nothing else.

Palo Alto started in sixty-six heats against other horses and won forty-six. Allerton started against other horses in fifty-six heats and won thirty-three. Who, then, is King? Palo Alto was never farther back than second position; Allerton was behind the money four times.

There is but one son of Wilton in California, but he is a richly-bred fellow, having for his dam Gray Diana by Administrator; second dam Bashaw Belle, dam of Secure, 2:30, Carrie, 2:29½, and Strong Boy, pacer, 2:12. His name is Freckles, and his home is at Los Angeles.

There is a crippled mare at the Pleasanton Stock Farm that Mr. Salisbury is much interested in. She is by Monroe Chief, 2:18½, out of Nellie R., 2:17½. She is heavy with foal to Direct, 2:06. What a combination of records will appear in the tabulated pedigree of this new comer?

The day has almost dawned when it is possible for a trotter to earn as much money as a runner. From every nook and corner of the continent come announcements of big meetings and big stakes. Colt stakes, yearlings and two-year-olds have gone about as high as they can well go.

William L. Appleby is certainly a splendid conditioner of race horses, as the work of Castro and Orrin conclusively shows. It is said of Appleby that he never lost money on any horse he ever owned or trained, and some he has had have been given up as "no-goods" by other trainers.

Up to Saturday night, when Joe Narvaez quit riding here and went East, he had sixty mounts, of which number he piloted twenty-nine to victory, thirteen into second place, seven into third place and eleven unplaced, a showing never excelled by any jockey on this Coast, if indeed it has been approached.

The vast army of small breeders, who represent eighty-five per cent of animals registered in the ten volumes of the register, were ably championed and their interests thoroughly protected at the late Register Association meeting in Chicago by H. D. McKinney ("Mambrino"), W. H. Wilson and M. W. Oliver.

Chas. Marvin ordered a carload of hay to be sent to Meadville to be fed to "Sunol, the Queen." The hay was purchased at Pleasanton for $13 per ton, and the freight was $24 a ton more. That is pretty expensive feeeding, and only goes to show that Mr. Marvin's opinion coincides with that of every Eastern horseman who has ever seen the hay that grows here. There's no other hay in the world like it!

The splendid suckling colt that we made mention of last week (by Silver Bow, 2:22½, dam by Grand Moor) was drowned one week ago yesterday in a creek near Asylum Stock Farm, San Rafael. The mother broke out of the pasture and jumped into the creek, and came within an ace of drowning also.

L. Richards, of Grayson, has a number of fine colts and fillies by Elector which he will send to Pleasanton to be handled by Mr. Murray as soon as he can get stall room there. If there were stalls enough at this track there is no doubt that at least two handsome youngsters would be wintered and worked there.

W. B. Hawkins, Lexington, Ky., has lost, by death, his stallion, Lyle Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lou Coons, by American Clay. Blood poisoning caused his death. He was the sire of Wood Wilkes, 2:25, and four others better than than 2:30. Two of his sons and two of his daughters are also producers of 2:30 trotters.

R. Porter Ashe's thoroughbreds quartered at Bay District track have, almost without exception, suffered from the effects of distemper, and Don Fulano, especially, had a severe tussle with the disease. We trust that they will all get around into shape in time to proceed East and win many thousands of dollars for their genial owner.

Up to last Saturday night the ten leading winning owners were, in their order: D. McCarty, $4,035; C. E. Trevathan, $2,580, (estimated); L. J. Rose, $2,140; B. C. Holly, $2,100; Encinco Stable, $2,010; Elmwood Stable, $1,935, (estimated); Owen Bros., $1,485; Maltese Villa Stable, $1,375; P. Siebenthaler, $1,175; Palo Alto Stable, $1,160.

Do not forget the Haggin sale which takes place on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, commencing at ten o'clock of each day, includes a number of road, harness and work horses, besides Shetland ponies. A number of very fast trotters and pacers have been purchased at the Haggin sales, and similar opportunities is offered at every one of them.

It is performances which originally established the value of blood lines, and consequently performance is the beginning and end of virtue in the trotting horse. It is not so long ago that animals of fashionable blood lines were sold for thousands of dollars on pedigree alone, but that day has passed for good, and now it takes a performer to bring big money.

Col. H. I. Thornton has sold to Charles Fair, of this city, the two-year-old colt by imp. Darebin, dam Carrie C., by Monday. The consideration is said to have been $6,000. This youngster has been touted as showing quarters in 23 seconds and eighths in 11 seconds, and if he does as well in his races as in private he is a cheap colt at the figure named.

Charles Kerr sent his string of thoroughbreds to Chicago Wednesday, it consisting of Ulster, by Warwick, out of Maid of Stockdale, by Shannon; Jennie K., by Sir Modred, out of Wild Rose; Antrim, by Apache, out of Brook, by Ten Broeck; Santa Midio, by Apache, out of Cinderella, by Catesby. All of L. J. Rose's string and Wilber Field Smith's great horse Zaldivar were shipped at the same time.

A great many intelligent men are getting to hold just such an opinion as this: "I believe in selecting individuals with speed when breeding. My idea of the future of the trotting horse is that he will be bred for his qualities as a gentleman's roadster and as a race horse. It is the game horse we want and the one that will stay in a race, and not the horse that will do his best only when he has everything his own way."

The rule on nomenclature: "Any horse, mare or gelding which has started or obtained a record in a race and is eligible to registration may be registered by the name under which said start was made or record obtained, if such race shall have occurred before January 1, 1892; but no mare foaled after January 1, 1890, shall be registered under a name by which another animal has been registered, except as above provided."

One of the best and most pleasant ways of getting a good road horse is to buy a well-bred and well-broken colt, and bring him up carefully, says a leading writer. Of course, one must buy where they will get treated fairly, and must remember that everything in horseflesh is subject to accidents; but there is no safer way than to purchase a young horse that has been well broken and gaited and has never been injured from abuse or over-driving.

The black stallion Thistle, 2:19½, is going very fast at Parkville Farm this spring and it is expected he will equal the record of his sister, Gold Leaf, 2:11½. Thistle worked a mile in 2:23½ last week, finishing considerably better than a 2:20 gait. Another promising pacer at Parkville is the three-year-old filly Eagle Princess by Eagle bird, dam by Young Jim. She trotted last year, but seemed more inclined to pace this spring and is improving every time she goes.

Controlling the sex of animals, says on exchange, is as impossible to do as to square a circle or establish perpetual motion. The secrets of Nature's workings in reproduction will never be discovered by man, yet there are cranks who think they have solved the problem. And yet the first fourteen foals dropped at Allen Farm this season were fillies, which is a tolerably fair evidence that somebody about the farm has a theory that is working well in practice.

When Mr. Salisbury was asked about filling the vacancy left by Director, 2:17, at the Pleasanton Stock Farm, he replied: "I hardly know what I will do They are looking for such very fast ones nowadays that I am puzzled to know which way to look. Director never will be replaced, in my estimation, and if I get a stallion to stand for service here he must be as near my ideal as I can possibly get him. He must be able to sire colts that will go as close to the records made by running horses as possible."

This is the way Senator Tongue puts it in his report to the State Board of Oregon: "He whose pulse has never quickened with the increasing speed of a favorite roadster; who has never learned to love, as sweet music, the rhythm of swift, pattering hoofs; who has not felt a dull care brushed from his brow by the swift, rushing breeze, as that noblest of all animals, with flashing eye, distended nostril and swelling muscles, answers his master's call, and the magnetic touch of bit and rein with a fresh burst of speed—has missed the sweetest enjoyment of life."

WIGHTMAN, three-year-old bay colt by Bramble, dam Planchette by Brown Dick, has been sold for $10,000 by Jockey Tom Kiley to Gambrinus Stable, Memphis, Tenn. As a two-year-old Wightman was high class, while in his only start this season thus far he forced Ethel to beat the mile record at Montgomery Park. Harvest Time, two-year-old bay filly by Iroquois, dam Vintage Time, by imp. Great Tom, has been sold to same firm by W. C. Cannon of Memphis. Harvest Time is a half-sister to Uncle Bob, the American Derby winner of 1890. The price paid was $4,000.

THE practice of by-bidding at combination sales have ruined many organizations. If you have a stock that is good enough to put on the market don't be afraid but what it will bring all it's worth. Have courage enough to enter your stock, then nerve enough to let it go. It does not look very well for a breeder to have his boys leading his stock home the week after a combination sale to which it was consigned from the fact that a possible buyer may think that either no one wanted it, or it was only at the sale for exhibition purposes and to show how much the owner was willing to pay for his own good.

"A SOFT answer turneth away wrath." A farmer who sent his mares to every cross-roads $10 stallion in Alameda became imbued with the idea that one of his colt, was standard, and after receiving a negative answer from this journal regarding his registration, he asked a well-known horseman at the Oakland track about it, and said: "Them BREEDER AND SPORSMAN fellers say that he cannot be registered but I think they're agin me, anyhow. Say, here's his pedigree." He gave the pedigree in full and ended by asking, "Now, don't you think he is fit for registration?" The man promptly answered, "Registration, no, sir! Castration, by all means!"

WHILE at Pleasanton last week we called upon Mr. G. Valensin, and found that gentleman very ill. It would not be surprising if he was compelled to cancel all his engagements in the East and keep his stable of trotters and pacers at home this year. This gentleman takes a deep interest in the progress of the colts and fillies in training, and were he strong physically no one who knows him doubts the position he would assume among the very greatest of trotting horse men on the turf. It is hoped that he will soon recover his strength, however, and be able to show the people of the East what a string of trotting "phenomenals" he has in training.

NAVIDAD is getting any amount of abuse. Because George Ketcham has decided to make a farm horse of him this year quill-drivers all over the land have started to call him a no-account brute, unsound, outclassed, one that has seen his best days and everything else on the list. The real truth of the matter is, however, that there is not a thing the matter with Navidad. Last year he was bothered with a splint and it lamed him so that he had to be turned out. It is gone now, but as Navidad was still a young horse it was deemed advisable to give him a year's rest. Look for him in 1893, when he will be one of the free-for-all hustlers turned loose in the big stakes.

HARRY PEPPERS, the jockey whom a man named Spaulding accused of taking some jewelry, was quickly acquitted of the charge on Friday morning, last week. Judge Rix declared that he considered Pepper's arrest an outrage. Spaulding had had some jewelry repaired at Lundy's and put it in his pocket. Just then Peppers walked in to talk to Lundy, with whom he was acquainted. Spaulding went out later and found he had lost the jewelry. Then, without any reason for believing that the jewelry had been stolen, but with every reason for knowing that he had lost it by his own carelessness, Spaulding had young Peppers arrested. Judge Rix spoke of Spaulding's conduct in severe terms.

IN Volume X of the American Trotting Register, just issued, over four hundred pages are filled with standard mares and geldings. This is as it should be. In the past many breeders have neglected to register their mares and as a result they have had trouble at a later period in registering their produce. It is just as important to register the filly as it is the colt, and should the stock ever go under the hammer the registration as a means of identification pays for itself many times over. The non-standard department is small, though here again breeders who own non-standard stock should always register it, for if it becomes standard the transfer can be made with ease and at a nominal cost.

IN THE reminiscences with which Mr. John T. Price, the well-known liveryman of Washington, entertained his friends on the occasion of his sixtieth birthday some glimpses were given of the private character of public men. Thus, General Grant wanted the fastest trotters in the stable for his recreative "spin;" President Cleveland always asked for a gentle animal; President Arthur fancied that a pacer attached to his carriage gave him a most delightful sensation; President Hayes wanted a gentle horse for an early morning ride, and would not select one until he had seen several tried by the stable boys; and General Sheridan, a daring and reckless rider, always required a fiery steed.

A VERY entertaining writer and a practical and successful breeder of trotting horses as well suggests that the Register Association issue a consolidated index of all the animals registered in the 10 volumes of the Register, giving the number of stallions, age and rule under which animals were registered, etc. There would be a great demand for such an index, for there are many breeders that cannot afford to purchase a full set of registers, and such an index would give them an opportunity of learning just what animals are registered. As it is now, those who do not possess a complete set of registers are subjected to considerable trouble and delay in finding out whether or not certain animals are registered.

THE religious community of Saranac, Mich., is reported by the press to be in a pertubed condition. A leader of the lambs has deserted his flock and henceforth will be found piloting trotters down the homestretch. Reverend J. W. Arney, the well-known Methodist divine, has laid down the garments of the pulpit and in the future will don the driver's jacket. His determination to resign the pastorate was announced by him in the pulpit a few days since, and the report reads that the good brethren shed copious tears. Rev. Mr. Arney has long cherished a desire to shine as a fancier of the light harness horse, and on several occasions his desire got him before the conference. We doff our headgear to the reverend gentleman from Michigan and wish him mighty well.

THE loud-mouthed horseman of ten years ago who thrived in large and small communities alike and flourished after a manner of the green bay tree has disappeared from the scene of action and his place taken by quiet, honorable, popular men. The loud-mouthed horseman has died from want of patronage. He was a detriment to the racing business—in fact, the greatest drawback of the many factors connected with the trotting industry. He was a disgusting object and the most unpopular man in the community. But the change has been radical, and now a man may engage in the business without fear of being ostracised from good society. Yes, the coarse, vulgar, bombastic "hoss man" is but a memory of the past, for in his place we see men of influence and plenty of self-respect.

A HORSE is a great deal like a man. Let him get overworked, over-starved or abused, and particularly for the want of sufficient drink in warm weather, and the consequences will always be injurious. Sensible hostlers in large cities are awakening to the advantage of frequent watering. Street car horses are watered every hour, and sometimes oftener, while at work. It is plenty of water that supplies evaporation or perspiration and keeps down the temperature. What old-fogy methods amount to may be seen by the change in medical practice to man. Twenty years ago a person having a fever of any kind or pneumonia was allowed but little water to drink, and then it had to be tepid. To-day practitioners prescribe liberally iced water, and in addition cold bandages are applied to reduce and control the temperature of the blood. What is applicable to man will never injure a horse.

ROBERT BONNER, in a long letter, among other good and sensible things says: "I expect to see the day when horse-shoeing will assume its proper place as one of the professions. Doctors and lawyers keep their diplomas framed and hung in their offices. Why should not the farrier be compelled to pass an examination and do the same thing? A horse's feet and limbs are the most important parts of his body. He seldom has troubles which cannot be traced to them. And yet even colts, forced as they are, frequently show signs of breaking down in those delicate members. What misery is in store for them? Their lives are short at the best, and then to think that they should be filled with agony. It is horrible! The man or woman who can by care, by the formation of public sentiment and by education as to intelligent action forward this great cause will be relieving more suffering and doing more actual good than by almost any other way known to the world."

MATT STORN, the well-known horseman, left Agricultural Park, Sacramento, last Tuesday for Denver with his string of thoroughbreds, which consist of imp. Merriwa, five years, by Goldsbrough—Habena, by Yattendon; Marigold, five years, by Milner—Katy Pease, by Planet; Mystery, four years, by Three Cheers—Mistake; Centella, three years, by Joe Hooker—Katy Pease; Top Gallant, three years, by imp. Mariner—Lady Clare, by Joe Daniels; Hermitage, two years, by imp. Friar Tuck—Mistake, and Phœbe Ann, two years, by imp. Friar Tuck—Arathusa, by Joe Hooker. Besides these Mr. Storn has a couple of trotters. Denver will be the first stopping place, and from there the string goes to Chicago and the far East. This is a good string, and we expect to see Mr. Storn come back with a considerable increase in his bank account at the season's end. Great things are expected of Top Gallant, Merriwa, Centella and Mystery, while the others are thought to be more than oat-winners.

SOME drivers will take more out of a horse in going five miles over a country road than many others will in going twenty miles. If a hard drive of twenty or thirty miles is before a horse, start out moderately. Do not whip or worry or fret him. Leave all his strength, nerve and energy to be expended in going forward. After going along quietly and not too rapidly for a few miles and the horse becomes warmed up, his muscles distended and he is relieved of the hay eaten the night before, then push along briskly and do the heaviest work of the day. Don't hurry up the long hills. Stop frequently, cramp the buggy so as to take the load off the horse and give him time to catch his breath. You will make better time in the end by pursuing this course, your horse will finish his day's work in better condition, and you will avoid wind galls. Make time on roads which are level or slightly down hill. Then the weight does not drag heavily, and he is not jarred when going fast as he would be if going fast down a steep hill.

ON THE trotting grounds at Moscow, Russia, three single elliptical tracks are laid out side by side, and the horses are started at different points, so as to make the distance traveled equal. A horse that makes more than four breaks, or jumps eleven or more times while in a break is ruled out. If he dances up and down each upward bound is considered a jump. A regulation track on the American plan encircles the single tracks, and all the contestants score in a chute and race on it in accordance to our methods. The betting is done through the French mutuels. The best Russian trotter is a little stallion named Tabor. He is of the Orloff breed, but smaller and finer than his kinsmen. He can trot close to 2:20 if rigged, booted, trained and driven as our trotters are handled. There is plenty of money to be made by taking some good trotters to Russia, but to beat Tabor you must have a reliable 2:20 horse, a steady rater, with endurance to go a dash of two miles and upwards. The government encourages breeding and racing trotters. Prizes as high as 25,000 roubles are given for speed contests by native-bred three-year-olds.

IN LOOKING over the catalogue of the sale that is to take place at Killip & Co.'s salesyard on the 17th of this month, it will be seen that a rare chance is offered horsemen and breeders to secure choice animals. Among the rest are two stallions whose names have appeared in our advertising columns for some time, viz., Rosemeath, by Alcazar, 2:20½, out of Souvenir by The Moor 870—a beautiful young horse and one worthy of gracing the premier place on any stock farm in the land; and Khartoum, by Soudan, 2:27½, out of Black Betty (dam of Mamie Comet, 2:23¾, the dam of Macleay, 2:22½), by Sportsman, etc. He is a strong, well-built, perfect-gaited horse, and as stylish as a peacock. Besides these, there are mares, colts and fillies by such sires as Noonday, Albert W., 2:20, Gus, 2:26½, Mountain Boy, Anteros, Soudan, 2:27½, Dawn, 2:18¾, Clay, 2:25, Brown Jug, Arthur Wilkes, Grosvenor, A. W. Richmond, Coligne 11,619, Antevolo, 2:19½, Richards' Elector and Prompter, out of first-class broodmares. All of the animals offered in this combination sale have been selected with care. The Whitney consignment consists of representatives of Swigert, Dawn, Sidney, Sable Wilkes and other splendid sires out of matrons that have been chosen for their great individuality. Everything offered at the sale MUST BE SOLD

AFTER running entirely out of popular esteem in Orange county, Abdallah returned in 1849 to the city of New York, where he remained at Old Bull's Head, but did nothing. In 1850 he received sixteen mares, and in 1851 he was in Suffolk county on Long Island, but from thenceforth he seemed to be without friends and patronage. He had already survived his own usefulness and outlived popular esteem. He was taken to a remote place on the island and finally given to a farmer on condition that he should deal kindly with him for the remainder of his days. This farmer, concurring in the general estimate that all others seemed to have reached concerning the old horse, then above thirty years of age, sold the king of trotting stallions to a fisherman for thirty-five dollars! Such is greatness. The fisherman, thinking he was about old enough to lay aside regal honors and earn his living like other people and horses, hitched him to a wagon, but the aged monarch, not willing to yield to the degradation, kicked the wagon to pieces, preferring to die of starvation rather than submit to such menial servitude in the days of his decline. The frightened fisherman, not able to cope with such an imperial temper, left him to his fate, and as the solitary monarch of the sands he surveyed, he died of absolute starvation.

"SPEAKING of sure foal getters, do you know that Eros is one of the most wonderful of that class in this State," said a prominent horseman at the San Jose race track last Saturday. "Since Mr. Burke purchased him he has bred him to eighteen mares that were all over nineteen years of age and they had foals. He bred him to seven other mares that were pronounced barren for over five years and they were also producers. This lot were bred every year to other stallions and the idea of breeding them was almost abandoned when he bred them. He purchased for a small sum the old mare Sister (dam of Albert W. and Bonanza) by John Nelson, and every one said she would never breed again, but in 1891 she produced the bay colt Prince Consort by Eros and last week she added more glory to the La Siesta Stock Farm by producing another young Eros colt that Mr. Burke ought to keep as his premier stallion. The youngster is a bright bay with star and small strip and is very well proportioned. Sister will be bred to Eros again. The grand old broodmare Fanny Fern is also about to have a foal to Eros. This mare is the dam of Balkan 2:15, Molly Drew 2:27 and Fred Arnold 2:29 and many thought her days of maternity were over, but Mr. Burke must have had a different opinion for he bought her and soon will have a little half-brother to Balkan at his place."

THE breeding of the trotting horse is rapidly growing in popularity, especially among the better class of people. The time was when to own a trotting horse was sufficient reason for placing a man on the list with gamblers, and as an outcast from respectable society he had nothing to do but to find consolation in the thought that he could, as the poet says, "Fall down and love his hoss." But the natural tendency of human affection toward the noblest of all animal creation has conquered the antipathy of those over-zealous persons who did not know, hence could not realize the benefit of the trotting horse to mankind, and now, in later years, he is receiving attention from the most refined and educated society. We should not, therefore, allow the business to again become demoralized, even in a few instances, but should raise the hue and cry against things that have a tendency to lower the standard of turf morality. The aim of every breeder in the land should be to elevate and keep pure as possible the trotting turf. As long as deceptions are practiced on the unwary by the unprincipled and those that have so much greed of gain, this cannot be done, but as soon as the battery of public and private sentiment is turned upon them through the medium of some of our excellent horse journals, they must cease their nefarious work; for let it become known that they are placing fraudulent pedigrees and false assertions before the public to court its favor, their businesss will be done.

ONE day last week there were seated in my office a gentleman from Canada, on the shady side of sixty, who had been a lover of trotters ever since his boyhood, and quite a breeder of them for many years, and a younger man who had been closely connected with the interest for about a decade. The conversation between the two naturally turned upon horses, and the fact that Electioneer had now an even one hundred in the 2:30 list was commented on. The young man said: "Surprising as the success of Electioneer is, it is still more so because of a recent interview I had with a veteran trainer and driver of Orange county, Mr. James W. Hoyt. The old gentleman is now completely blind, but most entertaining as a talker, and is regarded about Goshen and Chester as the authority for the region. When I visited him of course we could not avoid the Electioneer topic, and Mr Hoyt said: "Well, it is the most astonishing thing to me that that horse has done what he has, on account of his breeding on his dam's side. I drove Sayre's Harry Clay in several races, and he was about the meanest actor I ever handled. He might go a heat pretty well, and in the next he would just stop, and swerve so that it would be all I could do to keep him from running into the fence. As for Green Mountain Maid, she was the meanest, sourest brute I ever drew a line over, except her mother, Shanghai Mary. Old Hambletonian must have overcome all the cussedness on the dam's side to have got an Electioneer.'"—Exchange.

ALMOST every man that trains trotting horses for a living has been in a tight place at some time in his career. Speaking on this subject some time ago, Charles Marvin told how at Utica in a race Smuggler and the Spotted Colt came together. One of the wheels of his sulky ran over the axle of the one the Colt was hooked to, and while no one was hurt, one of Smuggler's hind legs had a close call from a bad scrape, as the tire of the wheel that remained on the ground cut the boot away as if it were paper. Once on the Lexington track Marvin also had an accident of the same kind. He was driving a horse that scored down freely, while Frank Van Ness had one that came back when he heard the bell. The pair came together and Marvin came within an ace of going down between the horse and the sulky. The scaliest place, however, that Marvin was in since he mounted a sulky for the first time was one morning at Palo Alto, when the tire of a sulky that he was using parted. A couple of yards of the band of steel became loose, and at every revolution of the wheel it whisked within a few inches of the top of his head, and came down with a bang on the quarters of the colt that he was driving. Of course the colt started to run away, and for a time Marvin had a close squeak. He dare not brace himself to take a pull on the colt for fear the tire would hit him in the back of the head, and the faster the colt ran the harder he was banged. For three-quarters of a mile the situation was a decidedly ticklish one, but with a little assistance the colt was stopped and a very serious accident averted.

TIMELY TROTTING TOPICS.

Breeders Looking for the Two-Minute Performer.

It has been very safe to make prophecies concerning the development of speed in harness during the past four or five years. Breeding has had such a boom since men of the Stanford sort became interested in it that the quality of the stock has greatly improved, while prices for champion performers have advanced to at least ten times as much as the pioneers ever dreamed of. Had any one told gruff old William Rysdyk back in the fifties that a grandson of his stallion Hambletonian would bring $125,000 at two years he would probably have ordered him out of Chester and tried to get him banished from Orange county as a more dangerous enemy than his enemy, Goldsmith. Even when George Wilkes and Dexter made their sire's reputation, the highest stud fee Rysdyk thought of asking was $5 00, or only one-fifth what the precious Arion now commands, with more patronage than Mr. Forbes cares to entertain.

Every season since Sunol reduced the record for two-year-olds to 2:18 has been one of added triumph for the Electioneer strain till 1891 saw nearly every best-on-record at the trot swept into the ambitious stable at Menlo Park, and all to the credit of the dead premier of Palo Alto Farm. Only the yearling record failed to remain there, and it was a case of history repeating itself, for the 2:31 of Norlaine, which stood from 1887 as the best for that age till 1890 was superseded by the performance of Freedom, whose 2:27 marked the opening of the 2:30 list to the baby trotters, and scored a triumph for the Wilkes family. Last year Bell Bird restored the yearling championship to Electioneer, and it seemed as if her 2:26½ would be an insurmountable barrier, but Frost Frost, a daughter of Sidney, scaled it a few weeks before the year ended by a mile in 2:25¼, and again a much coveted trophy was missing from Palo Alto. It is a notable example of the success which has attended early development on the Pacific Slope that while only one yearling had beaten 2:30 up to the close of 1890 three trotters and a pacer were added last year, while even the Eastern breeders can boast of the pacer Rollo, who turned the Independence track last October in 2:23½. This makes six yearlings that have accomplished a feat the most sanguine breeder of an earlier day deemed impossible, and now that the example has been set, the youngsters will come rapidly along in the race for honors

Record-breaking in harness for any age is becoming less sensational every year, and the speed problem has now resolved itself into a question as to how soon the two-minute performer will appear. At present Arion seems to have the strongest claim to carrying his flight there, but under existing conditions it can scarcely be expected that he will lower his mark of 2:10½ this year. Experienced horsemen who saw the track opened at Stockton, Cal., last season agree that it was at least two seconds faster than any speeding course ever prepared for the sulky. A track is always at its best when new, and so it is doubtful whether this remarkable California speedway will be as favorable for champion miles this season as it was in 1891. Arion has been transplanted to the more severe climate of New England, and will make a considerable season in the stud before his training is resumed. His owner, J. Malcolm Forbes, declines to give public expression to any opinion regarding what he thinks the colt will do this year, and in reply to a request for information about his trotters says: "It is too early for me to make plans, and I have first to find out how much speed I have at my proposal."

Since Sunol took up her abode at Robert Bonner's stable on West Fifty-fifth street she has, of course, attracted many visitors, who can always obtain a card of admission, but will not be allowed to see the new Queen of Trotters without Mr. Bonner's passport. She occupies the stall where Dexter spent his last days of well-earned rest, and in her six-year-old form has filled out till one would scarcely recognize the Sunol that came to Terre Haute in the spring of 1890 and was exhibited several times on Eastern tracks. Her exercise during the winter has been an occasional jog through Central Park or up the avenues beside Alfred S., the speedy gelding, also of California origin that Mr. Bonner purchased two years ago just after he lowered the wagon-race record to 2:16½ at Belmont Park, Philadelphia.

The highly nervous temperament of the mare renders her better suited to flying over a carefully prepared course, with only a pace-maker galloping behind, than to pulling a wagon amid the din and bustle of a metropolitan road parade. There is nothing approaching viciousness or bad temper about Sunol, and any one may enter her stall or even bestow the caresses so commonly indulged in, but she has an imperious way that draws the line at too many liberties on the part of the visitor. Her palate inclines more to carrots than to sugar, and a supply of succulent roots are kept near to cater to this taste. Maud S. prefers the little white cubes of sugar to anything else, and when she was in Mr. Bonner's city stable showed a wonderful memory for those who brought her sweetmeats.

Sunol's growth and increased flesh have taken away that tucked-up or waspish appearance about the waist she had as a filly, though she retains that greyhound build and general speedy conformation which impresses every one, whether turfman or neophyte. Her legs show no outward evidence of the five years' training, and her forefeet are in excellent condition. The hind hoofs are inclined to be stubby, and Mr. Bonner has put shoes on them to raise the heels, which present a curious effect at first glance, though they keep the feet balanced. As soon as the roads about Prospect Hill farm, Franklin, Penn., are fit for driving, Sunol goes to her old tutor, Marvin, who is under engagement to Miller & Sibley for some years.

Sunol's days of racing are over, but she will probably be kept ready to defend the champion honors she now holds, or sent to place the record nearer the two-minute goal. Maud S. made two successful essays against her own mark after she became Mr. Bonner's property, and it will not be surprising if his new favorite improves a second or more under his personal supervision. Marvin is a much greater trainer than Bair ever was, and the latter has virtually dropped out of sight as a reinsman since he ceased to pilot the chestnut mare that made him famous. The other man had unusual opportunities at Palo Alto farm, but his ability as a speedmaker would have enabled him to succeed anywhere, and it is predicted that he will bring out a host of fast performers from the Eastern nursery with which he has cast his lot. There are better race drivers than Marvin, but as a developer of speed he stands at the head, with all the time trotting records except that for yearlings, as already stated.

Most of the competent and first-class trainers have been engaged by the big stock farms, so that the few who are open for general patronage find themselves overburdened. Budd Doble in the West and John E. Turner in the East stand at the top of the latter class, and each has more call than one pair of hands can respond to for the coming season. Turner is Doble's senior by several years, but has stood the strain of hard campaigns wonderfully well, and except for an enforced vacation in the early part of 1888, has been in the sulky from early spring till the premiums in his territory have all been distributed. His stables had more than an ordinary share of victories last year, and the shrewd little "general" of the turf corps took a water trip to California recently to recruit him for further service.

Doble came very near to a complete break-down last summer, but pulled through, and looked much better at the close of the season than he did at the beginning. He lost a valuable lieutenant when George Starr struck out on his own account, and the latter showed by his many victories with the Salisbury stable that he is a pupil in every way worthy of his teacher. To ride a faster mile than any man ever did before with trotter or pacer was a considerable distinction; but, besides driving Direct in 2:06, Starr lowered the colors of the hitherto invincible Hal Pointer on two occasions and reduced the race record nearly two seconds. Besides that, his doings with Little Albert and Vic H. were of a character creditable to any trainer, and he will come from California this summer with more prestige than any reinsman ever gained in the same time.

The name of Goldsmith, that has been distinguished in the trotting world for two generations, has not become merely a memory though two famous horsemen of that family have passed away. Alden Goldsmith, more than any of the pioneer breeders, set the example of proving the worth of his stock in actual conflict, and his older son, James H., won a place among reinsmen that no other man has ever approached.

John Alden Goldsmith, the younger brother, forced his way to the front rank in California, able to compete with Hickok or Marvin at home, and on his single visit East in 1883 with Director, did so well that the stallion was dubbed "the iron horse." Though he went across the mountains to train for Monroe Salisbury, young Goldsmith did not remain long with the Pleasanton breeder, but soon took charge of the stock owned by Willian Corbitt, of San Mateo. The latter had bought Guy Wilkes for a long price in those days, considering that the stallion could show no speed and had nothing but his breeding to recommend him. In 1886 he gave Guy Wilkes a mark of 2:15½, and that in a race, making him the fastest stallion by George Wilkes. This was but the beginning of continued successes with this strain.

Always ready to back his entries, and never beaten till the last foot was trotted, John Goldsmith is probably one of the wealthiest men of his craft. All this has been at a considerable draft on his physical powers, and his health is by no means good. Colt handling is risky and fatiguing. He has agreed to take Mambrino Maid, the big bay mare his brother had for two years, and could get many more good ones in the East if he desired. His plan is to locate at Fort Wayne, Ind., but since his return to California his health has again failed, and he may have to abandon the idea of keep in active service. It will be a serious loss to the summer circuit, but the chances are that he will be able to carry out his plans and add fresh fame to a patronymic already stamped on every page of trotting turf annals.—New York Times.

George M. Patchen.

The history of George M. Patchen is that of the greatest horse of the early Clay line. He was a great trotter and a great sire, and he founded a notable family, says the Horseman. He was foaled near Keyport, N. J., in 1849, and died May 1, 1864, after earning the fame of being the greatest trotting stallion of his day. He was got by the original Cassius M. Clay, son of Henry Clay, the founder of the Clay family, out of a fast road mare by Head'em, son of imp. Trustee. Cassius M. Clay was then owned by George M. Patchen, Brooklyn, N. Y., and thus the young horse was named. He was a rich bay, with black points, a small star, and stood fully 16 hands high. He was a very stout and muscularly-built horse, with strong, clean legs and sound, good feet. His style is described as having been "lofty and grand." As a two-year-old he was purchased by John Buckley, of Bordentown, N. J., for $400, and later Buckley sold a half interest in him to a Dr. Longstreet. He was in the stud from 1852 to 1858, though in 1855 he won a race at Philadelphia, and another at the New Jersey State Fair the year following, beating among others the now renowned John Nelson. In 1857, October 10, at Newton, N. J., he defeated American Star and Woful in 2:44, 2:41.

In 1858 Joseph Hall, of Buffalo, N. Y., acquired the half interest owned by Mr. Buckley, and in that year, October 28th, at Union Course, Long Island, he trotted his first race to wagon against Ethan Allen for $1,000 a side. Ethan Allen was a seasoned horse; Patchen was green, broke in the first heat, and was distanced. But Ethan Allen never saw the day that he could beat George M. Patchen again. Patchen had a busy campaign in 1859, his principal opponents being Brown Dick, Lancet and Lady Woodruff, and with them he had many a long-drawn battle, victory now being with him and now defeat. He began the campaign of 1860 at Union Course, May 16th, in a race against Ethan Allen for $2,000. The stallions were rivals, excitement ran high, with betting heavily in favor of Ethan Allen. Ethan Allen shot away in the first heat, but Patchen collared him in the stretch and beat him home by half a length in 2:25. The next heat Patchen won easily in 2:24. Then the heart of Ethan Allen quailed, and Patchen easily won the deciding heat in 2:29. Again they met at the same course May 16th, for the same amount to wagon. Patchen won with the utmost ease in 2:27½, 2:26, 2:31. A third match was made, but the Ethan Allen party wisely paid forfeit.

George M. Patchen was now the recognized champion stallion, and only Flora Temple stood between him and the kingship of the turf. And so the gauntlet was thrown to the little mare, and a race that created the wildest interest arranged. At Union Course, June 6th, the stallion gave Flora a rattling race, forcing her to trot in 2:21, 2:24, 2:21½, and being at her neck in every finish. Next the mare was challenged to a race of two-mile heats, and in this, at the same course, June 12th, Patchen defeated Flora Temple in 4:53½, 4:57½. Flora and Patchen then went on what looks in history like a hippodroming tour, and trotted many races together. On August 2d, at the Union Course, he won a first heat in 2:23½, which was the fastest stallion record at that time. He was now owned by William Waltermere, who had paid $20,000 for him after defeating Flora Temple at two-mile heats. He was not on the turf in 1861 or 1862, but in 1863 he vanquished the noted General Butler and Harry Clay.

The fastest of his get was the famous mare Lucy, 2:18½, who battled with Goldsmith Maid and Lady Thorn for supremacy on the trotting turf in the generation that succeeded George M. Patchen. Twelve sons of George M. Patchen have sired forty-eight trotters in the 2:30 list, and five daughters have produced six trotters. It is notable that no daughter of George M. Patchen produced a pacer, and but a single son sired a pacer. His blood is a sterling trotting element.

Shipments of Holsteins to Mexico.

By the steamer "San Blas," which cleared May 5th, for Mexico and Central American ports, Mr. Frank H. Burke, the well-known breeder of trotting horses and Holstein cattle, sent quite a consignment of thoroughbred and registered Holstein bulls and heifers to Mazatlan, Mexico, and San Jose de Guatamala, Central America. The animals are an exceedingly fine lot, and were in very good condition for travelling; that is, they were not in the least fat, but in such order that, on their arrival, they will easily become acclimated. Mr. Burke is extremely careful in his shipments by sea to have the animals in fair order only and not fat, as he claims that the close confinement between decks and change to a warm climate does not affect the animals when in growing condition only, and for this reason has invariably refused to forward stock immediately after being shown in the show ring, claiming that it was not safe. The result is, the animals improve immediately after landing, and he receives other orders from the same parties. The shipment to San Jose de Guatamala is the second one made to the same parties within three years.

Among those forwarded was the bull Baccarat, one year old, sired by Coyote Prince, No. 9503, H. F. H. B., dam Anna Egmond, No. 6454, H. F. H. B., and also in Advance Register. This was the winning sweepstakes cow of Sacramento State fair, and has a milk record of 62 2-16 pounds in one day, 1768½ pounds in 30 days and 2709 pounds in 49 days, an average of seven gallons per day; record for ten months, 9581 pounds, 13 ounces.

Thissa's Lad, a two-year-old bull, who also went in this consignment, is well known on this coast, having won the following prizes:

First, as suckling calf,	San Jose,	1890.
" " "	Petaluma,	"
" " yearling,	Oakland,	1891
" " "	Stockton,	"
" " "	Fresno,	"
" " "	Visalia,	"
" " "	Sacramento,	"

He is a very evenly marked and formed bull of great quality, as his victories against strong competition in the show ring, as well as striking appearance and individual merit, entitle him to be. He was sired by Mr. Burke's great bull, Cortez, No. 3229, H. F. H. B., out of Thissa, one of his imported cows, No. 9579, H. F. H. B. Thissa herself was a winner of some twelve or fourteen prizes, including a membership in the Gold Medal Herd of Fresno and Sacramento. This Netherland bull should produce animals that may rank among the peers of the great milk and butter kings.

Aaggie Leila Second's Donzells, a two-year-old heifer, in calf, sired by that great show bull, El Cuervo Netherland, and out of the well-known imported cow, Aaggie Leila Second, who had a record of seventy-three pounds of milk in one day and 3,361 pounds in 60 days, on dry feed alone, is a perfect beauty, and we think will arrive in fine order, as every care has been given in the shipping, she being crated and placed in a padded stall.

Misty Evening, another heifer of almost equal quality, accompanies her, as do a number of young stock of the same breed, whose pedigree we do not know.

This is the seventh or eighth shipment this season to the lower coast that has been made by Mr. Burke. He is evidently giving satisfaction and building up quite a trade.

Medicinal Suggestions.

There is hardly an owner or person having charge of horses or other animals who do not at times have to give or apply medicine, and as there are different ways of designating quantity and doses in prescriptions, receipts or formula with which many are not familiar, perhaps I can help out by a proximatory equivalents in the ordinary utensils of the home or stable. The druggist is often asked how much is an ounce or a drachm. In compounding the apothecary's weight is used (16 ounces or 1 pint or 8 drachms one onnce), and I submit a table showing the equivalents which will be found nearly correct and will answer for ordinary use:

One teaspoonful	equals	1	drachm.
One dessert spoon	"	2	" or ¼ ounce.
One tablespoon	"	4	" " ½ "
One wine glass	"	4	" or ½ pint.
One teacup	"	6	" "
One tumbler	"	8	" or ½ pint.

An average sized kernel of wheat will weigh 1 grain.

The rubber syringe with rubber pipe is most convenient for giving medicine internally, but it will not do for measurement of doses, as they do not hold what they are marked to hold, and with the pipe that usually comes with them cannot be filled twice alike. I would say, however, that there has recently been gotten up a rubber syringe with a long pipe, especially for veterinary use, which will hold just one ounce and give correct measurement every time.

Follow closely the instructions of the veterinary or the directions of the remedy that is being used.

If you find a treatment doing good, continue it, but do not, as too often is the case, think that if little does good more will do better, for by so doing you will use up the good effects that you are getting.

In applying an external remedy immediately after exercise or work is the best time to get the best effects.

In applying a blister use friction freely and in applying and give as much rest as possible after the blister has done working, in order that the parts may assume their normal condition more thoroughly.

Good nursing and attention is very important and will add very much to the efficacy of any treatment.—Dr. Slosson in American Sportsman.

"TO-KALON."

A Representative Stock Farm, Vineyard and Orchard in Napa Valley.

"To-Kalon."—This musical name, taken from the Greek, means "The Beautiful," and as its letters are seen emblazoned in gold over the arched gateway of this famous place near the village of Oakville, the visitor is at once attracted by the panoramic view that lies within its portals The fence is parallel with the line of railroad, and the long row of freight cars that are standing on the side track near the depot are loaded with barrels and casks of wine and brandy, the products of this vineyard.

The inclination to visit such a place could not be resisted, and knowing that a cordial welcome from its genial proprietor, Mr. H. W. Crabb, awaits every one, it was with feelings of pleasure we stepped beneath the arched gateway and contemplated the scene before us. The gravelled road is perfectly straight, with a gentle, upward grade; on both sides of it long rows of old English walnut trees are growing, their thick foliage almost meeting and interlocking over the center, like an emerald canopy, shutting out the warm rays of the sun, and affording a most cool and pleasant driveway even in the heat of summer. We walked along briskly, inhaling the health-giving breezes that were wafted from the fields on each side. About three hundred yards from the entrance to this park-like road, an orchard of almond trees is seen. This is one of the oldest and most productive in this part of the State.

A turn to the left, and we were cordially greeted by the proprietor, who was looking at his orange trees, which were well laden with their golden fruit. This grove is divided from the almond orchard by the branch road we were traversing, This winding road ended in the large semi-circular inclosure, almost surrounded by elegantly built stables in which are kept some of the finest-looking horses it has been our good fortune to see for some time. Mr. Crabb has ever been an enthusiastic lover of a good horse and is never so busy but what he will stop to converse upon this, his favorite subject.

The stallion barn is at one end of this long semi-circular building and is separated from it by a high-fenced paddock in which his lordship can cavort and play until he is tired. On the other end of the long row of stalls is the stable in which the work horses are kept.

The premier stallion here is called San Diego; he is fine-looking, dark brown in color, and is sired by Alcona Clay 2756 out of Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner, 2:17, and Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33; Alcona Clay is by Alcona 730, out of Madonna (dam of Del Rey, 2:29, and Alcona Jr., 2:24) by Cassius M. Clay. It can be seen that San Diego has a royal inheritance. He is a fine-looker and has shown fast quarters with very little work. He will be given track work this summer, and will get a low record; his colts resemble him in conformation and finish and all of them are perfect-gaited trotters.

Mr. Crabb has only gathered a few brood mares on his farm, for horse breeding is quite a new thing with him, yet he has shown rare discretion in the selection of individuals.

He has the black mare Cora C., 2:28½, by Whippleton 1883, out of Etta by Naubuc 504; second dam Maggie by Vick's Ethan Allen Jr. In conformation and disposition she is a model of excellence.

One of the best-shaped and most "rugged-built" mares in this part of the county is the black Naubuc mare called Star. She is not blessed with a long flowing tail, but has a long, swinging gait that has carried her past every roadster she ever trotted against on the road.

Whisp is a fine bay mare by Whippleton, out of a daughter of Geo. M. Patchen, Jr. 31; second dam by Vick's Ethan Allen, Jr.; third dam the Bassford mare. It would be hard to surpass this mare as an individual. She is the dam of the filly Directess, which sold at auction for $1,200, and also the beautiful racy looking bay colt by Eros, called Eyraud. This colt is one of the fastest ever led by halter on Mr. Crabb's race-track.

Etta is another mare that will appear in the list of great broodmares if her produce are trained. She is the dam of Cora C., (p), 2:28½, and Like Like, (p), 2:31, and others that will be heard of this fall. Etta is by Naubuc, out of a daughter of Vick's Ethan Allen Jr.

Like Like is a good-looking pacer that Mr. Corcoran drove at Petaluma, last fall; this year there is no doubt that 2:25 will be the mark earned by this young Whippleton.

Flora B. is also in this row of box-stalls. She is by Whippleton, and got her record of 2:27 at Petaluma, August 31, 1889. She has been relegated to the broodmare ranks and has a good-looking filly by her side, which is a perfect likeness of her dam.

Oakville Maid is another one of the class of individuals that denote excellence in every line; she is by Whippleton, out of the Buttimer mare, by a son of Vick's Ethan Allen Jr. 2903. Oakville Maid has a record of 2:35, but will trot close to 2:20 this fall. She knows nothing but trot and will prove a valuable brood mare.

There is a colt out of the dam of this mare here that is fast as a bullet" and will be an aspirant for a place in the 2:30 list this fall.

Mr. Crabb has a number of mares that he bred to San Diego and Grandissimo this year, and as all of them have been selected on account of their individuality and breeding it will not be long ere the name of the To-Kalon Stock Farm will be among the leading ones of the State, for on this farm is a race track and every convenience that money can buy or intelligence devise to perfect the youngsters in their endeavors to lower the marks set by Father Time.

Crossing the road and getting beyond the rows of walnut trees into the field of growing grain and looking at the long stretch of landscape before us, we could not help admitting that the scene far exceeded our most sanguine expectations. To the right, and below us, the village of Oakville, with its white cottages, was nestling beneath the sheltering eucalypti, cypress and other deciduous trees. Beyond it, and extending to the very top of the sun-kissed mountains, the gently undulating hills and knolls were seen clothed with rich verdure and interspersed with little patches of orchards and grain fields. Toward the north the top of the Cobb mountain and the serrated ridges covered with a heavy growth of chapparel extended as far as the eye could see. The aspect of the country is entirely different on the westerly slopes of the mountain. There in leafy glens, on tablelands and the sides of deep, dark, wooded gulches thousands of acres of vineyards were seen. The adaptability of the soil and climate for the growth of the olive and the vine has made this place second to no other in the world, and this fact has attracted the attention of the wealthiest of health-seekers who have built their costly chateaus or magnificent residences on every spur of the mountain sides. Thus the transition of wild chapparel-covered mountain sides to that of the most charming of residence sites is accomplished by the expenditure of money and taste, for the climate and soil did all the rest.

At the foot of the mountain was the fine residence of our host, while between it and the track at our feet a vineyard and a field of waving wheat extended. Before leaving the track in acceptance of the invitation to come to the house, we saw that this pretty course was some thirty feet wide, with long stretches and the turns well thrown up; its quarters plainly marked with white painted posts, and everything kept as neat and perfect as the famous track at Terre Haute.

The road from the track to the residence is flanked on each side by wheat fields and vineyards. The home place is surrounded by lofty cypress trees, well-kept lawns and beds of rare flowers. The dark green leaves of the magnolias and the fan palms of the tropics give the place a charming appearance. The vines running over the trellis wire-work up to the porch were in full bloom, while the lilacs, roses, carnations and hundreds of other plants, filled the air with their delightful fragrance.

In the rear of the house, and separated from it by a large corn-field, is the long building known all over the valley as the "To-Kalon Winery." Here beneath the high roof tons of luscious grapes are crushed and manufactured into wine and brandy every year. There is cooperage here for some 800,000 gallons. The large pipes extend in rows on the cemented floor for hundreds of feet; car tracks are laid throughout the building. A boiler and engine furnishes the power for crushing grapes and pumping water. The bottling rooms, cooper shop, distillery and every other department of this immense establishment is kept as neat as a parlor. The quietness which is observable in such large distilleries is ever present; and as the natives of sunny France are seen moving noiselessly about among the various casks and pipes, the illusion that one is in France in some old wine cellar becomes perfect.

At the rear of the buildings a mountain stream (that has its fountain head high up among the madrones in the dark ravine back of the farm), continually flows. Its winding course is plainly followed by the growth of trees that flourish upon its banks. Beyond it and extending for some distance on both sides, are the meadows where the stock are feeding. Fences separate these pastures from the vineyards which at this time of the year feems dressed with all the shades of green imaginable, for the new leave were clothing the gnarled old stumps that were made strong enough by constant pruning to sustain those heavy bunches of luscious grapes that delight the careful vineyardist every year by furnishing the material for setting the wheels of the machinery in motion, by which the amber and purple wines are produced to be quaffed by rich and poor alike all over the United States, Mexico, China, Japan, Australia, the islands of the South Pacific, and even in England and France. The proprietor of this immense vineyard has agents in all the principal cities of the East, South and West, and the reputation his wine has achieved is second to no other.

A ride behind a team of his finest horses over the many roads on this farm and then down to the station, where we bade our host good-bye, brought one of the pleasantest days of our lives to a conclusion, and as the train moved slowly out of the depot, we could not help wishing Mr. Crabb all the prosperity possible in his great business ventures.

The Horses at Pleasanton.

If a horseman was to look through all the turf journals and try to discover which track had the largest number of "green ones full of promise," the probabilities are that he would say that Pleasanton leads them all. The climate there is all that the most exacting trainer can wish for. The three Knights of the Sulky, Orrin A. Hickok, Geo. A. Starr and John Williams are here with their large strings of trotters.

A representative of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN recently paid this Equine Paradise a visit. To speak of the track it is only necessary to say that Orrin A. Hickok (who perhaps has rode over more tracks than any driver in the United States), says it surpasses any that he ever saw for getting trotters and pacers in condition for racing purposes. The soil is springy at all times and the horses do not become "sore" or "track sour," in fact it seems a pleasure for them to move over its even surface.

The old stalls and sheds are poor structures and should be replaced by better ones, a small outlay for these and the planting of a row of trees around the buildings which front on the large square would make it more attractive. The following is a list of horses there at present.

In the first stall on the right of the inclosure is the black colt Reflector, by Director, 2:17, out of Oriole, by Monroe Chief, 2:18½; second dam Queen of Hearts.

Astrakan, by Director, 2:17, out of Kate Dudley, by St. Joe. This fine black colt is half brother to Emma Nevada, one of the most promising fillies here.

Gymnast is the name of a remarkably well-shaped trotting colt, by Director, 2:17, out of Aurora (dam of the great running horse Guido), by Thad Stevens, the four-miler. These three were bred and raised by Col. H. I. Thornton.

Erect, by Director, 2:17, out of Echora, by Echo, is a full brother to Direct, 2:06, and is a sweet-gaited trotter.

Lady Director, by Director, 2:17, is a large rangy-looking mare belonging to G. Wempe, of San Francisco. She trotted quarters in 34 seconds, and went wrong last year, but is rounding to nicely at present.

A very large bay gelding, looking more like a coupe horse than anything else, is by Gibraltar, out of a sister to Judge Salisbury.

The Tarpy mare, by Nutwood, is hardly fit to take East, although there is no doubt of her ability to enter the "charmed circle."

There is another full brother to Direct here, he is a coal black gelding six years old, and a trotter.

Emma Nevada is one that will be sent in the troupe of trotters to support the "Starr." She is by James Madison, 2:17¾, out of Kate Dudley by St. Joe. As none of these have been "keyed" up to concert pitch yet by this "Prince of Trainers" it will be useless to predict how fast they can go.

The pacing trio that is to go East consisting of Flying Gib, the Algona bay gelding; San Pedro, the great hearse horse of San Pedro, everywhere known as the "Del Sur wonder;" and Mr. Salisbury's latest purchase, and his greatest pet, by the way, Killarney Maid by Killarney, will make some of the sid- wheelers grab gravel to beat them either singly or coll tively.

Homestake, 2:14½, the bay gelding that got this mark in Napa on that memorable day in October 14, 1890, in his race with Hazel Wilkes, Emma Temple and Maggie E. The heats were 2:18, 2:14½, 2:14½.

Steve Whipple, 2:23, by Chrisman Hambletonian, will lower his record on the eastern circuit this fall unless he meets with some misfortune. He never looked stronger or better.

Monbars, 2:19¾, the great race horse that won twelve heats in 2:20 and over $12,000 in purses, is looking robust and was bred to several mares last month. He is the style of horse that would attract favorable notice anywhere.

Electrina, 2:30, by Richard's Elector, out of Stemwinder by Venture, 2:27, is doing well.

Directum, by Director, 2:17, out of Stemwinder by Venture, 2:27, is being rested a little and will go east next month fully prepared to meet the best of company.

Besides these there are several other youngsters that belong to Mr. Starr's string, so it can be seen he is kept pretty busy.

John Williams has charge of the trotters and pacers that are known as the "McCarty string." When Mr. Hickok leaves Monday, Jas. Maguire, another trainer, will bring some more trotters from the McCarty farm and handle them for the fall races on the California circuit. The following are stabled here:

Flora M., 2:21¾, by Richard's Elector. This is a handsome bay mare and like all of the Electors has a beautiful way of going.

Ella M., 2:28¾, is also being prepared for the fall races She is by Richard's Elector. These two mares are a credit to their sire. Dan McCarty says there's at least thirty on the farm where they were bred just as handsome and will prove as speedy if handled.

Chloe, 2:24, by Dexter Prince, is a well-shaped black mare that will lower her record very easily whenever called upon.

Cleopatra is a well-built bay mare with the finest of feet and legs; she is by Dexter Prince out of a mare by Silverthreads, a son of The Moor, and is the making of a fast one.

Maggie, 2:27½, by Dexter Prince, is eligible to a much lower record if her present way of moving is any criterion. She is out of a mare by Gen. Knox, and therefore has a right to be game.

One of the prettiest and most promising of the lot is Parthenia, by Dexter Prince, out of a daughter of Richard's Elector. From this royal breeding one cannot be far wrong in expecting this trotter entering the list at the first opportunity. She is a good one in every respect.

Princess Alice, 2:16, by Dexter Prince, the game pacer that went through the California circuit with Turk Franklin, Rupee and Gold Medal, and by her gameness elicited shouts of approval from all the spectators, is in one of the stalls. She belongs to Mr. Morse, of Lodi.

Jessie McCarty, by Dexter Prince, full sister to Fitzsimmons, a gelding that can trot in 2:23, is here, and she satifies her driver and trainer. He believes if it ever comes to split heats she will be in at the finish.

Mr. Hickok has several horses in his string that he will not take East. The best one in this lot belongs to Ariel Lathrop; she is by Dexter Prince, out of a Nutwood mare. After she gets a record this fall she should be bred to either Advertiser or Palo Alto; what a unity of gameness there would be in the produce from either of these sires? Mr. Hickok has some horses and mares belonging to Mr. C. Smith (of Redington & Co.) that are moving very well, and the only regret this trainer has, is that he has not had time to handle them a little longer.

Joe Neal, the superintendent of the Pleasanton Stock Farm, is taking great care of the stock, and all of the broodmares, colts and fillies are looking well.

Hawaiian Island Horses.

The sports are getting ready for the 11th of June, which is the day the Hawaiian Derby is run for. Major Cornwell has arrived from Maine with Johnny Hayward for the free-for-all. Hayward is the horse that forced Vic H. out in 2:18 at Sacramento in 1890. There is also Johnnie Goldsmith, formerly owned by H. S. Agnew; he is a pacer, and a good one. Blitz is a pacer also, shipped here two years ago by H. J. Agnew, also a black pacer from San Jose by the name of Billy, so that makes four, and may be Mr. A. J. Cartwright, Jr., will enter his stallion Nutgrove, out of Lady Nutwood by Grosvenor owned by Jim Boyd of Milpitas, so the free-for-all will be very interesting. And for the three-minute class, we have several Hawaiian horses that are doing very well. For runners we have several. Duke Spencer, by the Duke of Norfolk, out of Lou Spencer is considered a sure winner, also Major Cornwell's Lord Brock, bought of Sidney Ashe, who won the half-mile dash here last year. Hon. John Cummins is working several good ones, among them Traveler, imported from California two years ago. Jim Gay has leased his stable to Major Corn well, and he has several good ones. Governor Stanford is a fine colt. H. J. Agnew formerly owned her dam. He won over everything last year, and is looking fine, so you can see we will have a good meeting this year. There are about forty in training, and all doing fine. Old Prussian Boy is driven on the road by the Minister of Finance, Samuel Parker, and old Cairo is on Mani rusticating. The black pacing mare, Gerster, by Washington, dropped a fine filly by the stallion Nutgrove, and her owner is very proud of her. Old Treat is dead and gone to Horse Heaven. By the last steamer Mr. Cartwright received a fine-looking mare from H. J. Agnew.

A NATIVE SON.

AT the Parkville Farm in Brooklyn, N. Y., there is a three-year-old trotter that is expected to beat 2:30 this season without any trouble, and that from her way of going is liable to step a mile in 2:20. In breeding it would be hard to excel this one, as she is by Pancoast, 2:21¾, dam the Electioneeer mare Bonita, 2:18½. Bonita was at one time, although for a few weeks only, the champion four-year-old, with a record of 2:18¾. Like most of the Electioneers, she was a very pure-gaited mare, but would stop a little at the finish. Her Pancoast filly is called Nita Pancoast.

THE handsome dark brown stallion Munster, is 16½ hands high and weighs 1300. He is a horse of great bone and substance and would make a great sire of stylish carriage horses. He is by Darebin out of Mariposa by Monarchist; second dam Heliotrope, by imp. Knight of St. George, etc. He can be bought at a low figure, and for his disposition, breeding and conformation he would be hard to excel. Chas. Kerr, of Bakersfield, has this four-year-old horse for sale.

To Our Subscribers.

The high encomiums of praise which, for the past few months especially, have been passed upon the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and still continue to be mentioned by many of its great army of readers throughout the vast and diversified territory to which it pays weekly visits, have been and continues to be a source of great satisfaction to us. It is genuine satisfaction to know that honest work and conscientious endeavor is not without just reward. There can be no questioning the fact that we are to-day publishing one of the best first-class journals issued in the whole country. By every endeavor within our power we shall strive to make the columns of this paper still more interesting and instructive, in the special lines to which it is devoted.

In order to accomplish this purpose, and to enable the work to be pushed with the energy and expenditure which the publication of so great a paper requires, it has become necessary for us to again call the attention of our delinquent subscribers to the fact that their subscriptions, while small individually, aggregate a very neat sum, which forms no inconsiderable factor in the income of this, as of all class journals. It has been our custom at stated periods to render to each subscriber, a statement of his account with our subscription department, which we have done recently and if you are among those in arrears will you kindly forward the amount to us as promptly as possible? We should consider such action an especial favor, and, in return, will see to it that you receive the very best paper of its class published in the country and the only standard publication of its kind to be found on the Pacific Coast.

Review of the Blood Horse Meeting.

The meeting which ended to-day has been a success from many points of view, and that success has been brought about by three good moves made by the management. The first was the employment of a capable, painstaking, sensible starter in Mr. James B. Ferguson, of Lexington, Ky. His work during the entire meeting has been marred by but one poor start, and that is a record to be proud of, surely. The people flocked to the track to see the work of the flag-wielder, who sent the horses away with quickness and in neat bunches. Tedious waiting at the post has been the bane of the association in years past, and that bad feature was eliminated by the foresight of the management. The second good move was to increase the amount of the purses, make entrance to them free, and arrange the moneys so that almost any horse at the track could at least earn his oats, even if he only ran third. This resulted in bringing a larger number of gallopers to the track than ever before graced the stables at Bay District course. The third excellent move on the managerial chess-board was where any responsible bookmaking firm was allowed to transact business. This had the effect of bringing no less than thirteen firms into the ring, many of whom were new-comers to the speculative field in this city. The odds were consequently fairer than might have been expected otherwise, and the goodly figures doubtless brought many through the portals of the Coliseum that would not have ventured out had they known that the pencilers were going to make steel-ribbed books. Kicks and squeals by disgruntled bettors have been things almost unknown at this meeting, and there is a firmness in the racing market of California to-day that has not been felt for years. In short, the judges have performed their work nobly. Financially, as well as "artistically," the meeting has been a perfect success, and we can confidently look forward to a meeting next fall with increased purses, more stakes and greater interest manifested in the racing than ever. Let us hope that the association will not stop short in the highway to honor it has been treading, but reach out and above its brethren of the West and set an example that other organizations can well follow.

We would respectfully suggest, though, that the Blood Horse Association proceed at once to secure a tract of land adjacent to this city, sheltered from the blasts that blow colds and pneumonia, build its own track, grand stands and stables in the highest style of the art, offer new and rich stakes, employ at all their meetings a first-class starter like Mr. Ferguson, and let any responsible person make a book, as has been done this spring. San Francisco has responded nobly for the class of racing that has been given, and for the accommodations furnished, and we believe that it would be a paying investment to have a stake race three days out of every five during the coming meeting. The attendance on days stakes were run for during the meeting just ended shows conclusively that those events draw large crowds every time in all kinds of weather.

It would not be a bad idea, also, to hang the purses on the wire, as is done throughout the South, and we know that it would be hailed with pleasure by the horsemen, many of whom are often not in financial condition to wait many days for their money. In conclusion we would say that through its liberality the Association has carried the day at its spring meeting, and the time is not far distant when California will look with great pride on this racing organization, and the chief product of the State (grand race horses), and, when the awakening shall come, in place of 2,000 to witness a day's racing, we shall see 7,000 to 10,000. We have the population and the horses, and proper management will bring about that result.

Judges' and Timers' Stands.

The benefits to be derived from having paid judges in the stand have been set forth in the columns of this journal, as well as all other turf journals of note in the United States, so often that it has become almost a national question. The keynote of the mighty song of freedom was first struck by this journal, and its reverberations are still echoing through every city where racing is known. The Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, at the meeting which closed to-day, can attribute a large portion of their success to the fact that they employed, at a fair salary, a thoroughly competent official who made the subject of starting large fields of horses a life-long study. What we want on this coast is a competent judge in the stand who will see that the laws of trotting are properly fulfilled, and who will do his work without fear or favor. Such a person will be here, we hope, in time for the fall races—if he is not in this State awaiting the summons to come and officiate.

The importance of good timers is also apparent to every one. We must have men who are quick to see the exact positions of the horses as they leave and come under the wire. As a rule there are three officials. They all sit side by side. Only one is directly over the wire. Necessarily there is a variation in each of their timers. In this age of fast trotting some may carry watches that split on the fifths of the second, while the others may have watches that split on the fourths of a second. Would it not be a good idea to have the gentlemen placed on chairs or steps one above the other, so they will be directly in a line above the wire? They can all start their watches and catch the quarters, halves, three-quarters and miles exactly alike. There can be no possible chance for variation if such a plan is adopted. One man will not have the monopoly of the wire, but all of them will have better positions than by the present old-fashioned method. The timers should be stationed directly opposite the judges and have a blackboard, on which they they could place the time in large figures. The judges should have a similar board, and as soon as the time is displayed, the figures can be copied and the blackboard suspended from some conspicuous place where the audience in the grand stand may see it.

The many large, barn-like, pagoda-built judges' stands on the courses in this State should be abolished. In the Eastern States small, neat structures similar to the one at the Stockton kite track are constructed. Most of them are made of the lightest material, and are not more than five feet in diameter. The stairs are made of iron, and the weighing scales are at the first landing. The judges' stands which are seen in this State are large enough to hold twenty people on each floor; they obstruct the view of the course, and are totally unfitted for what they were intended.

THE Haggin consignment of young thoroughbreds destined for New York, where they will be put under the hammer of the auctioneer, leave this State on the 29th of May.

Necessary Work of Preparation.

The trotting season will soon commence, and the directors of the various associations in Calirornia are very busy making preparations for the meetings that have been advertised. Committees have been appointed to see that the track, stables and grandstands are placed in order. The necessity for having the track "fast" is so apparent to all horsemen that it is of paramount importance for it to be placed in perfect order. The turns must be of the proper angle; the surface made perfectly smooth by rolling, harrowing and scraping; all the hollow places that are made by the rains need filling and the course made "springy" and lively by the application of water at the proper time of the day. The stables should be inspected and all loose boards in them securely fastened; the floors repaired, if they are boarded, if not, they should be made level by a liberal coating of gravel or clay. Every stall should be thoroughly disinfected; the locks and hasps on the doors should be replaced by new ones, the hay lofts swept clean and the walls divested of their cobwebs. It would be a good idea if the directors would expend a few dollars for water buckets and place them on shelves where they would be available in case of fire. This precautionary measure is one of the greatest importance, and if the buckets are properly labeled and numbered they can be easily identified if they are stolen. Too little attention is paid by associations to the dangers of fire among flimsily-built stalls where valuable horses are domiciled during a race meeting.

The grand stand should also receive careful inspection, the advice of an architect or competent carpenter should be solicited regarding the bracing of all old buildings in which thousands of people may be seated during the races. Accidents caused by these frail sheds have occurred, and they are liable to occur again. The outsides of the building and fences should receive a liberal coat of whitewash to make them appear more attractive. These little suggestions are offered in the hope that the directors of the various organizations will appoint committees, if they cannot act themselves, to see that visitors from home and abroad will find that everything is done to make their visit pleasant, and horsemen will then find that the comforts of the runners, trotters and pacers which they have brought are also attended to, and that every precaution has been taken to prevent fires or the spread of infectious diseases.

Stable Ventilation.

Among the thousands of scientists who are working out schemes for the prevention of disease and the eradication of germs or microbes that are detrimental to the health of the human family, is it not strange that the brute creation is not more carefully looked after? The prevalence of epizootic and contagious diseases is known, but the causes that promote their widespread and fatal influences are never sought after. It is only when some disinterested person discovers by accident a reason for this state of affairs that the attention of a horse owner is called to the danger which menaces his stock and threatens to annihilate every horse in his stable. Apropos of this, the following sensible article, written by some lover of "man's noblest friend," is taken from one of our exchanges, and is worthy of careful perusal by every horseman in the land:

Nothing in the ordinary surroundings of a horse can be so injurious as the absence of good ventilation. Any number of horses are kept in places where no ventilation exists; and in many places where ventilators were put in by a well-meaning hand, one finds them stuffed up with straw and hay. Now, when it is remembered that a horse breathes much stronger than a man, that the exhalations from his skin and elsewhere are so much greater than from any human being, it only stands to reason that ill-ventilated stables cannot possibly be preservative of the horse's health, any more than a foul-smelling room would be of a human being's health.

If a stable owner wants to know the atmosphere that his horses breathe, let him be the first man in his stable of a morning, when, unless his power of scent is all but gone, he will often have occasion to be horrified at the air that his animals breathe. Free ventilation may at times have a tendency to cause colts to stare, but that is not half as bad as to undermine the horse's health by making him breathe foul air. Good light is likewise of great importance in the stable. Vegetation will die in a half-darkened room; it wants the sun's rays to keep up its vitality; the trees in the forest grow straight, so as to obtain their share of light, and their lower branches die off because the light does not penetrate to them. Is it reasonable to suppose that animal life can be deprived of the vitalizing influences of light with impunity?

LAST Wednesday seven thoroughbred horses from the Rose stables left for Brooklyn, N. Y., four from the Antrim Stables departed for Washington Park, Chicago, while the famous Zaldivar, from the stable of Wilber F. Smith, went along to fill his engagements at Chicago and win the Derby for his popular Sacramento owner. We expect to hear of some wonderful performance by Ulster, Herald and the youngsters in Mr. Charles Kerr's string, also.

ON Wednesday night last, Col. H. I. Thornton, the popular President of the Blood Horse Association, received a telegram from a wealthy horseman at the East asking him to put a price on James Madison, the magnificent son of Anteeo and Lucy Patchen, with a record of 2:17¾. Colonel Thornton replied that he would take $20,000 for the great horse, and that figure is almost certain to suit the inquiring horseman.

PALMER L. CLARK, President of Clark's Horse Review Company, Chicago, Ill., arrived in San Francisco last Tuesday night on a trip in which he combines business with pleasure. Mr. Clark is a most pleasant gentleman, thoroughly well posted on matters horsey, and we bespeak for him a hearty welcome at the hands of our California friends.

A Santa Barbara County Man's Method of Breaking a Young Colt.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Fasten a bar of wood, say one and a half inches by three or three and a half, and long enough to project over at least two and a half feet on one side, behind the bar on the shafts of your road cart. Near the projecting end attach a light pole to serve as an extra shaft, the pole to reach as far ahead as the shaft on the cart; attach the pole to the bar by a bolt so that the pole can play; i. e., swing outward or inward easily. To the back band of your bitting harness on colt have a strap affixed, with buckle, so you can put the pole in place after your colt is in position by the side of your horse. Have a line of suitable length to go from the end of bar, passing through a ring or loop on back band or under the side of the back straps of the bitting harness, so as to hold the line from swagging, and attach to the bridle bit. This is the outside line or rein. For the inside, fasten it to the shaft of your cart where the shaft tug is. The inside rein must be short enough to prevent the colt from swinging out too far and still long enough to not draw it in too close to your horse. Have a steady horse to work in your cart—one that can be rated as you wish, hitch him up, swing the extra pole back so as to point to the rear, place your youngster alongside of him, attach your lines to his bit, swing the pole to its place, and buckle your strap around it, and start off.

It is taken for granted that before any one attempts to work a youngster in a rig like the foregoing that the colt has been handled some, and that it has had the reins on it and knows what the pressure on the bit means, at least to some extent. After the colt has had a walking lesson or two and a slow jog, and become accustomed to working on either side of the horse, when you let him go for a two-hundred-yard spurt, you will be pleased to see the little rascal "spread himself." I omitted to mention in the proper place that the bar should be attached to the shafts of the cart by clamps or otherwise, in such a way that it can be easily removed so that it can be turned and projected on the opposite side.

From my experience in using this method it is preferable to leading a colt to learn him to trot. If it strikes the fancy of any one, and if I have not made the explanation clear, any questions asked of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, I will cheerfully answer. A SMALL BREEDER.

A Valuable Broodmare.

In giving the pedigree in another column of the Guy Wilkes' mare Hulda in Mr. Hickok's string there is an error; her dam was called Jennie, and, as she will have at least four in the 2:30 list this year to her credit, we asked Mr. Spreckles about her. She was by Bull Pup (a son of old St. Lawrence) out of a daughter of Williamson's Belmont. In color she was a beautiful sorrel and looked very much like a thoroughbred. She is known as the dam of Gus Spreckles 2:30 and Gracie S. 2:22. She is the dam of Hulda that will go in the list this year and at least one other, and perhaps two more, that will enter also.

Gracie S., 2:22, has a filly by Eros, 2:29¾, and so has her full sister, Lillie S., we understand they are both very promising, well-made youngsters. Jennie was bred to Stamboul, 2:11, and had a filly that is one year old and it is a trotter The old mare died last year, deeply regretted by every one who knew her many good traits, for a truer, kinder or better roadster never was hitched. Her name should be expunged from the list of those who figure under the head of pedigree unknown, and be placed among the great broodmares, as an act of justice. Bull Pup was said to be out of a thoroughbred mare. We would like to have some of our readers enlighten us as to his history.

MR. JOHN D. CREIGHTON, Lexington, Ky., has sold to A. H. Moore, Cloverdale Farm, Colmar, Pa., the bay mare Evangeline (2), 2:26¾, (3), 2:19, four years old, by Director, 2:17, dam Fannie H. by Red Wilkes; second dam Old Forrest by Edwin Forrest. Price, $13,000. Mr. Creighton paid $10,000 for her the fall she was two years old. She is a splendid individual; and, age for age, out-ranks that great mare Nancy Hanks. The latter has no two-year-old record, and Evangeline's three-year-old record is 5½ seconds faster than Happy Medium's greatest daughter at the same age. Evangeline, while the highest-priced mare Mr. Moore has bought, is also the most promising: As a two-year-old she first won at Maysville, Ky., against a field of four good ones in 2:30, 2:30½. She next won at Lexington in 2:30½, 2:28¾. At Richmond, September 16, she won against two others in 2:47, 2:47. At Cincinnati, O., September 22, she won in 2:31¾, 2:29. At Independence, Ia., August 26, 1891, she won the first heat of a race in 2:26. At Omaha, Neb., September 1, she won in 2:59, 2:59½, 2:35. September 3, she had a walk-over at the same place in 2:31. At Cambridge City, Ind., September 22, she took the last three heats in 2:20¾, 2:19, 2:20½. At Lexington, Ky., October 12, she won against Lady Wilton and two others in 2:20½, 2:20, and at Nashville, Tenn., October 20, she won in three straight heats against Lady Wilton and Sea Girl in 2:22½, 2:22½, 2:19½.

WE HAVE just received Number One of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide for 1892. This handy book of reference is indispensable to all horsemen and should occupy a prominent place in their libraries.

The Dam of George Wilkes.

The dam of George Wilkes has been accepted as a daughter of Henry Clay, and the world reads it that way. Still those that owned Dolly Spanker here do not believe it and never will. The mare was once owned here, and under the conditions the following facts will be of interest:

About 1845 Edwin Beardsley and Edward and James Gilbert were located at this place running a distillery. They had work for a number of horses, and in 1850 or thereabouts James Gilbert took a trip to Pennsylvania and bought three or four head. One of the purchases was a brown mare named Dolly Spanker, who afterwards produced George Wilkes. The mare was brought to Phelps, and was like all of the other property owned in common by the Gilbert Brothers and Beardsley, who was their brother-in-law. They kept Dolly Spanker about a year and sold her to Captain Joseph Lewis, of Geneva, N. Y., for $800. This was a tremendous price for a horse in those days. So far as I can learn, Mr. Lewis purchased Dolly Spanker for John S. King, a New York gentleman that was building a branch of the Erie road from Elmira to Canandaigua. Mr. King used Dolly Spanker as a road mare, and when his contract was completed he turned her over to Joseph Lewis to dispose of. Mr. Lewis sold her to Mr. Delevan, of New York. He was one of the proprietors of the Welch and Delevan Circus. He took the mare to New York, and after a time she passed into the hands of the Felters, says Smith Feek in American Sportsman.

Edward Gilbert has been dead some time, but James Gilbert is still among us and in good health. I have talked with him many a time and he has stated the story over and over as I have related it. I questioned him closely so as to learn whether he or his brother ever bought any horses of the Phillips family in the town of Bristol, N. Y., and he always replied that neither he nor his brother ever bought a horse of any kind of anybody by the name of Phillips.

Mr. Edwin Beardsley is alive and well. He lives here in Phelps and is a wealthy, straight-forward business man. I see him every few days and he endorses everything that James Gilbert says. Mr. Beardsley tells me that he has a distinct recollection of Mr. Gilbert bringing this mare Dolly Spanker home from Pennsylvania. Also that he had an interest in her. He drove her frequently and also states that she had only been gone from here some nine or ten years, when the report came back that a young stallion out of her had beaten Ethan Allen in a match race for $5,000 a side. That he said brought everything fresh in his mind. Now here are two living witnesses that can certify that this mare was picked up in Pennsylvania. James Gilbert's address is No. 1527 Seventh street, Buffalo, N. Y., and Mr. Beardsley can be found here.

I have had several talks with Joseph Lewis about this mare Dolly Spanker. He tells the same story over again about the Simmons brothers writing to him soon after the race between Wilkes and Ethan Allen, asking for information in regard to the breeding of Dolly Spanker. He told me on different occasions about his sending John Dey to trace her; that he traced her to one Clark Phillips, of Bristol, N. Y., and reported that she was sired by Henry Clay. Mr. Lewis went on to tell me what this man Clark Phillips told John Dey and finally Lewis said to me that Phillips told two different stories about his breeding Dolly Spanker. I asked him to explain to me what the other story was, but I failed to draw him out.

Edwin Beardsley and James Gilbert both state that during the search by Dey nobody ever came to them for any information in regard to this mare. The search took place in the fall of 1892.

Now a few words about remarks made by John Dey. Late in the fall of 1862 a gentleman by the name of Harrison Prossor, of Montezuma, Cayuga county, N. Y., told the writer that Dey told him there was no telling what the breeding of this mare in question was. He also stated that they had reported that she was by Henry Clay, thinking that it would please the owners of George Wilkes on account of the popularity of George M. Patchen. Only last June John Dey was employed by the Kite Track Association at Newark, N. Y., and while there he told Charles E. Leggett that it was all a humbug about the dam of George Wilkes being by Henry Clay. He further stated that she was a transient mare and nobody knew anything of her breeding. Leggett told the writer that Dey commenced and told this story of his own accord. Dey was at the bottom of the story that the dam of George Wilkes was sired by Henry Clay, and now he comes out and states that it is fale. This man, Charles E. Leggett, is the Treasurer of the Kite Track Association at Newark, N. Y. He is also a hardware merchant and a very reliable man.

Side Weight Horseshoes.

We wish to draw special attention to the advertisement of I. S. Van Winkle & Co. of the Perkins Steel Toe and Side Weight Shoes. A few weeks ago we printed a whole page for this firm, and orders have been pouring in from all over the coast.

The first invoice of side weight shoes, shipped from the factory in the East, are extra light side weights, as the shoers all over the country have been calling for something lighter than the ordinary iron shoe.

Recognizing this demand, the factory have complied, but find that the large number of hind shoes in a keg necessitates making a small additional charge over the toe weights, the price has been changed from $7.50 to $10 a keg, on the side weights only. The advance, however, is comparatively nothing taken in comparison with the large number of shoes to the 100 lbs.

We wish to congratulate the firm of I. S. Van Winkle & Co. on the success that has attended the placing of these shoes in the market through the medium of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as it proves conclusively that we reach the people interested in the shoeing problem.

The Combination Sale.

On Wednesday, May 17th, all horsemen who attend the auction sale to be held in this city by Killip & Co., will see as fine a lot of individuals as they have ever looked upon. The consignment sent by A. L. Whitney comprises every mare, colt and filly he has, and they must be sold. Besides these gilt-edged twenty, there are some thirty other royally-bred individuals consigned by different owners to this sale. Catalogues will be sent on application to any of our subscribers. Horsemen who are seeking to improve their stock will do well to attend this sale. Bargains will be had, for our best and most fashionably bred stallions are represented there. Of one thing buyers may be certain such stock can never be bought at such low figures again.

A Breeding Experiment.

The dispatches impart the following information which while eminating from Lexington should be investigated by Iconoclast, and since the Professor, after inbreeding to a single pair for ninety-six generations, had better and larger mice free from disease, etc., he should be willing to conclude that inbreeding does not destroy vitality or procure sterility:

"Professor A. A. Shiddell, of Lexington, is a strong believer in the Darwin theory regarding the evolution of man and other animals. In 1874, in order to test the theory of like producing like, he produced a pair of white mice. This species of mice, he says, produce young every thirty days, and from six to twelve each time. He has calculated that one pair will in thirteen months produce 1,500,000 mice, if none die or are destroyed. The pair produced at first ten young. He cut the tails off all the young and bred again from the latter. This second produce he also de-tailed, and so on with each succeeding generation, the tails growing shorter until a stub only remained in the seventh. By the time the tenth generation was reached the tails had all disappeared, and he had a large number of mice without even a suggestion of caudal appendage. He said he killed all the weaklings in each generation and bred only from the best specimens. In this way all disease was exterminated, and the mice got to be double the size of the original pair. From this he argues that the human species can also be rid of diseases and made strong by judicious mating. He continued his experiment to the ninety-sixth generation, covering a period of eight years, by which time he had bred the tails back on again, the last generation having tails like the first pair."

Track Making.

Civil engineers are pretty well agreed upon several features that are essential to the proper construction of racing tracks. These are, drainage, fills, condition of ground for grading, rolling and sprinkling. For draining it is recommended that a ditch be dug around the inside of the course, say six to eight feet from the rail. The stretches should have a slope of about one-eighth of an inch to the foot towards the inner edge of the track, so as to allow the water to readily fall off after a heavy rain.

When there are fills to be made the teaming should be so done as to give the deposited material as much packing as possible, always making the nearest fills first. The best condition of the ground for grading is when it is neither too wet nor too dry, but in a slightly moist state. Allowance should be made in the grading if the track is to be top-dressed. When grading is completed, the surface should be first thoroughly harrowed and then rolled and sprinkled to compact the same. To keep the track free from waves and remove any bits of rock or pebbles a surface dresser made of scantling can be used to advantage. The following description of the construction of the surface dresser may be of service. Take five scantlings 2x4 sixteen feet long, placing them on edge; on these place five others of same dimensions, placed flat; the whole forming a diamond with one point in front. Bolt them carefully together with half inch bolts. It will be well to place washers between the bolt heads and under the burs. Two twelve foot scantlings should be placed across the whole frame half way between the center and the front and back points. The bolt holes in the pieces for the diamond should be three feet six inches from center to center. The same may be made permanently square at less expense and work, and a side hitch used. The cart or wagon for sprinkling should have wide tires, if six or eight inches wide the better, much depending on the nature of the soil.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

The tug-of-war, God bless the mark! ended last Monday evening in a very unsatisfactory manner. It was our intention to print a summary of the contests in this issue but, as the affair was a gigantic fraud from beginning to end the less said about the matter the better. We hope that Mr. McNeill will profit by the lesson and that he will not allow himself to be again connected with such a palpable hippodrome.

The picnic run of the wheelmen to San Mateo beach will take place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock from the club house of the Bay City Wheelmen, 519 Van Ness Avenue. The run was to have taken place last Sunday, but, on account of the rain, was postponed until to-morrow.

At the Klinknerville grounds last Sunday, the Klinknerville combination, composed of men from the California and Oakland clubs, defeated the Alameda combination, composed of the best players in the Pacific and Alameda clubs. The score stood 97 to 79.

The four-mile road race took place at San Leandro last Sunday afternoon under the most favorable auspices. The prizes consisted of five handsome gold and silver medals, donated by the champion amateur long-distance runner, Peter D. Skillman. Several hundred people, many of whom were members of the fair sex, witnessed the race, and the athletes were loudly cheered as they sped around the course. In order to give the new men a show to win his medals, Skillman very generously consented not to start, and Frank L. Cooley, of the O. A. C., was elected to scratch. There were about forty entries, and nearly all the men put in an appearance. The weather was fine and the course in good condition. The clubs represented were the Olympic, the Acme and the Alpine; the University Athletic Club did not send any representative. The men finished in the following order:

W. N. McCall, Olympic Club, handicap, 3 minutes 15 seconds, net time, 25 minutes 7 seconds; Sol. Choynski, Alpine Club, handicap, 3 minutes, net time 25 minutes 58 seconds; J. P. Cosgro, Olympic Club, handicap, 2 minutes 15 seconds, net time, 25 minutes 30 seconds; F. Walker, Acme Club, handicap, 3 minutes 15 seconds, net time, 26 minutes 31 seconds; O. L. Packard, Acme Club, handicap, 2 minutes 15 seconds, net time, 2 minutes 43 seconds.

The following also completed the course in the order given:

H. C. Cassidy, O. C., handicap, 1 min. 45 secs.; F. L. Cooley, O. C., handicap, 1 min. 30 secs., virtual scratchman; E. Shortall, A. C., handicap, 4 min. 30 secs.; M. L. Espinosa, O. C., handicap, 2 min.; H. G Blankman, O. C. handicap, 4 min. 30 secs., and P. F. Bauer, A. C., handicap, 4 min. 10 secs. Those who started and did not complete the course were: M. Tromboni, E. P. Tobin and E. P. Moody of the A. C., and J. E. Little, L. King, F. R. Gallagher, J. H. Spiro, J. A. Christie, H. and H. M. Collins of the O. C. P. D. Skillman of the O. A. C. was chosen referee, J. McElroy, O. A. C., John Elliott, O. A. C. and F. G. Warner, O. A. C. acted as judges. P. McIntyre, O. A. C., S. F. McCarty, O. A. C. and W. Sharpe, Acme Club, were the timers. George W. Jordan, O. A. C. was starter.

The Second Spring Field-day of the Amateur Athletic Association will be held at the Olympic Club grounds, on Saturday, May 14, 1892, commencing at 1 P. M. Entries will close this event at 8 P. M. Entrance fee 50 cts. to be returned to starters. Gold medal to first and silver to second in each event. The following is the programme of events:—100 yd. dash, 120 yd. hurdle race, 220 yd. dash, 220 yd. dash (open), 220 yd. hurdle race, 440 yd. dash, 440 yd. dash (open), 880 yd. run, 1 mile run, 1 mile walk, running broad jump, running high jump, pole vault (for height), throwing 56 lb. weight, throwing 16 lb. hammer, putting 16 lb. shot, relay race.

Andrew Jackson trotted many races at short and long distances, one to ten miles; foaled 1828. He wore the crown from 1834 to 1837, when his son (and this is the only instance where the crown has gone from father to son in the illustrious line of trotting stallion kings), Long Island Black Hawk, became the king and held the sceptre until 1853, when Ethan Allen, record 2:28, son of Flying Morgan, took and carried the colors until 1859. They were wrested from him by Geo. M. Patchen, 2:23¼, by Cassius M. Clay. This record stood until 1868. On July 26, of that year, Fearnaught, a Morgan horse, trotted in 2:23¼, but a few weeks after, Geo. Wilkes trotted in 2:22. Thus stood the stallion record until 1872, when Jay Gould reduced it to 2:21½. On August 5, 1874, Smuggler, the converted pacer, made a mile in 2:20¾, at Buffalo, which time was beaten eight days afterwards at Rochester in 2:20, by Mambrino Gift; but in 1876 Smuggler again reduced the record to 2:15¼. In 1884 Maxie Cobb trotted in 2:13½; in 1889 Axtell in 2:12; in 1890, Nelson in 2:10¾; in 1891, Nelson in 2:10, Allerton in 2:09½, and Palo Alto in 2:08¾.

It will be seen that fourteen stallions in the past fifty-seven years have held the sceptre. Two others, Stamboul, 2:11, and Arion, 2:10¾, by their deeds are worthy of a crown; in fact it is a "toss-up" whether these two, or the four last mentioned kings, shall on Christmas, 1892, be "stallion king." For ourself, looking at the succession, the longest in the male line of trotting stallions, we fancy we see Stamboul on a "kite" in 2:06½!

Yankee skill in the building of tracks, the construction of vehicle, harness, shoe and boot, has helped to the lowost record. The genius of Splan, Hickok, Doble, Williams and Marvin has as surely shown in the battle for time, as it did in Grant, Sherman and Sheridan in the fight for the Union; but besides skill and genius, there was blood and breeding that helped carry the sixteen stallions mentioned their routes. A hasty tracing of their blood lines leads to Oriental origin. It is an axiom of the English breeders, that no horse can be a thoroughbred unless his parentage traces to that part of Arabia "where humanity was unrolled." So the poet said:

> "He can trace his lineage higher
> Than any Bourbon dare aspire."

I have read in years gone by articles by Lexington. There emanated from his pen, not the gab of an auctioneer, nor the special pleading of a paid attorney; instead, reason, history, facts. Keeping in mind the truths he told, let us look at the "blood and breeding" of the "stallion kings."

The first king, Andrew Jackson, was a grandson of the Arabian Grand Bashaw. Jackson's sire, Young Bashaw, had for a dam the thoroughbred mare Pearl. Andrew Jackson's dam was an inbred Messenger, being by Why Not, son of Messenger, out of a dam by Messenger. Imported Messenger was a thoroughbred or English blood horse, or an Anglo Arab; he was but three removes from the Godolphin Arabian, and many times inbred to the blood of the Desert. Young Bashaw was a thoroughbred or American Arab, being half Arab and half English blood. So Andrew Jackson was a thoroughbred, or an American Arab.

Of the sixteen stallions above named, eight carry the blood of the first king, or the blood of the thoroughbred horse Andrew Jackson, to wit: his son, Long Island Black Hawk; his grandson, George Wilkes; his great grandson, George M. Patchen; as well as Axtell, Allerton, Arion, Stamboul and the present king, Palo Alto, the last seven getting the Jackson blood through his son, Henry Clay; three, Long Island Black Hawk, George M. Patchen and Stamboul get in the male line, the other five from their dams.—Geo. E. Bryant, in Dunton's Spirit of the Turf.

A Lesson to Riders.

What should a rider do when he undertakes to cross a river having a tide?

He must first of all be told that a horse unused to the water does not swim naturally with ease as soon as it loses its foothold. The animal has only one idea, and that is to hold its head out of the water and to raise its neck as high as it can. In this way the croup sinks. This attitude prevents it from moving forward, if it has an inexperienced man upon its back, who does not know how to make his horse swim, it is nine chances out of ten that both man and horse will be drowned. In fact, in a position such as is herein described, if the rider pulls ever so slightly upon the rein, or even inclines his body backward, the croup will sink more deeply and the horse will find itself standing vertically, and, being utterly unable to move forward, will turn over upon itself, beating the water with his forelegs, and end by sinking.

The expert rider, on the contrary, when the horse loses its foothold, grasps a handful of the mane and drags his body forward, lying upon the animal's neck, but never touching its head. His knees should strongly grip the horse, or else the water will very soon separate the man from his mount. That is the only position allowable for a man who remains in the saddle when his horse is swimming. The rider should hold one rein in each hand, and momentarily loosen his arm when he wishes to cause a movement to the right or left, upon the horse's mouth, so as to guide it in the desired direction. But it is important, in the highest degree, as I have just explained, not to pull the animal either from the front or the rear.

Pool Selling on Heats.

Now that the trotting season is about to begin, would it not be well for the associations to consider the propriety of abolishing betting upon the heats at their meetings? Neither of the parent associations have seen fit to take the matter in hand, but we know of no reason why each member may not dedide the matter for itself. There is no law requiring members to permit pool selling upon their grounds at all. They have a clear and undoubted right to prohibit it if they see fit. Having the power to destroy, they certainly have the power to regulate.

Many of the most astute horsemen are of the opinion that the miserable jobs that have disgraced the trotting turf in former years have grown out of the pernicious practice of permitting pool selling on heats. It is true that jobs may be "fixed" upon the event of the race, but they are not nearly so common, nor can they be as profitably and as easily manipulated. No doubt by far the greater part of the turf scandals would be avoided were this practice dispensed with. Some associations hold successful meetings without any pool selling at all, and if we are to have repetitions of some of the disgraceful events of last year, it would be far better to adopt this course, but it would be well in the first instance to try the effect of getting rid of the heat betting.

Of course, as human nature is unfortunately constituted, there will be some dirty work under any system, on the race course as well as elsewhere, but the system will in the long run prove the best as well as the most profitable where the least of it is done.

All persons interested in the trotting-horse business, either as breeders or drivers, are interested in everything which tends to the suppression of dishonest turf transactions. The associations should see that experienced, honest and fearless men are put in the stand—men who have the ability to defect fraud, and both the desire and the nerve to punish it relentlessly when detected. The rascals should be hunted down and expelled and the turf atmosphere purified. The men who "fix" the schemes of robbery and fraud should be kept at a proper distance. The abolition of heat betting will do much to frustrate the schemes of these comorants. Give it a trial.

CATALOGUES for the sale of horses advertised by P. A. Finigan can be had upon application to Easton & Eldridge. Horsemen in need of game trotting stock and extra fine roadsters should attend this sale.

Training
The Trotting Horse.
BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

A FEW FACTS.

The attention of the horsemen of the West is respectfully called to the following facts: Our track is conceded by all to be the fastest and safest in the West, and holds the trotting record, also the fastest stallion record for the North Pacific Coast. Our city to-day is the liveliest in the Pacific Northwest. Our people are hospitable and progressive and turn out en masse to the sport of Kings. If you want to get your horse acclimated before entering the Montana Circuit there is abundant opportunity in this program. If you want to sell, this is a good market for a good individual. It will pay you to spend a week with us.

Best Harrow Ever Invented.

It has sloping, chisel-shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth, so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. It runs on three wheels, with a lever to raise and lower it while in motion, making the track as uniform as if raked with a garden rake. For reference we offer the following: J. A. Goldsmith, H. W. DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Every one of the above descendants of ALCONA were trained by different men, in different parts of the country, and all made their records in races over regulation tracks. Was worked out four times and trotted to a record of 2:27¾ in a race Thanksgiving Day at Napa, finishing the last quarter in 36 seconds. Fifteen days training,—certainly a remarkable showing. I expect him to get a low mark next season. His colts are fine lookers and natural trotters. He will be bred to a limited number of mares at the low price of $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ALCONEER 15120. (FULL BROTHER TO ALCONA JR., 2:24, SIRE OF SILAS SKINNER, 2:17). Sired by ALCONA 730, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr., 2:24, Del Rey, 2:29), by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22); grandam by Joe Downing 710.

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

LOYALIST - - - - - $100, INCLUDING KEEP OF MARE TILL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201)

CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

Second dam BRIDESMAID, Dam of THORNDALE MAID, 2:30, and TRIXIE, (trial), 2:25½.

By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22, Sire of GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HARRY WILKES, 2:13½, and seventy-five others in 2:30 list.

By MAMBRINO PATCHEN, Sire of Eighteen in 2:30 list, and the dams of GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HOURI, 2:17, ASTRAL, 2:18, BARON WILKES, 2:18, and sixty others in 2:30 or better.

By THORNDALE, 2:22¼, Sire of EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, DAISYDALE, 2:19¾, and five others in 2:30 list, by ALEXANDER'S ABDALLAH, sire of GOLDSMITH MAID, 2:14, ALMONT, etc., out of DOLLY, dam of DIRECTOR, 2:17, ONWARD, 2:25¼. THORNDALE, 2:24¼, and CZARINA, 2:21, by MAMBRINO CHIEF.

By RYSDYK'S HAMBLETONIAN, Sire of ELECTIONEER, GEORGE WILKES, and forty-one trotters in the 2:30 list.

WILKESDALE is a seal brown, sixteen hands high; bred at Highlawn Farm, Mass. He very closely resembles his sire, Alcantara, four year old record 2:23 (trial 2:17), and a study of his pedigree will convince anyone that if there be anything in inheritance, we may expect extreme speed from his produce. His sire, Alcantara, at fifteen years old has forty-seven in the 2:30 list, and has five producing sons, two of whom have sired two-year-olds that entered the 2:30 list this year. His full brother, Alcyone, died when only ten years old, yet he is the sire of twenty-five in the 2:30 list, among them being McKinney 2:12½, fastest record for a four-year-old stallion. Another half-brother, out of Alma Mater, is the sire of Strong Boy 2:12, fastest four-year-old record for a pacing stallion. Wilkesdale's dam is herself a trotter, record 2:30, and is in the list of great broodmares, being the dam of Miss Alice 2:17¼ (who was shown trials the past season in 2:14); Thornton, 2:26¼, and Wilkesdale 2:29, all sired by Alcantara. Thorndale 2:22¼, the sire of his dam, is also the sire of Sue, the dam of Egthorne 2:12½, one of the sensational trotting stallions of the past season.

ALMA MATER, his grandam on his sire's side and Dolly, (the dam of Director 2:17, etc.) on his dam's side, are among the few of the great producing dams, Wilkesdale was taken out of the paddock the 1st of October last, soft and in no condition for trotting, yet in less than two months he gained a record of 2:29 in third heat, trotting the second heat in 2:29½. After his stud season closes he will again be placed in training, and under favorable circumstances will no doubt trot under 2:20.

TERMS—He will make the season of 1892 at Wolf's stable in Stockton, Cal., at $75, for the season, from February 1st to July 1st, with usual return privileges for mares that fail to get in foal this season.

PEDIGREE:

GEORGE WASHINGTON, by Mambrino Chief Jr. 11,622, record 2:34. GEORGE WASHINGTON has proven himself a great race horse, and would have been given a much lower mark last season had it not been for an accident. DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

*Balkan.

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¾. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¾. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½. Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.

Wilkes-Electioneer Stallion.

COMBINED BLOOD

— Of the Greatest Son of

GEO. WILKES

— And the Greatest Son of

ELECTIONEER,

ANTEEO WILKES.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:16¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19¼, James Madison, record 2:17¼; second dam by Alexander, record 2:31¼, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:21½ and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 28:30, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:23; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten-mile record 31.07, one-mile record 2:38.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15.3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

SERVICE FEE $100.

Limited to twelve approved mares, season to end June 15th. Box stalls and corrals for mares. Address

OSCAR MANSFELDT,
1163 Alice street, Oakland, or
726 Market street, San Francisco.

Seventh dam by Quicksilver, son of imp. Medley.
Eighth dam by Meades' Celer.

El. Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¾; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

As the dam of Green Mountain Maid and grandam of Electioneer, Shanghai Mary may be called the foundation stone of the Electioneer family, which now holds practically every best on record. Glen Fortune is inbred to this great old mare once through his sire, Electioneer, and again through his dam, a granddaughter of Shanghai Mary.

Glen Fortune's oldest colts were foaled in 1891, and show up splendidly in the kindergarten, where they may be seen any week day.

MOORLAND, $40.

Moorland's colts show speed. His dam, Lady Budd, was a wonderful road mare; nothing ever beat her in an all-day tussle on the Cliff House road.

The training department is very complete, and curing faults in gait is a specialty. The Souther Farm system of balancing was used most successfully during the past season on several well known horses, of which one took a record of 2:16 1-2, another 2:22 3-4 with several other creditable records and trials.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives EXERCISE WITHOUT CONCUSSION, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

The Fast Trotting Stallion SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana, dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½; by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2.30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Baby Chieftain, 2:28½, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¼; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc. by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¼; Harry Clay 2:23¼; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted so horsemen said one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17¼, 2:17¼, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $6 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

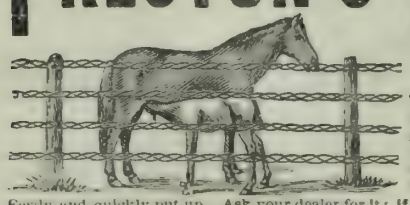
DON MARVIN

Five-Year-Old Record 2:28.

DON MARVIN is a beautiful seal brown, foaled 1881; bred by Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Cal; is 16 hands high and weighs 1200 pounds; sired by Fallis, 2:23 (sire of four in 2:30 list), he by Electioneer. Dam, CORA (dam of Don Marvin, 2:28, and Elected trial 2:26 by Don Victor, sire of the dams of five in the 2:30 list; by Belmont. Second dam, CLARABEL (dam of Clifton Bell, 2:21¼, and Rebecca, dam of four in 2:30 list, by Abdallah Star. Third dam, FAIRY (dam of Stoner Boy, 2:29¾, and Sweepstakes, sire of 22 in the 2:30 list, and three other producing sires and dams; by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Fourth dam, EMMA MILLS (dam of four horses that have sired 2:30 performers) by Seely's American Star.



DON MARVIN is a horse of great natural speed. His record was made with scarcely any preparation, after making a large season in the stud, and is no measure of his speed. His oldest colts (only five in number) are three years old this spring. One of them with very little work trotted quarters last fall in 36 seconds, and could have easily entered the 2:30 list in his two-year-old form had he been given an opportunity.

DON MARVIN will make the season of 1892 at $40, with usual return privilege, which makes him the cheapest horse in the State, record and breeding considered, having what no other public stallion has on the Coast—Four producing dams.

The Standard Stallion
WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the Stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1441, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 18 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18½, trial 2:25), by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27¾, and the dams of Executor, 2:21½, Ranchero, 2:21½, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18¼, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddle Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS—$30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

Postoffice address, CHARLES SCOTT, Napa City.

WHEN YOUR BLACKSMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is glori ously mistaken. However, don't poin ou the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing of both heels and the entire wearing surface.

PRICE:

Responding to the frequent requests of many of the leading horseshoers of the country we now offer as the latest production in the line of improvement

THE NEW

Perkins Steel Toe-Weight and Side-Weight Horse Shoes.

We claim that in this form of Horse Shoe are combined more real merit and a greater variety of points of excellence than any machine shoe ever before made.

It will average 25 per cent. lighter than the corresponding sizes of the regular brands of flat shoes, and will wear longer.

It is the true Frog Pressure Shoe.

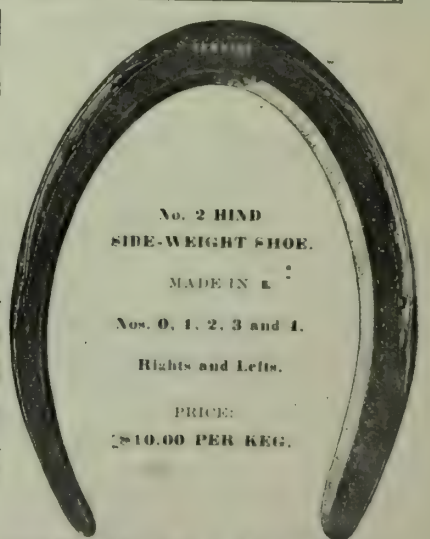
It is perfect for speeding and trotters, and driving horses, and is better than the flat shoe for any purpose.

It will not pick up stones, snow or mud. It will not throw mud or gravel, and clay suction cannot pull it off.

It is sold for about one-half the price of the hand-made Toe-Weight Shoe, and at a price per set but a trifle above that of the first-class flat shoes.



Every intelligent horseshoer well knows the superior advantages of this shoe.

The expense of turning this style of Shoe by hand is large, and for that reason its use has been limited, although it is a well-known fact to the horseshoers that a large proportion of the horses wear the outside of the Hind Shoe faster than the inside.

They are made concaved, in order to avoid throwing mud, stones or snow, and it is almost impossible to pick up a stone with them.

The price we put upon them is about one-half that of the cost of the hand-turned, and now within the reach of all. They are put up in all cases with Rights and Lefts in the keg.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR ASSORTED KEGS.

THE BLOOD HORSE RACES

Closing Days of a Wonderfully Successful Race Meeting.

THE DAREBIN—IRIS FILLY'S EASY WIN.

Braw Scot, Early and Lucinda Finish Noses Apart—Montana and Bert Hart Win in One Day for Holly.

Hello at Last Victorious—The Winners on Getaway Day Are Bert Hart, Martinet, Charmion, Esperanza, Joe Ellis and Imp. San Pedro—Thomas H. Williams Wields the Flag Very Creditably. The Winning Jockeys and Owners.

IT IS proverbial that the Blood Horse directors cannot make terms with the weather clerk, and the proverb is a true one, beyond peradventure, for there was enough mud to-day to please the oldest skate at Guttenburg. Notwithstanding this condition of affairs, there was a goodly crowd in attendance that flattened the pockets of the pencilers in an appalling way. By. Holly carried of the coin in two races with Montana and Bert Hart. The finish in the second race between Braw Scot, Early and Lucinda was of a hair-raising description, and while many declared that Lucinda had won it looked very much from the press stand as if the judges were eminently correct in deciding that Braw Scot was first, Early second and Lucinda third, noses apart. The Darebin–Iris filly won the first race in a romp by three lengths, leading all the way. Montana's win was equally easy, although he did not make his move until the homestretch was reached. Bert Hart followed Montana as a winner, and actually walked in under the wire. Old Hello at last got on his winning clothes, and beat a fair field, in which was the half-sister to Oregon Eclipse and Hercules, Ethel Fortune. B. C. Holly and Mike Hennessy had a hot fight over something which could not be determined by the public at large, but it is claimed Mr. H. accused the jockey of not trying with Hercules.

Following is a detailed account of the day's racing.

SIXTEENTH DAY—FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1892.

The Darebin-Iris filly opened up favorite at 6 to 5 in the first event, five furlongs, with five starters. Heavy commissions coming in forced the odds down to 4 to 5 at the post. Conde and Martinet were played to some extent, principally for place. To a good start the favorite drew away at once, attended by Conde and Martinet in the order named. Entering the homestretch the positions were unchanged, the Iris filly leading by two lengths, Conde a head in front of Martinet. The leader made the daylight space between herself and pursuers even larger when once straightened out, and won by three lengths. A great struggle for place ensued, Hill riding Martinet beautifully and getting the verdict by a length by dint of superior horsemanship. Sidney was fourth and Hiogo last. Time, 1:05 1-5.

SUMMARY.

BAY DISTRICT TRACK, Friday, May 6, 1892—First race, purse $400; $300 to first, $75 to second, $25 to third; for three-year-olds that have run and not won at this meeting. Five furlongs.

Braw Scot was a seething favorite in the second race, distance one mile, with six starters. Queen Alta was fancied some, and a strong tip got out on the black Maltese Villa filly. Santa Fe was first away, Queen Alta second, Early third. At the quarter it was Queen Alta first by a head, Braw Scot second, Santa Fe third. Braw Scot moved up now, and led Queen Alta half a length at the half, she a neck in advance of Santa Fe, Early close up. Into the stretch Braw Scot came, nearly a length to the good, Queen Alta, Santa Fe and Early so close together that it was hard to separate them. Half-way down the homestretch it looked all over but the shouting, but at that point Early and Lucinda moved up simultaneously out of the bunch and made for Braw Scot, whom they all but nipped at the wire amid the greatest excitement. Shouts were raised for Lucinda and Braw Scot, but the latter got home a nose in front of Early, who was the same scant distance from Lucinda. Time, 1:50½.

SUMMARY.

The talent settled on Montana as a good thing in the third event, three-quarters of a mile. Hercules and Montana had several supporters, while a few nibbled at Royal Flush. To a beautiful start, at the very first attempt, Henry T. was first to show, Royal Flush being at his neck, he lapped by Hercules, the favorite fourth, In this way they ran past the half. In the run to the three-quarter pole Montana changed places with Hercules, Monowai being fourth. An eighth from home Montana easily sailed past Royal Flush and Henry T., and drawing away at every jump, won from Monowai by two lengths. The latter made a grand run down the straight, and nipped the place from Henry T. by a neck right under the wire. Time, 1:18 3-5.

SUMMARY.

Bert Hart, with his known ability to successful swim through a sea of mud, was installed favorite at once in books and auctions in the fourth race, distance one mile. The coin poured into the strong boxes of the bookies like water through a sieve, until at the post he had been backed from 7 to 5 down to 4 to 5. Initiation was played strongly for place, she having that sterling rider, Hill, in the saddle. King Hooker and St. Patrick were played by not a few for place. Bert Hart was first away, Initiation next, lapped by King Hooker. In the run to the quarter pole King Hooker opened up as if he meant business, and led Bert Hart two lengths at that point, Initiation over a length behind the favorite, third. At the half Hooker's lead was a length, and Bert Hart was coming fast. A sixteenth further on and King Hooker hoisted his signal of distress and fell away like a burning wall. "All over!" shouted the crowd. However, the big chestnut from Sacramento got his second wind and came again, and Bert Hart led him only a length into the homestretch. The favorite was thoroughly at home in the bad going, though, and won by a length and a quarter easing up, King Hooker as far from Reverie, third. Time, 1:49 3-5.

At the half the three mentioned were head-and-head. At the three-quarters they had resumed their former positions, and when they swung into the stretch it was Panchita first by half a length, Hello second, Randwick third, Ethel Fortune next and coming fast. SEVENTEENTH AND LAST DAY—SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1892.

Getaway Day brought out a great crowd to see the six events run off, and this day the bookies took an inning. The track was heavy from the previous night's wetting, and while the time was not fast in any instance, the racing was first-class in every respect. Thomas H. Williams wielded the flag, Starter Ferguson having departed for Louisville, Ky., the night previous with the good wishes of every one and a handsome silver service presented to him by the association in token of the great esteem in which he is held. Mr. Williams did splendidly as a starter except in the last event, where the send-off was of the straggling order. However, it must be taken into consideration that there were eleven horses in the field, most of them (or their riders) unruly, and the chances are that a better start could not have been made if they had remained at the post considerably longer. Bert Hart won the first race in a walk, Tom Stacey getting the place from Reverie in the last jump by a short eyebrow. Martinet fooled a host of people by downing Castro, and we predict that the son of Mariner will be "some pumpkins" in everything he starts in from five-eighths of a mile up the rest of the season. Charmion, with her light weight up, beat the good Orrin, Alliance, Estrella and others in the third race of the day. [illegible] peranza spoiled another good thing when she beat that splendid favorite, Montana, Captain Al and Monowai in the mile race, and several thousands of dollars planked on Montana went glimmering when the little filly passed under the wire whipped and spurred out, the winner of a good race by a scant head. Joe Ellis, with only 81 pounds on his broad back, sailed by a good crowd of sprinters on the final turn, winning rather easily by half a length from the veteran Applause, who came like a streak of blue lightning at the end. San Pedro got away with a two-length lead in the last race, seven furlongs, and won from Early by a length and a half. The latter made up about five lengths, and would have won had he got off well, undoubtedly. The meeting just ended has been the most successful from every point of view ever held here, and San Francisco is fast taking her proper place in the racing line.

Following is a complete description of the racing to-day:

Reverie led the favorite, Bert Hart, a length till the head of the homestretch was reached, where the latter came through with ease and assumed command, never to be headed, winning by two lengths, pulling up. An eighth from the wire it looked as if Reverie was safe in the place, for at that point he was leading Tom Stacey about four lengths. Young McKenna is one of those lads who never knows when he is beaten, so putting whip and spur to Stacey with all his might, that horse crawled up inch by inch on Reverie, and, amid intense excitement, the nose of Tom Stacey got under the wire about an inch in front of that of Reverie, who awoke from his brown study to think of his defeat for place honors.

Notwithstanding the heavy impost on Castro, he was backed down in the books from 7 to 5 to 4 to 5. Martinet and Dick O'Malley were both at 3 to 1. Conde was first to show after the start, and went out so fast that people began to shout that it was all over and nothing was in it but Conde. Castro ran second and Oporto third passing the half. At the head of the homestretch Martinet had passed Castro and Oporto, and was coming very fast. Conde tired considerably at the drawgate, and Martinet, under the vigorous riding of Sullivan, got up in the last jump and won a good race by a short head, Conde second, a length and a half from Oporto who was half a length from the favorite, Castro. Time, 1:05.

Charmion, with only 100 pounds up, was made a hot favorite in the third race, five furlongs. Orrin had lots of friends, though, even though he was carrying 118 pounds. Charmion went off in front, attended by Sidney and Orrin, and this was the order past the half pole and until nearing the head of the homestretch, where Orrin made his move and looked dangerous for a moment. He died away at the drawgate, however, and Alliance, well-ridden by George Evans, came up and secured the place by half a neck. Charmion was never headed, and won with ease by two lengths. Time, 1:05.

"Montana is a cinch," cried the coin of the public as it rattled against the hard sides of the pencilers' strong boxes. Several liked the chances of Monowai for place, but nearly everyone agreed that Montana ought to win. Captain Al, with his 125 up to the favorite's 118, was considered out of it, while the chances of Esperanza were considered of little moment. The last-named took the track at the flag-fall, Montana and Captain Al head-and-head, Monowai last. Hart pulled Montana back last at once, and the quartet swung past the quarter-pole with Esperanza leading Captain Al and Monowai, head-and-head, half a length, Montana over a length behind the pair. Hart now commenced to ride Montana some, and he passed Captain Al and Monowai like breaking sticks in the run to the half-pole, at which point he was within half a length of the little filly, Esperanza. The favorite and Esperanza flew past the three-quarter pole head-and-head, Monowai third, over a length away. Turning into the straight track Montana was in front a head, and everyone expected to see him come away from the wee daughter of Judge McKinstry at once. But he didn't. At the drawgate Montana was still leading but a short head, and little Sullivan was urging Esperanza with whip, spur and voice. Under his excellent pilotage the three-year-old miss came again gamely, and in one of the most exciting finishes passed the wire first by a head amid the shouting of "Esperanza! Esperanza wins!" Several thousands of dollars were lost on Montana, and a well-earned victory went to the game little filly from the Encino Stable. A length and a half behind Montana was Monowai, third. Time, 1:44¾—mighty fast in such going.

Inkerman was considered a pretty sure winner in the fifth race, three-quarters of a mile, because he had seven pounds off. Joe Ellis, with only 81 pounds up, was overlooked by the vast majority, odds of 10 to 1 being obtainable at one time. Hercules was played hard for a place. The field got away with Inkerman slightly in the lead, Hercules next, Applause third. Hercules was leading Inkerman about a length passing the half-pole, Applause lapped on the favorite, Joe Ellis close up. The latter now commenced to move up fast, and was leading by a neck past the three-quarters, Inkerman half a length from Applause. The crowd hailed Inkerman as the winner as they straightened out in the stretch, but he could never get closer than a length from Joe Ellis, who won from Applause by half a length, he the same distance from Inkerman, third. There was quite a struggle for place honors, but Applause was going much the fastest at the end. Time, 1:17½.

The concluding race of the meeting, seven furlongs, brought out the eleven horses, Henry T. and Folly being scratched. First Early was favorite, then a grand rush was made for May D. tickets, then a tip got out on San Pedro. Queen Alta also had some supporters. After considerable buckjumping and false starts, the flag fell to a straggling start, San Pedro being two lengths in front of Lady Gwenn, she about a length to the good of Mero, Early fourth, another length behind, Elair left at the post. San Pedro widened the gap in the run to the quarter pole, where the positions were unchanged. San Pedro was three lengths in front of Lady Gwenn passing the half, she in turn a length from Early, who had passed Mero. Lady Gwenn and Early closed up some of the daylight in the next quarter, and reaching the stretch Early easily passed Lady Gwenn, but could not reach San Pedro, who won by a length and a half. Early was half a length in front of Lady Gwenn. Time, 1:32 1-5. The unanimous verdict was that Early would have won had he got off on anything like equal terms with San Pedro.

Winning Thoroughbred Owners.

The following list shows the various amounts captured by the different stables at the recent Blood Horse meeting, including $10 declarations that went to the owners of the winning horses in addition to the purses offered by the association. We have estimated in some instances (on stake races), but believe that the amounts found below are nearly if not absolutely correct. While the McCarty stable heads the list, the training honors easily belong to William L. Appleby, who prepared the winners (Castro, Orrin, Applause and San Pedro) the only ones in his stable, for the fray. Taking the aggregate amount captured by these four horses, the property of three different owners, and W. L. Appleby is not a whit behind the big McCarty stable. Castro won more money than any horse at the recent meeting, while Bernardo captured the largest number of races—five. On form shown we would be forced to pick Princess among the two-year-old fillies, Monowai among the two-year-old colts, Bernardo among the three-year-olds of the male persuasion, while there were no really high-class three-year-old fillies shown, Esperanza and Lottie Mills being about the best; among the four-year-olds Fairy was clearly the pick of the basket, while in the all-aged division El Rayo was undoubtedly entitled to first honors. The most creditable runs made were: Princess' half-mile, 0:48 4-5; Cadmus' five-eighths, 1:02 1-5; Geraldine's nine-sixteenths, 0:54½, but one-quarter of a second behind the record; Regal's three-quarters, 1:14¼; Bernardo's seven-eighths (124 lbs. up), 1:28; Revolver's mile, 1:42.

Work of the Pacific Coast Jockeys.

Following is a tabulated statement of the work performed by the jockeys at the Blood Horse meeting which ended last Saturday. It will be observed that Narvaez's riding was something for any jockey to be proud of, while Hill and Hart were but little behind the Californian that is now at the East riding for Foxhall Keene. For a "green kid" young Donathan did splendidly, and the vereran George Evans did well, considering the class of horses he rode. Hennessy beat all the boys getting a place, while Belt's percentage is highest.

Originality and Liberality.

In another portion of this paper will be found the advertisement of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. Especial attention is called to the Stallion Representative Stake series, an excellent, brand-new idea—excellent in that the stakes are for colts that have already come, not for foals that have to come in the future. It strikes us as one of the best stakes that could have been devised for the benefit of stallion owners, inasmuch as it will put the owners of colts at work training for three years every promising son or daughter (foals of 1891) of a nominated sire. This series is also remarkable for its cheapness, its few payments, the chance it gives to all, and its great object is development. The Transylvania Stake, it will be observed, minimum value $5,000, has been changed from the 2:20 to the 2:18 class, and the Association has added a new stake ($5,000 guaranteed) for five-year-olds and under. With the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association (Lexington, Ky.) every stake is made to stand by itself, the surplus, if any, going to owners of the horses and the organization making good all deficiencies. Remember, three entries fill a race, and the Association reserves no rights except to reject the entries of a man or firm with whom they want to transact no business, or the entry of a horse not desired at the Lexington track. Entries to these rich stakes close June 1st, and communications should be addressed to the well-known and popular Secretary, Ed. A. Tipton.

About the Clay Family.

Old Henry Clay was a black stallion with right hind foot white, and a large star the shape of a half moon. He was fifteen and a quarter hands high, foaled June, 1837, and died April, 1867; bred by Jacob S. Platt, Long Island. He was a nervous, active horse, a very fast walker, and one of the fastest trotting stallions of his day. When aged he became blind and his neck broke over on the top and hung down, so that in his old days he could not be called a beauty, and many breeders condemned him until they saw his wonderful trotting powers. Henry Clay, as the public knows, was sired by Andrew Jackson, a very fast trotting stallion; he by the gray stallion Young Bashaw; he by the imp. Barb gray stallion Grand Bashaw. The dam of Young Bashaw was a thoroughbred mare by First Consul; second dam, Fancy, by imp. Messenger. The dam of Henry Clay was the noted trotting mare Surrey Lady, she being the fastest horse of her day at two and three-mile heats. The dam of Andrew Jackson was a Canadian pacing mare. The old stud bills of Henry Clay read: "The dam of Andrew Jackson was by the well-bred horse Why Not, and Why Not by the well-bred horse Old Messenger." The grandam of Andrew Jackson was also by Old Messenger. Andrew Jackson, the sire of Henry Clay, sired Long Island Black Hawk out of a mare by Mambrino, son of Messenger. Long Island Blackhawk was the first horse to trot in 2:40 to a wagon.

In Henry Clay's day we did not have trotting-bred broodmares, but he sired three in the 2:30 list, one of these in 2:25. There were many stallion sons of old Henry Clay in this (Ontario) county, but their dams were common farm mares, and Clay blood then was like sawdust in oats, the less the better, so these stallions had no chance until they got very old, and then Randolph Huntington proved without doubt that the dam of the stallion (George Wilkes) that had trotted to a wagon a quarter in twenty-nine seconds was sired by Henry Clay. After this the breeders of every stock farm in America wanted Clay blood. Rushmore, a stallion son of old Henry Clay, was bred in this town, and, I think, foaled in 1864. When Rushmore was coming three years old I went to buy him. The price then was $200, but there were certain points about the horse that I did not like, though he proved to be very good-gaited when aged. I paid $200 for a daughter of Henry Clay the same day. Rushmore was sold to the Jewett farm, it was said, for $2,500; the Clay boom had then come, Clarkson Aldrich, one of my neighbors, had a pair of stallions that he drove to the pole, sired by Henry Clay. One was a black with star and snip, the other a bay. They were small, but one of the best road teams ever seen. He took them to New York and did not have to wait long to get an offer of $3,500, his price being $5,000, but the horses were almost too small for that price; he let the people in New York see that Henry Clay sired trotters, then shipped the team home and drove them for many years. Their owner was a careful horseman and a good driver. When the team was twenty-one years old he drove them from this county to the Jewett farm at Buffalo, a distance of 100 miles. On reaching the Jewett farm a well-known writer on turf topics took a spin behind the team and pronounced them the fastest pair of their age in the world.

There was another pair of stallions here sired by Henry Clay that were driven to the pole. They were owned by Jacob Bowers, who was all horse. He once had charge of old Henry Clay. Bowers was a little deaf. A member of his family was sick, and he drove a Clay mare to the village of Victor to get the doctor. Some one stepped up to ask him about his sick family; he supposed they were talking horse, and his answer was that "she could trot like the devil." These horses were black, one with a star and snip, the Clay mark, the other with no marks. They were about fifteen and a quarter hands high. The one without marks was called Moose, and he looked like one. I think he was the result of Henry being bred to his own daughter. Moose was pot-bellied, flat-ribbed, short-necked, steep-rumped, coarse head and ear, hind legs like a sickle, very crooked, but sound. He was never a well horse, but if ever there was a natural trotter foaled, this was one of them. He could go like a bullet at a pure trot, and it was worth a long journey to see "Jake," as they called him, drive them on the track and watch eight black legs moving with lightning speed, the front legs and feet pawing the air. This perhaps was one fault of the get of Henry Clay—they had too much knee action. It is the low, long stride, the stealing gait, that gets over the mile first. I have seen many great trotters, but I shall never forget Jacob Bowers and his black Clay stallion as I stood in front of them when they were being driven one 4th of July on the Palmyra track. I got excited and bred a pair of mares the next day, and I have mentioned this pair many times since to my friends who were there with me, when they have been talking about old days. One of this pair of stallions, the one with the star and snip, was bred by a man that did not take very good care of his stock. This colt was over-driven and abused, but proved to be a trotting wonder for those days. With Uncle Jake's care after he got them together, he put them in shape to sell, and a Mr. Frank Fox purchased them and shipped them East. Moose died not long after that I believe; the other stallion was sent to Boston, and it was said he was one of the fastest road horses in that city. His dam was a thoroughbred running mare, which probably accounts for the endurance. Another stallion here, sired by Henry Clay, was Fashion, a black with white face. This was a perfect-formed horse, but never trained for speed. His get made very good road and general purpose horses. There was a bay stallion here sired by Henry Clay; he had a blaze face and four white legs; was called Chronometer, and was quite a trotter. He went to Maryland, and some of his colts were trotters. The last one of the sons of Henry Clay owned here died about a year ago at Victor, N. Y. He was called Hank Clay, and was one of the largest of his sire's get. He was a black with large star and snip, a chip of the old block, speed, temper and all. There was a pair of roan geldings here sired by Henry Clay that were trotters and were sold for $2,000 to go to New York. A village paper of the time said: "Our citizens have often had occasion to notice and admire a pair of fast-going roan horses, owned by M. D. Munger, of this village. They are half-brothers, having been sired by old Henry Clay and possessing in an eminent degree the distinguishing characteristics of that noble animal. They are four and five years old, named respectively Henry Clay and General Grant. The former was bred by Joshua Phillips, of Bristol, and the latter by Hiram Crooks, of Richmond. Their new owner, G. G. Reed purchased them for the handsome sum of $5,000, and we believe he designs taking them to New York, and we venture the prediction that before many months have passed they will be found capable of taking the lead of any trotting team in the city. Their owner authorizes us to say that he will match them against any pair of green horses of their age for the sum of $5,000." The Phillips colt was said to be a full brother to the dam of George Wilkes. This pair had wonderful trotting action, but, like the St. Lawrence family, too much knee action. The two-minute trotter will not paw the air, but must step long and low and be a line trotter. If Henry Clay could have had such mares as are now common, his get would have astonished the trotting world. As something doesn't generally come from nothing, we must give Henry credit for this wonderful trotting gait in his get, for he was bred to nothing but common farm mares. Clay broodmares have produced some of the best stallions in the land. The Hambletonian–Star stallion Artemas had but three or four in the 2:30 list until lately. He made two seasons here in Ontario county, covered some Clay mares, and the colts are born trotters. There is a mare here sired by Artemas, dam by Andy Johnson, son of Henry Clay. This mare has trotted a quarter in thirty-five seconds. I bred a stallion by Artemas from a Clay mare; he trotted in 2:32 with eight weeks' training.

There have been owned in this county St. Lawrence stallions, Clays, Stars, Hambletonians, Mambrinos, Royal Georges, Champions, Morgans, Black Hawks, Tippoo Sultans, and two with a Pilot, Jr. cross, but the most successful sire of 2:30 speed owned here was Gooding's Champion, that has seventeen in the list and a large number with records under 2:40, most of them from mares of unknown breeding. One of his sons, Castle Boy, 2:21, fought some great battles down the Grand Circuit. The daughters of Gooding's Champion have proved very good broodmares, Colonel Wood, said to be the fastest trotter in Germany and Austria, is an inbred Champion. Many of the Champions are fast trotters and very good road horses, most of them good-lookers, but none of them have a record under 2:20, although Naiad Queen, by Gooding's Champion, trotted half a mile in a race in 1:04. Novelty, by Gooding's Champion, went half a mile in a race in 1:05. Grinnel's Champion, Hambletonian 10, Henry Clay 8, American Star 14, Mambrino Chief 11 and Abdallah 1, all trace back to the gray stallion, imp. Messenger; were all bred in New York State, and there is not a State in the Union where trotters are bred but that has descendants of these great horses. Our best-bred trotters will sell for more money than has yet been paid for a trotting horse, and I predict that people now alive will see the sum of $5,000 paid for the service of a trotting stallion. Arion now stands at half this amount. The young breeder of to-day will also see the two-minute trotter. I believe that blood will tell, and it always crops out in time. I also believe in the standard, but we must breed from the very best of the standard ones. No man has yet lived so long that he can not learn more about the great breeding problem. What we now want is breeders who are not prejudiced. Breed to the stallion that has the most speed, beauty and size from either of the great trotting families. Do not be selfish enough to think your own horses are all pure gold and your neighbors' are nothing but lead and dross. I have read most of the turf journals, and one can not but take an interest in the many letters written by their correspondents. One breeder is sweet on the Clay family, another wants Hambletonian and none of the Clay sawdust, but they are both making a sad mistake. Life is short; no time to experiment. We that have lived to see must admit that these are now our two leading families, but our fastest and most enduring campaigners have the stout Star, Mambrino and Pilot Jr. blood in their veins. Belle Hamlin, 2:12¾, and Alvin, 2:14, have a cross of the stout Royal George blood in their veins. Alexander, 2:19, winner of the $10,000 stallion race at Rochester in 1881, was a Clay and a St. Lawrence. All these great performers prove that we must, if we are honest, give credit to each and every one of the different trotting breeds.

The sons of Henry Clay that were owned here had level heads and were honest trotters, but I have seen his daughters that would froth at the mouth and pull a man's arms off if he drove far enough. They were full of the stuff that made great horses, were about fifteen hands high, but all horse and as springy as a ball of rubber. Mr. George Holdridge, now of the Jewett stock farm and one of the best horsemen ever in Ontario county, had a bay daughter of old Henry Clay that was from a Nimrod mare, that was a terror. She was known as the Gardner Mason mare, and was bred by one of my neighbors, a gentleman of that name. He tried patiently a long time to make a trotter out of her. She could almost fly on a trot when alone, but in company was worthless. When Mason went to Buffalo he tried to sell me this mare, and advised me to breed her to Gooding's Champion, but I then had a daughter of old Henry Clay that was from a Nimrod mare, and that would trot all day at any kind of farm work. I used her with patience, however, never put a check on her, and had no trouble. Both Henry Clay and Gooding's Champion had plenty of temper, and I thought then, as I now do, that the Holdridge mare was not the proper cross. She, I believe, ran away in Rochester, butted her head against a hitching post, and was killed. Another daughter of Henry Clay was owned here by Dr. Bennett. She was a black with star and snip and low build. The doctor was said to be the strongest man in the village of Canandaigua, where he lived. He was a good feeder and did his own driving, but when the mare began to get warm and pull he had to call on his man to help hold her. If these daughters of old Henry Clay could have been bred to Hambletonian 10, with his level head and pure trotting gait, we should perhaps now have more such horses as Georgs Wilkes and Electioneer. It is claimed by some that Dexter was a Clay horse. One writer said that Hiram Woodruff advised him to breed a mare to Harry Clay and not to Hambletonian, because Harry Clay sired Dexter. Woodruff in his book says that Dexter was sired by Hambletonian, and I agree with him, for Hambletonian was bred to Dexter's dam and got Dictator, the sire of Phallas, 2:13½; Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and Director, 2:17, the latter the sire of Direct, 2:06, the fastest pacer in the world. I once had the pleasure of calling on Randolph Huntington at his stables in Rochester, and I can not speak in high enough praise of his beautiful Arab and Clay horses. He had a picture of Harry Clay and what he called his son, Dexter Each had four white legs and a white face, but I believe Dexter's granddam had the same marks. Seely's American Star, the sire of Dexter's first dam, had a white face and white hind legs. Rysdyk's Hambletonian had two white hind feet, and I think we can hardly prove Dexter's sire by his marks. Dexter was one of the greatest trotters ever foaled, and it was a sad mistake that he was not kept an entire horse. I will admit that the pictures of Harry Clay and Dexter resemble each other, but the breeder of Dexter, Jonathan Hawkins, stood up and took his oath on the Bible that Dexter was sired by Rysdyk's Hambletonian.

Some of our most noted breeders advocate running blood in the trotter. Do you think Arion would have sold for what he did, $125,000, if he had been a half-bred horse? I think not. Breed Arion to a mare that is bred as well as he is, and then we have what is called a thoroughbred trotting-bred trotter, and it will not be unreasonable to think we can soon have a colt with fifty or even 100 trotting crosses. We have only just commenced to accomplish what will be done in breeding that most useful of all horses, the great American trotter, the horse that can do anything and everything that can be done with any horse for a general-purpose horse, a gentleman's driving horse, for an agricultural horse, a turf horse or a saddle horse. There is no place you can name that the trotter does not fill the bill. For the average farmer there is no horse that can compare with him.—Stephen W. Smith in Wallace's Monthly.

Tom Clay, by Mambrino Chief.

Mr. Wm. S. Lyle, of this city, has furnished us the following copy of the advertisement of the horse Tom Clay that stood at Putah Creek many years ago. This horse Tom Clay sired a number of fine-looking colts and fillies in that part of California. In comparison with the stud fees of to-day it can be seen that Tom Clay stood at a remarkably low figure considering his breeding. The ideas expressed by these old-time horsemen can be looked upon as prophecies.

TOM CLAY

Will stand at the ranch of J. Adamson, Putah Creek, and at Silveyville during the season of 1863, at the rates:

For the season $25. Single leap, $10. To be paid at the end of season secured by note or cash in hand.

TOM CLAY is dark brown, 16¼ hands high, weighs 1,227 pounds, and was bred by J. M. Rowan, of Bourbon county, Kentucky; foaled June 7, 1857, by Mambrino Chief, first dam Molly Byrnes, by Berthune, second dam Sally Offutt, by Rattler, a Sir Archy horse; Mambrino Chief by Mambrino Paymaster, he by Mambrino, he by imp. Messenger, dam a Messenger mare; Berthune by Sidi Hamet, first dam Susette, by Aratus; second dam Jenny Cockracy, by Potomac; third dam Timoleon's dam, by imported Saltram; fourth dam by Simon's Wildair; fifth dam by Driver; sixth dam by Fearnaught; seventh dam by imported Fellow; eight dam by imported Vampire. Brown colt Berthune, foaled 18—, by Sidi Hamet; first dam Susette, by Aratus; second dam Jenny Cockracy, by Potomac; third dam Timoleon's dam by imported Saltram; fourth dam by Simon's Wildair; fifth dam by Driver; sixth dam by Fearnaught; seventh dam by imported Fellow; eight dam by imported Vampire.

December 21, 1863. L. HERR.

Rattler was thoroughbred, and I think full brother to Sumpter, both by Sir Archy. L. HERR.

To my own knowledge, J. M. Rowan bred a mare to Mambrino Chief, which was by Berthune, thoroughbred, and out of a mare by Rattler, also thoroughbred. The stock back of that was said by men of undoubted integrity to be thoroughbred, and from the blood-like appearance of the mare, I would judge her to be thoroughbred without the facts being stated by reliable men. The produce of the above Barthune mare and Mambrino Chief was a brown horse colt named Tom Clay, which I knew from his foaling up to the time of J. M. Rowan's starting him to Missouri previous to which I broke and gentled him to harness, and considered him very promising for speed, being well-bred and having a fine way of going.

The Mambrino horses are going faster for their ages, and selling for higher prices than any family of horses in Kentucky, and are purchased and taken to all parts of the country to improve the stock for speed. A four-year-old trotted in 2:30½, for which $6,000 was refused; a six-year-old sold for $6,000; a two-year-old trotted in 3:13½, to which a number of great performances and high sales might be added. There is a four-year-old Mambrino now here valued at $10,000. There is no stock superior, if equal, to the Mambrinos for speed and high prices. L. HERR.

We certify to the above being a true statement of facts. The Mambrinos, Clays and Pilots are the popular stock here for speed and high prices.

Matt Storn in Denver.

Am pleased to inform you that I arrived at Denver on Thursday evening at 8 P. M., after a run of fifty-six hours. The horses arrived in No. 1 order, without even a cough, notwithstanding it snowed all the way from Auburn, Cal., to Terrace, Wyoming. The weather was so rough that I decided not to stop over until I got to my journey's end. You may be sure I was pleased that I did so, for the officers of the Overland Jockey Club had made all arrangements on my arrival at Denver for the transportation of my car out to the Overland Park. I will say this much for the information of horsemen who might want to come this way: In former days the Union Pacific had no switch out to the park, and it had to depend on the Denver and Rio Grande for switching all racing stock out to the park. Now all that is done away with, for the Union Pacific Company has put in a new track and side switch up close to the stable, and all the horsemen can be easy in mind now if they decide to ship over the Union Pacific. The officers of that company spare no expense in making it convenient for the accommodation of the Overland Jockey Club and the horsemen at large who patronize the club. I must say a few words in regard to the climate and the improvements at Overland Park. The weather is all that could be expected, even at this season in my own State. The track is in first-class condition, and several horses are in training here. The prospects never were half so good for a great spring meeting as they are at present, and it seems to me that all of the citizens of Denver have formed themselves into the Overland Jockey Club, as you can hear nothing else talked about but the spring races and who will win the Derby. Of course, later on everybody can tell who the winner of that classic event should be. I should like to have the winner in my stable, as the stake will be worth about $1,000 to the winner. The grounds around the park look beautiful, and the enclosure is confined to alfalfa for the use of race horses. At present it is fit to take the first crop off. The trees are all budding, and by the time the races commence they will all be in full bloom. The horsemen can all bear in mind that all they have to do is to notify the club of the number of all stalls they require, and they will find them bedded down for them and everything in first-class order.

An Index to the Trotting Register.

The Mills Publishing Company, of Des Moines, Iowa, now has under headway and will soon have completed an index digest of the American Trotting Register. The Trotting Register now numbers 10 volumes, and volume 11 closed May first. The index now being printed will give the names of all animals alphabetically in their respective places as to standard and non-standard. The new index will be very complete, and will be of great service and value to breeders. Mr. F. M. Mills, the originator of the new enterprise, has been in the law book publishing business in Des Moines for many years, and with his knowledge of the printing and publishing business the public can rely on the new index being correct and reliable.

STARTER J. B. FERGUSON stated to the writer just before he left that he had visited many countries and seen all sorts of people, but in no part of the world had he been treated so hospitably as in California. He will in all likelihood wield the flag at our fall meeting. On Thursday evening, the night before leaving, Mr. Ferguson was called before the Board of Directors of the Blood Horse Association and, in token of the esteem in which he was held by the officers of the organization, presented with a splendid silver tea service.

No bacilli can live in NAPA SODA.

TURF AND TRACK.

Dictator is twenty-nine years old.

The dam of Thomas Jefferson, 2:23, and Naubuc, has a ten-mile record of 28:29.

D. McCarty has sent five choicely-bred mares to Grayson to be bred to Richards' Elector.

The chances are good for a race between Allerton and Nancy Hanks at Des Moines, Iowa, in August.

Secretaries, send in your programmes as soon as possible if you wish to have successful meetings this fall.

The large, pure-gaited colt Nubia, by Soudan, 2:27¼, is trotting well at Petaluma. He is in Lee Shaner's string.

Hambletonian has ten daughters in the great broodmare list. Next comes Almont with an equal number in the list.

Chauncey Kane, the well-known trainer, took quarters last week at the Salinas race track with M. Lynn's string of trotters.

The question is how many registered and apparently standard animals are short in breeding or have defective pedigrees.

Vision says: "Great as Axtell is, it is doubtful if it would have been a very serious loss to trotting interests had he been gelded."

Conductor, 2:25½, by Electioneer, and Roseberry, 2:19¾, by Strathmore, have been matched to trot at the Illinois State Fair next fall.

The Gonzales kite track is rapidly approaching completion, and will be quite an attractive resort for the Monterey horsemen this year.

Richard Havey is hard at work in Sacramento with the three thoroughbreds belonging to Charles Fair; he is also jogging two trotters.

The sales of Spelterine, the new hoof-stuffing, are increasing daily. Horsemen who have used it say it surpasses anything they have heretofore seen.

A match of $5000 has been made between the pacers Direct and Hal Pointer, to take place during the Grand Rapids (Mich.) meeting in August.

Pilot Jr. has nine daughters that have produced twenty-seven trotters and pacers with records better than 2:30. Considering the number, it is the best average.

B. C. Holly has purchased of Fairlawn Farm, Hollister, Cal., the bay colt Echo, three years old, by Judge McKinstry, dam Lottie L., by Wildidle; terms private

H. S. Beals, Sacramento, has leased his fine stallion Berlin to John Mackey, Superintendent of the Haggin ranch, to breed to some of the finest mares on the ranch.

Stake racing provides the greatest security for the future value of the products of the breeding farms. The winners should receive the sum total of the subscriptions.

Thomas Snyder, Yolo County's popular Supervisor, has several good ones in hand, but they need considerable working out yet before they face the flag in a trial of speed.

Pocahontas, the pacer's, sulky, was two feet wider than ordinary. She was very open-gaited and had to be hooked two or three feet out to prevent her striking the axletree.

The man who is worse than the man who campaigns a "ringer," is the sneak who would do the same thing if he could, and yet is continually prating about his own rectitude.

Ed. Corrigan has signed Jockeys "Pike" Barnes and Hugh Penny. In addition he has "Monk" Overton and Willie Delong. Huron will be prepared especially for the Garfield Derby.

"From what I know of the history of the trotting horse," remarked Senator Leland Stanford the other day, "it is my opinion that he traces back to the thoroughbred, and not the trotter."

E. B. Carroll's two-year-old filly, Alfredetta, is very promising, exhibiting great endurance and remarkable speed, says the Sacramento News. She is by Steinway out of a Guy Wilkes mare.

John Parrott, of this city, has a beautiful farm adjoining the Stanford ranch at Vina, and has purchased a number of fine broodmares and a stallion. His idea is to raise fine carriage horses.

John Gordan has his string of trotters at the San Jose race track looking and moving splendidly. He will be on hand with Bismarck, 2:29¼, C. W. S., Tip Tinous and a number of other good ones this fall.

Little Brown Jug, 2:11¾, has again changed hands, and now is owned in Cambridge. The old champion could pace pretty well down East on the snowpath, but he is principally valuable for the brilliant past.

The trotting stable of Marcus Daly will do most of its work East this season. Lord Byron, Mascot, Prodigal, Yolo Maid, Lady Wilton, Vesolia, St. Patrick and Red Cherry comprise the Daly string.

P. Farrell will soon have charge of the Junio stallion, Gilpatrick. The Salinas horse will trot below 2:25 this fall. He was defeated in 2:30¼ at the fair held in Salinas last year, but will do better next time.

Little Albert, 2:17¼, has gone back to the Pleasanton Stock Farm to be handled by Mr. Starr. After this prince of drivers handles this son of Albert W. a little he will know whether he is fit to stand a campaign or not.

William Vioget is working like a beaver getting his string of young Eros colts and fillies in shape. The way they are progressing must be very encouraging to him. Wanda and Daylight are taking their daily exercise, and both are doing well.

Do not forget to attend the great auction sale at Killip's salesyard next Tuesday. If any of our readers are in need of a good broodmare, a handsome filly or a well-trained roadster they cannot do better than to attend this sale.

A. L. Hinds is working quite a number of horses at the Oakland track. Balkan, 2:15, is, of course, the finest jewel there, and never looked stronger nor better than he does to-day. Mr. Hinds has a Mortimer filly that is also trotting fast.

The fast pacing mare Strathso, by Strathmore, out of Hope So, broke her leg last week and died shortly thereafter. She was bought last fall by George H. Ketchum, of Toledo, for $4,000. Last year she took a four-year-old pacing record of 2:13.

It has generally been observed that the McGregors are of very pleasant dispositions, though Robert McGregor himself, since he was campaigned, has been rather irritable and difficult to handle, particularly by those not acquainted with him.

John Mackey, Jr., son of John Mackey, superintendent of Rancho del Paso, arrived in this city last week. He has been attending a veterinary college in New York City, and is home on a vacation. He appears to be enjoying splendid health.

A stallion, to become a successful sire of trotters, must be—first, a strong individual, he must be able to stamp his progeny strongly after himself; second, he must possess some natural speed, and third, he must descend from speed-producing lines.

A remarkable thing was observed at the Blood Horse races last Saturday. There started in one race May D., by Wildidle—Sallie Hart, in another Esperanza, a three-year-old daughter of May D., and in still another a two-year-old son, Conde.

Owners of stock farms, send in your lists of foals for publication. No charge is made, and no better way to let intending purchasers know what your colts are than this. Many of the highest-priced horses foaled on our large stock farms were purchased as weanlings.

The Cheviots made by far the best showing of any breed of horses at the late Blood Horse races, out of twenty races winning twelve, running second three times, third three times and unplaced only five. They ran first and second in one race, first and third in another.

Remember the great combination sale takes place at Killip & Co.'s sale yard next Tuesday. Every horseman in need of good mares, colts and fillies should be there. There are some roadsters to be sold that will at once commend themselves to all judges of good horseflesh.

James Corcoran, the well-known trainer and driver, has quite a big string of colts and fillies at the Napa track. He has "banked his hopes" on getting some of them in the 2:30 list this fall. If hard work and judgment will accomplish this object Mr. Corcoran will surely attain it.

The Bay District track is now in possession of the trotters and pacers. The army of bang-tails, with their stable boys and the "touts," have departed, and with the exception of a few interested trotting-horse men who are seen on the porch, the place has a decidedly deserted appearance.

The majority of turf writers seem to think that in the coming contest between Axtell and Allerton the former will win. Perhaps he will, but judging from the way Allerton is stepping this spring he will have to go some if he does. It will be a horse race worth going many a mile to see, which ever way it may terminate.

Some miscreant turned six stallions owned by P. P. Johnston into the hall of the stable the night of April 16th, and they were found in the morning in a horrible condition, having fought like tigers. Fortunately none were killed, but several will be marked for life. Among the horses were Lexington, 2:24½, and Oscar, 2:29.

This is the advice of an old breeder: If a mare slips her colt she should not be bred till fall, provided the colt that was slipped was from a service in the spring, but if it was from a service in the fall she should be bred in the spring. He said he has tried this several times and never had any more slips from the mares thus experimented on.

Chas. Scott, of Napa, has a filly by Wilkes Pasha out of a full sister to San Diego that will trot fast; he has another out of a mare by Lodi that should get a low record this fall also. This horse Wilkes Pasha will be known as one of the best sons of Onward before many years. Few better-bred ones ever came to this State.

Mount Hood, 2:22¾, has his book full for this year. Every horseman who has seen this son of Eros declares him to be one of the finest-formed horses they have ever seen, while his breeding cannot be improved. The colts and fillies he has sired are perfect likenesses of himself in color, conformation, disposition, gait and style.

The free-for-all pace for the Des Moines August meeting closed with three nominations—Roy Wilkes, 2:08¼, Guy, 2:11¾, and Manager, 2:12½. Though the field is small it is eminently respectable. The issue between Guy and Roy Wilkes that it was proposed earlier in the season to settle by a match may be determined by this event.

Many people suppose that the lightness of sulkies is largely responsible for many broken records, when in fact such is hardly the case. Of course it is necessary that a sulky shall be light, but they can be made too light. Mr. Toomey says that sulkies are ofttimes made so light that they cannot be made rigid enough, consequently friction is increased.

If any of the readers of the Breeder and Sportsman will send us any old sale catalogues or old advertisements of horses we should be pleased to copy and return them immediately. We are endeavoring to get up a pedigree book of the early California horses, and desire to get all the data possible. Every scrap of information will be thankfully received.

At the spring meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association last year the gate receipts averaged $1,033.25 each day, and the association issued in the neighborhood of one thousand complimentary tickets to all who were entitled to them. The gate receipts for the meeting just closed averaged $875.15 a day, and the association issued no free tickets to ladies, but very few complimentary tickets of any description.

Jesse D. Carr's stable of trotters, under the management of the well-known trainer, F. R. Hall, took quarters last week at the Salinas race track. The principal ones in the string are the bay stallion Gabilan by Ansel, Rex by Elmo, Mambrino Regent (formerly May Boy) by Eros, and Lucky Girl, by Carr's Mambrino 1789. Mr. Hall has several promising green ones, of which much is expected before the racing season ends

Harry Agnew lost another valuable broodmare last week. She was a daughter of Nutwood. In foaling she bled to death. The filly which came only lived thirty-six hours. He has had more than his share of misfortune since he engaged in the horse business. Everyone hopes he has seen the last of the dark clouds of trouble go by and that hereafter the sun of prosperity will brighten his path.

Messrs. Williams & Morehouse have their string of Silver Bows at the race track, San Jose, and by the way the young Silver Bows are moving they should be proud. The McGregors are a great race of trotters. Robert McGregor has sired 28 2:30 performers and no pacers. If Silver Bow is an example of what his sons are like, surely he has a right to the title of being the "sire of more handsome trotting race horses than any horse in America!"

Peter De Lacy, the poolseller who has waged war against the Dwyer Brothers' track, at Gravesend during the past two years, declares that he will fight Monmouth Park and the manager, A. F. Wolcott, for all he is worth. Peter has had considerable experience and considerable success in fighting the race tracks. It is a pity he does not employ his eminent talents in the direction of Guttenburg. It is worthy of his best efforts.

The large barn belonging to A. Smith McCann, at Fairlawn farm, Lexington, Ken., was burned to the ground at eight o'clock on the night of May 1st. It contained twenty-eight head of high-bred trotters, including the $12,000 May King, son of Electioneer. He and nineteen others were saved. The remainder, including a four-year-old stallion by Robert McGregor, two sisters of Phil Thompson, 2:16½, and five weanlings by sons of Electioneer and other leading stallions, perished.

The famous high-priced youngsters belonging to Jacob Ruppert have received names. The $30,000 yearling by St. Blaise—Lady Primrose is called St. Domingo; the Dandie Dinmont—Moonlight colt is called Ajax; the Leonatus—Villette colt is Cœur de Leon; the imp. Maccaroon—Bijou filly is Pensacola II.; the imp. Maccaroon—Wigwam filly is Tallahassee; the imp. Jacobite—Olivick filly is Olivia; the Hi Ban—Refraction filly is Sonora, and the Fellowcraft—Radha colt is Craftsman.

We are in receipt of some of the most unique and elegant badges it has ever been our lot to behold, bestowed upon us by the Overland Jockey Club, Denver, of which the affable C. B. Rhodes is Secretary. They were incased in a handsome morocco affair, and the idea is one that is certain to be looked on with favor by everyone who sees them. Mr. Rhodes writes us that he is informed the McCarty string will be split at Denver, part of the number remaining at Overland Park, the rest proceeding to Chicago.

Byron C. Holly, of Flosden, Cal. last Monday purchased of E. R. Den El Rayo, chestnut horse, five years old, by Grinstead, dam Sunlit, by Monday; second dam Lilly R., by Longfellow; third dam Sally Travers, by J. C. Breckinridge, etc. El Rayo cost his new owner just $5,000 spot cash, and is well worth the money. At the Blood Horse meeting just ended El Rayo showed his heels to the pick of the older division on a number of occasions, and when he breaks down should make a most excellent sire of race horses.

J. Foster, the popular turfman from Lake county, Oregon, former owner of Oregon Eclipse and Hercules, last Monday purchased of Kennedy Bros., Santa Rosa, the splendid little bay race mare Acclaim, four years old, by Three Cheers, dam Rosette, by Wheatley; second dam, Black Maria, dam of Daisy D., Jennie G. and Captain Al, all well-known on the running turf. Acclaim won last season no less than fifteen races, and this year has beaten some good ones. The price paid was not made public, but $4,000 is not far from the figure.

The celebrated Fair Lawn Stables, Lexington, Kentucky, were entirely destroyed by fire. It was one of the finest stock stables in the United States and cost over $15,000 to erect it. There were nineteen horses in the stable and eleven were burned to death. Among the number were two full sisters of Phil Thompson, valued at $5,000 each; two Red Wilkes fillies and a Robert McGregor colt. There was no insurance on the horses. The property was insured for half value. The total loss will amount to $35,000. The fire was the work of incendiaries.

P. S. Taylor, of Taylor & Caldwell, recently purchased while on a visit in England four promising young horses. They are: Three-year-old chestnut colt by Poulet, dam Jesimia, by Mortimer; three-year-old bay colt by Hampton, dam Ormulu, by Bend Or; two-year-old bay filly by Lowland Chief, dam Lightheart; two-year-old chestnut filly by Highland Chief, dam Idien, by Rosicrucian. These purchases, together with five other English youngsters, will be shipped from London, and are expected to arrive at Garfield Park early in June.

The Danville, (Ky.) Advocate is responsible for this: W. E. Baughman, of this county, has one of the most intelligent mares in the State. During last summer she was upon several occasions seen to unlatch the kitchen door, procure a bucket, place the bucket beneath the pump spout, and pump the bucket full of water. After quenching her thirst she would replace the bucket and leave everything just as she found it. Persons doubting the truthfulness of this matter are referred to Mr. Baughman's neighbors, all of whom will testify to having heard him relate the story.

Affairs at Souther Farm are in a flourishing condition. A two year old mare was received last week from Mr. Alsip of Sacramento. He wants her trained, and Captain Roberts of San Lorenzo has sent his two Phallas colts to the farm to be trained for the coming races. Mr. H. Meek of San Lorenzo has sent his bay horse Brilliant, by Director to the farm. J. Groom will handle him. James Heard is now one of the trainers at the Souther Farm. The surveyors were busy surveying the land purchased for the mile track last week. Wm. Kohler, of Oakland, has sent a St. Nicholas two-year-old to the farm to be trained.

ON THE afternoon of April 29th, Milton Young mortgaged his famous McGrathiana Farm, containing 500 acres, together with his stud of ten stallions and 200 mares, to Tattersall's, New York, for $100,000—the largest mortgage ever placed on a Fayette County farm. Mr. Young's intention is to lay out this money for additional mares and stallions until he makes McGrathiana the largest breeding establishment of the kind in the world. Last year the produce of this farm won $340,000 on the American turf, and the appraisers have fixed the value of McGrathiana at $500,000.

LADY MAUD, 2:18½ (dam of Monbars, 2, 2:16½), foaled April 23, 1892, at R. P. Todhunter's Farm, Lexington, Ky., a bay colt by Wickliffe 2520. Mr. Todhunter reports the youngster to be a grand individual, and says it looks just like Monbars, except in color. Lady Maud is owned by Fashion Stud Farm, Trenton, N. J., and is now twenty-five years old, but still looks like a young matron. She will be bred this season to Eagle Bird, 2:21, and as we already know the result of this happy nick, we may expect to see another stake-winner in either a brother or sister to Monbars (2), 2:16½.

THE results of the winters combination sales has clearly demonstrated that too many colts that would have made excellent geldings, but poor stallions, have been left entire. Stallions are numerous, but first-class geldings are scarce. The mere fact that a colt descends from an illustrious family is not sufficient reason that he be kept entire. No colt that is defective in body or limb should be given an opportunity to perpetuate his defects, no matter whether he descends from the most royal sire and dam in the universe. It should be the object of all breeders to save for stallions only those that are perfect in breeding, individuality and action.

WHILE speaking to Orrin A. Hickok previous to his departure for the East about the horses he handled last fall, the "Talleyrand of the Turf" grew eloquent over the success that attended his efforts with the green horses he took hold of last fall, and also of the number of others whose records he reduced. Mount Hood, the game son of Eros, he said ought to have obtained a much lower mark than 2:22¾, for when he got that record in that mile he made two bad breaks and came the last half in 1:09½. In the advertisement of this horse in another column it will be noticed that the owner offers the sum of $500 for any colt or filly foaled in 1891 or 1892 sired by this horse out of a registered standard mare; this offer will hold good until October 1st of this year.

JOHN MCCORD sent five very promising colts to the Napa track. They are to be handled by Gus Carey; Fred W. Loeber will be down with his string of seven or eight, Mr. Crabb will send some of his youngsters from To-Kalon; E. B. Jennings has Blonde Wilkes and a colt by Silas Skinner, 2:17, out of a mare by John M. Patchen. Thos. Kinney has Alwood K. and a colt by Mr. N. J. Stone's Election out of the same mare that are very promising, besides a number of others. Lou Starr has a string of three trotters. James Corcoran has Antarees, Stonewall and a number of other good ones. Jack True has the track in excellent order; in fact, it never was in as good condition at this time of the year, and he prospects for splendid district racing at this track never looked brighter.

THERE may be a few "holes" in the 2:30 list in Yolo county now, but Mr. George Woodard has enough "Buttons" to fill them. He has a big string of colts and fillies by Alexander Button that will be heard of this fall. The idea of "forcing" colts is not tolerated by this gentleman; he believes in having his horses in the pink of condition when the races are called, consequently, all of the little Buttons are receiving slow and steady work, with an occasional "brush" to see how they like it. The showing made by the descendants of this horse is one to be proud of. He sired General Logan, 2:23½; Laura Z., 2:24½; Lucy Button (3), 2:27½; Rosie Mac, 2:20¾; Belle Button (p), 2:19¾; Thomas Rider (p), 2:18¾, and the game campaigning pacer, Yolo Maid, 2:12.

Lynx, a brown gelding by Lexington Chief, Jr., and a strong favorite for the spring trotting circuit, was burned to death in his stable at Baltimore last week. He was the property of Mr. John Ruddy, of New York, and was valued way up in the thousands. Lynx was one of the promising trotters of unknown breeding, but was understood to be a son of Lexington Chief, Jr., who was by Lexington Chief, dam by Fisk's Mambrino Chief, for Lynx started last season in sixteen races and was first nine times. His record, 2:28, was made at Tonawanda, N. Y., and that he could beat 2:20 was generally known. He was a grand road horse, and in his races was able to win a share of the purses whenever he started. His owner, Mr. Ruddy, who is one of the Executive Committee at Fleetwood Park, recently refused $6,000 for him.

THE horse-dealing establishment of Emery & Fasig, Cleveland, O., has been sold to Tattersalls of London, through their American agent, W. E. Easton, of New York, for a large sum of money. W. B. Fasig, who is also Secretary of the Cleveland Driving Park Association, states that Tattersalls had purchased the business of Brasfield, of Lexington, Ky., and would erect an immense sales stable at Chicago. It is the intention of the new concern to hold combination sales during the year at New York, Lexington, Chicago and Cleveland. About $1,000,000 will be put into the business, which practically means a monopoly. Mr. Fasig will resign his position after the summer grand circuit meeting, and will go with Tattersalls as the general manager of the trotting horse department. The first sales under the new management will be held in the fall.

THERE is a man out in Iowa whose somewhat vain aim in life would seem to be the consummation of war between the trotting and thoroughbred interests. Like fanatics everywhere, this gentleman inflicts his views occasionally upon the public, and particularly delights to counsel the extermination of what he calls "saddle-sulky journals," by which we assume he refers to turf papers of that comprehensive scope that covers all turf interests There is no conflict, but harmony, between the thoroughbred and trotting interests, and none in either division but persons of painfully narrow views regard the other with intolerance, while thousands equally admire and enjoy racing in harness and under saddle. The action of the Chicago Racing Association and the Garfield Paak Club in announcing that they will close their gates during the Chicago trotting meeting in August should be an object lesson to mischief-makers and marplots whose misguided efforts to place the two branches of the turf in antagonism are to be deprecated.—Horseman.

THAT well-known trainer and driver, George Bayliss, who started for Chicago last Sunday in charge of McCarty's string of twenty-four horses, has not been back to his boyhood home in eighteen years. The reception that awaits this "wandering boy" can better be imagined than described. His mother and sisters have not been apprised of his coming, so he intends to surprise them. Whether handling trotters or runners this young man has shown a natural aptitude for the calling, and has achieved marked success. The manner in which he brought all the Cheviots to the post at the last meeting was highly commendable. Everyone hopes that the colt he will bring to the post to win the "Darby" will prove a winner.

ED. GEERS is at Baltimore with the following horses in his string: Hal Pointer, b g, 8, 2:09¾; Belle Hamlin, b m, 13, 2:12¾; Jocko, blk g, 9, 2:16½; Honest George, b g, ,8, 2:17; Henrietta, b m, 9, 2:17¼; Nightingale, ch m, 7, 2:18½; Globe, b g, 10, 2:19½; Play Boy, b s, 8, 2:19¾; Justina, b m, 13, 2:20; Nettie King, ch m, 5, 2:20½; Excellence, b s, 7, 2:22¾; Lucretia, b m, 7, 2:25½; Glendennis, b s, 6, 2:26½; Pansy, b m, 5, 2:27½; Oscar King, b g, 7, no record; Hereward, b s, trial 2:29½; Kathleen, b m, 9, 2:29½; Cora, b m, 5, no record; Beautiful Chimes, b f, 3, no record; Merry Chimes, b c, 4, no record. He declares that the fastest and most promising of the green youngsters are the two last ones by Chimes. He believes their sire will be one of the best in America.

REV. J. W. ARNEY, of Saranac, Mich., has announced to his congregation that he will no longer serve them, and this announcement is followed with another that he will give a trotting matinee at the Saranac track April 30th. J. W. Arney has gained considerable notoriety during the last two years by being disciplined by the State conference because of his love for trotting horses. He was a very successful preacher and frequently held largely-attended revivals. He had a passion, however, for fast horses, and his nerves tingled with delight as he sat behind a sprinter and watched the horses go by on the country road. At the last conference he promised to do better, but with the approaching summer his breast rebelled at the tyrannical dictations, and he resolved to devote his time hereafter to the horses. He has six head of fine stock, and has received flattering offers for his services.

HIS HIGHNESS is as big as a barn door behind the saddle, and his ribs carry a lot of beef yet, but he looks hard withal, and his action is as smooth as velvet. The same peculiar way of striking out wide with his off leg marks his action as it did last year. Merry Monarch is not so impressive a galloper as the other, but he is rather a more smooth goer, rolls less and has less knee action. The pair are, of course, closely watched, and everything that happens them is known in New York an hour after it happens. Ludwig, in the same string, is the largest horse in America. He is a brown by Darebin, out of a Spendthrift mare, and he stands 17 hands. For a big one he is about as clever as I ever saw. He won the Great Eastern Handicap last year, beating an enormous field, and, to my notion, he is likely to prove a pretty good sort of colt, big as he is.—N. Y. Cor. Horseman.

THERE is a gloom prevailing at Philip J. Dwyer & Son's stable, the cause being the loss of Sir John. When Mr. Dwyer came to the stable and was informed of the fact he was visibly affected, for Sir John was one of his greatest favorities. Sir John was thrown down on Wednesday to be punctured for a spavin, and in some way wrenched his back, and paralysis set in. Dr. Sheppard said there was no chance to save the horse, and a bullet ended his suffering. Sir John is a great loss to the stable, as he was a good bread-winner last year. At the Gravesend Spring meeting he was almost invincible. He won a sweepstakes on his first appearance, defeating Tristan and Livonia Belle. He afterward ran third to Judge Morrow and Clarendon in the Maturity Handicap, being badly interfered with in that grand race. He turned the tables on Clarendon a few days later, when he showed a clean pair of heels to the Ehret horse and Los Angeles. He won the Myrtle and Fort Schuyler Stakes in succession. He next won a light-weight handicap, defeating Riley and Snowball with ridiculous ease. He had a walk-over, and also won the Woodlawn Handicap. The son of Sir Modred and Marian won five consecutive races at the meeting.

"NO FOOT, no horse," is a stale truism, bnt just as important to-day as ever it was. Time cannot be more profitably spent than in watching and caring for the horses' feet. Even when in the pasture horses should be taken up every six weeks or so and the hoofs trimmed and leveled if needed. Long toes make weak tendons and poor pasterns, and when the hoof is too long it dries up, contracts and narrows at the heel, laying the foundation for future trouble. When thrush is discovered do not delay an hour, or you may have to wait a year for a natural foot again. The workings of thrush in the foot, as that wretched disease proceeds to ruin the member, is very slow and insidious, and nothing short of the most persistent care and scrupulous cleanliness will suffice to eradicate it. A great many things will cure the lighter grades of thrush, the following being good combinations: 1, Cleanliness and salt applied twice a day; 2, cleanliness and calomel, the latter dusted into the affected spaces twice a day; 3, cleanliness and a six per cent. solution of chloride of zinc, the latter put in small quantities into the affected spaces of the foot twice a day. The last described treatment will, if persevered in, cure nearly every case of thrush, even that which is severe.

HEBERT & SON yesterday brought to the Salinas racetrack, to be put in training, their fine stable of likely colts, several of which are entered in stakes to be trotted here this fall, says the Salinas Daily Journal of May 1st. The colts are a good lot and ought to develop into high-class trotters. The most prominent in the list is the fast young stallion Bruno, three years old, by Junio, dam Dolly, by Mozart, that ought, barring accidents, easily to enter the 2:30 list this fall. Another likely colt is the three-year-old St. Patrick gelding, dam Laura H. by Altoona. A three-year-old gelding by St. Patrick, dam Patchen May, by George M. Patchen Jr. 31, and a handsome filly with plenty of style and finish, by Billy Matthews, dam by King William, and a speedy-looking filly by Erwin Davis, dam by Carr's Mambrino, completes the list of three-year-olds. About as handsome and promising one as there is in the string is the two-year-old brown colt by Christmas, a son of Santa Claus, dam by Carr's Mambrino. A two-year-old filly by Altoona, dam Dolly, by Mozart, steps off like a trotter and is apt to prove formidable in the contest for the two-year-old trotting colt stakes this fall. The last of the lot is a little miss, just getting her first lessons, a full sister to the two-year-filly. Bruno has been put in charge of James Dwain, while the others are being handled by Carl Parsons who has had them in charge for several months.

A HORSEMAN who just returned trom Chico says that M McIntosh, owner of Arthur Wilkes, has some of the fine-moving colts and fillies by that horse he has seen. The broodmares have all been well, and Mr. McIntosh has not lost one this year. The suckling foals are all of the Wilkes type, and look exactly like their sire in color and conformation. This breeder has one of the loveliest places in Butte County, and he keeps it looking like a new dollar. His trainer, Mr. Simpson, is working hard to get a good string of representatives ready for the fall races.

FRED GEBHARD'S splendid filly Experiment will be a candidate in the now famous Whiskey Sweepstakes, Messrs. A. J. Cassatt, J. O. Donner, John A. Morris, A. F. Walcott and John Hunter having agreed to let her start. This filly was one of the late D. D. Withers' nominations for the $2,000 a corner race for two-year-olds, and it is only through the courtesy of the other subscribers that the great young mare, of which the sage of Brookdale was so fond, is permitted to start. The race should be a good one, as there are several prospective champions engaged, the English-bred Agile being regarded as the pick of the Morris string, while Rumor has it that the Hunter colt, Chicago, is a real flyer. Mr. Withers maintained that Experiment was pounds better than anything else ever bred at Brookdale. The result of this race will be eagerly awaited.

AN additional feature in the improvements now under way at the St. Louis Fair Grounds is an electric annunciator, or sign board, by which the official order of the finish will be instantly given to the racegoers. Heretofore the holders of winning tickets have been kept on the anxious bench for some minutes, when a close finish resulted, and the improvement will undoubtedly meet with their hearty approval. The annunciator is the joint invention of President Rolla Wells and Superintendent Bellairs. It consists of a large blackboard, similar to the annunciators in hotels, about 10 by 6 feet, and provided with three rows of numbered panels, each row from 1 to 20, and of large size. A cable of electric wires connect the indicator, which is placed high up to the east of the timers' stand, with a key board containing buttons numbered correspondingly. Thus as soon as the winning horse flashes first by the post the button to correspond with his number is pressed by the judge, and the animal's number is displayed on the annunciator. The numbers are large enough to be seen from all parts of the stand and club house. The result is made official by the posting of the second and third horses similarly.

THE breeder who is raising stock to sell must necessarily make extensive entries in colt and futurity stakes, for one of the first questions asked of a breeder by a would-be buyer of youngsters is, "what are their engagements?" It may be well enough for breeders to declare that they do not believe in colt trotting, but inasmuch as other people do believe in it, and purchase colts for the purpose of trotting them, they must get their youngsters well engaged or purchasers will pass them by and purchase of those who have colts that are engaged. There is no use trying to dodge the fact that colt stakes have come to stay, and that they will increase in popularity from year to year, until it becomes possible for a trotter to win an amount of money as great as thoroughbreds are enabled to under the stake system. The old-fashioned idea of offering the stereotyped purses of $2,000 or less to trotters of the first water, and then demanding a 10 per cent entrance fee, has about gone by, and as these relics of racing antiquity disappear their places will be taken by liberal stakes and low entrance fees. That such a move will increase the interest in the trotting horse and receive the enthusiastic support of the breeders has already been demonstrated by the way such stakes have filled that were opened this and the previous seasons.—RAYMOND, in the Horse World.

IT LOOKS now as if many of the great race stallions would again make trips away from home this year. Nelson it is reported, has already made Western engagements; Williams has changed his mind about shipping his great horse again, and Allerton is booked for several contests and exhibitions for the '92 season, some of which will occur away trom Independence; Axtell will go abroad, and even Palo Alto and Stamboul may probably make an Eastern trip. Delmarch will also be on the war path; in short, about all the trotting stallions with marks of 2:12 or better will be sent out to capture the money or the glory, or both. Mr. Williams' move in rescinding his decision made last fall—that Allerton would not again be allowed to travel abroad to meet engagements, or for exhibition purposes, is one which gives very general satisfaction. For while admitting that the great son of Jay Bird is a most valuable property, and that the risk of railway travel is somewhat greater than that which surrounds him at home, it must be remembered that Allerton's greatness has to some extent made him public property. The public has claims on great horses that the owners ought to, in as great a degree as possible, respect. One of these claims is the right to see the celebrated ones in the show ring or on the race track, as the circumstances of each horse may place him.

HON. JAMES B. CLAY, of Kentucky, recently said: "Mambrino Chief never went out of the State of Kentucky after having been brought here by my father. He made four or five seasons at Ashland, when father sold him to Willis Jones, of Versailles, Ky., who made one season and a part of another with him, when he died. My father believed that by crossing Mambrino Chief on thoroughbred mares he would lay the foundation of a great trotting family, and it was with this idea that he bought such mares as Utilla, by imp. Margrave, one of the highest bred mares in the stud book; Susan, by imp. Eclipse; Fay, by imp. Yorkshire, dam by imp. Fury, by Priam, and Heads-I-Say, by imp. Glencoe. The latter mare is the grandam of the noted race-horse Springbok. The first colt Mambrino Chief ever got in Kentucky was out of the mare Utilla, and he was presented to Mr. Thorne, of New York. Father called him Ashland, but I think his name was changed, and that he figures extensively in the trotting stud book. The price paid for Mambrino Chief was $4,000, and Taglioni and Polly cost $1,000 each. Kentucky breeders thought father was making a wildcat speculation in laying out so much money for a breed of horses of which so little was known in this State at that time. He sold Mambrino Chief, however, to Mr. Jones for $5,020, and the sales of trotting horses that were held at Ashland, although they took place during the war, when business of all kinds, and especially the breeding of horses, was greatly demoralized, show that his judgment was good. Had not untoward circumstances occurred, I feel satisfied that Ashland would have made a name for itself as the cradle of the trotting horse business in the West,"

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

The San Francisco Show.

The San Francisco bench show for the present year will long be remembered for several peculiar features. It illustrates, in a most striking manner, the result arising from discord and dissention. The dog should not be so mis-treated. It places a very erroneous impression in the public mind to allow a show to be given which so glaringly misrepresents the kennel interest of this city and State and we preface our comments on the awards given at this exhibition, which did not exhibit in any adequate sense the kennel interest of the Pacific Coast, with the statement that the show just given fell far short, for reasons which for the time being were practically insurmountable, of being even a fair reflection of the California kennel world.

Judge Mortimer won the admiration of every one with whom he came in contact by reason of his just awards. He proved himself thoroughly competent, and performed his duties with a promptness and decision which left no doubt in the minds of any one of his well defined ideas on the subject of judging. His awards left little to which exception could be taken. He will doubtless be invited to come again to this coast in the same capacity.

The show was fairly well patronized, remarkably so when the conditions under which it was given are considered. The trick dogs, Tom, belonging to Harry Roesler, and Tootsie, the property of G. W. Mietts, furnished a wealth of entertainment each evening of the show to the audiences assembled, after time had been given for all to examine the dogs generally. There were 237 entries as against 260 last year, with 21 absentees.

Mr. J. J. Jamison officiated acceptably as ring steward. Mr. Thomas Higgs is a modest and retiring gentleman, and did what he could as superintendent to make the occasion as smooth as possible. He, with the president, Mr. E. P. Schell, and other members and officers of the club, let the rudderless craft drift as easily as possible before the cyclonic wind, with which they had to contend. It is safe to say that in some respects, confined entirely to local causes, that a more disgusted party of kennel men never assembled at a bench show, here or elsewhere. The cause for this condition of affairs is too well known, locally, to require further mention here.

"'Tis true, 'tis pity.
Pity 'tis 'tis true."

That the same conditions will not obtain in the future, goes without saying.

COMMENTS ON THE AWARDS.

Mastiffs.—The open dog class presented widely diversified specimens of the breed. Ingleside Crown Prince, first, is a grand dog; excellent skull, splendid muzzle, which is broad and deep, good eye and neat ear well hung, a splendid mask, a bit throaty, very pronounced wrinkles, but on the whole a grand head. In body and legs it would be hard to find a superior; excellent coat, a good mover, with best of feet. A very superior dog in every essential particular.

Lyon, second, has a fair head. He is good in muzzle and has a fair mask, good eye, ears not well carried, throaty and in poor condition, fair in body and legs, and a good mover.

Duke, third, short in skull and lacking in quality and expression, light eye, ears large and poorly carried, fair mover, poor in feet.

Toby, h. c., and Lyon, c., were fully complimented by their letters.

Bitches.—Vermist, third, and Nellie H c. were properly placed.

Great Danes.—In open class dogs a very good showing was made as to quality.

Hector, first, is a splendid specimen of the breed, good head, strong in body and legs, excellent feet, tail not well carried, was shown in good condition, is less than two years and will doubtless fill out and be more complete by another year.

Jumbo, second, is a fair dog with good head, splendid bone and body but poor in coat, tail not well carried.

Cesar H, third, lacking in quality and expression.

Bitches.—Leda, first, the only one of her class, is a fair specimen. Was shown too fat.

Puppies.—Nora, first, has a fair skull, excellent in body and legs, moves well and is a very promising puppy.

Carlos, third, short and thick in head, good body, legs and feet.

Prince, v. h. c., short in skull, weak in pasterns and lacking in quality.

Bismark, h. c., was entitled to his letters.

St. Bernards, Rough (Open class dogs).—California Alton, 1st, is a very excellent dog, having a splendid, well-nigh ideal skull and muzzle, good blaze and good coat. He has good bone, and is a strong, compact dog with a splendid tail, well carried. There is little in him to criticise unfavorably, save as to size. He would be unapproachable if but a little larger. Gillott, 2d, is a dog of good quality. Good skull, splendid bone, but is lacking in size, good color, but deficient in blaze, good legs and feet and a good mover. Grand Chancellor, 3d, is not yet developed, but is a grand puppy of great promise. He was not shown in the best of condition. He has good skull and is good in muzzle, a good coat, splendid tail, well carried. His condition defeated him for second honors. Marc Anthony, v. h. c., fair in skull and muzzle, but lacking in quality; good bone and body, fair in legs and feet, lacking in shadings. Rover, h. c., is a small dog, but fairly entitled to his letters.

Bitches, Rough.—Lady Gladys, 1st, is a very good bitch, fair in skull and muzzle, lacking somewhat in blaze, and of indifferent shadings; excellent in bone and of good size, a good mover. Victor, 2d, lacking in head, good blaze, good bone, legs and feet, coat too dark, and shown hog fat.

St. Bernards, Smooth.—In open bitch class there was but one entry, Loris, 3d, fair in skull, but light in bone and substance, lacking in quality.

Newfoundlands.—In open class dogs Nero was given first, and that properly as he possesses some quality and a very excellent coat, good bone and body.

DUKE OF VERNON.

Greyhounds.—The open dog class was scarcely a representative one. Examiner received first, has a good head, but a rather short neck, deficient in pasterns, good deep chest, good feet, well muscled in back, good loin, shown in the best of condition.

Donnard, second, possesses a good head, fine eye, good well muscled neck, deep chest, splendid in shoulders, good stifles and well let down, good feet.

Shrimp, v. h. c., was fairly entitled to his honors.

Bessie, third, fair in front. Shown in good condition.

Amhita, v. h. c., was entitled to better place. Good depth in chest, good legs and feet, well-arched loin. Should have stood well up in class.

INGLESIDE CROWN PRINCE.

Bitches Puppies—Minnie, first, only one of class, fair in head, weak in pasterns, otherwise a fair puppy.

American Foxhounds.—In open class dogs, Paddy, first, is a splendid specimen. Good head, ears well hung, good eye and best of expression, good, strong bone, excellent in legs and feet, good tail well carried.

Carlo, 2d, black and tan, good in head, ears well set on, fine eye, strong in front, good, well-rounded chest, strong bone, good tail. Duke, 3d, good head, long ears, giving him peculiar expression, strong in bone, good, well-muscled neck, good loin, legs and feet. Ike, v. h. c., and Duke, h c., were well deserving of their honors.

Pointers.—In challenge dogs the Duke of Vernon stood alone, winning 1st, as no doubt he would have done in almost any class shown in the country during the year. He was shown in only fair condition, but is still able to fully maintain the reputation long since established as one of the best pointers in the entire country.

Fox-Terrier Club.

A number of fanciers of fox-terriers met last Wednesday evening at No. 21 Kearney street and organized the Pacific Fox-terrier Club. The following gentlemen were elected officers: James E. Watson, of Berkeley, President; C. A. Summer, of Los Angeles, Vice President; George W. Debenham, of San Francisco, Treasurer; J. B. Martin, of San Francisco, Secretary. Board of Directors: A. L. Cresswell and Robert Liddle, of San Francisco, Dr. R. A. Ferguson, of Bakersfield, F. J. Walker, of Lathrop and W. H. McFee, of Alameda.

The rules of the American Fox-terrier Club with a few changes were adopted, as was also the standard of said Club.

The entrance fee has been fixed at $1, and quarterly dues $1.50.

The money in the treasury at the beginning of the next bench show season will be devoted to the purchasing of cups, medals, etc., as special prizes to be awarded to fox-terriers at the spring show of the Southern California Kennel Club and the Pacific Kennel Club. Only dogs owned by members will be allowed to compete for these specials.

Specials will probably be given as follows: Best dog, best bitch, best puppy, best brace, best brood bitch, etc., etc.

Any person desiring to become a member, will please forward his name to J. B. Martin, Secretary, No. 1323 Page street.

The next meeting of the Club will be held on July 18th at the above mentioned place.

The Club has a membership of twenty-five, and hopes to increase that number to fifty before the next show season.

Coursing at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, May 10, 1882.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Coursing at Long Beach. Romeo proves too fleet-footed for his competitors. It was delightful weather at Long Beach yesterday, and the coursing brought out about two hundred gentlemen interested in that branch of sport. There was a cool breeze blowing from the sea, and all took a lively interest in the course.

The following are the results: G. Robson's Romeo beat G. W. Gordon's Leo in the single course match. Romeo took the lead out of the slips, turned the hare three times and killed, Leo not scoring.

A purse was made up for the four best dogs, viz.: Romeo, Deno, Carlo (the Santa Ana windsplitter) and Black Fanny (the Orange county whirlwind). The drawing resulted as follows: Carlo against Black Fanny, Romeo against Deno. Carlo out-ran the bitch; Romeo beat Deno on a wonderful go-bye.

In the next course Romeo took the hare, wrenching, turning and killed. Carlo could not serve the former.

J. T. Bush was slipper in the single course and J. M. Cota slipped in the last match. J. Tonnemacher, S. Grant and J. Howard officiated as judges most satisfactorily.

J. M. COTA.

The Pacific Kennel Club.

It would seem from the enthusiastic meeting held on Thursday evenieg last, by this organization at 21 Kearney Street, that the next bench show given in California will be fully up to the standard. The club, during the past week has been strengthened by the addition of upwards of one huudred members. The tone of the menting was of that nature which argues well for the future of the kennel interests of the State. The club contains a membership which indicates a strength and unity of interest heretofore undreamed of by even the most enthusiastic members of the faucy on this Coast. One marked feature of strength in the Pacific Kennel Club as now organized is the unity of the field trial contingent with that of the non-sporting class. There can be no questioning the fact that the determination of this body is to so conduct the affairs of the club that a unity of interest may be brought about, to the end, that every factor in the fancy may work in harmony together. The outlook indeed is most promising, and we are fully assured that the club contains in its membership the force and intelligent power to avail themselves of the opportunity to realize every reasonable anticipation. We trust that no effort will be allowed to languish in the direction indicated by the policy of this organization. Dates have been telegraphed for on which to hold next years show and no doubt but that the work of preparation will be vigorously pushed forward to the completion of this event.

The Derby.

We again call attention to the fact that the entries for the coming Pacific Coast Field Trial Derby will close the 1st of June next. The stake is open to all pointers and setters whelped on or after January 1, 1891. The purse is the entrance money and $125 added, of which 50 per cent. to first, 30 per cent. to second, 20 per cent. to third.

The All-aged Stake will also have $125 added. Entries must be sent to J. M. Kilgarif, Secretary and Treasurer, 418 California Street, San Francisco, Cal.

It would seem that the competition brought about by the special prize for the best pointer bitch in the show with a field trial record somewhat ruffled the temper of the party who was benefitted by the offer of the specials for the best field trial winning record. In the former case the dogs could be judged, under the latter the dogs could not be judged at all! Queer, ain't it? As the old darkie would say, "de Nigger in dat ar fence am berry poorly hid."

Mr. H. T. Harris, 166 Thirteenth street, San Jose, offers for sale in this issue Irish setter dog puppy (ch Elcho Jr. 3881) —imported Kate IX 1150). Puppy retrieves nicely and otherwise well broken. Price $35.

During the recent show Mr. Fred Farnsworth sold Pearl, winner of second in open class Chesapeake Bay bitches, to Capt. Thomas Higgs. This gives the latter-named gentleman about all the leading dogs of this breed on this coast.

Sales.

California Kennels, Suisun, Cal., have sold ——— black, white and tan English setter dog pup whelped March 4, 1892, by Gladstone 2d (Gladstone ex. Lady M.), out of Janet (Count Noble ex. Dashing Novice), to Mr. Chas. Brown, Honolulu, H. I.

Whelps.

Dr. R. A. Ferguson's Foxterrier bitch Jessie, by Tally ex. Clover Blossom, whelped May 4th, three dogs and three bitches by J. B. Martin's Foxterrier dog Blemton Shiner, A. K. C., S. B., No. 14,277.

Names Claimed.

By Echo Cocker Spaniel, Stockton, Cal., Bessie E., liver, white, tricked Cocker Spaniel bitch puppy, by Bronta 17,064 ex. Maud E. 17,095, whelped Feb. 8, 1892.

Mr. Frank H. Allen is justly elated over the remark made by Judge Mortimer, that California Alton, Mr. Allen's famous St. Bernard, much resembles Sir Bedivere. We congratulate Mr. Allen on possessing so grand a specimen of this breed, and would suggest to those intending breeding that they bring out from the East grand bitches and breed to "California Alton," and in time we will have a class of St. Bernards equal to any in the East or in England.

L. L. Campbell sold to F. L. Wooster an Irish setter puppy out of Lady Josie, by Dan H. This litter seems to possess considerable quality and the demand for them by the local fancy is quite general.

The Bear Valley Hatchery.

There are few subjects in Nature's vast volume of more interest to the observer and student of her pages than that presented by her method of reproduction in the piscatorial family. To the casual observer the impressions received and the lessons to be learned on visiting a fish hatchery are of a peculiar nature. Life in any of its multitudinous forms is but little else than mysterious. Forces in the realm of cousation are continually expressing themselves, yet revealing nothing of their nature save the forms in which they are expressed. When these facts are considered it is a matter of little or no surprise that the observer, limited to a like knowledge of himself, can but gaze in wonderment upon the other forms of life, lesser but equally mysterious with his own.

In the Bear Valley hatchery is presented the best of conditions for allowing Nature to take her course in producing fish life. Since the work of operation began in this hatchery, on February last 300,000 trout have been hatched there and placed, in the very best of condition, in the various streams of the State adapted to the growth and development of the gamey finsters.

The natural facilities for the propogation of fish at the hatchery above mentioned are all that could be desired. A sparkling stream, pure and cold, ample at all seasons for the requirements and purposes of the hatchery here established flows through a winding ravine densely shaded by the oaks and laurels which form a perfect archway by means of Nature's broidery, through which the sunlight falls, weaving a substanceless carpeting of gloom and gold.

The hatchery is superintended by Mr. Hunt, whose thorough knowledge of the interesting work has been the means of pushing to so successful an issue the work at this point. Hon. Raymon E. Wilson, of the State Board, is ever on the alert, and spends much time in pushing the work of the commission in this line. He brings to the work a heartiness and depth of interest which can only be found in an ardent devotee of the subject Thoroughly practical in all of his work, he is making the very best use of the facilities furnished to give the State the very best returns possible for the expenditures made, and in no other venture has success attended more satisfactorially than in the results attained in this hatchery. A substantial dam formed of concrete has been placed across the stream some three hundred feet above the hatchery proper which allows the water to settle, from which it is conducted by means of a trough to the filters and settling tanks at the upper end of the hatchery, from whence it is presented through innumerable screens to the hatching troughs, which run the length of the building and contain various sections in which the various conditions of the development of the fishes are shown, from the eggs, to the lively little trout of sixty and ninety days of life—ready to be packed, shipped and turned into favorable waters, to battle with the precarious conditions which attend life in the pool.

The absence of serious accident at the trap in this vicinity is a subject upon which all sportsmen particularly are to be congratulated. But accidents have happened and will continue to happen so long as men handle firearms. During the past week two guns have accidently been discharged at the traps and that some one was not killed or seriously disabled is only a matter of good fortune. The following rule should be clearly painted on a signboard and placed at every score line in the country.

Gun must not be loaded before reaching the score and must be kept open until the attendant has returned from filling the traps. Open gun when "no bird" is called.

Better and further than this the rule should be ever present in each sportsman's mind. The accidents above referred to cannot be explained further than that the guns discharged on closing them. Nothing unusual could be noticed about them. The guns worked perfectly immediately after as well as before the accidents. The only safety lies in a close and constant adherence to the above rule. Do not fail to heed it in time.

The California Wing-Shooting Club meets at the traps to-morrow. The attendance at the meetings of this club has been quite large during the season thus far and bids fair to still further increase. Several new members have joined the club since its last meeting. Plenty of birds will be furnished for to-morrow's sport. This is the only club in this city which throws open its shooting privileges to sportsmen generally and welcomes all to a turn at the traps. Come prepared to enjoy the day.

The Lincoln Gun Club holds its regular monthly shoot at Alameda Point to-morrow. There will be a large attendance and a more than usual good time is anticipated.

THE GUN.

The Grizzly Club's Picnic.

On the first of the week the Grizzly Club celebrated its annual picnic, popularly known by the term of a "Bullshead breakfast." But what's in a name? It is the matter, as Judge Post would say, "that forms the resgista of the case," which is essential in this, as in all other matters, that must be depended upon for a proper nnderstanding of the matter. What then, is a "Bullshead breakfast?" It is, properly speaking, a picnic, which owes its peculiar form to the early Spanish settlers of this country, at least, in so far as it is here known. Some of our readers may not understand a picnic of this nature and for their benefit we will say that the methods peculiar to outiugs of this nature, are as follows. The caterers on the day previous to the "breakfast" carefully selects from the markets the number of beeves heads desired from the choicest animals and carefully prepares them for baking, which is done in the following manner. An excavation is made in the earth some two feet deep the bottom of which is carefully covered with a layer of stones over which a wood fire is built and allowed to burn until the stones are thoroughly heated, the prepared "heads" are then placed upon these stones and carefully covered over with other stones and earth to a level with the surface over which another wood fire is built and kept burning for twelve or fifteen hours when the "breakfast" is done. Mr. McCray of this city, the manager of this peculiar culinary dish, on this occasion is considered a chef in this line. The results, certainly were of a character to add honors to his skill, as the "breakfast" is pronounced by good judges to have been one of the most perfect ever prepared for this club. Barney Galindo prepared the chili and it it said he has no superior in this art in the country.

Mr. Chino Pacheco won the admiration of every one present by the exceedingly skillful manner in which he handled the carving.

A "Bullshead breakfast" is said to present insurmountable difficulties to any, save the masters in the art of carving. The deftness with which the blade was used on this occasion will not soon be forgotten by those who had the pleasure of witnessing Mr. Pacheco's skill in this line. The "breakfast" was intended for and presented out of compliment to Judge James Mortimer of New York, but unfortunately and to the great regret of the many gentlemen interested in the affair, he was compelled to return East on Friday evening preceding this event.

Col. S. I. Kellogg presided at the traps, furnished and managed the facilities for shooting as only one of his experience and skill in this line can do. He is deserving of and has the heartfelt thanks of all the sportsmen present, all of whom enjoyed a most pleasant season at the traps. After "breakfast," a most enjoyable social season was spent, in which vocal music vied with eloquence in passing a pleasant hour.

Among the number present we noticed Senator and Mrs. Carpenter, of Los Angeles; Senator and Mrs. De Long, of Navato; Col. E. S. Beaver; Judge C. N. Post, Sacramento: Col. S. I. Kellogg, J. K. Orr, Wm. Schreiber, H. L. Harper, P. D. Lindville. Andrew Jackson, Robert Liddle, Sr., and Robert Liddle, Jr., Wm. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maskey, F. W. Sanderson, Mr. Burns, Chino Pacheco, Joe Bassford, Clay Chipman, Wm. Donner, Marcus Pool, J. Reed, Henry Huber, Mr. Terry, Sacramento, Mr. McCray and A. Russell Crowell.

It was only when the setting sun was weaving its threads of gold with the gathering gloom that the party at length brought to a close the outing which has been chronicled in the minds of all present as one of the most pleasurable events ever held by this pioneer social organization.

The Country Club.

The active sportsmen of the Country Club are, this year, grassing a large number of birds and no week is allowed to pass by without these gentlemen improving the opportunity to enjoy a day at this, their favorite pastime. On Saturday last a number of the membership of this club met at the traps in Oakland Shooting Park and spent the day in their favorite way. The birds were scarcely a fair lot, but a good breeze assisted many an average bird and made it very difficult to bring down.

The first round was at twenty-five birds contested by Webster, Tubbs and Sprague, Mr. Tubbs leading his competors by two birds on a score of seventeen to fifteen. A ten bird match, same parties, resulted in Mr. Webster's winning on a score of nine credits, Mr. Sprague defeating Mr. Tubbs on the ten bird race.

Pool shooting, limited to twelve birds to decide the event followed, resulting as first below given:

Tubbs	2	1	0	1	2	1	2	2	0	*	2	2	—9
Crocker	0	2	0	1	1	2	2	1	0	1	0		—7
Webster	1	0	0	0	1	1	1	0					—4
Sprague	0	2	2	2	0	0	1	0					—4

In a six bird match the following score was presented:

Webster	1	1	0	1	0	—3
Tubbs	1	1	0	0		—2
Crocker	1	0	2	0		—2

Wooster	1	1	1	2	2	2	1	2	1	2	2	1—12
Donohoe	1	0	2	1	0	1	0	2	2	2	1	1— 9
Tallant	1	1	0	2	1	0	0	2	1	2	1	2— 9
Sprague	0	2	0	1	0	1	1	0	1	2	1	2— 8

A large number of pools followed until all of the birds furnished were used when the party returned to the city well pleased with the day's sport.

It is rumored that several interesting matches, with the view of testing the skill of amateurs, will take place to-morrow at the meeting of that pioneer sportsman's organization, the California Wing-Shooting Club. Go over and witness how far below and behind the birds the average sportsman shoots.

Had Mr. James Mortimer been enabled to stay over and participate in the pleasures of the "bullshead breakfast" tendered him by the Grizzly Club on Sunday last, he would have had a fair sample of one of our most pleasurable events as run by this true and tried sportsman's organization.

The State Sportsman's Association.

The work of this association is progressing most flatteringly. From almost every section of the State, sportsmen are sending in their names and dollars to assist in the much needed work to which the association is pledged. There can be no questoining the fact that the organization is going to prove a grand success and speedily attain proportions which will make its voice effective in the matter of securing protection for the fish and game of the State at large.

In unity, the sportsmen of this State may secure every desired feature both as to the protection and propogation of game and fish. Disintegrated they are practically powerless, but united the power which they can wield will be practically unlimited for the purposes intended. Are you not a member of this Association, the cost of which to join is only one dollar and the objects of which are to enforce the laws and protect the game and fish of this State, and to forward any feature upon which the Association may agree touching the sportsman's interests?

If you are not a member, can you afford to longer remain unidentified with it?

Answer the question by forwarding your name and address with one dollar to the Secretary of the State Spartsman's Association at 313 Bush street, this city, and receive in return your certificate of membership. In this way you will come in touch with a body of sportsmen who are determined to carry the objects of the Association into effect. Do not delay, but act at once.

The Grass Valley Sportsman's Club is one of the leading sportsmen's organizations of this Coast and recently in a body joined the State Sportsman's Association. It only requires a statement of the fact, to carry conviction to every reasonable mind, that this association of sportsmen, representing as it does the interest of the State in this line will speedily become a power for good.

That the State needs such an organization no one will be found to question. That such organizations as the Grass Valley Sportsman's Club and the numerous other clubs of a like nature over the State are a power in their respective localities goes without saying.

This club brings to the association thirty good, earnest, active, intelligent sportsmen, all of whom are in thorough sympathy with the aims and objects of this body. We congratulate the State Sportsmen's Association on the acquisition of this able and efficient club to its already swelling ranks.

Has the club of which you are a member yet joined this Associalion as a body? If not is there any cause existing why your club has not joined? If so, should not such cause be at once removed so that the strength of the Association may be augmented by the added strength and influence which would thus be given it?

Now is the time for active preparation. Let the Association become a power, so that when the time next arrives to do effective work in the line of legislation that its united voice will be heard and heeded—the voice of the sportsmen of the State as one man will be listened to attentively. If you are interested in the propogation of fish, in the protection of game, in the preservation of our forests and streams, in no better way can your voice become more effective than by joining this Association.

The Elliott–Fulford match for the American Field Wing-Shot Cup came off as announced on Saturday last at Kansas City and the results were as we had predicted, Mr. Elliott leading his opponent by three birds at the close of the match. It would seem from the scores presented that each gentlemen had a touch of the "buck fever" on opening the match. Elliott lost his first, second, fourth and thirtienth birds, all of which fell dead out of bounds save the second which escaped. Fulford lost his first, second, third, fifth, twenty-first, twenty-second and twenty-eighth birds, three clean misses, balance lost birds were dead out of bounds. Mr. James A. Bolen, the gentleman who accompanied Mr. Elliott on his visit here last year, has challenged the last named for the cup. Being familiar with the grounds, being a resident of Kansas City, and an excellent shot he may give Mr. Elliott a close rub. We hope so at least, for it is high time that some one should wrest this particular trophy from Mr. Elliott or he will be owning it very soon.

Mr. Harvey McMurchy, the well-known representative of the Hunter Arms Company, arrived in the city during the week looking as hale and hearty as ever. He will to-day and also to-morrow try his hand at a few live birds at the trap in connection with the events of the Alameda and California Wing-Shooting Clubs, which hold forth at Oakland Park on the days above-mentioned respectively. On to-morrow there will be more than the average number of expert shots at the California Wing-Shooting Club's event, but the average shots need not tremble, for, as everyone knows, a six or twelve-bird match is liable to be anybody's victory.

Notwithstanding Mr. Charles N. Felton's able articles on nitros which argue to the detriment of American manufactured powders we believe that much of his distinctions are entirely too finely drawn for practical purposes and that the American nitros will become fully as popular as any brand now manufactured in England. Give the American manufacturers a little time to perfect their products, if indeed they need any latitude, and they will compete favorably in this line if not, as in most other lines, excell the old world.

The U. S. Gun Club of Oakland holds its regular monthly shoot to-morrow near the long bridge on the Piedmont cable road. This club has a good membership, among whom are some very excellent shots. If wanting diversion from the usual sport take your gun and pay them a visit.

Mr. Hugh McCracken's black greyhound bitch Bessie (3rd prize winner Cal. Kennel Club 1891 and 1892) gave birth on April 23rd to eight puppies, six dogs and two bitches. They are by the well known and fast dog Play Boy who is descended from Lord Beaconsfield—Tampete.

The Nebraska State Sportsmen's Tournament being held at Grand Island this week has presented the best programme ever offered in that State. No doubt but that the events called out many of the best trap shots of that section of the country.

The Blue Rock Club held its second monthly match of the season at Alameda Point on Saturday last. A fair attendance resulted in some splendid sport being enjoyed. The wind and weather generally was favorable and good scores were made.

HOOF-BEATS.

AN OFFER of $10,000, by J. Malcolm Forbes, for the St. Bel filly Dellabel, out of Della Sharp, by Hambrino, was refused.

ST. LAWRENCE was thought so much of in 1855–6 as a sire of trotters and pacers that at St. Louis, Mo., he commanded a service fee of $200.

THE price paid for the Director mare Evangeline, 2:19 as a three-year-old, was $18,000, instead of $13,000, as appeared in our issue of last week.

WILLIAM L., sire of Axtell, 2:12, and brother to Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, is to be trained for speed. It seems impossible that he should fail to trot fast.

A. H. MOORE has paid out over $200,000 for horseflesh during the past six months, and has seven million dollars left. The future of the horse business is indeed alluring.

LAST week B. C. Holly purchased the three-year-old chestnut filly Lucinda from Wilbur F. Smith. Lucinda is by Leinster out of Aunt Jane, by Bazar, and is a race mare of the improving kind.

L. J. ROSE writes from Los Angeles to the Washington Park Club that his two-year-old colt Paris, by imp. Cheviot dam Precious, engaged for the American Derby for 1893, died April 12th.

E. R. DEN, of Santa Barbara, has purchased the well-known race horse, Prince's First, by Prince of Norfolk, dam Lizzie Idle, by Wildidle. This horse will make a season in the stud at Santa Barbara.

ALLERTON, 2:09¼, will trot on the St. Joseph, Mo., track Sept. 15th, for a purse of $10,000, his owner, C. W. Williams, having made the entry. Nelson, Axtell and Delmarch will also compete for the purse.

S. H. CRANE, the well-known horseman and postmaster of Turlock, Cal., paid us a pleasant visit the other day. Mr. Crane attended the Haggin sale this week and purchased a number of horses and mules for ranch work.

THE FRESNO TURF, Messrs. Reuck & Merry, publishers, has been moved from Bakersfield to Los Angeles, where it will hereafter appear as the California Turf. It will be published weekly after October 1st.

A. MCFADYEN is the happiest man in town. His handsome mare Lou Milton (dam of Redwood, 2:21½, and Ethel Mack, 2:29½) dropped a beautiful bay filly by Silver Bow April 30th. This fine mare has had three fillies in succession.

FLORA TEMPLE, 2:19¾, never wore a quarter boot, as they were an appliance unkown in her day, and in all her races she pulled a sulky that weighed ninety pounds. She would have had a record of 2:14 had she been blessed with a modern outfit.

THE race for the One Thousand Guineas, for three-year-old fillies, one mile and eleven yards, run Newmarket, England, on May 6th, was won by Baron de Hirsch's La Fleche, Duke of Portland's The Snew, second, Henry Milner's Adoration third.

THE black stallion, Thistle, 2:19½, is going very fast at Parkville Farm this spring, and it is expected he will equal the record of his sister, Gold Leaf, 2:11½. Thistle worked a mile in 2:23½ last week, finishing considerably better than a 2:20 gait.

JAMES R. KEENE, of New York, has bred Queenston, the full sister to Kingston, to imp. Order. Susannah, a half-sister to Potomac, and Baroness, the dam of Badge, have been booked to imp. Cavalier. Both of the above stallions are now at the Beaumont Stud.

THEY tell a story of a little Kentucky lad who went up to Louisville to visit his city cousins, and while there at Sunday-school was a little noisy and was asked, while being reprimanded, if he knew what good breeding meant, and he replied, "Yes, five pure crosses."

THE Santa Anita string, comprising twenty-four racers, arrived at Garfield Park Thursday last. Among them are the stars of the stable, Galindo and Santiago. Albert Stanford, the Australian jockey, will be the principal rider for the Baldwin stable, assisted by Burgess and Hancock.

MAUD S. 2:08¾, Nancy Hanks 2:09, Arion 2:10¾ and Axtell 2:12 are the only trotters in the 2:15 list with unbroken race-records. Of these Arion has not lost a heat; Maud S. lost one to Charley Ford, Nancy Hanks one to Bonnie Wilmore, and Axtell one each to Senator Conkling and Satilla.

THE Board of Review of the National Trotting Association last Wednesday at Chicago, in the case of the horse Alcryon, which was ruled off the track in the famous race with the stallion Nelson, turned the matter over to the President, ex-Governor Bulkeley of Conneticut, and temporarily reinstated the driver.

THERE is considerable talk at many places in the East about having racing by electric light. It is claimed that more than twice as many people would be able to attend night racing sessions, that the horses trot or run as well, and that wherever electric-light racing has been tried the financial results have been more than encouraging.

THE spring meeting of the Agricultural Association, this week, was not a very grand success. On Friday, the pacing race was won in straight heats by Y. Malarin's Chippie, best time 2:32. The buggy horse race was won in straight heats by P. L. Nash's mare Maud B, best time 2:53. The quarter mile saddle horse race was won by H. Gross's Judge. Time, 0:29 and 0:26. Saturday the track was heavy and slow. The free-for-all was a walk-over for C. J. Cox's Bay Rum; best time, 2:31½. M. Vinagre's Dennis captured first and third money in the half-mile and repeat. Sleepy Dick beat Diana in 2:53 and 2:51.—San Benito Advance.

A SUBSCRIBER asks the following question: "By what right does J. W. Knox say that Manette, by Nutwood, is not out of Addie, when it is a well-known fact that he left this stallion's record books behind him in California and has never turned over the originals to the Stout Bros., owners of Nutwood, although he has claimed so to do?"

THE final session of the Board of Appeals of the American Trotting Association was held at Chicago, May 5th. The famous Nelson case was settled. The case is that of C. H. Nelson, of Watervile, Me., and the bay horse Nelson, application being made for reinstatement from the penalty of expulsion. The application was denied.

S. H. CRANE, of Turlock, sent his fine mare Electress, 2:27½, to the track at Pleasanton last Tuesday. This trotter is bred so as to "stay the route." She is by that great son of Electioneer, Richards' Elector, out of Sugar Plum (thoroughbred), by Lodi. She is considered one of the finest-formed mares in this State, and will trot close to 2:20 this fall.

S. A. PARKER, of Newell, Iowa, proprietor of the Hopewell Stock Farm, the gentleman who recently purchased Princess, the handsome Electioneer filly out of Amrah, by Nutwood, has bred her to McKinney, 2:12½. Mr. Parker is a thorough horseman, has collected a number of exceedingly well-bred broodmares and fillies at his beautiful place, and will send back some from California.

THE greatest number of heats to the credit of any trotter at the close of his fourth year is the forty-six that stand to Dr. Sparks, 2:17¾. This horse began trotting as a two-year-old, and at the close of the brilliant campaign of 1891, which marked his fourth year, he had won forty-six heats better than 2:30, having started in thirty races, of which he won twenty-five, took second money in four others and third in the other.

UP to and including May 10th four California horses, all trotters, had entered the 2:30 list in this State during the year 1892. This showing is far ahead of that made by any other section of the United States. The four new-comers we refer to are Fred Drake (by Joe Gavin), 2:26½; Bric-a-Brac (by Alcazar, 2:20½), 2:28¾; Colonel McNasser (by Gold Dust), 2:27, and James L., by Dexter Prince, 2:29¾. This is something to be proud of—so early in the season.

HOW is this for breeding? Foal by Sable Wilkes, 2:18 dam by Dawn, 2:18¼, second dam Netteo by Anteeo, 2:16½, third dam Nettie Bennett (champion three-year-old), by Alexander 490 (sire of four in the list); fourth dam, Jennie Shepard (dam of Flora Shepard, 2:30; Nellie Patchen, 2:27½; Nettie Bennett (champion three-year-old) and Gazelle (champion two-year-old of her time), by Williamson's Belmont. This will be pedigree of the foal of Auntie, the handsome filly to be offered at the Whitney sale next Tuesday.

A GOOD deal of truth is condensed in the following words from Prof. Curtiss, of the Iowa Agricultural College: When a stallion can show a uniformly good lot of colts it is an indication that his excellence has come to him through a strong line of ancestry and it will be safe to breed to him. If on the other hand a horse, no mater how good he may be, gets colts, good, bad and indifferent, it will not be safe to patronize him, for the merit that his progeny does possess will be easily lost in breeding.

TWIST, the dam of Steve Whipple, 2:23, dropped a handsome bay colt by Director, 2:17, on May 2d, at the Bellota Stock Farm. The youngster has an elongated star in the forehead and two white hind heels. If he is as promising as the rest of the produce of this mare, Andy R. Voter, Prindex, Politician and Steve Whipple, and we have no reason to doubt it, Mr. Needham has reason to be proud of that good-looking bay mare even if she never drops a filly. All of his stock are looking splendid, and no sickness has been observed among his horses this year. Bellota Stock Farm will achieve quite a reputation for the excellence of its stock and as a nursery for fast trotters.

SIXTY-ONE head of thoroughbred yearlings and a couple of yearling thoroughbred colts brought $23,225 at W. O. Parmer's sale on May 3d, at the Horse Exchange adjoining West Side Park, Nashville, Tenn. The sale, as a whole, was a signal success, despite the fact that out of the whole number disposed of there was quite a number of rather poor-looking horses. The top notch of the sale was a bay colt, by Bishop, sire of Racine, out of Lucia, dam of Bruton, Carter and Bertha (by Vauxhall). Sam Oppenheimer, owner of Faithful, and J. J. McCafferty were the opposing bidders, but after a lively skirmish McCafferty got the youngster for $2700. The Blazes yearlings brought rather small prices, owing in most cases to their size. M. T. Donovan, brother of Tenny's trainer, was among those present.

J. T. HUGUELY'S mare Fannie H. (the dam of Evangeline, 3, 2:19, and Delegate, 2:27), has a filly colt at her side by William L., and was this week bred to Direct, 2:06. Mr. Huguely wanted to breed her to Director, 2:17, the sire of Evangeline, but he could not come to satisfactory terms with Mr. Moore, the present owner of that famous horse. Besides Evangeline and Delegate, there are five more of the produce of Fannie H. in existence. Mr. Huguely owns a mare out of her seven years old, that is used as a broodmare, and is now in foal to Norval, a son of Electioneer. He also owns a three-year-old filly by Gambetta Wilkes, 2:26, and a yearling colt by C. F. Clay, 2:18, out of Fanny. Mock Bros. owns a two-year-old filly by Mimic, out of the same mare. Al. Hutchings is training the Mimic and Gambetta Wilkes fillies, and thinks both of them will go into the list this year. All of the mare's produce but one will be trained this year.—Danville (Ky.) Advocate.

The Haggin Sale.

A large number of horses were offered at the Haggin sale Tuesday and Wednesday. There was some two hundred head of road, harness, work and draft horses sold, besides half a score of Shetland ponies. They sold readily but at not as high prices as previous consignments from the famous Bakersfield farm. There were a number of excellently-formed work geldings that brought fair prices, but owing to the stringency of the money market and the glut of horses of this description in this city at the present time, they did not near expectation. The large number of disposal sales that have taken place here recently, besides the hundreds of carloads of horses that are shipped here annually from all parts of Nevada, Oregon and California, has kept the supply ahead of the market, consequently stock of this description is not bringing full value just at the present time. The sales amounted to $19,500.

Santa Rosa Scintillations.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Rain! rain! We have had scarcely anything here but rain for the past three weeks Since May 1 over six inches of water has fallen. This has kept the roads and the track in a condition unfavorable to training, and, as a consequence, the "boys" have not been able to begin work.

Three weeks ago the Santa Rosa Trotting Horse Club arranged a date for a stock parade. When the date came, came also rain, and much of it. Another date was set, and when it arrived also arrived a generous shower which moistened the earth too much for racing. Again was a time chosen, and again did the weather clerk rule against the club. In sheer desperation last Saturday was named as the proper time, and though the elements conspired, the club was not to be over-awed, but went on with the dance.

The parade was called at the appointed time and those in the grand stand had the pleasure of seeing some of the best stock in the country pass in review before them. Among the horses there were representatives of many prominent Sonoma County farms. There was Bay Rose, 2:20½. By common consent he was granted the post of honor, and led the pageant. He never looked better, or grander, and after him were led ten choice representatives of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, Pierce Bros., proprietors.

There was the "Black Cyclone" Silas Skinner, followed by a large number of his colts, all in the pink of condition and fit to champ the bits in a Roman chariot race. There were Dr. Long's fine trotters, sleek and silky, about one dozen in number and admired by all. Mart Rollins with the wonderful two-year-old, Red Chief, was on the grounds, and everybody remarked. "There goes a wonderful colt." But there were many others.

The Rosedale stock farm made a splendid display. With Daly at the head and ten others in line all gaily decorated with big red roses gathered from Rosedale farm, these horses showed off to great advantage. A more uniform set we never saw together, and the hosts of Darius, as they bore down upon the mighty, invincible Alexander, did not have a handsomer troop. True, these did not appear on the track at the same time as the others, but they were there, which showed the enterprise and public spirit of their wide-awake owner.

Among others was George Boyd's Launcelot, G. W. Fraser's filly and some of her colts. There was George A. Tupper's fine Anteeo mare and her great yearling, Ruby T. There were a number from the Laughlin stock farm at Fulton, all choice and in apple-pie order, but we shall not attempt to give a complete report of the many excellent animals seen at Pierce Bros.' track, content with hastening on to account for the two rattling races, which wound up the afternoon's glorious sport.

There were two races. The first was a "match" between Frank Laughlin's Mark L. and Thomas Bonner's Beware. Both horses are stallions, sired by Anteeo, and are full of speed. They are heroic, and made a very exciting race. The race was won by Beware in straight heats, however, he having received the most training. There is so much Anteeo stock here that it is not a hard matter to get up a tilt between them and as each owner is filled with pride the contest grows exciting.

The sensational event of the afternoon, however, was the race between Thomas Bonner's Kittie Wilkes, George E. Guerne's Graceful George and I. De Turk's Dan Brown. Mr. Bonner sat up behind the Wilkes mare, William McGraw had the strings over Graceful George, the pacer, while Mr. De Turk guided Dan Brown to victory, or defeat, as it might be. The horses lost no time in getting off in the first heat. Graceful George had the pole, and he slipped to the front with a slow, easy stroke that seemed the poetry of motion. Kittie Wilkes, good mare that she is, forged to the front on the second quarter, and it looked like it would be a race royal between her and George to the finish. Dan Brown got tangled a number of times but he came home a good third. George won the heat, Kittie Wilkes second. Time, 2:41.

The second heat was the sensational one of that race. The horses got away on even terms. At the first turn it was seen that Mr. Bonner was "reefing" the Wilkes mare along at a "thirty" clip. At the half-mile post she collars George. A few rods farther on she passes him. With a grand rush she forges ahead with powerful stride. "George is not in it," cried the crowd. "Two to one Bonner wins," sang out the veteran Rufus Murphy. Down the homestretch McGraw, the "Hermann of the track," was seen to guide his horse's nose toward the outside of the course. Kittie Wilkes was hugging the pole. The ground was soft there, and the gliding movement of the side-wheeler could not prevail against it. At the drawgate Kittie Wilkes was a length and more ahead. But "Mac" had reached the outside. There it was hard and firm. He gathered the side-wheeler for a mighty effort. Down came the whalebone over his back. Another forty feet, and he was lapping Bonner's sulky. Twenty-five yards from the wire the stallion's head showed in front, and the heat was won, George, first; Kittie Wilkes, second; Dan Brown, third. Time, 2:42½—not bad for an unpropitious day.

The third heat was won by George, though the mare pressed him hotly all the way. Time, 2:41. The Judges at this interesting little race meeting were J. Wisecarver, J. W. Swank, C. C. Belden. Timers, R. Murphy, W. H. Lumsden.

Everything passed off auspiciously with the afternoon's pleasures. PUBLIUS.

Santa Rosa, May 8th.

Eureka (Cal.) Races.

Owners of thoroughbreds who do not intend crossing the Rockies this season will do well to remember that Eureka, Cal., will have a first-class meeting, commencing on July 4th next, and continuing on the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th. The purses are liberal all the way through, and the races are so arranged that the sprinter and long-distance horse have a good show to gain glory and coin. In another column of this paper will be found the advertisement of the Eureka Jockey Club, with all the conditions in the various events set forth. Entries close with the capable and obliging Secretary, H. Cohn, on Tuesday, June 14, 1892, and our turfmen will do well in going to Eureka. No one ever complained of the treatment he received in that city, and the track and accommodations are hard to improve upon. Everything points to a splendid meeting at Eureka.

SUMMARY.

Several very important athletic and bicycle events will be decided before the close of the present month and after Decoration Day the athletes will be able to take a rest for a couple of months. This afternoon the Spring field-day of the A. A. A. A. will take place at the O. A. C. grounds, and, as the entry list is very large some exciting sport will no doubt be witnessed. As will be seen by our list of fixtures for the future several other meetings are on the tapis for the future.

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN GENERAL.

The spring field-day of the A. A. A. A. will be held this afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock sharp, at the Olympic Club grounds. The events will be run off in the following order: 220 yard run, 120 yard hurdle, 440 yard run, 440 yard run, 1 mile walk, 220 yard run, final heat, 880 yard run, 100 yard run, final heat, 1 mile run, 220 yard hurdle, 440 yard handicap run; relay race, putting 16 pound shot, running high jump, throwing 16 pound hammer, running broad jump, throwing 56 pound weight, pole vault. The entries are unusually numerous, and the merit between the different schools will be worth seeing. There are two open events, viz., a 220 yard run and a 440 yard run, both scratch. These events will bring out all the crack sprinters of the U. C. and O. A. C., and the winner of either will probably be the coming champion for the present year.

The annual boxing tournament to decide the championships of the Pacific Coast will commence in the Olympic Club gymnasium on the evening of the 26th inst. The entries will close on the 23d inst. Handsome diamond medals will be given to the winners in the different classes. The weights are long as usual, and an entrance fee of $1 will be charged for each class to be entered for competition.

The seventh annual out-door meeting of the Los Angeles Athletic Club will be held on Athletic Park, Los Angeles, Cal., on Decoration Day. The programme will be as follows: 100-yard run, club mowers; half-mile bicycle, 100-yard run, running high jump; 440-yard run; 120-yard hurdle, club hall to be given; safety running broad jump; 1-mile bicycle; 1-mile run; pole vault, club; 220-yard run, club handicap; 1-mile safety bicycle; 880-yard run, handicap; 100-yard run, club. Entries will be received by the Secretary and will close Thursday, May 26th. Entrance fee $1, for each event entered to starters. Address all communications to the Secretary, George Beebe, 226½ South Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal.

The annual gymnastic all-event tournament, to decide the championship of the Pacific Coast, will be held at the Olympic Club grounds on Saturday, June 18th, commencing at 11 A. M. The contest will be open to all members of the P. A. A. A. U. Entries will close Monday, June 13th, at 12 o'clock, P. M. Entry list is now open at the Olympic Club. Each one present shall consist of the following events: Horizontal bar, parallel bars, side horse, long horse, buck, rings, 100-yards run, running broad jump, pole vault putting 16 lb. shot.

The competition shall be carried out by a jury composed of three judges, whose decisions shall be final and without appeal.

The judges must place themselves upon both sides of the contestants, in order to observe their general form.

The contestants shall draw lots and then perform in rotation.

Each competitor shall perform two exercises of his own selection or combination and one compulsory exercise.

Except in case of accident to the apparatus, no second trials shall be allowed.

The judges shall mark each for himself, in a ratio of five points for a perfect performance, taking into consideration: 1. The difficulty of the exercise. 2. The beauty of the combination and its execution. 3. The general form of the contestant.

The winner of the competition shall be the one having obtained the highest aggregate number of points, next highest second, and so on.

Special prizes will be given to the contestant making the highest number of points in each event, but in order to win a special prize, such contestant must have competed in ALL the events.

The Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club tournament at the Schutzen Park, Alameda, May 30th, promises to be a first-class affair, as a number of local champions at various distances are entered in the races.

The picnic run of the Bay City Wheelmen to San Mateo last Sunday was a great success. The B. C. W. were represented by about fifty riders, while the other clubs around the bay helped to furnish about as many more participants.

The athletes are training with a will for the coming championship games, which will be held at the O. A. C. grounds on May 30th. The University men are fully determined to down the Olympics on that day, and, even if they do not succeed in beating their old opponents, it will be interesting to watch their efforts. The fight for first medals will lay entirely between the Olympics and University boys, but, as the Acme and Alpine clubs will enter some good men, it is rather a hard task to guess in advance at to what club will take away the majority of the second and third prizes. The programme of events will be as follows: One hundred yards run, 220 yards run, 440 yards run, 880 yards run, one-mile run, one mile walk, pole vault for height, running high jump, running broad jump, throwing sixteen-pound hammer, throwing fifty-six pound weight for distance, putting sixteen-pound shot, 120 yards hurdle, ten flights, 3 feet 6 inches; 220 yards hurdle, ten flights, 2 feet 6 inches; tug-of-war teams of four men, unlimited weight. The events will begin at 1 P. M. sharp. Entries will close on Saturday, May 21st, at 9 P. M.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department must be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, as proof of good faith. Write the question distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Postively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

F. P. L., Lakeview, Or.—Please state whether Tenny is a stud or gelding. Answer—A stallion.

G. G. G., Santa Rosa.—Will find out about the horse and mare by inquiring of K. O'Grady, San Mateo. I think the mare is called Fly.
F. M. PICKERING.

D. L., Bakersfield, Cal.—Please give me pedigree of Lady L. It was published in your paper about twenty-two months ago, I think. Answer—You are mistaken in regard to the date. We have looked in vain.

W. C., Sacramento.—Give me the breeding of Primus, formerly owned by R. S. Kearey, of Sacramento. Answer—By Marshall Chief 452, dam by Young Messenger 2d, son of Young Messenger, he by Bush Messenger.

In answer to an inquiry of the 30th of April, I wish to state that Venture was bred and raised by Henry Williamson, and not by the Williamson Bros. George Treat owned him in 1878.

Can any one of our readers give us any information regarding a running mare called The Jeffreys Filly? She appeared on the turf in California many years ago. She was owned by a man named Inman, I believe.
K. T.

F. W., San Francisco.—Will you please give in your next issue the breeding of Secretary, by Director? Has Secretary got any colts of promise? Answer—By Director, 2:17, dam Maud, by Volunteer 55. Secretary has a great many promising sons and daughters, and some of his youngsters won stake races at Petaluma and Napa last year.

H. S., Oakland.—Kindly inform me of anything you know in relation to the black pacing mare called Black Bess of Salt Lake City, if she has a record of 2:21, and what is her breeding? Answer—No such record was ever made by a pacing mare bearing that name, neither do we find that a Black Bess has paced at Salt Lake in many years.

J. J., Alameda.—Kindly inform me of the breeding of Double Cross, owned by or in charge of a man named Wilbert Pierce, and seasoned at the Oakland track in 1883? Answer—By Malcolm (son of imp. Bonnie Scotland), dam Columbia, by imp. Bonnie Scotland; second dam Young Fashion by imp. Monarch, etc.

R. B., Lompoc.—Please put in your Answers to Correspondents the record and where made of Fred M., sired by Startle, owned by Lon Maston, of San Jose. At three years old he was sold to a Mr. Harrington, of Oakland. Answer—We find no trace of this horse's record. If you will tell us the years he trotted we may be able to get at the matter.

D. Y., Stockton.—Please give breeding of Alexander 490, McClellan 144 and Shippee's Hawthorne? Answer—Alexander 490 was by George M. Patchen Jr 31, dam Lady Crumb (dam of Gen. Dana 1755), said to be by Brown's Bellfounder. Gen. McClellan 144 was by North Star, dam untraced. Hawthorne (Shippee's) is by Nutwood 600, dam Fidelia, by Volunteer 55.

Constant Reader, Helena, Mont.—Did Monarch, a thoroughbred belonging to Mr. Haggin, trot a mile in 2:30 or better? Answer—Yes; his record is 2:28¼, made at Oakland, Cal., Nov. 8, 1878. He was by Woodburn (son of Lexington and Heads-I-Say), dam Victress (dam of Muldoon and Victor Patchen), by Williamson's Belmont, thoroughbred son of American Boy and imp. Prunella, by Comus.

O. D., Selma, Cal.—1. Pedigree of Warwick, by Hubbard, supposed to be in Idaho at present? 2. State whether he won a race of importance in California before going to Idaho, also the distance, time and where run? Answer—1. Chestnut horse, foaled 1876, by Hubbard, dam Mayflower (dam of Joe Hooker and California), by imported Eclipse; second dam Hennie Farrow (dam of Mollie McCarty, Flood and Shannon), by imp. Shamrock, etc. 2. Yes, at Sacramento, on September 8, 1879, he won a sweepstake race for three-year-olds, $50 each, half-forfeit, $250 added, going the mile and an eighth in 2:00½.

W. G., Eureka, Cal.—1. Give pedigree of Autocrat, who was brought to Oregon by S. G. Reed? 2. The breeding of Black Archer 8771. 3. Also that of Oregon Pathfinder 10,881. Answer—1. By George M. Patchen 30, dam Wanderer, a noted road mare sired by a son of Hambletonian 10. 2. Black Archer 8761 was by Romulus 271, dam Fanny, by Green's Bashaw 50. 3. By French Morgan (son of the Tenneson colt), dam's sire not known; second dam by the Farmington Horse, a son of Vance, he by imp. Messenger. This horse was brought to Portland, Ore., by Putnam Smith. Wallace says Oregon Pathfinder was a son of Morrill 850.

R. K., Grass Valley.—Kindly inform me through your columns the record and pedigree of Black Diamond. Let me know if this is correct: Black Diamond, foaled April 2, 1885, sired by Plumber's Bellfounder (he by Kane's Bellfounder, he by the McTucker horse); dam Gipsy, by Dave Hill Jr., sired (s. t. b.) in 1872, her dam (s. t. b.) Old Mary, by Henry Clay. Also inform me about the pedigree and record of the horse Costello, and if either of the two horses are standard-bred. Answer—We have no trace of such a Black Diamond, but there are a large number of horses that bore the same name. Unless the horse did some trotting, it will be exceedingly hard to trace. Costello is a black horse, pacer, foaled 1883, by Echo 462, dam Bessie Taylor (dam of Sam Lewis, 2:25), by St. Clair 656 (Fred Lowe), and can be registered if he is not already.

W. S. L.—Can you give me the pedigree of a horse called Drake? Answer—Drake was bred by A. L. Chapman, of Solano County, Cal. He is by Admiral, he by Alden Goldsmith's Volunteer. Several of Admiral's colts have been trained, and three of them have beaten 2:30; one of his five-year-old colts made a record of 2:15½. Volunteer is by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, the sire of St. Julien, with a record of 2:11¼. Volunteer's dam by Young Patriot; Admiral's dam was Lady Pearson, she by Neave's Cassius M. Clay Jr.; her dam by C. M. Clay, a son of Henry Clay, by Andrew Jackson, dam by Chancellor, a son of Mambrino, grandam by Engineer, second sire of Lady Suffolk, who was sired by a son of Engineer, by imp. Messenger. Drake's dam was Black Maggie, and she by Tom Clay, he by Mambrino Chief, out of Mollie Byrns, thoroughbred. Black Maggie's dam was Darby's Fashion, by Tartar, he by Sir Archy, thoroughbred. Fashion's dam was The Jeffrey's Filly, thoroughbred.

W. E. J., Santa Barbara, Cal.—Can you or any of your readers tell me anything about the breeding or a horse called Lummox, which stood in Oregon in the year 1868, near Dallas, Polk County? Also give a short history of Newry, thoroughbred son of Lexington, which stood in this county. Where did he stand when he sired Maggie F., 2:26, and what was the breeding of her dam? Answer—Write to Jay Bench Vancouver, Wash., in reference to breeding of Lummox. Newry was a bay horse, foaled 1864, at A. J. Alexander's place, Spring Station, Ky., by Lexington, dam Novice, by imp. Glencoe, and therefore a full brother to the great Norfolk, owned by Theodore Winters, of Washoe, Nev. He was owned in the state of Kansas for quite a long time by Dr. W. L. Challis, near Atchison, I think. At any rate Maggie F. was bred by A. Robinson, of Atchison, Kansas. Her dam was Flora, and Wallace says her pedigree was not traced. As Newry was such a royally-bred horse, we are inclined to believe the dam of Maggie P. was a thoroughbred, for it does not seem likely that the owners of a brother to Norfolk would breed such a horse to anything but a thoroughbred mare.

At the Lone Star Stables.

There is a colony of horses at the Lone Star Stables which will be put in regular training as soon as the new track is ready for use. These are in charge of D. W. Holloway, a driver and trainer of experience, familiar with the requirements of horse men. He says there is every reason to expect Tulare to become a breeding and training center, as this climate is such that a horse may do his best work almost any day of the year, and the new kite track will, he believes, be one of the fastest in the West. Inquiries enough have already been received to indicate that owners of speedy animals are looking for a regular training ground. Some of them want five and ten acre tracts for stables, yards and pasturage room. These needs can be supplied here. Land is not nearly so high as it is close to Stockton.

At the head of Mr. Holloway's speedy list is Mt. Vernon, with a trotting record of 2:18, trial trotting 2:16, trial pacing 2:19. This horse is a son of the famous Nutwood, record 2:18¾, and his dam was Daisy by Chieftain. Mt. Vernon is as smooth as a lithograph picture, and is built to travel.

Mr. Holloway has lately purchased Miss Vernon, a daughter of the above named, and she is a credit to her patronage. She is a beauty, two years old, and has already given proof that she will be a rusher.

Victor S., formerly owned by Mr. F. M. Shultz, is now numbered with Holloway's string. He is a large, brown, fine-looking colt, three years old and is speedy. It will not be worth while to take a plug out of a plow team to pit against him. Victor S. is a son of Oakland Boy, whose untimely death is yet spoken of with sorrow by horsemen.

In another stall is a green pacer, three years old past, owned by Mr Pauline. This is a large colt, a son of Alexander Button. He has had but little work, yet he has an excellent gait, and Mr. Holloway expects him to make a good showing this fall.

Next on the list in number, though not in importance, another son of Oakland Boy, from a Fish Rice dam, is Duke H., owned by Mr. A. P. Hall. He is a handsome bay colt, two years old, a full brother to Bonnie, Mr. Hall's fast filly. Both these colts are expected to make good records this season, if breeding, care and training go for aught.

Besides these Mr. J. W. Martin, an enthusiastic stock man on Tule River, has at these stables two horses with a trotting lineage, Clay Duke and Del Rey, both prize-winners and having good records. These horses have been mentioned at length in these columns before this season.

Mr. J. H. Carlisle also has pronounced horse tendencies, and he knows a good horse when he sees him—and a bad one, too, perhaps. His Brown Ben and Dock are in Mr. Holloway's charge. These horses are well known and require no description. Brown Ben is a buster, 16¾ hands high, weighs 1,900 pounds, and is a fine specimen of the English shire. He is a treat for the eyes of the man who delights in draft horses.

The individual mention of these horses is necessarily condensed, but a visit to the Lone Star Stables will repay any one. They are roomy, cool, clean and in perfect order. Everything is as handy as a pocket in a shirt, and pictures of noted horses hang upon the walls.—Tulare Register.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

L. P., Modesto.—I have a promising colt three years old that showed some lameness in the right hind leg some three months ago. I applied some liniment to his hip, which I thought he rubbed him some for a time; however, he is now lamer than ever and more sore when starting out in the morning, or when let rest for ten or fifteen minutes and starting off again. I have been advised to put a seaton in his hip, but before doing so wish to have your advice on the subject. I forgot to state that he goes lamer down hill than up hill or on the level. Answer—Examine the hock of that leg carefully for bone spavin and communicate to us as to the result of your examination.

G. G., San Francisco.—I have a good draft mare that picked up a nail about a week ago. She did not go very lame from it, but I poulticed it and did not work her until yesterday morning. She left the stable feeling fine and before she went five blocks she began to sweat and stagger. I stopped and got her home as carefully as possible. She was in some pain and appeared to try to urinate, but could not, so I gave her a dose of nitre and tincture of opium, which I found to act like a charm in other cases. It quieted her some, but this morning she cannot stand up and kicks about a good deal. Please let me know immediately what treatment I ought to use and what the disease is. She can move her jaws well and eat some hay so that it cannot be lockjaw. Answer—The disease is "Azoturia," commonly called "paralysis." It is caused by overfeeding when a horse is not working. I fear it is almost too late to recommend any treatment, but get a qualified veterinary surgeon to see her without delay.

SACRAMENTO SPRING MEETING.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., May 10, 1892.

The Spring meeting of the Capital Turf and Driving Club opened here to-day under fair circumstances, although the track, drenched by rain last night, was not of the fastest. The sun came out of its place of obscurity behind the black clouds at 10 o'clock this morning, however, and warming to his work of drying out, did good service on the Agricultural Park course. This was a day of trotting, and the 3:00 class set the trotting ball of the California season in motion. It was not only a good and stubbornly contested event, but two of the contestants (James L. and Colonel McNasser) joined the mystic circle of 2:30 trotting performers. They were respectively by Dexter Prince and McNasser's Golddust. Thomas E. Keating piloted James L. to deserved victory. The pool-selling was exceedingly brisk before the first heat, Jessie selling for $20, Colonel McNasser $13, the field $12.

First heat—The horses scored nine times ere the word was given, and when at length a start was effected Administrator went out and was leading his five competitors from the wire into the homestretch by nearly two lengths, although guilty of a break or two. In the homestretch Jessie and James L., who had been saved for the final quarter, came up with a fine burst of speed, and in one of the prettiest struggles ever seen in a trotting race in Sacramento, James L. got home first by a scant head, Jessie second, a nose before Administrator, Wildo fourth, McNasser fifth and Billy B. last. Time, 2:38. Mutuels paid on the heat $14.25.

Second heat—In the auctions it was now James L. $20, Jessie $15, the field $8. At the sixth attempt the horses got off, James L. going to the front at once at a speedy clip, McNasser a good second, Jessie third. The positions remained unchanged past the half and three-quarters and into the homestretch, James L. a length and a half to the good, McNasser second and coming fast, Jessie lapped on him on the inside. A disastrous break by James L. 100 yards from the wire resulted in McNasser passing him like a streak and going under the wire about a length to the good of James L., who broke again at the finish. Jessie was a fair third, Administrator distanced. Time, 2:27. Mutuels paid $24.80.

Third heat—James L. was still the favorite. At the first score the word was given, and Colonel McNasser headed the procession at once. At the eighth pole the sulkies of James L. and McNasser collided, the vehicle of the latter being nearly upset thereby. James L. gained vastly by the accident, and soon the field was badly strung out. On the backstretch Colonel McNasser closed up a great patch of daylight, passing Wildo and Jessie, and catching James L. in the stretch, the latter broke, caught again, then ran under the wire first by a length. Tryon, driver of Colonel McNasser, claimed a foul against Keating at once, James L. was set back and the heat given to Colonel McNasser, James L. placed second, Jessie third, Billy B. fourth, Wildo last. Time, 2:29¼.

Fourth heat—McNasser now brought $15 against $20 for the field, the Golddust horse not reigning a warmer favorite because he appeared quite weary. Jamss L. led and could have won the heat easily, but Keating pulling up too soon near the finish, and came very close to losing the heat to Jessie, whom the veteran John Williams brought up with a great rush. James L. just got home a neck in advance. Colonel McNasser was third and Wildo fourth, Time, 2.30½. Mutuels paid $6.60.

Fifth heat—James L. won all the way with comparative ease by about two lengths, Jessie again coming second and Colonel McNasser third. Time, 2:29¾. Mutuels paid $8.75. James L. therefore got first money, Colonel McNasser second, Jessie third.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY, MAY 11, 1892.

The gallopers to-day did splendid work at Agricultural Park, the track of which was hard and fast. There was a large crowd in attendance, and it was a great betting assemblage, too. The favorites were successful in every event. Little Sullivan, the well-known Palo Alto jockey, was thrown from Fannie F. in the third race, sustaining a severe shaking up and some painful bruises, but not being seriously injured, happily. J. W. Wilson, D. Flint and G. McMullen officiated as judges; Dan Miller, John Mackey Jr. and H. Wochhorst as timers, while Ab. Stemler did the flag-wielding, and well, too.

The first race was a five-furlong dash, and Dick O'Malley was quite a favorite. O'Malley and Grandee drew away from the field at once, and ran neck-and-neck around the lower turn and to the head of the stretch, where Grandee tired with his heavy weight up, and the favorite opened up a lead of nearly three lengths. Grandee came again well, though, under the whip, but O'Malley was not to be headed, and won strong by about a length, Grandee second, four lengths in front of Donna Lilla, third, Steadfast last. Time, 1:03.

The second event was a sweepstakes for three-year-olds, distance one mile. Lottie Mills was a hot favorite over Royal Flush and Blondinette. The first-named pair ran bunched until within a sixteenth from home, when Lottie Mills came away and won easily by not quite two lengths from Royal Flush, he three lengths from Blondinette, who was never in the hunt. Time, 1:45.

Now came the Hale Bros.' & Co. handicap sweepstakes, one and one-sixteenth miles, with six starters. Acclaim was the favorite at $40, Revolver going at $24, Captain Al $14, the field $12. After a few false starts the flag fell, and Revolver and Braw Scot, head-and-head, led, the others close up. Rounding the first turn Sullivan, on Fannie F., was thrown, but being in the rear, escaped serious injury. Braw Scot was the leader at the quarter and half-poles, where Acclaim and Captain Al both came up with a rush. Around the last turn it was a procession, but the field bunched in the homestretch nicely, Revolver coming up strong. It was nip-and-tuck between Revolver and Acclaim down the straight, but the latter managed to get under the wire first by a neck, Sheridan third, over a length away, Braw Scot fourth, Captain Al fifth, Fannie F., riderless, far in the background. Time, 1:50.

A three-quarter mile dash wound up the day's sport, and Geraldine was a torrid first choice. Geraldine and Applause cut out the running, but at the half-pole the favorite was a length in front, Montana and Applause, head-and-head, second. Rounding the last turn the field spread out, but soon grouped again, and Monowai came from the rear so fast that it looked bad for Geraldine. However, the famous old queen of the sprinters managed to stall off Monowai's rush and reach the wire a neck in front, Monowai in the place, Montana only half a length from the grand two-year-old. The time, 1:14½, shows that it was a horse race of the first water.

THIRD DAY, THURSDAY, MAY 12, 1892.

The success of the Capital Turf Club is assured. A large crowd of horsemen came from San Francisco, Stockton, Marysville, Woodland and the cities and towns in the immediate vicinity of the city to swell the gathering of citizens who assembled to witness the two races to-day. The weather was lovely, not too warm nor too cold, the track was in splendid condition, the officers and Directors of the club attentive to the wants of all. President Wilson and Secretary Stafford were indefatigable in their endeavors to make this meeting receive the endorsement of all who came to witness the events on the programme; it is needless to say they succeeded.

At two o'clock a large number of private carriages, buggies and rockaways were seen inside the gates, and the old-time fair grounds assumed a State Fair appearance, with its grand stand well filled with handsome ladies and courteous gentlemen.

The judges were J. W. Wilson, D. Flint and G. McMullen. Timers, Thos. Duyder, H. Wachhorst and Q. Casey.

The pool-selling was quite exciting last evening. $80 was offered for Our Dick, $80 Turk Franklin, $60 Frank M. and $7 for Tom Ryder. A large amount of money went into the boxes and the excitement ran high. At the track the pool-selling took a decided tumble. Our Dick was made favorite at $20, Turk Franklin second choice at $13, and the field, comprising Frank M. and Tom Ryder sold for $7.

In the drawing for positions Frank M. got the pole, Tom Ryder was second, Franklin third and Our Dick was on the outside. This quartet of fast ones looked to be in the pink of condition.

At the third score the bell rang to a splendid send-off. Frank M. made a disastrous break and fell behind the others. Tom Ryder took the lead, with Turk Franklin on his wheel, and Our Dick was dropped behind, but quickly recovered, and although the two leaders were fully ten lengths ahead, he set sail after them. Frank M. had to come to a standstill at the first eighth, and was not straightened in his gait until he approached the quarter pole. The leaders had passed that mark in 34 4-5 seconds, with Our Dick five lengths behind and Frank M. fully 150 yards in his wake. Down the backstretch it could be seen that these two latter horses were closing up the gap fast. The half-mile post was passed in 1:10 2-5. At the three-quarter pole Turk Franklin passed Tom Ryder and led the way into the homestretch, Our Dick three lengtbs behind and Frank M. coming like a whirlwind. In this procession-like order Turk Franklin came under the wire, winning quite easily by two lengths from Tom Ryder, second, Our Dick three lengths behind him and Frank M. just inside the distance flag. Time, 2:24. In closing up the gap Frank M. was separately timed from the half-mile pole in 1:06, the first quarter in 33½ and the second in 32¾ seconds.

When the horses were called for the second heat, pools sold as follows: Turk Franklin $20, Our Dick $19 and the field $7. It was only necessary to score these horses once until they heard the word. Ryder paced ahead of his three companions and Turk Franklin followed him, Our Dick and Frank M. strung out behind him; they kept a length apart in this order until the half was passed in 1:12½. Starr shook up Our Dick, and when Costello, who was driving Turk Franklin, heard the son of Gibraltar coming fast behind him he started for the lead and soon passed Ryder at the three-quarter pole, and was challenged by Our Dick almost immediately. Down the homestretch they came like a double team until they neared the judges' stand when Our Dick took the lead and came in a length in front of Turk Franklin, Tom Ryder four lengths behind, and yet he was seven lengths ahead of Frank M. Time, 2:21.

The pools for the third heat sold as follows: Our Dick, $30, Turk Franklin $10, field $15. R. Havey took Costello's place behind Turk Franklin, and at the second score he took the pole away from Our Dick, but Frank M., on the outside, took first position, followed by Turk Franklin and Frank M., the favorite last. In this order they moved around to the half-mile pole in 1:11½, lapping each others wheels. Coming down the last turn Starr turned Our Dick's head to the outside, went around Turk Franklin and Frank M., and coming into the homestretch the three came abreast. As it was a question which of them was leading, the excitement in the grand stand grew intense. About fifty yards beyond the distance flag Starr left his companions and took the lead. Frank M. tried to catch him; in doing so, he left Turk Franklin, and was only beaten to the wire by the sagebrush champion by a length, Turk Franklin a good length in the rear and Tom Ryder last. Time, 2:20.

In the pool-selling Our Dick now sold for $25 against $5 for the field. The horses got away after three breaks. Our Dick and Frank M. led like a team, neither of them have any advantage over the other all the way around to the three-quarter pole; Turk Franklin a length behind, Tom Ryder two lengths in the rear of him. These positions remained unchanged until they rounded into the homestretch, when Turk Franklin took the inside and Our Dick was seen to swing out and pass Frank M. by a half length. This distance he slowly increased until he passed under the wire an open length in advance of Frank M., Turk Franklin two lengths behind, and Tom Ryder the last by fully four lengths. Time, 2:20.

The second race of the day was a special for the 2:25 class, for a purse of $300. The entries were Crown Prince, chestnut horse, sired by Dexter Prince, dam by Chieftain; Ed. Biggs, bay colt, by Brigadier, out of a thoroughbred mare; Nevada, black stallion, by Nevada, and Maggie E., bay mare, by Dexter Prince, out of Ceralos. Pools sold as follows: Maggie E., $30; Crown Prince, $10, and the other two were called fielders and sold for $4. After scoring three times they started on their journey. Crown Prince, driven by Keating, took the lead, Nevada, handled by David, was a length behind, Maggie E., guided by John Williams, and Ed. Biggs, driven by Marion Biggs Jr., were seen going side by side behind them. They gradually separated at the first quarter and strung out like a procession down the backstretch. Coming down the back turn Nevada moved up closer to Maggie, and she started to challenge the easy-going Crown Prince for first position. On coming into the homestretch, Keating saw that his horse's position was not in jeopardy, although Williams was urging Maggie for all she was worth, but on seeing the drawgate she broke, and C. David, with the black colt Nevada, passed her and came under the wire a length and a half behind Crown Prince, Maggie E. a poor third, and Ed. Biggs bringing up the rear guard. The time announced was 2:27.

In the second heat pools sold on Nevada $55, Crown Prince $14 and field $5. At the first attempt the horses got away. Nevada made a disastrous break, his sulky almost colliding with Maggie E.'s. The horse did not recover for some time. He fell back, and Maggie E. and Crown Prince passed him and led to the half. Maggie E. was first at the three-quarters, Nevada second, Crown Prince third and Ed Biggs last. The erratic Maggie broke at the drawgate, and Nevada passed her and came in a winner by a length, Crown Prince third and Ed Biggs last. Time, 2:27.

There were no pools sold on the third. Nevada took the lead at the send-off, Maggie E. second, Crown Prince close up. The three horses were close together on coming into the stretch. Nevada out-footed her two companions, however, and came home a winner by a length from Maggie E., Crown Prince two lengths behind her, and Ed Biggs, as usual, keeping in the rear. The time made was 2:24½.

In the fourth heat Nevada and Crown Prince trotted side by side all the way around to the half, Maggie third, a length behind, and just that far in front of Ed Biggs. These positions remained unchanged until the three-quarter pole was reached, at which point Maggie came up and joined the other two and the three came down the homestretch even until within one hundred yards of the wire. Ed Biggs then came up and Maggie E. fell back behind him. Nevada won by half a length, Crown Prince second, Ed Biggs third and Maggie E. last. Time, 2:27.

The Road to Success or Ruin.

The inducements offered to owners of horses to breed and train only the best will assume larger proportions every year. The great markets of Europe and South America, besides the growing demand in nearly all the States in the Union for the very best class of horses, makes it incumbent for owners to weed out the weak and ill-formed colts and develop the perfect ones; to sell the gross and coarsest and select those of the highest conformation for training purposes. The eradication of the foul-gaited, lunk-headed and off-colored ones must be done if the owner wishes to secure the attention of the best class of buyers.

Now is the time of the year for him to commence pruning the poor branches from his little cluster of colts. The races at the various district fairs will soon take place, and it is of the greatest importance for him to use his best judgment in selecting the animals to train for those exciting events. He should be up with the lark in the morning to watch the movements of the youngsters as they trot o'er the grassy meadows and see which of them shows that poetry of motion he likes, viz.: The lofty carriage, the frictionless gait, the low, stealing action, and the elasticity and spring which is only observable in youngsters that inherit these qualities from their sires and dams. The work of handling, as yearlings, has not injured them, and now that these two-year-olds and three-year-olds have developed into animals of size and substance, the next step to be taken in their education is carefully watched, and the ones that show the greatest superiority should be immediately given track work. The preliminary trials shown have demonstrated which of the youngsters are worthy of this promotion.

It is better for the owner to select a few out of his large collection of colts and give them all the opportunities to make race horses he can, rather than to take a large number and go on the circuit with a band of poorly-trained "skates" that, in conformation, gait, disposition and color are only fitted to grace the shafts of a vegetable vender's vehicle. In the former case he will feel encouraged to see a gradual improvement; in the latter, he will get discouraged and be almost driven to the contemplation of calling in an auctioneer and selling every "hoof" on his place.

The pleadings of half-fledged trainers to have a "big string" should not be heeded by him at any time, because if such a person were to secure ten or fifteen colts or fillies that were exceedingly well-bred, the chances are he would make such a reduction in his price for the whole bunch that, in order to make living wages, he would be compelled to hire incompetent men or boys to act as attendants or rubbers, and the stock would inevitably suffer.

"The laborer is worthy of his hire," and in no other branch of the business of raising trotters is there so much profit as in the money invested in having the colts trained by a competent man who charges a fair living price for his work and does not seek to have a long stable of trotters, out of which perhaps he will appear on the circuit with one or two 2:30 performers.

The art of training trotters is not learned from text-books, and in this progressive age the completion of a trainer's education is not acknowledged at the "commencement" exercises on a race track. He must study all the time. The ideas so ably expressed by our older drivers, such as Hickok, Marvin, Doble, Turner, Geers and Splan, through the medium of the turf journals, are as well known to the breeders as to trainers, and the young man to succeed in getting into the good graces of his employer must show that he is an apt student and is always willing to adopt new ideas, provided they appeal to his better judgment and by which he can get more speed out of his colts without injuring them. The trainer who uses his eyes and his judgment, as well as his hands, will, sooner or later, come to the front. It may be his misfortune to never get a world-beater, such as Dexter, Goldsmith Maid, Rarus, Maud S., Sunol, Jay-Eye-See, Allerton, Axtell or an Arion, but there is no reason why he should not achieve a name and reputation as a great driver, and his field of work will be almost unlimited.

The horses the trainer has to handle have much to do with his success. It has been said before in these columns it takes "the horse to make the man," and in looking over the list of our greatest trainers we can detect this truism; therefore, the horse breeder who has bred his mare to the best stallion that in his judgment would "nick" better than others with her, should see to it that the trainer to get that youngster (when it comes) is one in whom he has the greatest faith. He should not overload that trainer with a lot of "skates," with no form, pedigree or gait, just because he is handling the "pride of the farm." It ruins the colt's future, destroys the trainer's chances for making a name for himself, as well as for the sire and dam of the colt, and keeps him digging along at a snail's pace. If a trainer sees there is nothing in the colt it is to his interest to tell the owner so and show him the reason why. It will not injure him to do this, and after the owner drives the youngster against the watch and sees that the trainer's prophecy was true, that trainer can rely upon the friendship and patronage of that man forever after.

Does anyone suppose that Mr. Hickok would spend his valuable time developing a horse or a mare that he knew would never beat 2:40? Would it be policy for John A. Goldsmith to appear on the circuit with a regiment of such trotters? Why does Doble, Geers or Turnet always appear at the races with a small number of select 2:20 performers and but a few 2:30 trotters or pacers? Because they believe that they can reduce these records in races and the horses have not been knocked out by being poorly trained months before. They have no desire to take money from breeders by telling them they had fast colts and good campaigners when they had not. Their reputations as gentlemen as well as honest trainers and drivers are at stake, and they cannot afford to make any sacrifice.

The small breeder should be careful, and if his stallion has sired colts and fillies outside of his farm which he has seen can trot faster than any on his place, he should, for the reputation of his horse, see the owner and either buy or lease the youngsters, give them to the best trainers, who are not overloaded, pay those trainers well for their trouble, besides giving them a share in the youngsters' earnings as an extra inducement. The more colts in the list to the credit of his stallion the greater will the value of that stallion be. He should also offer a sum of money to encourage owners of first-class mares to breed to his horse, and thus display the same business tact that has marked the successful career of every business man in the land. The man who has no progressive ideas and who is looking around to get everything as cheaply done as possible will never make a success in the breeding and raising of horses, and the quicker he learns this fact the better it will be for himself, his neighbors and the trotting horse industry of the country.

Secretaries, Attention!

The long spell of idleness enjoyed by the various directors and secretaries of the district associations throughout the Pacific Coast must soon end, and the work of getting ready for the races this fall will hereafter occupy their time. The association that has the most active secretary is the one which will at once enlist the attention of horsemen, and success will crown its efforts. A lazy, half-dead-and-alive secretary who has no idea of racing and does not care to awaken an interest among the directors is of very little use in this age. The horse industry wants live, active business men at the helm—men who are quick to see what the public want and eager to gratify that want. This is an era of 2:10 speed. We are not existing in the old 2:50 period. The people comprising nine-tenths of our associations are hard-working farmers who are blessed with good, hard, common-sense and are as fine judges of human nature as any class of business men in the land. When they meet in session and hear and see the efforts made by their Secretary and President to make their race meetings successful it does not take them long to endorse every progressive movement offered. The people who see that their fall meeting is to be well advertised and who are convinced that the officers of the association are working hard to make a grand success of their fair, are very quick to respond and are more than anxious to testify their appreciation for what they have seen and for what they believe will be done for the benefit of their district.

The directors of the various associations should emulate the examples set by horsemen of the East and endeavor to stem the tide of travel that is setting slowly and surely that way. The only way they can do so is by placing their advertisements immediately in the columns of the Breeder and Sportsman, as well as in their local papers. Offer good inducements to the horsemen of California, and the exodus will stop. Let the owners of promising colts and fillies see that you wish to encourage the breeding and training of the very best class of horses, make California the greatest market for fine horses; in the world, and the thing is accomplished. Offer purses (besides development stakes) that will be worth competing for, and advertise the meeting so that the crowds will not keep away. Make the fair attractive; give premiums for fine stock worthy of competing for. Advertise it well, and you advertise your county; get as large a crowd there every day as possible; if there is anything good in the agricultural, horticultural or viticultural line, have it there. If any of the farmers have the largest draft horse, cow, steer or pig ever seen in the country, have them come. There is plenty of work for secretaries, and now is their golden opportunity. They should not stop to let the "grass grow under their feet"—they must "keep a movin'" until the day of the opening of the fair, when, with the band playing, flags waving, crowds laughing, horses trotting and running and vehicles dashing toward the fair ground, everything and everybody will appear as if that is the most important event of the year. The people must have relaxation from their toils, and every good citizen owes it to himself and his family, if he has one, to take this relaxation, by going to the fairs and races and forgetting business for at least a brief season.

Again we urge on the associations to authorize their secretaries to send in their advertisements. We will help them in every way we can to have plenty of good horses and races at the meeting this fall, and let us see more of the small breeders possessing 2:30, aye 2:20 performers, than we have ever observed before.

Penny Wise and Pound Foolish.

There are some owners of stock farms in the United States who have large numbers of very well-bred colts and fillies roaming over their pastures that will soon need a trainer's care; the idea of paying a good price for the services of a first-class trainer is one they will not listen to for a moment. The employment of a "gabby swipe" who claims to have driven the greatest horses on earth, and from whom the kings and princes of the turf such as Hickok, Goldsmith, Marvin or Splan have learned many useful things, is their first and only choice.

Some of these youngsters claim either one of two things—they must use plenty of boots to protect the legs of the trotters, or they need none at all, because it is the cheapest way of getting fast horses. The first man will never suit; he is too expensive, to begin with. The second one suits long enough to draw his first month's wages and leave a stable full of first-class cripples over which the parsimonious owner can spend hours blistering, bandaging and firing. The only consolation he can get out of the whole business is that he "paid that feller just what he asked, and he owed no bills to the bootmakers, anyhow." The following is taken from the American Breeder, and conveys a few ideas which may be consoling to him also in his "hour of deepest trouble:"

"It is reported that H. S. Henry, owner of Anteco, 2:16¼, and Barnhart, 2:22¾, has offered 'Knapsack' McCarty $6500 per year to train at the Penn Valley Stud. This seems a large price, yet it might prove a low one. Many a wealthy man has dropped his 'little wad' by investing perhaps $100,000 in a few horses, and then 'haggling' around to get some first-class bum at a low price to take charge of them. It is like starting a bank and employing an inexperienced and irresponsible cashier. The comparison is not very good, for the cashier is required to give bond, while the trainer can knock $10,000 out of a first-class horse and quietly walk away."

Now that the hoof-beats of the gallopers are dying away in the distance and the trotters come thundering down the homestretches, it is well to consider the diagonally-gaited animals and their prospects in California for the forthcoming season of racing. That prospect is a brilliant one. Liberal as were the purses given for the thoroughbred racers, the amounts offered to racehorses of the trotting type at our various meetings this year are more liberal, and in California, at least, there is a chance to earn more money with a good harness horse than with a galloper. At San Francisco, Oakland and Sacramento, especially, will the purses be princely in their proportions. A director of the second-named association informed us the other day that no sum less than $1,000 will be offered for trotters in any of the classes at the Golden Gate Fair. From almost every point in the State comes news of increased interest in racing of all kinds. The members of the Blood Horse Association were not long in seeing the wisdom of engaging a competent man to start the horses, for the receipts tell a merry tale. Let the trotting horse associations fall into line and go the lovers of thoroughbreds one better by not only engaging a strict, competent starting judge, but a paid presiding judge as well. Believe us that the move is well worthy of a trial, and it will go very far toward popularizing trotting in this horse paradise. Then if betting on the result of heats be abolished and the meetings are well advertised, success from every point of view is certain. California is the birthplace and home of the greatest horses on earth, and should be the racing paradise of the Western country as well. Judicious management and liberal use of printers' ink will bring about the result we all desire so much, and let us see that our officials are not only up with the times but original in their ideas, too.

Development Our Salvation.

It should be and is the aim of trotting horse associations throughout the country to awaken such an interest in light harness horses that when a meeting is in progress at least half the population should turn out to see the racing. There have been instituted throughout the country numerous goodly stakes looking toward the result we have mentioned, but none have quite come up to the exact standard of excellence as yet. We would therefore respectfully suggest that our trotting horse organizations open stakes for two, three and four-year-olds, terming them the Development Stakes, making each one worth as much as the associations can possibly afford. These stakes should be for the get of stallions during, we will say, the year 1891, any one owning a youngster by any stallion being eligible to start it in the two-year-old stake in 1893, the three-year-old in 1894 and the four, year-old event of 1895 on payment of a nominal sum—perhaps $50, five days before each race is to be trotted. Make the nominating fee for all stallions $100 in each event, any horse being eligible to nomination whose get arrived on earth in 1891, for example. Bar no stallion in America. Set apart $500 to the nominator of the successful stallion in each stake and $250 for the trainer of the winner in each, the balance of the money to be divided in the usual way. We believe that in this manner better than any other devised could interest be awakened to the great merits possessed by the trotting horse. The owners of stallions would be anxious to enter to gain the glory and coin, the trainers would be stimulated and encouraged as they never were before, while many would be anxious to own a trotter and enter it in such a liberal stake, where six persons get a slice of the monetary plum pudding. Horses not entered in the two-year-old stake, but the get of nominated stallions, should not be barred in the three and four-year-old development stakes, because they might not be in shape to trot as two-year-olds. In short, make the conditions as liberal as possible. The larger the fields the larger the crowds, the greater the size of the purses, and consequently the more interest felt. In a very few years California people will, as a class, be as "horsey" as the Kentuckians, and love a trotter with the same ardor. We raise the greatest horses of all gaits in the world, and with good management the time is not far distant when our brethren of the Bluegrass State will be not a whit more enthusiastic over them than the inhabitants of this "land of gold."

"If it is such a good colt, why is it that you have not entered him in some of the stakes?" will be the cry of the prospective purchaser of a young trotter to the would-be seller ere many moons have waxed and waned, if indeed that time has not already arrived. Money is to be made in the trotting horse business these days, and lovers of light harness horses can combine business with lots of pleasure. The first thing is to get good horses (with good pedigrees, if possible), and scarcely less important is the securing of a competent conditioner and driver of horses. A great evil that the new-comer to the trotting horse field has to contend against is the sweet-talking "swipe," who has been with some first-class stable just one season, and sets himself up as a trainer and conditioner of trotters, about whom he knows probably as much as the cotton-field darky does of the mode of living of the Ameer of Afghanistan. It should be the endeavor of all who have the welfare of the trotting turf at heart to see that every new man in the ranks of trotting-horse breeders or owners is provided with a first-class handler of horses, and that his horses do not fall into the hands of the Philistines of the stable. These incompetents do more to drive good men out of the business and to disgust them with trotters than anything yet devised by Beelzebub. They cripple the horses, over or under-feed them, or stiffen them by giving fast trials the day before they are engaged in some stake race. Good trainers make opportunities, poor ones destroy chances of gaining fame and fortune. There will be a great flocking of horsemen to this State within the next few years, because it has been demonstrated to every intelligent man's satisfaction that we can raise faster and stronger horses here than in any section of country as yet discovered, and instead of sending our gilt-edged animals over the mountains to be sold in New York, Chicago, Cleveland or Lexington, as many of our breeders now do, Mohammed must come to our mountain (and plain) to get the best and pay accordingly.

Next Tuesday's Combination Sale.

The annual combination sales held by Messrs. Killip & Co., of this city, have heretofore been productive of much good to all breeders. A number of sires are represented, and stock farm-owners have an opportunity of making comparisons between the mares, colts and fillies offered, while the young stallions must have good breeding, or they will not be offered. Catalogues have been issued, and nearly all of our readers are aware of the class of stock offered; still, there may be some who are not so fortunate in receiving catalogues. To them we would state that a similar opportunity to secure first-class stock at low prices may not occur again this year. The colts and fillies are by Noonday, Anteros, Albert W., Mountain Boy, Dawn, 2:18¾, and other sires out of mares that are also well-bred. Mr. D. J. Murphy will sell Rosemeath, that handsome son of Alcazar, 2:20½, and Khartoum, by Soudan, 2:27½, out of Black Bettie, dam of Mamie Comet, 2:23¼. These horses will prove valuable wherever placed. Both of them are very promising trotters, and whoever gets either will never have reason to regret his purchase. They are young, sound, kind, pure-gaited and perfect in conformation. Khartoum is a horse that would be a credit to any stock farm in the United States. He will get a low record if trained, and will make a reputation as a sire. The broodmares and fillies are a rare collection. Among them we notice a filly by Whips, 2:27½, out of Gipsy, by Paul's Abdallah. Whips is destined to be one of the greatest sires ever bred at Palo Alto, and whoever gets any of his progeny now will have a prize.

The disposal sale of A. L. Whitney's broodmares, colts and fillies will take place at the same time and place. There are twenty head in all, and we venture to assert that a better-looking lot has not been offered at auction for years. A number of standard-bred mares and fillies worthy of gracing any stock farm in the State will be sold. The class of roadsters offered is of the highest order. They are fine-gaited, courageous, perfectly trained, gentle and stylish. Not an off-colored one nor a "cull" will be seen in the collection. Young men who wish to start a few trotters this year, by attending this sale and purchasing a few sons and daughters of Dawn, 2:18¾, the purest-gaited son of Nutwood, 2:18¾, will make no mistake if they do so. Anna Belle, 2:27½, has a Sidney filly by her side which was foaled Tuesday, May 10th. She carried this youngster while in her race with Vida Wilkes at the Bay District track, and also when she made her present record. Whoever gets these will have a chance to test the theory of the developed trotting instinct in embryo. Ida Belle, her undeveloped full sister, is just as promising as a trotter, and as she has a magnificent Sable Wilkes colt by her side and is stinted this year to Sidney, 2:19¾, there is no reason why she should not be esteemed a jewel by whoever purchases her. These two should go to Palo Alto. The lack of Sable Wilkes, Sidneys and Dawns at this farm has often been commented upon, and two finer-looking young broodmares than Ida Belle and Anna Belle are not on that famous farm. Kitty Irvington, by Dawn, 2:18¾, out of Nellie Irvington, is destined to be the dam of record-breakers, if one is to judge by the excellence of the filly Marchioness to be sold on the same day. There are a number of other good ones, and every horseman in this State should come and see them.

Every animal in this sale was selected by Mr. Whitney with a view to starting a stock farm, but owing to the death of his brother a few months ago he has had to give up this idea, and every animal must therefore be sold.

The Finigan Sale.

By the departure of Mr. P. A. Finigan, to Europe, horsemen will have an opportunity of securing first-class broodmares, colts and fillies, besides a number of excellent carriages, buggies, sulkies, sets of harness, robes, whips and blankets at the auction sale next Tuesday, which must not be lost sight of. No better teams were seen on the road than those driven by Mr. Finigan, and now that he has decided to dispose of these fine roadsters there will be a good chance for turfites to secure bargains. Everything offered will be sold. The stock can be seen at the stable, 1248 California street, at any time prior to the sale, which takes place next Tuesday, at 11 o'clock. See advertisement.

The Last Day.

This is the last opportunity to call the attention of our readers to the closing of entries for the Salt Lake Driving Park's spring meeting, the Oregon Breeding and Speed Association's spring meeting and The Fresno Fair Grounds Association's spring meeting. By reading the advertisements in this issue horsemen can learn of the amounts of stakes and purses offered and the liberal conditions under which the races are conducted. Remember, entries close to-morrow, the fifteenth, and horsemen should attend to this important matter immediately.

Gas Engines.

The Pacific Gas Engine Co. have just received the first installment of thir Eastern-built engines. It speaks volumes in praise of this engines to point to the fact that the call for them has been so brisk that the manufacturers have been unable to supply the demand through their local works.

AZRA WINS THE KENTUCKY DERBY.

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 11.—Despite the cold and threatening weather 12,000 people were at the Derby day opening on the Churchill Downs spring meeting to-day. The track was in fair condition, but far from fast. A prettier race than the eighteenth Kentucky Derby was never run on this track. Though there was but three horses in it there was excitement and doubt from the first few jumps. Money poured in on Corrigan's entry, while the home plungers backed Azra at the odds of 9 to 5 and 2 to 1, It seemed to be the intention of Corrigan to let Huron make the running with a pace too hot for Azra, and win the race with Phil Dwyer when Azra was run out, but Corrigan met with another Kentucky surprise. The programme was carried out well enough to the head of the stretch. Farther and farther away from Azra did Hurron get until five lengths separated them. As they passed the stand Clayton eased up on Azra lightly, and the call was answered nobly. As he went ahead, however, Britton shot Huron ahead, keeping the distance the same between him and Azra. There was not a foot of difference in the distance separating them until they reached 200 yards of the wire, when Azra was three lengths behind. Then Clayton straightened himself and called on Long's candidate, Azra. The response was prompt, and he gained slowly on Huron. Neck-and-neck they raced as the crowd yelled wildly, both horses going their level best, and it was a case of good jockeying. Just as they got under the wire the nose of Azra was lifted in front a nose, and the Derby was over. Phil Dwyer was a length behind, and in the finish was coming very fast. Time, 2:41¼. The distance was a mile and a half. The starters, weights and jockeys were: Azra, 122 (A. Clayton), 9 to 5; Huron, 122 (Britton), 2 to 5; Phil Dwyer, 122 (Overton), 2 to 5. The race was worth $4230 to the winner, who is by Reform son of Leamington and Stolen Kisses, by Knight of Kars), dam Albia, by Alarm; second dam, Electic, by Kentucky.

Following is a list we have compiled of the winners, placed horses and the time made in the stake every year since its inception:

Yr.	Name of Winner.	Sire of Winner.	Sire of Horse.	Starters.	Time.
1875	Aristides	Leamington (imp.)	Volcano	15	2:37¾
1876	Vagrant	Virgil	Creedmoor	11	2:38¼
1877	Baden-Baden	Virginian (imp.)	Leonard	11	2:38
1878	Day Star	Star Davis	Hunter	9	2:37¼
1879	Lord Murphy	Pat Malloy	Falsetto	9	2:37
1880	Fonso	King Alfonso	Kentucky	7	2:37½
1881	Hindoo	Virgil	Index	6	2:40
1882	Apollo	Ashland or Lever	Runnymede	14	2:40½
1883	Leonatus	Longfellow	Drake Carter	7	2:46
1884	Buchanan	Buckden (imp.)	Luke	9	2:40½
1885	Joe Cotton	King Alfonso	Bersan	10	2:37½
1886	Ben Ali	Virgil	Blue Wing	10	2:36½
1887	Montrose	Duke of Montrose	Jim Gore	7	2:39½
1888	Macbeth, II	Macduff	Galliard	7	2:38½
1889	Spokane	Hyder Ali	Proctor Knott	8	2:34½
1890	Riley	Longfellow	Bill Letcher	6	2:45
1891	Kingman	Secretary (imp.)	Balgowan	4	2:37½
1892	Azra	Reform	Huron	3	2:41¼

It will be observed that no filly ever won the classic event, and that this season there were a smaller number of starters than at any time since its inception. Sons of Virgil have won the race three times, those of Longfellow and King Alfonso twice. The greatest surprise was when Apollo, one of the rankest of rank outsiders, beat Runnymede, favorite over the entire field, and the defeat of Proctor Knott by Spokane was scarcely a smaller shock. However, the time made by Spokane was the best on record by a three-year-old, and the son of Hyder Ali had 118 pounds up, too. In 1890 sons of Longfellow ran first and second, while a grandson of the great horse was third. While there are many richer stakes in America than the Kentucky Derby, few give the winning horse the prestige that this event does.

Golden Gate Fair Colt Stakes.

The Golden Gate Fair Association is certain to provide some splendid racing for its patrons this fall at Oakland, for the reason that the conditions in the various races are so liberal and sensible that horsemen will hasten to enter their flyers. In another column of this paper will be found advertised two colt stakes, for two and three-year-old trotters, respectively, and it will be observed that it takes but $10 to carry an entry up to August 10th. Another feature of the meeting will be the elimination of what has been the bane of many trotting meetings—tiresome scoring. Hereafter in fields of three but three scores will be allowed by the Golden Gate Fair Association; four starters, but four scores; five starters, but five attempts. Now if they will decide to send a horse to the stable that does not win a heat in three in a trotting or pacing race some great racing will result, and there will be no laying up just inside the distance flag for three heats with a 3:00 horse, and then coming in and winning from 2:30 trotters who have been trying to capture every heat. Later on the Golden Gate Fair Association will advertise a programme of races that is sure to be wonderfully attractive to the horsemen and general public alike, but in the meantime owners of two and three-year-old trotters should reward the liberality of the Golden Gate Fair Association by entering in these two stake races early and often. Entries to these events close June 6, 1892.

Who Uses Spelterine?

This question can be easily answered by applying to any of the prominent trainers and drivers. It is endorsed by veterinarians, used by horsemen, and proves to be superior to any hoof-stuffing ever thought of. When once tested it recommends itself. It is far superior to linseed meal and cheaper than it or any other hoof-stuffing ointment. It is a natural product which retains moisture for hours and never gets hot. In allaying inflammation of the hoof it is perfectly wonderful. Try it. Samples free.

DENVER DOTS.

Interesting Turf Notes From the Colorado Metropolis.

DENVER, Colo., May 9, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Matt Storn has turned up all right, and his string is now quartered at Oakland. They have not been extended yet, his trainer preferring to gallop them a few days first until they get settled down. The Overland people are feeling exceedingly joyful over their prospects, and the Secretary informs me this morning that he has just had a letter from Thomas H. Williams Jr., of your city, who has so gracefully presided in the judge's stand at the Bay District meeting, saying that if his business will permit, he will come down to Denver and take the same position in the judge's stand here. This is good news, and between having such a starter as Ferguson here, and such a judge as Mr. Williams, Denver is to be congratulated indeed. We expect to see By. Holly's string here before many days, as Porter Ashe's and, in fact, the bulk of the horses that raced at Bay District are said to be intending to come here and I think there will be an enthusiastic crowd if we have the sort of racing here that, from the accounts published in your newspaper you have recently enjoyed at the Bay District track. The chances are that our first day here Derby Day, May 28th, with good weather—you will see not less than 12,000 people at Overland. This may seem exaggerated to you but it is the way people turn out at these meetings, and never before has there been the inducement for people to turn out as there will be during the spring meeting. The Overland people have just decided as you perhaps know by this time, to make an August meeting which is unparalleled in the West; in other words, the giving of $5,000 a day for overnight purses and handicaps. This would make four purses of $500 per day, and one handicap of $1,000, which you will admit is an extremely liberal offer of money to race for.

Matt Storn has assured the officials of the Overland that there are many horses in California that will not be ready in time to go East during the spring meeting, that can be brought to Overland in August. He also remarks that there are many owners in California who have but one or two horses who cannot afford to ship East. These horses may very readily be gotten together in a car-load or two, and be brought here in August and shipped back at the end of the meeting with but little expense. Matt informs us that Mr. McDonough, a recent acquisition in racing circles on the Coast and a very prominent gentleman there, will probably send his horses to Overland for the August meeting, although he has not intended to race East this season, preferring to wait until next year. The races of the Blood Horse Association just circle [at] your city have been of great interest to us here, and we have followed the performances of the horses and the time made very closely. We must say that from your description of the races in your excellent paper that no more entertaining and closely contested races will take place this season in the United States.

The performances of the colts are a justification of your California breeders, and we do not see how you are outclassed, in the matter of speed, in any country. We, too, as well as ourselves, have taken pride in the performances of Bernardo and all the Cheviot colts, of the Sir Modred colts, of Zaldivar, of Geraldine, noble old mare that she is; and, in fact, we have, although at long range, enjoyed with you the capital performances of all your California stables. We hope to have the story repeated here.

Dan McCarty has promised Mr. Ferguson, so he writes to the Secretary of the Overland, to split his string and come here and race with a part of his stable.

There is one certain result of your races now past, and of the Overland races to come, and that is the making of a market here for your breeders. Nearly all the race horses brought here have been purchased in the East. Now, however, when your colts come over to win the large amount of money, or at least a part of it, offered by the Overland people, the attention of these racing men here will be turned toward the Coast, and there is no doubt in my mind but that an excellent chance will be opened here for the sale of what California horses there are to be offered.

Out at the race track the horses are working steadily every day, and the track is in most excellent condition, while the weather has been unsurpassed.

E. E. Randle is here with his string, the head of which is Idaho Chief. This horse is a clinker, and he has done some very fast quarters.

The Storn stable came in a few days ago, as said before, but their work has been confined to galloping, so far.

The Carlile & Shields stable of thirteen horses will be here this week, and from now on until races, it will be rare sport to watch the morning's work of all these horses.

The Californians will ship here either directly from the Bay District, or after the Sacramento meeting. There is a welcome at Overland for them all, and we Denver people ourselves are glad to extend all the hospitality in our power towards them.

Many California people who have never stopped at Denver think we are far away from the main line of the Union Pacific, and that a visit to Denver means several days extra time and a long, extra railroad journey. From Cheyenne on the main line to Denver is only ninety miles and three hours, or less ride. FUTURITY.

Stockbridge Chief, Jr.

J. H. Wallace, he of the register, always denied that there was a horse called Stockbridge Chief Jr., and refused to recognize any information regarding him. The following letter from Hon. W. M. Williamson, who owned Belmont, should be sufficient evidence to establish the fact that there was such a horse; besides this, the testimony of all the old-time horsemen in this State should be believed. We earnestly hope that the present registrar will at least acknowledge that there was such a horse:

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I was surprised a few days ago to hear that there had been any doubts as to the fact of the horse Stockbridge Chief Jr. coming to California, and that somebody about your office was trying to hunt the matter up. I will help settle that question by stating what I know.

Stockbridge Chief Jr. was brought to California and to San Jose in the spring of 1858 by Phillip G. Vibbard, who stood him here that spring and the spring following and at the Fair of the Santa Clara Valley Agricultural Society in the fall of 1859. Stockbridge Chief Jr. trotted against and beat the horse State of Maine in a very closely contested heavy in five race, after which the same horses were matched to trot the same race over at San Francisco in the month of November, the same year, and I was chosen stake holder. Dr. Hidden, the backer of the State of Maine died the morning the race was to come off and it never was trotted.

It turned out that Vibbard did not own Stockbridge Chief Jr. A young man by the name of James Howland came here and hired to me to take care of Belmont and during the time he was with me told me who he was and showed me a general power of attorney from the owner of the horse and that he was here to watch Vibbard. The horse was taken to San Francisco, and Howland having failed to make a settlement with Vibbard, commenced an action in replevin for the recovery of Stockbridge Chief Jr. His value was alleged to be $5,000 dollars. Howland employed Hon. C. F. Ryland as his attorney in the matter and Mr. Ryland and I went on the replevin bond. After the officer had served the writ and taken possession of the horse, there was a settlement made and Howland got his money and went back to New York, and I understand he is now keeping a hotel in Goshen. I think Mr. John A. Goldsmith can tell you about James Howland. It was understood when Howland got his money that it was furnished by Capt. Wm. Kohl, of San Mateo, who took Stockbridge, and the horse was brought here next spring by Mr. Wm. A. Mathews, and remained here for some years when Mathews let Jas. Weatherhead have him, in whose possession he died in San Jose. Howland told me that Stockbridge Chief Jr. was by Stockbridge Chief, son of Vermont Black Hawk, out of a gray mare said to be by a Messenger. This was the horse that got Abe Edgington, that was bred here at San Jose by Joseph O'Keefe. W. M. WILLIAMSON.

OWING to continued bad health, Mr. G. Valensin has been forced to give up his cherished trip to the East with his splendid stable of young trotters. The owner of Sidney writes us: "I assure you that it has been quite a painful decision for me to take, both on account of the showing I expected to make, also because after spending close on $2,000 in forfeits, getting my car here and having said so much about the young Sidneys who were going East. I felt really bad to have to give up my expectations." That the wonderful Frou-Frou and Fausta would have earned fresh laurels and considerable coin for their unfortunate owners certain, and we known there are many truly phenomenal yearlings in training at Valensin Stock Farm. There will be great disappointment at the East also. Let us hope that Mr. Valensin will soon get back his health and put a string on the track that will do honor to California and their breeder.

Pacing Horse Breeders' Meeting.

The stockholders of the National Standard Pacing Horse Breeders' Company held its biennial session in Cincinnati on May 4th.

After an animated but harmonious discussion a motion prevailed to increase the number of directors to thirty-eight, A. C. Dietz and James Hewson representing California.

The Board represents pacing horse interests covering a wide territory, covering fourteen States, and will add much weight and influence in the counsels of the company, and give additional impetus to its rapidly extending influence and usefulness.

On motion Frank G. Buford, Bufords Tenn., was re-elected President unanimously; Walter C. Ong, Cleveland, O., unanimously re-elected Vice President; D. W. Greene, Dayton, O., unanimously re-elected Secretary, and Frank H. Jermyn, Scranton, Pa., unanimously re-elected Treasurer. The office of Register is continuous so long as the office is properly administered, and no complaint being filed, Registrar Thomas C. Parsons, Cleveland, O., was left at the helm of the register.

On motion the following named gentlemen were unanimously elected as members of the Board of Appeals: Judge Irving Halsey, Lexington, Ky.; S. M. Warren, Spring Hill, Tenn.; G. M. Garth, Courtland, Ala.; E. L. Rowe, Dayton, O.; A. F. Yetter, Wilkinson, Ind.

On motion a rule "No. 12" was added to the standard rules of the company as follows:

"12—The progeny of a standard pacing horse out of a trotting mare, that would be standard under our rules if a pacer, or, the progeny out of a standard pacing mare sired by a trotting horse that would be standard under our rules, if a pacer, shall be eligible to registration as standard."

The meeting was characterized by entire harmony, and the spirit of determination and general interest manifested insures rapid growth of the company and continued good to the pacing horse interests of the country.

A Peculiar Advertisement.

The following is an exact copy of an advertisement which appeared in an English sporting magazine published in the year 1813:

"On Saturday, the sixteenth of September next, will be sold at Skibberton, the strong, staunch, steady, stout, sound, safe, sinewy, serviceable, strapping, supple, swift, smart, sightly, sprightly, spirited, sturdy, shining, surefooted, sleek, well-sized, well-shaped, sorrel steed, of superlative symmetry, styled Spanker, with small star and snip, square-sided, slender-shouldered, sharp-sighted, and singularly stately, free from strain, spavin, spasm, stringhalt, stanguary, sciatica, staggers, scouring, strangles, salienders, surfeit, seams, strumour, swellings, scratches, searfoot, splint, squint, squirt, scrufs, scabs, scars, sores, scattering, shuffling, shambling gait, or symptons of sickness of any sort. He is neither stiff-mouthed, shabby-coated, sinew-shrunk, spur-galled, saddle-galled, shell-toothed, sling-gutted, surbatted, skin-scabbed, short-winded, splay-footed or shoulder-slipped; and is sound in the sword-point and stifle-joint, has neither sick, spleen, sitfast, snaggle teeth, sand crack, staring coat, swelled sheath nor shattered hoofs, nor is he sour, sulky, surly, stubborn or sullen in temper; neither shy nor skittish, slow, sluggish or stupid; he never slips, trips, strays, stalks, starts, stops, shakes, snarrels, snuffles, stumbles nor stalks in the stable, and scarcely or seldom sweats, has a showy, stylish switch tail, and a safe, strong set of shoes on; can feed on soil, stubble, saintfoin, sheaf oats, straw sedge or scutch grass; carries sixteen stone with surprising speed in his stroke over a six-foot sod or stone wall. His sire was the sly Sobersides, out of a sister of Spindleshanks, by Sampson, a sporting son of Sparkler, who won the sweepstakes and subscription plate last season at Sligo.—Sportsman.

Settles Malaria, Constipation and Dyspepsia.

Sufferers from the terrible complaints above mentioned should bear in mind that Bartlett Spring Mineral Water is the best cure yet discovered—a specific for constipation and a general tonic. The highest praise from the leading physicians has been given to this water, which is bottled at the famous Bartlett Springs in Lake county. Write to the office of the company for particulars regarding spring and water. The agents can be found at 4 Pioneer Place, this city. See advertisement of this water in this week's issue.

FANNY FERN, dam of Balkan, 2:15, and Molly Drew, 2:27, slipped her foal at La Siesta Stock Farm this week. Her genial owner, Frank H. Burke, is not having the luck he deserves, for in addition to this loss, Sister, dam of Albert W., 2.20, and Bonanza, 2:29½, died at the farm about the same time.

Drink NAPA SODA.

SISTER, dam of Albert W., 2:20, and Bonanza, 2:29½, died at La Siesta Stock Farm last Tuesday, we are sorry to state, of old age and general debility. Sister, foaled 1868, was a full sister to Aurora, 2:27, also in the Great Brood Mare Table, being by John Nelson 187, dam the Lamott mare, pedigree untraced. She was from a great producing family, for the Lamott mare was the dam of one 2:30 performer and the grandam of four in the list.

F. M. DAY, of San Francisco, has purchased of H. M. Warden, San Luis Obispo, a splendidly matched team, Skip and Daisy, half-sisters, one by a son of Whipple's Hambletonian 725, the other by a son of Gen. McClellan 143, dam Princess Alice. They have records respectively of 2:33 and 2:36, and are as much alike as two pebbles.

AMONG the sales made by Berry & Co. at Chicago last week we noted Lady Director, by Director, 2:17, dam by Mambrino Gift. For this mare J. W. Conley, of Chicago, gave $2,500.

No medicine is so universally used as Simmons Liver Regulator. It won its way into every home by pure, sterling merit. It takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. CONDITIONS.

Entry blanks can be obtained from the Secretary. Each entry must plainly state name, age, color and sex of horse, name of sire and dam, and name of owner. The colors of rider or driver must also be given with the entry. Owner should not overlook this last item; it is a very useful piece of information for the public. Under no circumstances will any conditional entries be received. No added money will be given for a walk over.

Two and one-half per cent. of purse must accompany all nominations, and all persons will be held for the entrance fee of 10 per cent.

All purses will be divided into three moneys: 70, 20 and 10 per cent.

The rules of the National Trotting Association will govern these races. The Association reserves the right to alter, amend or postpone any or all of these races should the board of directors in their judgment and for cause deem it expedient so to do. Parties intending to be present at any of these meetings, and desiring stalls for their horses, are requested to write the Secretary in advance, stating what horses they have and what stalls they are likely to require.

In the event of any race not filling, if the Association deems proper to start the race, they reserve the right to withhold from the purse the entry of the missing horse or horses. In all races five or more are required to enter and three to start. In all races where not otherwise specified the entrance is 10 per cent.

Entries close with the Secretary, John A. Todd, Spokane, Wash., June 6, 1892 6, p. m.

Entries must state plainly colors of rider or driver. Horses will postively not be allowed to start unless the colors are worn.

The Secretary will take pleasure in replying to any and all communications with reference to transportation, track facilities and any other desired information.

A FEW FACTS.

The attention of the horsemen of the West is respectfully called to the following facts: Our track is conceded by all to be the fastest and safest in the West, and holds the trotting record, also the fastest stallion record for the North Pacific Coast. Our city to-day is the liveliest in the Pacific Northwest. Our people are hospitable and progressive and turn out en masse to the sport of Kings. If you want to get your horse acclimated before entering the Montana Circuit there is abundant opportunity in this program. If you want to sell, this is a good market for a good individual. It will pay you to spend a week with us.

OPEN TO THE WORLD! $32,500. NO SECTION BARRED!

Kentucky Trotting-Horse Breeders' Association.

To Close JUNE 1st. Only Three Entries Required to Fill Any Stake.

THE STALLION REPRESENTATIVE STAKE SERIES.

$15,000 OR MORE GUARANTEED.

For foals of 1891, colts, fillies and geldings (get of stallions that may be nominated), to trot for $5,000 as two-year-olds in 1893, $5,000 as three-year-olds in 1894, and $5,000 as four-year-olds in 1895, the first race to be mile heats, 2 in 3, the others 3 in 5, in harness, according to rules of National Trotting Association, the entry of a stallion to make all of his get foaled in 1891 eligible to any one or all three races.

On or before June 1, 1892, the stallions whose get may become eligible to start must be nominated, and any stallion, even if dead, that has colts (foals of 1891) is eligible.

On the first day of June, before each race, the colts to represent the stallions must be named, and there may be as many starters by one sire as there are different owners; but no person can be interested in more than one starter in the same race.

The Association guarantees stake worth not less than $15,000, of which $5,000 will go to the two-year olds; $5,000 to the three-year-olds, and $5,000 to the four-year-olds.

Each $5,000 will be divided: $3,500 to winner, $750 to second, $250 to third, and $350 to nominator of sire of winner; $100 to nominator of sire of second horse, $50 to nominator of sire of third; and if whole stake (for the three races) exceeds $15,000, the whole of excess will go to nominator of stallion whose get win the most money in the three races. Entrance as follows: $50 to nominate the stallion, which entry will nominate all of his get foaled in 1891, regardless of ownership, and keep entries good in any one or all three races until June 1 of year of race, on which day (June 1 of year of race) those desiring to start shall name their colts and pay on each a forfeit of $25; $25 more ten days ahead of race, and $50 night before race. No entry liable for more than amount paid in; no return of any payment because of death.

If in either the two or three-year-old race fewer than three start, those starting and the nominators of their sires will receive only the amounts each would have received had three horses been placed; but the other money or moneys will be carried to the four-year-old race. In case of a walk-over in four-year-old race, the winner will receive whole amount paid in, less amounts paid placed horses in two and three-year-old races, and the amounts paid and to be paid nominators of sires.

Right reserved to reject any entry; but the stake will not be declared off if three entries are received.

AMONGST THE ADVANTAGES OF ABOVE STAKE ARE:

1. An entry nominates every colt your horse has; hence starts owners to training and keeps in training for three years every youngster of promise.
2. It gives every owner three races or nine chances to win money, and every stallion nominator, AT THE WORST, nine chances to save the stallion's entrance fee.
3. ITS CHEAPNESS, as it costs but $16.2-3 to nominate a stallion in each $5,000 race, or less than $1 each for his colts, if he has as many as 17 colts foaled in 1891.
4. ITS FEW PAYMENTS. After the stallion is nominated the owners have time to try their colts before another payment, and no payment is required till year your colt is expected to start.
5. It gives all a chance. Many breeders will not trot two-year-olds; others prefer not to trot colts till four years old. This gives them a chance to pick their race without payment (except on stallion) till year they start.

Stakes to be Trotted at the Fall Meeting, October 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15

No 2. THE TRANSYLVANIA STAKE, $5,000 OR MORE GUARANTEED; 2:18 CLASS.—For all trotters eligible to 2:18 class June 1. Entrance 5 per cent., payable as follows: $50 June 1, $50 August 1, $75 September 1, and the balance ($75) by 7:30 o'clock of evening before the race; horses to be named October 1, and the entry may be transferred any time before that day. This stake is guaranteed to amount to not less than $5,000, which amount will be divided: 60 per cent. to first horse, 25 per cent. to second, 15 per cent. to third, and the excess, if any over $5,000, will go to first horse.

The Following Stakes Name and Close June 1.

No. 3. THE SPECIAL STAKE, $5,000 OR MORE GUARANTEED; FIVE-YEAR-OLDS AND UNDER.—For stallions, mares and geldings, foaled in 1887 and later. No. 4. THE JOHNSTON STAKE FOR STALLIONS OF THE 2:30 CLASS. $2,500 OR MORE GUARANTEED.—For all stallions of the 2:30 class. Entrance 5 per cent.; $25 (forfeit) to accompany the nomination JUNE 1; $25 payable AUGUST 1; $35 SEPTEMBER 1, and the remaining $40 by 7:30 o'clock the evening before race. The guaranteed amount divided: 60, 25, 15 per cent., the excess, if any, over $2,500, going to first horse.

No. 5. THE KENTUCKY STAKE FOR THREE-YEAR-OLDS AND UNDER THAT HAVE NOT BEATEN 2:20. $2,500 OR MORE GUARANTEED.—For foals of 1889 and younger (colts, fillies and geldings). Entrance, payments and division of moneys same as in Stake No. 4.

THREE TO FILL; but right reserved to reject any entry that the Association does not want. All races trotted under rules of the National Trotting Association.

A walk-over will entitle the winner to whole amount paid in. No entry liable for more than amount paid in, but a non-payment forfeits previous payment. No return of any payment because of death of entry.

The above Stakes close June 1, 1892, on which day all entries must be named, except in Stake No. 2, in which horses are to be named on or before October 1.

3-year-old Record, 2:30;
4-year-old Record, 2:20.

GEORGE WASHINGTON is a handsome bay horse, hind feet white, foaled 1886, bred by Thomas Smith of Vallejo, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1200 pounds.

PEDIGREE:

GEORGE WASHINGTON, by Mambrino Chief Jr. 11,622, record 2:34. George Washington's dam was Fanny Rose (full sister to Prince Allen, 2:27,) by Ethan Allen Jr. 2903 (sire of the dams of George Washington 2:20 and Bessie S., 2:29¼, also of Lynwood, sire of Lynette etc, three-year-old record 2:25 ; also sire of Prince Allen 2:27,) second dam, Jenny Lind, thoroughbred, dam of Prince Allen 2:27.

GEORGE WASHINGTON has proven himself a great race horse, and would have been given a much lower mark last season had it not been for an accident. As an individual, he is all that can be asked, being perfect in form, intelligent and of kind disposition, and represents the highest type of a trotting sire. As he will be put in training for the campaign of 1892, he will be allowed to serve only a limited number of approved mares.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mambrino Chief Jr.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $50.

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

*Balkan.

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14½ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:08¾; Axtell, 2:12 three years, and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¾. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¾. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:30 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.
This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of

ANTEEO WILKES.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:16¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19½, James Madison, record 2:17¼; second dam by Alexander, record 2:43, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:21½, and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 28:20, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:21; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten-mile record 31:47, one-mile record 2:48.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15.3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

SERVICE FEE $100.

Limited to twelve approved mares, season to end June 15th. Box stalls and corrals for mares. Address

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20½, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

ALMONT MEDIUM is a dark bay with black points, 16.1 hands high, weighs about 1100 pounds, was bred by General William T. Withers, Lexington, Ky., is a model of perfect symmetry, remarkably level-headed, speedy, and game as a pebble, and will undoubtedly get a record of 2.15 or 2:16, barring accidents. He is bred in almost the identical lines of Nancy Hanks, 2:09, her second dam being by Edwin Forrest and Almont Medium's third dam by Edwin Forrest; Nancy Hanks' fifth dam by Lance, son of American Eclipse, and Almont Medium's fifth dam is by the same great horse. The Fast Trotting Stallion SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681,

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾ Harry Clay 2:23½; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted—so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17½, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

DON MARVIN

DON MARVIN is a beautiful seal brown, foaled 1884; bred by Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Cal; is 16 hands high and weighs 1200 pounds; sired by Fallis, 2:23 (sire of four in 2:30 list), he by Electioneer. Dam, CORA (dam of Don Marvin, 2:28, and Elected (trial) 2:26) by Don Victor, (sire of the dams of five in the 2:30 list) by Belmont. Second dam, CLARABEL (dam of Clifton Bell, 2:24½, and Rebecca, dam of four in 2:30 list) by Abdallah Star. Third dam, FAIRY (dam of Stoner Boy, 2:29½, and Sweepstakes, sire of 22 in the 2:30 list, and three other producing sires and dams) by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Fourth dam, EMMA MILLS (dam of four horses that have sired 2:30 performers) by Seely's American Star.

DON MARVIN is a horse of great natural speed. His record was made with scarcely any preparation, after making a large season in the stud, and is no measure of his speed. His oldest colts (only five in number) are three years old this spring. One of them with very little work trotted quarters last fall in 36 seconds, and could have easily entered the 2:30 list in his two-year-old form had he been given an opportunity.

DON MARVIN will make the season of 1892 at $40, with usual return privilege, which makes him the cheapest horse in the State, record and breeding considered, having what no other public stallion has on the Coast—Four producing dams.

The Standard Stallion WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the Stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1411, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¾, trial 2:25), by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27½, and the dams of Executor, 2:24½, Ranchero, 2:21½, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18¼, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddie Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS—$30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

El. Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¾; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

Glen Fortune's oldest colts were foaled in 1891, and show up splendidly in the kindergarten, where they may be seen any week day.

Moorland's colts show speed. His dam, Lady Budd, was a wonderful road mare; nothing ever beat her in an all-day tussle on the Cliff House road.

The training department is very complete, and curing faults in gait is a specialty. The Souther Farm system of balancing was used most successfully during the past season on several well known horses, of which one took a record of 2:16 1-2, another 2:22 3-4 with several other creditable records and trials.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives EXERCISE WITHOUT CONCUSSION, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201)

CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

CYRUS R., 2:17 3-4.

The Fastest Son of Nutwood, 2:18 3-4, now in California.

Will make the SEASON of 1892 at the stable of T. W. BARSTOW, San Jose, Cal.

TERMS, $75 FOR THE SEASON,

PEDIGREE—Got by Nutwood 600, first dam Belle, by Jack Roberts; second dam Young Nance, by Shakespeare, thoroughbred. Jack Roberts by Eclair, and he by old pacing Pilot; the dam of Jack Roberts was by Copperbottom. CYRUS R. has two crosses of the great Pilot blood, once through Nutwood and again through Belle, his dam.

DESCRIPTION—ANTEROS NUTWOOD is a handsome bay horse with black points, no white; stands sixteen hands one inch high; weighs 1,150 pounds. No service fee will be charged if this horse does not secure a record of twenty-five or better in 1892, barring accidents.

Training The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

WHEN YOUR BLACKSMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is gloriously mistaken. However, don't poin on the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing of both heels and the entire wearing surface.

It has sloping, chisel-shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth, so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. SACRAMENTO, May 13, 1892.

THIS was one of the loveliest of all the days of the meeting. The sun's warm rays tempered the cool breezes of the morning, and caused everyone to feel glad that they were here to enjoy it. Thi "ideal Sacramento spring day" added not a little to the claim so often made for this, the best part of the year, by the people of our fair Capital City. The streets and avenues were shaded by wide-spreading, walnut and elm trees; the garden around the residences were clothed with a wealth of vari-colored and fragrant flowers. Magnolia trees in bloom, fan palms and tropical plants growing in the open air, besides the hardier plants of the north, formed a pleasing combination which demonstrated more than volumes of tabulations the great possibility of this soil and climate.

The view from the grand stand completely filled the ideal of a California scene. In the foreground were green fields bordered by luxuriant orchards and thrifty vineyards, beyond these were lines of cottonwood and sycamores bordering the swift-flowing American and Sacramento rivers, while in the far distance the white-capped peaks of the Sierra Nevadas were glistening in the sunlight, their snowy crowns piercing the cloudless sky.

The circular track at our feet presented an animated appearance, for fully two score of trotters and thoroughbreds were moving two and fro in their work of preparation for the day, the infield was dotted with horses, mares and colts which were nibbling the succulent alfalfa, alfillera and rye grass that grow so well on the rich soil of this enclosure. Early in the forenoon the people began to arrive, at one o'clock a procession of buggies, carriages and phaetons filed in the gates; the voice of the pool-seller was heard and the crowds of beteors gathered around the box and took an active interest in the scene.

The judges for the day were J. W. Wilton, Daniel Flint and John Batcher; Timers, Daniel Miller, H. Wachhorst and J. S. McCord.

The first event on the programme was a three-year-old trotting stake, the starters in which were to have been Captain Frank Drake's Paso de Rosa and B. C. Holly's Extravagant. The former was withdrawn, leaving the latter a walkover.

Walk-over.

For the 2:35 class there were four starters: Biggs' St. Lucas, Tryon's Colonel McNasser, Wiley's Wildo and Woodward's Alex. Button Jr. Before the race started a few pools were sold on McNasser at $40 against $15 for the field. Campbell piloted Lucas, McNasser was driven by Tyron, Wildo by Lafferty and Button by Keating. In the first heat the favorite, McNasser, made a disastrous break at the wire, and was fully seventy-five yards in the rear before he got straightened. He acted as if he was a little stiff and had not "warmed up" enough. Lucas took the lead, Button at his wheel, Wildo fully twenty yards behind, with McNasser closing up fast; this was their position at the quarter. At the half McNasser had passed Wildo; Button was coming fast after Lucas, passed him in the homestretch, but made a break, however, and fell back when nearing the wire, so Lucas jogged home in 2:35, Button second, by a length, McNasser third and Wildo just inside the distance flag.

Pools now took a change, the favorite, McNasser, bringing but $20 against $10 for the field. In the second heat McNasser got away in the lead, but broke again as soon as he came to the turn and fell back; Lucas and Button trotted like a double team, with Wildo two lengths behind and seven lengths in front of McNasser. Going down the backstretch Button outfooted Lucas and took the pole from him. Lucas came up fast at the homestretch and was challenging Button for first place, while McNasser, who had passed Wildo, was striving hard for the same choice position. Lucas made two breaks at the drawgate, and was beaten at the wire about a length by the strong-moving Button, McNasser third and Wildo last. Time, 2:32½.

In the third heat Mr. Tryon's place behind McNasser was taken by R. Havey, and the pools took another change. The field brought $20 against $10 for McNasser. This heat was well contested all the way, Button appeared to be the fastest of the quartette, but McNasser kept his feet and moved along with the bunch. Down the homestretch the sight became one of unusual interest, and amid the shouting of the excited audience in the grand stand, could be heard the announcement "Button!" "Button wins!" and sure enough he did, but he had little to spare, for he only beat McNasser by a half a length. Wildo was three lengths behind, with Lucas at his wheel. Time, 2:31.

Fourth Heat.—Button was now installed as favorite, and pools on him sold for $30 against $10 for the field. After he led to the quarter he broke badly, and the other three, led by the smooth-going McNasser, passed him. Button never gained the ground he lost and saved his distance by running after the procession. McNasser was first under the string, Lucas second and Wildo third. Time, 2:32¾.

The excited throng of betters now rallied about the pool boxes and hedged for all they were worth; the field was made favorite at $20 against $20 for McNasser.

In the fifth heat McNasser led to the quarter, Lucas at his wheel while Button was only a length behind. Going along the backstretch Button crawled up on Lucas, passed him, and challenged McNasser; he would have been first by the time he reached the three-quarter pole had he not made a frantic jump in the air, and by the time he reached terra firma he was taking the dust of the three in front of him, at last getting in the pocket they made. Lucas made a hard fight for first place but was unsuccessful, McNasser out trotting him. Wildo was not a dangerous rival for second place although he kept easily ahead of the wavering Button. Time, 2:32½.

In the sixth heat Dan McCarty drove Lucas, Wildo was retired to the stable; although he kept improving in every heat, he had not won one heat in five and consequently was subjected to the rule which left him out; this was his second appearance on the turf and will result in doing him a great amount of good. McNasser seemed the freshest, while Button appeared short of work. It was a foregone conclusion which of them would win, and when McNasser came in first, Lucas second, Button third, in 2:33½, loud and long were the cheers of the McNasserites.

The third race was for the two-year-old trotting stake, foals of 1890; one mile and repeat. The starters were Buckman & Carragher's b c George Dexter, by Dexter Prince, dam Nellie C. by Kilrush; Edgar B. Carroll's c f Alfredetta, by Steinway, dam by Guy Wilkes; B. C. Holly's b c Kapila, by Steinway, dam Nannie Smith. Dexter was the favorite.

The youngsters looked well and moved away like old campaigners. Geo. Dexter was the fastest and down the backstretch he led by half a length. Kapila seemed short of work and broke; his position at the shoulder of Geo. Dexter was taken by Alfredetta and coming down the homestretch she gradually came up inch by inch and although Dexter's young driver did most excellently with his colt, still the veteran driver Ed. Laverty never lost the inches he gained and came under the wire on even terms; the two youngsters being perfectly even it was declared a dead heat, time 2:56, Kapila six lengths behind.

When they got the word for the second heat it was easily to be seen that it was a race for blood. Kapila dropped out of the fight and the leaders kept moving like a double team; it one got an inch in front of the other he or she fell back. All the way round they trotted. Geo. Dexter made two or three skips, but lost nothing by them until he neared the distance flag, at which point he made a bad break and the filly trotted under the wire a winner, with Geo. Dexter at her wheel, Kapila distanced. Time, 2:55.

In the third heat no pools were sold. This was the prettiest heat of the entire meeting. Keating was put up behind Dexter, and drove the colt well, keeping him steady and having him well in hand. The trotters moved even until the half-mile pole, when the filly broke and fell back. She gained her old position, and although she never was more than half a length, behind she could not pass the colt, who finished the mile in 2:52, Alfredetta making a break just under the wire.

When the fourth heat was called there seemed no decrease in the crowd, for every one knew that the youngsters were trotting on their merits, and from what they had already seen they were sure to see a great race. The two got a splendid send-off and never seemed to forget they were struggling for victory, for they kept together like a team and came around into the homestretch without a skip, both of them nose and nose. Everybody declared it was the fairest race they ever saw trotted. When the two got in close to the wire the filly seemed to have the most speed, for she beat the colt by half a head in 2:57¼, winning the race and first money. Taking this as a criterion, of good racing one could readily see how much the public enjoys such trials of speed. George Dexter is a most promising colt, and is sired by Dexter Prince out of Nellie C. by Kilrush, he by Hamblelonian 725 out of Lady Livingstone (dam of Lady Blanchard 2:26¼) by General Taylor; George Dexter's second dam was Firefly, by Jim Monroe, he by Naubuc; third dam by Williamson's Belmont; he belongs to Messrs. Buckmann and Carragher. After the race these gentlemen refused the sum of $2,000 for him. The filly, Alfredetta, is also royally bred, being by Steinway, 2:25¾ out of Etna G., by Guy Wilkes 2:15½, second dam Alla (dam of Spartan, 2:24½, and Cresco, sire of Crescent 2:23½), by Almont 33; third dam (the dam of Henderson 2:27), by Brignoli 77; fourth dam by Cripple, by Medoc; fifth dam by American Eclipse. Alfredetta was bred at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm, and is owned by one of Sacramento's leading young men E. B. Carroll. She is handsome as well as dead game, and resembles Guy Wilkes in her conformation and gait. These two are worthy of being credited to any city in the Union, and we long for the fall races to take place, when they will once more meet for honors and glory.

FIFTH DAY, SATURDAY, MAY 12, 1892.

This was the last day of the most successful spring meeting ever held in Sacramento. Too much praise cannot be given to President Wilson, Secretary Stafford and all the officers and members of the Capital City Turf Club for the able manner in which they conducted this meeting. The judges and timers performed their duties in a manner that is deserving of the highest praise. The large crowd that seemed to increase every day was evidence of the interest aroused among all classes of citizens. To-day the principal places of business closed so as to give the employees a chance to attend the running races. The manner in which the winners earned their victories elicited the highest praises, and no fault was found with the riders, the starter nor the judges; every race was decided on its merits, and a better day's sport has not been witnessed in California this year.

There were five events on the programme. The first event was for the Western Hotel Stakes, of five furlongs. There were six two-year-olds to face the starter—Conde, Martinet, Alliance, Monowai, Donna Lilla, Orrin. In the pools Monowai brought $30 against $11 for Orrin and $14 for the field. After four attempts they got away to a splendid send-off. Conde had a little the best of it for a few yards, Monowai second, Orrin third, the rest bunched, with Martinet trailing. This was the way they ran until they turned into the stretch, where the favorite was seen to pass Conde, and the balance of the horses spread all over the track. Orrin made a hard fight, but could not outfoot the swift-going, easy-moving son of Midlothian, who never for an instant slackened his pace, but came in a winner by half a length, Alliance a length behind the rest close up. The time made, 1:02, was excellent. This is the best race on record in this State for a two-year-old with 120 pounds up.

The second event was for the Weinstock, Lubin & Co.'s stake, a handicap sweepstakes for three year olds; one mile. There were four entries—Braw Scot, Royal Flush, Lottie Mills and Early. The voice of the auctioneer was heard above the hum and talk of the crowd. Lottie Mills sold for $25, and Braw Scot $21, against the field which was being rapidly taken at $20. It was a good betting race. Ab Stemler got the quartette away very evenly. Lottie Mills and Braw Scot got to the front immediately, and together they moved nose and nose until they reached the half mile pole in 50½. Early and Royal Flush, who had been trailing them, now took an interest in the race and closed up, the four horses seeming to move like a solid bunch all the way down the back turn and into the homestretch. It was any one's race as the four horses all abreast came toward the wire. The spectators who had been cheering and shouting now gave vent to their excited feelings as the four came within fifty yards of the drawgate exactly even. Whips were flying and spurs were used with a vengeance. Lottie Mills faltered and fell back and Royal Flush was seen to also diminish his pace as Early and Braw Scot leaped to the front for a grand finish. Evans here showed that his long training and experience stood him well in hand, for he just lifted Early into first place by a nose, amid the greatest excitement and cheering of the vast audience. The track in front of the judges became packed with excited men, who were divided in opinion as to whether it was a dead heat or not. The judges announced their decision: "Early first, Braw Scot second, Royal Flush third," and this seemed to meet with the hearty approval of everyone almost. Royal Flush was third, being beaten half a length and Lottie Mills, with her heavy impost was but a length behind. The time made, 1:42, was very fair. Many of the horsemen present declared they never saw a better contested race.

The third event was a sweepstake for two-year-olds, three-quarters of a mile. The entries were Grandee, by Warwick; Dick O'Malley, by Mariner, and Steadfast, by Sobrante. The former was selling as favorite for $35 against the field for $16. The handsome gray colt led from start to finish, and won by ten lengths under a pull in 1:17. The jockey Dennison, who made the "mistake of his life" at the Bay District track, seemed to have appreciated the advice given him by every one of the people who lost money on Grandee there, for he kept the colt increasing his lead at every jump.

Whenever one sees a well-contested race the event leaves an impression upon the mind that is never obliterated. Every person who witnessed the great mile and a quarter race called the Hall, Luhrs Handicap to-day will never forget it. There were six horses sent to the post as the money was pouring into the pool box. The flyers were all crackerjacks, viz., Sheridan, Janus, Acclaim, Mero, Fannie F. and Applause. Acclaim, with 120 pounds up, was made the favorite, she bringing $80 for $45 for the field and $23 for Sheridan. The crowd around the pool-sellers' booths was a large one, and Sam Whitehead was kept busy taking the orders. The horses made five attempts to go before the flag dropped to a splendid send-off; only one horse, Applause, was in the rear of the quintette. Fanny F., Mero and Janus were leading as they passed under the wire on their trip around the course, Applause was trailing and moving well within himself. Their positions did not seem to be altered until they passed into the lower turn, then a shifting of colors was seen as the riders moved forward or backward according to the caliber of their mounts, for the pace set had been a hot one, and the best stayers were needed in the front. Mero, Janus and Sheridan dropped back as Applause passed them into the homestretch and came alongside of the flying Fannie F. Whips were used freely by all the jockeys, but little Acclaim, who had been held in reserve, now showed her mettle, and as the trio drew near the drawgate she slipped past her companions, closely pressed by Applause, whom she beat by half a length at the wire, Fannie F. a length behind him and the other three close up in this order: Sheridan, Janus and Mero. Time, 2:08.

The last race of this most successful meeting was a half-mile dash. The three entered were the beautiful Geraldine, the plain-looking horse April Fool and the racy-built Gypsy Girl. The former sold as favorite for $100 against $80 for the field. Another great betting race was the result, and money dropped into the pool-seller's tin box in a perfect shower.

At the post April Fool showed that he could get away as quick as a flash, consequently it took some time before the flag dropped; he had the lead, nevertheless, and kept it with Gypsy Girl at his saddle girth and Geraldine an open length behind. For the first quarter their was no perceptible change, then Kellywas seen to pull out and send Geraldine along. She made a splendid attempt but the fleety feet of the son of Confidence were moving too fast for her, and she could get no better than second place, being beaten half a length at the wire, Gypsy Queen at her girth. Time, 0:47½—the best time ever made for the distance on that track.

San Diego and the Trotting Horse Industry.

San Diego, May 14, 1892.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—It is an acknowledged fact here that the trotting-horse industry is in its infancy in San Diego County. During the last two years, however, the few owners of good mares have apparently awakened to the fact that they may as well breed to good stallions as to poor ones. The only race horse of note in the county is Atto Rex 6821, sired by Attorney, record 2:21¾ in a race, and a fine individual in every respect. His owner, the genial Mr. Gifford, may well be proud of him. Atto Rex has been retired to the stud during the past two years; this fall Mr. Gifford expects him to lower his record. Rex is now having "the fat worried off him" at the Pacific Beach track. Mr. Gifford also owns a two-year-old filly, Atto Reina by Atto Rex, which has shown quarters in 40; he is confident of giving her a record this fall. Mr. Lightner, former owner of Atto Rex, drives the first son of Rex. This smooth-going handsome colt won the two-year-old stallion race here last fall, and is a race horse from the word go. Among owners here of good mares Judge Cochran proudly takes the lead with his fine chestnut mare Myrtle, who was bred recently to the great McKinney, 2:12½, and is safely in foal. Mr. Delaree, the only scientific blacksmith here owns several fast ones, two of which are in foal to Atto Rex 6821.

Mr. Burgess of El Cajon, has a promising youngster by Silkwood, 2:17, out of his pacing mare; she is stinted to Atto Rex. Mr. W. B. Prentice, of the old established dry goods store in San Diego, devotes his leisure time to his orange and stock ranch in Spring Valley. Besides being a lover of the light harvest horse, Mr. Prentice is indeed well fixed to indulge in the pleasures of raising good colts. His 600 acres at the foothills are covered all the year round with bunch grass and wild oats, besides which there are alfalfa pastures well fenced. He is breeding the following standard-bred mares to Redondo 12,875, by Stamboul 2:11; Lady Kohl by Capt. Kohl; Daphney by Buccaneer; Minnie by Junio, 2:22, by Electioneer.

Among others he is breeding three mares to Atto Rex 6821. Mr. Prentice has several promising two-year-olds, one a dark bay by Alcazar, 2:20, dam a Whipple's Hambletonian mare. This colt is shaped exactly like his sire, the great son of Sultan, who although only nine years old, has seven in the list. Among his fillies he has a yearling by Rajah. Dr. Urse's horse of Los Angeles, she out of a fine daughter of Junio, 2:22. Mr. Prentice was offered $500 for this filly when she was six months old, which sum he refused.

A half-mile track (kite-shaped) is soon to be graded on his Spring Valley ranch, and we look forward with pleasure to seeing some good ones from there shortly.

"Feed your colts all they can eat when you wean them, instead of turning them out to rustle for themselves," is Mr. Prentice's maxim. Mr. C. C. Seaman, the former owner of Bell Boy; 2:19, has recently shipped his stallions Josiah A. and Banning East; hence there is a grand opening for some good stallion here next season. Let a son of George Wilkes or Sidney or Electioneer come here and we can guarantee him a full book and good service fee. Atto Rex, the only standard-bred race horse here, stands at $100, and has all he can cover. Among other breeders we can mention Cad Register who has several promising two-year-olds by his stallion Selby Chief, a son of the old horse, and C. C. Loomis, of the "Horton House," is continually adding brood mares to his ranch at the foot hills.

A Breeder.

Two noted brood mares died recently. One was Beeswing, by Kent, son of Skipton, dam of the four-year-old Harry Bee, 2:17¼, by Happy Russell. She belonged to George Millington, of Dover, Del. The other, Dolly, produced Mambrino Hannis, 2:16½, pacing, and was the property of William Whitridge, of Baltimore county, Maryland. Since Happy Russell has proven such a remarkable sire of early and extreme speed Mr. Emory values him at $50,000.

Period of Gestation.

The accompanying table will be found of interest and value to horsemen, as throwing some light on the question of the time that mares carry their foals. These figures are taken from the records of the Allen Farm at Pittsfield, Mass. The foals were dropped from March 12th to April 14th. It will be seen that in case of foals got by Pistachio and Lancelot there was little difference in time between colts and fillies, while in case of Kremlin's foals the colts were carried over twelve days longer. Lancelot's foals were carried the longest, the eight of them averaging 342¼ days. Coming to totals, the eight colts were carried an average of 341 3-8 days and the sixteen fillies an average of 337¼ days. The maximum period was 357 days, a filly by Pistachio; the minimum 316, a filly by Kremlin. The average time for the twenty-four foals was 338 5-8 days:

Stallions	Colts. Number	Colts. Av. Period of Gestation	Fillies. Number	Fillies. Av. Period of Gestation	Totals. Number	Totals. Av. Period of Gestation	Maximum Period Gestation.	Minimum Period Gestation.

Board of Appeals A. T. A. Decisions.

The Board of Appeals of the American Trotting Association met May 3, 1892, at the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago, President D. C. Beaman, of Denver, in the chair. The following members were present; W. P. Ijams, Vice-President, Terre Haute, Ind.; George H. Ely, Elyria, Ohio; F. C. Lewis, Ottawa, Ill.; Gid B. McFall, Oskaloosa, Iowa; F. C. Pillsbury, Minneapolis, Minn., and J. H. Steiner, Secretary, Chicago, Ill.

526—The American Trotting Association vs. W. J. Officer, Tracy, Minn., J. O. Gerrity, Tracy, Minn., chestnut mare Lena H., brown gelding Joslyn and bay gelding Captain O. Demand for identification and return of unlawful winnings in 1890 and 1891, and fraudulent entry and performance. At the December meeting this case was continued at the request of the defendants. No additional evidence has been filed by them. The evidence is clear as to the unlawful performances, and it is Ordered, That J. O. Gerrity, W. J. Officer, the brown gelding J. R., alias Joslyn, and the bay gelding San Diego, alias Captain O., be expelled, and that the case against the chestnut mare Alorita, alias Lena H., be continued.

592—P. J. Doyle, San Luis Obispo, Cal. The application is for reinstatement from expulsion by order of the judges for alleged pulling of the mare Miss Monroe, and is supported by a request from the member, but no evidence furnished. It is Ordered, That the applicant be temporarily reinstated until future action by the Board, and the case is continued to next December meeting. The secretary is directed to communicate with the judges and ascertain if there is any reason why the reinstatement should not be made permanent.

J. H. Steiner, Secretary.

CALIFORNIA HORSES.

Wonderful Showing of Our Trotters, Pacers and Thoroughbreds on the Track and in the Stud.

In the list of great horses given below we aim to show to the world that California is indeed the best spot on earth for the production of fast horses, and when the fact is taken into consideration that the breeding of trotters and thoroughbreds in this State is a comparativeiy new "industry," probably not one-fourth as many being bred here as in Kentucky, the showing is marvelous. In the next twenty years California will doubtless distance all competitors, and will be the Mecca to which a majority of lovers of well-bred, speedy horses of all kinds will turn when they want to get a fast one.

The Standard.

The first, second and third rules of the established standard for trotting-bred horses read as follows:

Any trotting stallion that has a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30), or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 trotting or better; or provided his sire or dam is already a standard trotting animal.

Second—Any mare or gelding that has a trotting record of 2:30 or better.

Third—Any horse that is the sire of two trotters with records of 2:30 or better.

Under these provisions the greatest of trotting progenitors would not himself have been a standard animal had he not produced two 2:30 trotters. Palo Alto, 2:08¾, the champion stallion, by record, squeezes into the list through the merit of his sire and dam; his own phenomenal performance counts for nothing. There seems to be an unwarrantable discrimination against stallions when a mare can acquire standard rank by right of performance. A gelding can secure standard rank by a mark of 2:30, while a stallion must, in addition to a 2:30 record, have standard ancestry or one of his get with a record of 2:35. If it opens the door for fraud on the part of the owners of stallions, giving them a chance to make their stallions standard by scoring a single heat in 2:30, the same can be said of mares. Why is not the performance of a stallion as meritorious per se as that of a mare or gelding, anyway? A son of a non-standard horse can become standard in his own right, while his sire cannot. It may be all right, but apparently it is all wrong.

The Small Breeder.

Of late the "small breeder" has had bestowed upon him considerable attention by the philanthropically-inclined turf writers, sometimes with a genuine and worthy object in view and sometimes they have taken up the theme, apparently for the reason that it gave them a nice text from which a plausible-sounding article could be made; but judging of the future by the history of the past the "small breeder" does not need a very great amount of sympathetic consideration at the hands of anybody, as we will show by the subjoined table. How else can one estimate the future excepting as he judges it by the past, without occupying the dreamer's sphere, and that, as we all know, is not fixed sufficiently firm on its orbits to bear the weight of accumulated facts gained in the school of practical experience. It is probable that the great brood mares of the future are now in the hands of the small breeder; we make this assertion because history and the compilation in this article tends to prove that such can be the case. Judging from the past there is no reason why the non-standard mare of magnificent conformation, of nervous temperament, sired by a good well-bred horse, is not as capable of producing a 2:30 performer, or of earning a place in the great brood mare list, if she is bred with intelligence and her colts are handled and developed by men of intelligence and judgmen, and those whose names are emblazoned on the pages of history. We fully understand that a very great many claim, and it is easy to understand how they can make such a claim with the strictest honesty and with the best of reasoning, that the blood-lines of the dam have much to do with the future trotter, and that the matron is very much, indeed, to the progeny, beside being a matrix. We do not question the truth of the assertion of those writers, but still a research in the annals of history is sure to lead an impartial student into the belief that the individual characteristics of the dam play a part in the embryonic trotter equal, if not greater, in degree to that of mere bloodlines. We do not mean by this to disparage fashionable breeding; we should like to have our matrons bred in the height of fashion, but we do not consider it first-class judgment for one to cast aside as worthless the non-standard mare that is an ideal broodmare from every individual standpoint, simply because she is inferior in blood-lines to some other mare, especially when the other mare has nothing to commend her save her fashionable ancestry. We see it often quoted that a great horse, like a great man, has a great mother. True it is, but was this dam or this mother a great female prior to the time when her son by his acts of greatness made her famous as the mother of such a son?—Western Resources.

Vermont.

We are asked so many questions about the little brown stallion whose name heads this article that we write an article now to cover the entire subject. He was brought here late in the winter of 1859–60, and, at the Bay District Fair of the following year, trotted against Werner's Rattler, whose owner agreed to drop him a heat (which he did in 2:50) if he would enter against him. At that time Rattler was the only stallion in the State with a record below 2:40, as George M. Patchen Jr., 2:27, and Skenandoah, 2:35½, did not come here till a year later, says Fresno Turf.

The Murray Bros. were evidently disappointed in Vermont, as they sold him in 1862 to the sheep-breeding firm of Jones & Rockwell, who took him to Oregon, where he got Faustina, 2:30½, at four years; Parrott, 2:26, and Ella Lewis, 2:27½. He also got the horse known as "Penninger's Mike," who got Barney, 2:25½, and also got the dam of Alta, 2:23½, the best of Altamont's get. Vermont got these performers when there were not so many 2:35 horses on this coast as there are 2:20 horses to-day. Parrott was a wonderful horse, and, when S. G. Reed took him to New York in 1879, it was suddenly discovered that outside of the horses of Messrs. Bonner, Work and Vanderbilt there was not a horse on St. Nicholas avenue that could beat "the Oregon bronco" two miles to a sleigh.

Along in 1876 a letter came up to Eugene City to the late James J. Comstock to buy old Vermont and send him down to California. The writer of this article was the party who went to Corvallis and took the old horse to Portland; and the signature on the bottom of the check that paid for him was that of Jesse D. Carr. But the sunlight of a tardy recognition fell too late upon a face that was already sprinkled with gray hairs; and the worthy little stallion died soon after reaching the burly old beef-baron's ranch at Salinas. Vermont was the best type of Morgan horse that ever saw this coast, and he will live in history.

Very truly, EDWIN F. SMITH, Secretary.

THE Columbia, Tenn., Herald puts it this way: "But there is one thing to the eternal credit of most stock journals. As a rule they are freer from all debasing, immoral and impure sentiments than any other class of papers or magazines. They are cleaner and better family reading than our big dailies and half our magazines; purer, because none of them have ever intimated that Alice Mitchell ever lived or knew a razor from a whetstone, and none of them ever published such stories as may be seen in nine-tenths of our monthly magazines, whose reputations deserve better than to be injured by the common stuff they publish. If the drivers, devotees, and race track admirers of the horse were as true to him and themselves as the average horse journal, God's greatest animal gift to man would need no apology in any company.

L. A. Davis, owner of Roy Wilkes, has just appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court the case against Lexington, Ky., track which was recently decided against him.

Starter Jas. F. Caldwell has been engaged to handle the flag at the St. Louis meeting at the high salary of $125 per day. He will be on hand about May the 14th.

C. E. Hulburt, Lebanon, N. H. has purchased from G. G. Brown, Tilton, N. H., the three-year-old stallion Wildwood, by Woodnut, 2:16½, dam Hattie W., by Alaska, son of Electioneer.

Thos. Coulter, of Sacramento, has a number of good colts and fillies that we understand are to be trained this fall. He has one by Ross S., out of a St. Clair mare, that is remarkably fast.

Junio, 2:22, is doing a splendid season at Fresno. He has never sired a pacer or one that was inclined that way. There is no doubt but that a number of Junios will enter the 2:30 list this year.

Thos. Snyder, of Yolo, has the bay colt Prince in his pasture that is lively as a cricket. He is just thirty-three years old, and is by old St. Clair. By the way, he looks he bids fair to live for many years.

"You may watch for a filly colt in the morning," says a Tennessee writer, "and again with the shades of night, but the little horse colt comes along just the same, though you weep with disgust at the sight."

One lesson of the sale-rings is that fashionable blood will not carry inferior individuality through. You must have them bred right, and they must be built right to bring the money when bidding runs high.

No. 1 of Goodwin's Turf Guide for 1892 is at hand, containing all the races worth mentioning run in America from the 1st of January to April 22nd inclusive. This is an invaluable work to followers of the flyers.

Mr. Sportycuss—Mr. Mosesheimer, I shall have to ask you for a temporary loan on this elegant pair of pants. The truth is I got a straight tip last week on the races, and consequently I am in straitened circumstances.

The San Jose Mercury got out a splendid paper last Sunday, showing the many advantages possessed by the beautiful Santa Clara Valley. Besides this, there was much of interest in the shape of news and excellent miscellany.

It has been decided by the directors of the Sonoma and Marin Agricultural Society to admit the school children of both counties to the district fair free of charge. The printing of the premium list was awarded to Joseph A. Cowen.

Col. James E. Pepper, who has bought the Meadowthorpe Stock Farm, near Lexington, Ky., of Mr. W. H. Cheppu, intends making it one of the most beautiful and convenient breeding establishments in the State of Kentucky.

C. W. Redmond, who has been superintendent of the Trotters' Home Stock farm at Hillsboro, Or., and who is well-known as a trainer, will have charge this season of the stable of trotters owned by the Hon. T. H. Tongue, of Hillsboro, Cal.

C. Van Valer, of Fresno, has a fast Nephew stallion out of Seedwheat, by Hambletonian 725, that is considered one of the fastest horses ever driven on the Fresno track. He is six years old, sixteen hands high, dark bay in color and perfectly gaited.

Why should men throw mud at each other? Does your horse's breeding improve by finding fault with the pedigree o your neighbor's horse? Does your horse become more speedy in any proportion as you shout that your neighbor's is a "yaller dog?"

Axtell's racing harness this season will weigh five pounds. The metal portions will be of aluminum, which is also being extensively used of late for shoes on trotters and pacers whose action is too high. New York Central, the 2:17½ son of Simmons, will sport a set of them.

The Western Horseman sensibly says: "We have the greatest regard for the work of prominent doctors, lawyers and judges, but if they are not familiar with turf rules and laws it is better that they practice their chosen profession instead of acting as judges of trotting races.

Longfellow never got a chestnut colt in all his long career in the stud, and Ten Broeck never sired but one chestnut. Old Hambletonian never got a chestnut colt. These are remarkable instances of the power with which some sires impress their individuality on their offspring.

The young stallion Red Apple, by Red Wilkes, dam Lizzie Chase, by Mambrino Patchen; second dam by Delmonico, and third dam by Austerlitz, thoroughbred, died in Rochester, N. Y., last week, from congestion of the brain. He was owned by Edward Appel and was valued at $15,000.

W. H. Wilson, of Cynthiana, Ky., has sold on private terms to Mr. D. Buffington, of Florence, Ky., the young stallion Oscar William, two years old, by Simmons, dam Thorne, record, 2:23¾, by Mambrino Patchen; second dam the dam of Byerly Abdallah, sire of Jerome Turner, 2:15½.

In the race where the two-year-old Cheviot filly Princess ran second to Geraldine the youngster got off absolutely last and was timed the last half-mile of the journey in 0:47¾. Many are of the opinion that Princess would have beaten the old queen of the sprinters had she got off well.

L. E. Clawson, of this city, is in luck. His handsome Victor mare foaled a bay filly by Sir Roderic last week. Sir Roderic was by Dictator, out of Prospect Maid, by Geo. Wilkes. He died last fall at the Hobart Stock Farm, and his loss to the breeding ranks in this State is hard to fill.

Geneva, 2:19½, by Princeps, who has raised a colt by Yataghan since her last public appearance (1889) will be in training again this year in the Allen Farm string, other members of which will be Kremlin, three years old, 2:24½; Brava, 2:20½, and Lancelot, the last son of Green Mountain Maid.

Killip & Co. have secured the pool-selling privilege at the Salt Lake meeting, which begins June 11th and ends June 18th. Samuel Whitehead and David Eiseman will wield the hose and exercise their lungs at the Utah metropolis, after which they will go through the Montana circuit.

Robert Steel, Philadelphia, Pa., has purchased the Doylestown, Pa., fair grounds for $15,000 and sold his Cedar Park stud for $200,000. He will vacate the latter property late this season. Mr. Steel will purchase more property in the vicinity of Doylestown and locate his stock farm there.

Red Banner, a two-year-old filly in the stable of J. M. Brown & Co., of Memphis, Tenn., has won six straight races, all of them stakes, and is the sensation of the season in the youngster division. The filly is by Iroquois out of Bandana (dam of Napa, owned by J. B. Haggin; Equipoise and Banner-Bearer), by imp. Bonnie Scotland; second dam Evadne, by Lexington; third dam Volga, by imp. Glencoe, etc. Bonnie Scotland mares are great producers of winners, surely.

Johnny Delong, the famous light-weight jockey who has been with Ed Corrigan for several years, expected to ride Huron in the Kentucky Derby. He did not know he was not to ride the colt until ready to weigh in. Since then he has been very bitter against Corrigan, and secured his release last Monday.

When the improvements at Washington Park, Chicago, are completed the betting inclosure will be 320 feet long by 90 feet wide, and will contain 31,500 feet square of space, enough for 20,000 standing people, and an increase of 15,680 square feet. This will make it, next to Morris Park, the largest betting-ring in America.

The days of purchasing animals upon the fictitious value of a standard requirement are fast passing away, says a prominent writer. The question will soon be, "To what family of racehorses does this horse belong? What has his family produced with turf honors? What can he do himself, not under how many rules of the standard can he be registered?"

One of the most recent inventions connected with the horse is an equine bicycle. Two wheels, one on each side of the horse, and a seat above the horse, just a little farther back than where a saddle would be used, constitutes the machine. It is said to not only relieve the horse of the rider's weight, but to be so light as to be no impediment in the way of speed.

John Dickerson has lost through pneumonia the bay six-year-old stallion Stamboul, Jr., by Stamboul, 2:11, dam Flower Girl (dam of Kafir, 2:29½), by Arthurton. The horse was given the best of medical attention and nursing, but as both lungs were affected death won the heat. The loss is quite a serious one for Johnny, as he recently turned down an offer of $3,000 for him.

E. B. Carroll, of Sacramento, who owns the handsome chestnut filly Alfredetta, never saw her trot until she was in her race last Friday against Geo. Dexter. It is needless to say that he was very much pleased with her, and will take a greater interest in the trotters than ever. She is a jewel worthy of adorning any little band of matrons he may ever secure in the future.

At the Newmarket Spring meeting on May 4th the race for the Two Thousand Guineas, at one mile and eleven yards, was won by Mr. Rose's colt Bonavista, by Ben d'Or-Vista, by a length and a half from Henry Miller's colt St. Angelo. Prince Soltykoff's colt Curio was third. The betting against Bonavista was 10 to 1. Col. North's El Diablo, a hot favorite, made no show in the race, Galeopsis finishing fourth.

The famous jockey Bergen says: "I think the whip should seldom be used until the very last thing, but we all have to whip horses more than we ought, because if we don't the public and the newspapers would declare we don't try to win. The public don't seem to have any confidence in the jockey, who, being on the horse, is the best judge of what he can do, but then the public hasn't confidence in anybody."

Tom Benton's number is 15,705; he is by Gen. Benton 1766, dam Nellie Patchen by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, second dam (dam of Maud, the dam of Reliance, 2:22½, Magdallah, 2:23½) by Green Mountain Morgan, represented to be a son of Vermont Black Hawk; third dam said to be by a son of Mambrino. His record is 2:32½. He is the sire of Mary Lou, 2:19, Ned Winslow (p) 2:15, and Shylock, 2:24½.

In the breeding industry it does not matter so much where we start as in what direction we move. Remain fixed we cannot. To reach the port of success we must always sail—sometimes with the wind, sometimes beat against it, but always sailing, never drifting, never at anchor. Fashion may change—keep in line; ideas may be progressive—be in the van. "Success suffers violence, and only the valiant bear it away."

Charley Dennison's "roasting" over the defeat of Grandee by Donna Lilla has apparently done the young man much good, for last Saturday at Sacramento he worked Grandee to the front and did not quit "riding" him until he had passed the wire with the gray colt a ten-length winner. The power of the press is mighty, and a good "roast" is sometimes "the makin's" of a jockey addicted to the habit of taking a siesta on a race horse's back of an afternoon.

Zaldivar and Azra are now equal favorities for the American Derby at 6 to 1 against the chances of either crackerjack. With the former fit and well it will take a world-beater to down him at equal weights. Azra's win of the Kentucky Derby was a grand one, though, and the time (2:41½) made on a dead slow track was first-class. Carlsbad and Newton are at 12 to 1 each in the ante-post betting, the latter having advanced from 10 to 12, while the latter was backed down from 15 to 12.

Last Monday Ab. Stemler left Sacramento for Chicago with the string of thoroughbreds belonging to L. U. Shippee, of Stockton, five horses, with the great four-year-old colt Lodowic, by Longfellow out of Carrie Phillips, at the head. The intention is to run Lodowic at St. Louis on June 6th. "Big Jim" Garland accompanied Stemler with that good horse, Homer, Oscar and two two-year-olds by Argyle, sire of Fairy. Ira Ramsdell should carry off some of the good money with the small but select string handled by Garland.

The strings of William Corbitt and Orrin Hickok arrived at Terre Haute, Ind., last week in fairly good condition. John Goldsmith is said to have recovered his health and to be eager for the fray. He is handling fourteen head. Of Hickok's lot a correspondent says there is not a patched-up animal in his stable. Brignoli Wilkes, 2:24½, by George Wilkes, the property of W. H. Wilson, Cynthiana, Ky., and Mambrino Maid, 2:17, and Position, 2:21½, the property of A. H. Moore, Philadelphia, have joined the stable to go down the ring.

"I have heard, Mr. Bluegrass," said a man who had traveled extensively, addressing a Kentuckian, "that you are going to move to Cincinnati." "Yes, I am. What do you think of the change?" "I think it is a bad one." "Your objection, please?" asked the affable Kentuckian. "You will find in Cincinnati," explained the man who knew, "but a moderate supply of water for washing purposes, and as for fresh, hard water for drinking purposes, that's out of the question." "Water for drinking purposes!" exclaimed the Kentuckian, scratching his head. Then as if suddenly comprehending the remark, he turned red with anger at the supposed insult, and exclaimed: "Do you think I drink water? Do you take me for a horse?" And he stalked away like a man injured to the very core.—Texas Siftings.

THE famous stallion belonging to Chas. Kerr, of Bakersfield, Kern County, which has heretofore been known as Corbitt Wilkes, is registered under the name of San Corbitt, his number being 19,460. Owing to the law regarding the registration of stallions, the name of Wilkes, Hambletonian, etc., could not be used, therefore it became necessary to have this horse registered to take the above name. San Corbitt is the sire of a uumber of very promising trotters in the neighborhood where he has been ever since he left the San Mateo Stock Farm.

WILLIAM L. APPLEBY, one of our best and most popular trainers of thoroughbreds, will give Orrin and Castro a let-up in their work until next fall. Mr. Appleby has his eye on that $50,000 American Derby of 1893, and will do his prettiest in trying to pull it off with Orrin or Castro. Billy Donathan's great colt Monowai is entered for that stake, though, as is the Darebin–Carrie C. colt, Flood Gate, Cadmus, Ohiyesa and about twenty of the Santa Anita colts. California is very likely to "turn loose" the winner among those we have mentioned.

ROBERT BONNER, in one of his instructive letters, says: "I expect to see the day when horse-shoeing will assume its proper place as one of the professions. Doctors and lawyers keep their diplomas framed and hung in their offices. Why should not the farrier be compelled to pass an examination and do the same thing? A horse's feet and limbs are the most important parts of his body. He seldom has troubles which cannot be traced to them. And yet even colts, forced as they are, frequently show signs of breaking down in those delicate members."

HAL POINTER, 2:10½, and Direct, 2:06, the greatest of pacers, have practically been matched for a pacing race, best three in five heats to harness, at the Northwestern Breeders' meeting at Chicago in August. Monroe Salisbury writes from California agreeing to enter Direct in such a race and Harry Hamlim, of Buffalo, has entered Hal Pointer. The prize will be a large purse given by the Northwestern Breeders' association and the race will be paced either Thursday or Friday, August 18th or 19th. It will be the fourth meeting of the pair whose pacing duels of last fall attracted so much attention.

HIGHLAND Stock Farm, Derby, Vt., is early in the field with trotting honors. It appears that the stallion Navarro, which won the 2:30 race at Baltimore last week, and took a record of 2:29¼ in the third heat, is a son of Nutmont, 2:28½, and is the only one of his get ever trained. Navarro was bred and raised at Highland farm and sold at ten months of age to Monroe Salisbury, of this State, who resold him at three years of age to Dr. F. C. Fowler, of Moodus, Conn., who now owns him. Navarro made a four-year-old record of 2:30½, and is regarded as one of the best youg horses out this season. His dam was Nellie.G., by Electioneer.

THE trotting horse men of Denver are in considerable of a sweat as to what they may be able to secure in the way of a track on which to speed their horses. Overland Park is closed against them, the Gentlemen's Driving Park is now a reminiscence, River Front Park is an unsuitable place and the scheme to build a kite-track at Sheridan heights has evidently fallen through. But there is a new Richmond in the field. Boyd Skelton says he may build a track on his farm near Littleton, and we learn that a newly organized driving club is building a half-mile kite track at Arlington, a mile or so up Cherry creek from the Broadway bridge.—Field and Farm.

THE following is a list of the winners at the Lompoc races: First race, running, 3-8, purse $75, won by Bruce, b s (Merrill), time, 0:36. Second race, two-year-old trotters, purse $75, won by Johnny T., b h (Rucker), time, 3:24. Third race, 2:40 class, purse $75, won by Peter Low, Doyle second; time, 2:36. Second Day—First race, half mile and repeat, purse $75, won by Bruce in 50¾. Second race, 3:00 class, purse $75, won by Hypolite in 2:45. Third Day—First race, trot, purse $50, won by Polly R. (Frost), in 2:56. Second race, running, one mile, for gate money, won by Johnny F. (Ward), in 1:57½. Third race, special trot, won by Bashaw (Thornquest), in 2:59½.

THE Turf, Field and Farm picked the winner in the Brooklyn Handicap race decided on Monday last, for in their issue of May 13th is the following: "We shall expect the front division to be comprised of Judge Morrow, Raceland and Reclare, with a preference for them in the order named. Longstreet's chances, of course, rank second to none, but at this season rain may usually be looked for, and this would dispose of him; besides, he has occasionally exhibited some slight weakness, and in a race which will be such a tremendous struggle preference should always be accorded to a thoroughly sound and stanch animal, and that Judge Morrow is such no one has ever denied, and besides this he is quite at home in any kind of going.

MR. JAS. B. MCDONALD, of Marysville, the owner, trainer and driver of Brigadier, has sent his somewhat inbred granddaughter of this famous old campaigner (a son of Happy Medium) to the harem of Oaknut, 2:24½, the son of Dawn 6407, 2:18¾. She is a beautiful steel gray, and, although but three years old, has shown a very high rate of speed, and from her popular type of fashionable breeding, together with being so favorably coupled with the fastest son of Dawn, her produce should be among the speediest of the speedy. Daphne, that's her name, was sired by Hark, he by Brigadier, 2:21¼, his first dam by Echo 462; second dam by Langford, a thoroughbred son of Williamson's Belmont. Daphne's first dam was Lassie Jean, by Brigadier; second dam Lexington Belle, by Lexington; third dam by Eagless, by imp. Glencoe; fourth dam Mary Morris, by Medoc; fifth dam Miss Obstinate, by Sumpter.

MATT DWYER, the well-known trainer and driver who developed and drove the great Athadon in all of his races (he put this colt in the list and broke the world's record with him five times), left Fresno last Tuesday for Buffalo, N. Y. Matt is considered one of the best trainers that ever came to this coast, and his loss is deeply regretted by all who knew him. He had seventeen promising horses in his string a week before he departed, but he was determined to go East, and sent them to their respective owners. Mr. Dwyer left with the best wishes of all horsemen, for his upright course, attention to business and thorough knowledge of training and conditioning is known to all. He was for years at Palo Alto under Chas. Marvin, who indorses him highly also. We bespeak for him a cordial welcome among the turfites of Buffalo, and should he ever come back to the Pacific Slope we know that he will be well received.

THE directors of the Sixth District Agricultural Association are spending $5,000 of the money made on the last fair in improvements at the park. The track is being plowed up and widened in some places. Roper and Heitsher have the contract to make the new track. The contract price is $4,000. The turns will be thrown up and an effort will be made to make it the fastest elliptical track in the country. It is to be ready in three weeks. The grand stand will be slightly remodeled.—Los Angeles Herald.

"YOU may all talk about El Rio Rey, Emperor of Norfolk or any other phenomenal Californian, but Monowai is the best two-year-old that ever looked through a bridle," said George Evans, the veteran jockey, the other day. "I've seen them all," he continued, "but no youngster ever filled my eye like this colt of Donathan's." And Evans may not be far from right, everything considered, for the big son of imp. Midlothian is certainly a crackerjack that will make anything in America of his own age fly to beat him at even weights.

THERE has been many a $5,000 horse cast into the "thicket of oblivion" by a $20 driver. So long as men think they can employ for $20 or $30 per month a man with sufficient brain and common sense to care for a valuable "prospect," just so long will there be lack of competent trainers. A man without brains cannot train trotters, and a man with brains, possessing the other qualifications necessary for a trainer to possess to become successful, stands in a position to command more than the usual price paid by new stock farms. It takes more than ordinary intelligence to develop a trotter; and it is folly to direct the affairs of stock farms from any other standpoints.—Kell's Iowa Turf.

J. C. HAMLIN has issued a challenge to the world. He will match two two-year-olds, two three-year-olds, one four-year-old and one five-year-old, the race to be eligible to the 2:21 class, against all horses of the same age for $500 a side, the contests to take place at the Grand Circuit meeting in this city in August, the Buffalo Park Association to add $500 to each event. He will also match a horse eligible to the 2:18 class against any eligible horse for $500 a side for a two-mile race best two in three, with a view of beating Fanny Witherspoon's two-mile record of 4:43. The association will also add $500 to this match.—Buffalo Enquirer. Balkan, 2:15, ought to be given a go in the last-named event.

JUST as we went to press last week we received a dispatch from Dr. W. H. Belton, of Colusa, conveying the information that Tilton Almont, 2:26, the well-known race horse and sire of seven trotters in the list, had sustained a compound comminuted fracture of the knee joint. The question was asked us whether amputation was feasible or reasonable. To this we replied that amputation was not necessary, but to get without delay a qualified veterinarian to set the limb and sling the horse. We trust our advice was followed and that Tilton Almont will yet live to sire a number of 2:30 performers. Opportunities considered, in our opinion Tilton Almont is one of the best sires California ever had, and he is right royally bred, being by Almont 33, dam by Clark Chief 89.

A NEW enterprise that will prove of great benefit to Oakland if successfully carried out, and of which consummation there is very little doubt, was inaugurated last night when Ben Wright, of the Galindo Hotel, secured the option of a ten-year lease on the Oakland Trotting Park. The members of the Gentlemen Drivers' Association of Alameda county are urging him to accept the proposition, and promise to give him their free and undivided support, and it is almost certain that Mr. Wright will close with the offer. In the event that he does so, he will move the hotel now on the grounds out of the way and build a fine new club house, which will be a credit to the county. He will also otherwise improve the property and make it one of the best and finest race courses in the State.—Oakland Times.

THERE were some great bargains at the combination sale conducted by Killip & Co. last Tuesday. J. A. McDonald, of San Rafael, purchased a young thoroughbred broodmare, a fine individual, for $220, by imp. Young Prince, dam Piney Lewis, by Longfellow; second dam Lou Lewis, by Endorser; third dam by Lexington, and fourth dam by imp. Glencoe. Lot Slocum got a bargain in Nonpareil, 2:57 as a yearling, when he paid $380 for the splendid-looking black son of Dawn. Captain Ben Harris got for $35 a two-year-old colt by Oaknut, 2:24½ (son of Dawn, 2:18¾), out of Pacheco, by Hubbard (brother to Katy Pease), son of Planet. Another great pick-up was a two-year-old bay colt by Oaknut, dam by Reavis' Blackbird 402; second dam by George M. Patchen Jr. 31. J. A. McDonald picked this one up for $65. The rest of the stock brought fair prices, but those mentioned above went dirt cheap.

"ALBERMARLE" has the following sensible observation in the New York Sportsman: The great trouble with trotting breeders is that they have been looking for 100 per cent a year, and of course such business has no stable foundation. In other walks of life men expect to spend years, often a lifetime, in founding and establishing a business, but the trotting boomer seeks to accumulate a fortune in a few months, a-la-Williams. The records of the past show but one result to such methods and it is not likely that the present craze will prove any exception. The lesson is that breeding trotters, if conducted on an economical business basis, is a pleasant, profitable business, even at what are now termed poor prices for a good produce, and that every true friend of the breeding industry should endeavor to see it settle to a business foundation rather than foster the speculative craze of $100,000 produce and $1,000 service fees.

AT a meeting of directors of the Willows Agricultural Association, says the Journal, it was determined to have a series of races for five days, from August 9th to 13th inclusive. The following programme was adopted: First day, pacing, 2:35 class, free for all, $350; trotting, 2:30 class, free for all, $350; running, three-quarters of a mile and repeat, free for all, $150. Second day, "Stranger Stakes," $150, entrance added, closed with five entries; trotting, three-minute class, free for all, $300; running, five-eighths of a mile dash, two-year-olds, entrance added, $50 Third day, pacing, 2:25 class, free for all, $360; trotting, 2:35 class, free for all, $350; running, mile and repeat, free for all, $200. Fourth day, trotting, 2:40 class, free for all, $350; trotting, three-year-olds, district, $350; running, one-half mile and repeat, free for all, $150. Fifth day, trotting, two-year-olds, district, $150; trotting, 2:25 class, free for all, $500; pacing, 2:19 class, free for all, $350; running, one and one-eighth miles dash, $150.

THE following dispatch was received from London, Eng., on the 9th of May: The Duke of Marlborough, who during his visit here a few years ago, just previous to his marriage with Mrs. Hammersly, delighted the hearts of turfmen by his masterful description of the Blue Grass region, is again busy among horsemen. An expedition of American trotters, to test their qualities and display their gaits and endurance, will be given by the Duke of Marlborough at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, tomorrow. There will be professional drivers from Kentucky in the ring who will show off foxtrot, rack and gaits unknown in England. Great interest is taken by horse lovers and sporting men in the display, and there will be a large attendance. The Agricultural Hall, Islington, is in a populous part of London. Situated in the Northern district, it is easy of access from all points. The hall has been used for many years as the arena for horse, dog, cattle and other shows, for every walking match of note, and for other shows requiring space to add to their impressiveness. A larger track than that at the Madison Square Garden can be laid out. Within a stone's throw of the immense building public conveyances can be obtained to any part of London.

R. HAVEY, the well-known trainer and driver, is domiciled at the old Stanford Stables, Sacramento, and a better arranged or more commodious building is seldom seen outside of some large stock farms. It was in this stable that the famous horse Occident, 2:16½, was kept, at the time the Senator was beginning to be interested in the trotting horse industry in California. In the capacious stables Mr. Havey has the following: Princess, the handsome two-year-old Cheviot filly; Floodgate, a rangy looking dark brown two-year-old son of Flood, and in an adjoining stall to him is the Darebin-Carrie C. colt, that is not as handsome as the other two, but looks to be a racehorse. These belong to Chas. Fair, and will appear in the fall circuit. The trotters Mr. Havey has also look well, and show that they receive an artist's care. In the first stall is the seal brown Stamboul-Alta Belle colt, belonging to J. H. Outhwaite, of Sierra Madre. This youngster is a perfect likeness of his sire in conformation, color, gait and disposition, while his speed is also of the same high order. He is all that a breeder could ask for. Wilson is the name of the fast young pacer belonging to B. C. Holly, which is also being cared for by Mr. Havey. He occupies a stall adjoining the one in which is Vera, the filly that Mr. Holly paid $1950 for at the Souther sale. Both of these are very promising, and will be heard from this fall.

S. S. BENTON, the well-known horseman of Colfax, Wash., says his horses are looking prime. His stallion Almont Medium, by Almont Medium, 2133, 2:28, and his gelding Mark Medium, 2:25, are at Petaluma, Cal., in the hands of Lee Shaner. Mr. Benton has at his Colfax stables the following: Sir Jett, blk s, 6, by Alcona 730, dam by Post's Hambletonian; Amelia T., blk m, by Alcona—Warwick Maid (full sister to Prince Warwick, 2:18); Amanda S., br m by Meredith (Orange Co.) dam by Bellfounder 62; Dasher s m by Alwood—by Dasher (thoroughbred); Minnie Wapsie, b m by Wapsie 688; Trim, b m, by Admiral Drake (by Admiral), dam a thoroughbred; Lady Lucrece, s m, by Bland, dam by Bellfounder 62; Mattie Medium, r m, 5, by Almont Medium, dam by Sir David; Pigeon, gr f, 3, by Almont Medium, dam by Autocrat. The two-year-olds are: Repetta, b f, by Almont Medium, dam by Admiral Drake; Lucky, b f, by Almont Medium, dam by Wapsie 688; Edna, b f, by Almont Medium, dam by Meredith. The yearlings are: Almede, blk c, by Almont Medium, dam by Alcona 730; Shaner, b c, by Almont Medium, dam by Meredith; Kamiach, b c, by Almont Medium, dam by Alwood; Palouse, b c, by Almont Medium, dam by Wapsie 688; Crescent, b f, by Almont Medium, dam by Admiral Drake; Grand Daughter, by Almont Medium.

THE PACING RECORD.—Up to 1829 the only time performances of note were credited to trotters, but that year brought out a pacer that carried the name of Bowery Boy, and his two miles were at a rate only a trifle slower than 2:32, quite the fastest feat of that period. Taking the various decades since 1830, the "side-wheelers," as they have been dubbed, have never failed to keep side by side with the trotters, and excepting for a brief period have always headed the speed list. A bay gelding named Drover paced in 2:28 five years before Lady Suffolk scored the first mile before 2:30 for a trotter, and the 2:17½, of the noted Ohio mare Pocahontas in 1855 made to wagon, preceded Flora Temple's record of 2:19¾ to sulky by four years, and is unquestionably a greater achievement than the mile in 2:17¼ twelve years later, which made the name of Dexter a household word. Goldsmith Maid had the undisputed reign, as the mark of 2:14 set by her in 1874 remained as the best in harness until 1879, when Sleepy Tom and Rowdy Boy both eclipsed it within a few weeks of each other. So, too, Maud S. opened the 2:10 list before any pacer had attained that flight, but Johnston raised the limit to 2:06¼ nearly a twelve-month previous to the daughter of Harold's supreme effort in 2:08¾, and it is still two seconds below what any trotter has accomplished. But it is no longer at the top of the list, as Direct managed to knock off the fraction, his mile in 2:06 being made over the kite at Independence.

The Western Horseman makes the following point about combination sales, which is well worth reproducing: As a class, horsemen are a shrewd set of fellows, and are quick to recognize and act on influences and bearings on their business, but in the matter of consigning stock to combination sales they are slow to act to the best interest of themselves individually, or to the whole business collectively. We refer more particularly to the practice of consigning undesirable stock to combination sales to be sold publicly, and so far as the general public knows are 'gilt-edged trotting stock,' as generally announced in the advertisement. Sometimes such stock (poor individuals or poorly bred) comes from young or inexperienced breeders, who really imagine that they are offering something really desirable, but more frequently such consignments come from prominent farms and breeders, and are accompanied with the statement that 'this consignment consists' of so many head of the 'most select' animals 'ever produced' at the 'celebrated—— farm'—when in reality they are the very refuse of the farm, and however small the price realized, the consignors frequently boast that they 'did exceedingly well,' as his only object was to get them 'off' of his place' and 'out of sight.' But can't every consigner recognize the fact that every such lot sold at public auction, though they may not, be worth a 'dime a dozen,' cheapens not only every other animal that he has left on the farm, but every other trotting-bred animal in the land? That is just what it does, and no other practice in vogue is doing so much towards bringing combination sales into disrepute as well as to cheapen the trotting horse."

THE GUN.

The Winding Eel.

By Charles Wesley Kyle.

Ho, for the mountains green, which render
The crystal streams with their snowy foam
Which dash 'neath the sunlight's golden splendor,
Where the "cut-throat" sports in its liquid home.
Where peace like a spirit of comfort dwelling,
O'er the troubled souls of the weary steal;
The charms of life to the heart revealing—
Ho, for the banks of the winding Eel!

Where the blue skies arch the redwood's columns,
That shelter the doe and her spotted fawn;
Where the crickets chirp, when the gloaming solemns
The restful hours from the eve 'til dawn.
Where life's elixir, the rich ozone,
Distilled by the pines through the senses steal
On every wind of the mountains blown—
Ho, for the banks of the winding Eel!

Away from the noise of the busy crowd;
Where voice of bird, of streams and of fountains
Alone break the hush of Nature's shroud.
There by the banks of the river, flowing,
To live again with the rod and reel:
The heart and cheek with pleasure glowing—
Ho, for the banks of the winding Eel!

When touched by the wings of the morning winds,
And murmur low with the gentle vesper,
When day in the westward slow declines.
There days are a pleasure and nights are peace,
Where joys of freedom the soul may feel;
And every trouble and care shall cease—

The State Sportsman's Association.

It becomes evident as the matter of the organization of this body progresses, that it will soon become a power for good in enforcing the objects for which it is being organized. It is a matter clear to everyone who will pause but for a moment to consider it, that no idea worthy of enforcement ever was or ever can be enforced unless it have a party, an intelligent, active organization back of it, pledged and devoted to the cause which it espouses.

Good law, effective, operative law, becomes so only by reason of having back of it an active, earnest, intelligent force, which serves to crystalize public sentiment on the points desired, and by reason of such concentration demands of the public that respect to which its merits entitle it.

We care not how general a sentiment may be in the community, especially in matters similar to that of the beneficent effects arising and accruing to the public on wise measures directed to the propogation of fish, and the importation and protection of game, such sentiment fails of effectiveness unless it be concentrated and rendered powerful by organization. It is all too common, in all the walks of life, to hear men say, not in defense, but in paliation of a line of conduct admitedly questionable, or, even absolutely wrong, that such acts are customary, and that if they do not commit the especial act when opportunity offers, some one else will.

In questions like the one under consideration, the enforcement of the law must of a necessity depend upon the strength of the party devoted to its enforcement. It is not only essential that every sportsman in the State not only lend his best efforts in the direction of the crystalization of public sentiment in favor of this movement, but it is plain that insomuch as he is lukewarm and inactive on this question, he is falling far behind and below the standard of a true and loyal sportsman. It is but a matter of organization to bring to bear on the powers that be, a voice that will demand respectful attention and secure recognition for the unquestionably just and equitable laws which it is the aim of this association to establish.

When every sportsman's club within the State becomes an active factor in this body, and are placed by reason of such membership in touch with its executive department, the bounden duty of which is to move in any and all matters pertaining to the interests of the association, deriving its power from the active support and information furnished by these several factors and acting in perfect harmony therewith, what may it not accomplish? Certainly it may and will accomplish any object upon which so large a body of intelligent men could be brought to agree upon.

This may sound sanguinary yet we believe it may be done. In any event we must try and keep trying to the end that important amendments be added to our fish and game laws and then see to it that they are enforced.

Appropo to this statement and as an illustration of the work before the association we quote from an article appearing in current issue of the American Field touching the codification of the New York game and fish laws. It reads:

"The State of New York now has the first codification of its game and fish laws, over which Deputy Attorney-General Whittaker, Mr. R. M. Sherman and Mr. R. B. Roosevelt have been working for many months. The new law allows the Governor to appoint five fish commissioners, who serve without other recompense than actual expenses, for five years. He is also to appoint twenty protectors, who get a nominal salary. The office of the commission is established at Albany. All fines collected will go to the commissiou, to be used in employing special counsel and enforcing the law in cases where District Attorneys are not in sympathy with their efforts.

Another feature is the power given the commission to appoint special protectors on the application of any regularly organized game club. These are to serve without cost to the State, and Mr. Webb has already applied for six to be stationed on his Adirondack preserve. Under the new law it is no longer a misdemeanor to trepass on a private park. All that the owner can do is to sue for civil damages. The syndicates that have monopolized the best part of the Adarondack forest will grieve on reading this section.

Probably one of the most important provisions is that which prohibits the damming of any river except by permission of the Fish Commissioners, and in every case the dam must be provided with an approved fishway. It is safe to say that this section would never have appeared in the bill if the corporations had known of its existence. The new law is to be printed immediately and distributed in every county. The Fish Commissioners hold their first meeting under it to-morrow. The law allows Sunday fishing in Jamaica Bay.

For two years a commission has been at work on this bill, which is certainly of greater general interest than those usually ground out by legislative mill, and on which many hundred huntsmen, fishermen and persons interested in the sports or business affected by the new measure have written at length. Sportsmen generally will not be slow to appreciate Governor Flower's action in signing the bill and the following pertinent remarks made by him: "I sign this because I believe it is a step in the right direction. It is not perfect by any means, but another Legislature can easily remedy the few defects. I am heartily in favor of protecting our fish and game and have given this law a great deal of study. I believe our people, particularly our farmers, ought to be aroused on the subject of fish and game protection. I believe that under proper laws our rivers and lakes and forests can be made a source of great income to the people. That is the case in other countries. New York State has every facility for becoming a sportsman's paradise, and that would not only mean more and better food for its inhabitants, but it would also mean a new source of income to many people. All that is needed after protective laws are framed is to instruct the people how to go to work to get the advantages which the laws offer.

"Hunting and fishing for pleasure is not all there is in this law by any means. It seems to me that an important source of food supply is affected by it, and this is one of the reasons why I hope to see the suggestions I have just made carried out in time to the benefit of the people."

The California Wing Shooting Club.

On the first of the week the California Wing Shooting Club held its regular monthly event at the traps in Oakland Shooting Park. The attendance was good, a number of the sportsmen of the city availing themselves of the kind invitation of this organization were present, and participated in the club's regular match, and also in the regular pools following. The day was fine after the clouds of the morning rolled away, which they were not slow in doing. The events of the day presented some very fine work executed by a number of the gentlemen present. The birds were a very fair lot, and with the aid of the wind from the bay, they became quite swift and erratic as to flight. If a shooter was a bit too deliberate, the bird would whirl away beyond bounds, frequently practically unharmed.

In the main match Crittenden Robinson and John O. Cadman did some very excellent work when the unfavorable conditions as to the winds are considered. The first-named gentleman scored all of his birds, the element of luck, as to line of flight of the bird after being hit, obtaining on one of them; the second named was favored in like manner on two of his birds, while his only escaping bird was not fired at, his gun not being cocked. He was using his new "Clabrough," and was highly elated over its shooting qualities.

Messrs. Schroeder, "Slade," "Johns" and Kyle scored ten birds each, while Messrs. Barney, McMurchy and "Worth" secured nine birds each. Messrs. Hunt, Liddle, Jackson and H. C. Golcher scoring eight birds each. The shooting on the whole was very good.

In a subsequent pool Robinson, McMurchy, Barney and Johns took the purses on even and perfect scores, as did "Lake," "Johns," Robinson and McMurchy on the next event.

The shooting closed about 3 o'clock P. M., and most of the sportsmen then went over to Alameda Point and enjoyed the balance of the day pulverizing Blue Rocks with the Lincoln Gun Club.

Mr. Loud states that it is the nature of an old cock Mongolian pheasant to fight with the energy and vim of an Indian game cock. He narrates having seen them dart into the air and engage in an aerial battle with the largest hawks and come off victorious. These engagements occur when protecting the female and her nest or young brood. They breed very fast, nesting twice during the season and lay from sixteen to twenty-two eggs at a nesting.

The U. S. Gun Club of Oakland held its regular monthly shoot on the 15th inst. The scores made at 15 singles were as follows: De Pue 14, Richardson 11, Earmer 11, Fowler 11, Thomas 10, Hall 10, Debenham 10. Eustace 10, Shaw 9, Billington 7, Ernest 6, Newman 3.

De Pue won a handsome prize, consisting of a fishing rod by the excellent score of 26 out of a possible 30.

During the first of the week, at a pigeon shoot at Oakland Track, Messrs. Robinson, Barney, McMurchy, Orr and Randall made a score of 120 kills out of a possible 127. Very excellent shootingthat for five guns and that, too, on good birds with a fair wind favoring the birds.

The Lincoln Gun Club.

The third monthly contest for the Lincoln Gun Club's medals took place on Sunday last at Alameda Point. This club always has a good attendance at their regular events, and yesterday proved no exception to the rule in this regard. The club also presents some very excellent shots. The club presents two classes, dividing the membership according to skill as evidenced by a series of trials at the traps. In yesterday's events seventeen entries appeared in the first class and eight in the second class.

F. Venker carried off the medal in the first class by a score of 18 out of a possible 21, while Uhl won like honors in the second class by a score of 16 out of a possible 21.

The remainder of the day was spent in pool shooting, in which some very fine scores were made, a large number of sportsmen going over from Oakland Park when the main events at five birds had been finished. The entire day was most favorable for the sport, and a very enjoyable time was spent by the sportsmen generally.

The Alamedas.

On Saturday last the Alameda Gun Club met at the traps in Oakland Shooting Park to contest for the club's monthly and annual prizes. The scores presented show that the club as a body is sometimes "a little off" so to speak in the matter of shooting. The prizes consisted of a beautiful carving set, pocket combination pieces in which were supplied camp knife, fork, spoon and the ever useful corkscrew. Cigar cases and match safes and other useful and ornamental articles. The scores presented are as follows:

Some very interesting pool events followed which owing to loss of memoranda we are forced to omit. The birds were used up at an early hour, but the meeting was most pleasant and agreeable throughout the day.

Mr. Harvey McMurchy, who has been in the city for some time, is, perhaps, as well posted and practical a gun man as visits the coast. He is a graceful and accurate shot and withal as pleasant and courteous a gentlemen as one could meet in a days' travel. He has found the California pigeons as lively a lot, if not shaded considerably to the better of any birds, fired at during the year. It stands to reason that this State, where its Junes are always pleasant, and all other months are Junes, that the continuous pigeon weather presented should make strong pigeons.

It is but a compliment to our birds and no disrespect to our sportsmen to say, that while we have many excellent pigeon shots we have no record of 199 kills out of a possible 200. No, this did not occur in California and Mr. McMurchy, with all other good sportsmen we have seen, doubts that it ever occurred under the usual rules governing pigeon shooting.

Extraordinary shots are always interesting but should be ever considered in the nature of accidents from which the element of skill or reliableness of pattern is eliminated. Such an accident occured at Oakland Shooting Park last Sunday when a shot was fired from the boundary in front of the club house, directly across the traps, which brought down an escaped pigeon twenty-two paces beyond the boundary, being about 112 yards. One number six shot in the side of the head did the work, while the bird was also hit in the body. Wonderful, but accidents would not be accidents if shorn of the element of wonder.

Miss Annie Oakley, the bright little American lady whose work at the trap has been the wonder of the entire body of sportsmen of the world for several years past, but recently covered herself with additional honors at the Rothwell Gun Club grounds at Leeds, England. The event referred to was a match with Mr. Chapman, President of the Leeds Gun Club at 25 birds each, London Gun Club rules. Miss Oakley won the match by a score of 19 to 18 in her favor.

Information from Oregon indicates that the hunting and fishing in that famous sportsman's resort will be better this fall than for some seasons past. The Mongolian pheasant, quail and grouse, as well as deer and other large game are said to be exceedingly plentiful. A number of parties from this city will, as usual avail themselves of this splendid opportunity for outdoor life with rod and gun.

The Gun Club at Portland hold a tournament on the 17th and 18th of this month. The outlook is fine for a splendid gathering and we doubt not that the outcome will be a highly satisfactory one in every respect. This club has, in round numbers, one hundred and twenty-five members.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

Last week Golden Chip, another one of Mr. Martin's terriers, slipped a litter of six pups to his dog Blemton Reefer.

Dr. Davenport sold two pups to W. H. Crocker, Esq., and the Enterprise Kennels sold one, both sales being made at the show.

The interest in the merry little cocker spaniel is decidedly upon the increase. The exhibit at the recent show was the best seen here.

From present indications there will be a number of new faces that will appear at the next field trials as owners of contesting dogs. This will give an added interest to the sport.

Wm. Maitland, Esq., of Boulder Creek, Santa Cruz Co., who is now on a visit to England, will import a pair of smooth and a pair of wire hair fox-terriers, and is visiting some of the best kennels for that purpose.

The Stock-Keeper (England) says: "We expect to hear shortly that two of the best show greyhounds are booked for America. It seems that two prominent breeders are after these dogs, and the deal is as good as closed."

J. B. Martin has had more than his share of ill luck with his fox-terriers. Last January his bitch New Forest Nettle died while whelping to Blemton Shiner. She was a grand bench bitch, and would have proven a good brood bitch, as she was by New Forest—Ebor Nettle.

Remember that your entries must be made for the Derby of the Pacific Coast Field Trials before the 1st of June. The Derby is open to all setters and pointers whelped on or after January 1, 1891. Do not fail to place your entry in time. Apply to J. M. Kilgarif, Secretary, 418 California street, this city.

Mr. Joseph B. Coryell, owner of St. Elmo (Duke of Wellington—Colmah) first, in puppies at late show, is to be congratulated upon possessing so fine a specimen of the noble St. Bernard. We shall look forward to the development of this pup with more than usual interest as he possesses qualities which give promise of great merit.

The action of Mr. E. P. Schell, president of the California Kennel Club, in entering his splendid St. Bernard, Judge 7512, in the late show for exhibition only, is worthy of commendation. Mr. Schell has done much in the past year in the interests of good dogs in this city and vicinity, and his interest in kennel matters is increasing daily.

Where a brindle color obtains, in foxterriers, it is only considered objectionable and does not amount to a disqualification of the dog so marked. The less of Draconian rule, which contravenes nature, when she places color of her own choosing on a dog the better. Some of our local fancy have held brindle to amount to a disqualification.

Capt. Wm. Poole has commissioned Geo. S. Grace, who is now on his way to England, to purchase for him a rough-coated St. Bernard bitch. The Captain is going to try his luck with St. Bernards. He now has Gillott and Victoria, the bitch that won second at the recent show; she is heavy in whelp to Gillott, who also won a second prize.

W. H. Collins has suffered a severe loss in the death of his heavy-weight bull-terrier Spotless Prince. No doubt he was the best dog of this breed seen here, and if he had been exhibited at the recent show, Mr. Mortimer would have had an opportunity of showing the disappointed owners of bull-terriers the difference between a show bull-terrier and a pit bull-terrier. Mr. Collins is not discouraged by this loss. He will import another good dog, and is already in communication with Frank Dole.

The revival of the Pacific Kennel Club under such favorable conditions as are at the present time presented is a matter upon which all kennel men of the coast are to be congratulated. The interests of the day are peculiar in that there is no way in which the sensitive surface of one's nature may be increased and intensified in a more pronounced sense than by becoming the owner of a dog. That the gentlemen who compose the Pacific Kennel Club are such, generally speaking, we are fully convinced, and there can be no doubt but that the affairs of the club will, in so far as possible, be conducted so as to prevent friction.

Are you interested in dogs in any way? It matters not whether your interest is in sporting or non-sporting dogs, you should at once send in your name and become a member of the Pacific Kennel Club. In doing this you will be forwarding the interests of the kennel. Do not delay, but act promptly. The next meeting of the Club takes place on Wednesday next, the 25th inst., at 21 Kearney street. Be sure and be on hand, as business of importance will come before the club, and your voice is earnestly solicited in all matters pertaining to kennel matters.

The mystery of life has become the mystery of death. The warm, sentient, affectionate heart has been stilled into the icy inaction of nothingness, says W. S. White, Esq., in Shooting and Fishing, of Fredricksburg, Va., of his Irish setter Forest. The honest eyes are glazed and cold. The wonderful force men call vitality has flown we know not where. He was only a dog, but never faithless, as men sometimes are. Never treacherous, as friends sometimes are. His affection never wavered. His obedience never faltered. The love in his great brown eyes never grew cold or scornful. He never misunderstood those he loved. He was never suspicious. His cheerful alacrity to do his master's bidding knew no bounds, and his loyalty surpassed the loyalty of man. He was the faithful friend, the most uncomplaining companion, and the most obedient servant. Shall not such virtues deserve commendation, though their possessor was only a dog?

Coursing at Newark.

The Occidental Coursing Club held a most enjoyable coursing meeting at Newark Park on Sunday last. The early morning hours were marked by several strong showers which, in any other country than California, would have proof positive of a dreary day. No doubt but that the rain precluded many from attending the event, and all such, doubtless, spent the day in vain regrets caused by their timidity and lack of courage to face the dubious hours of the morning. The park presented a beautiful carpet of soft, fresh grass, with pools of water here and there which, catching the sunlight, shone like silver ornaments. Fragmentary clouds clung about the distant hills for an hour, then dissolved, translated to the heavans as it were, leaving a clear, soft sky which arched the valley during the remaining hours of the day.

The contests of the day were presented by a sixteen-dog stake. The purses were, $40 to first; $20 to second and $10 to third and fourth. The sport presented was of the first order, the honors being distributed quite evenly between the favorites and the field. This always makes the sport most exciting and interesting.

Skyrocket (Midnight—Peasant Girl) added to his string of previous honors by defeating all opponents, Glenfarron being the runner-up. The work of Terrible Swede (McGinty—Oneida) is spoken of very favorably.

The officers of the day were John Grace, Judge; James Wren, slipper; J. R. Dickson, slip steward; D. J. Healey, flag steward; H. Wormington, Col. S. O. Gregory and T. J. O'Keefe, field stewards.

Retrieving at Field Trials.

The question of retrieving at field trials has been and still continues to be the subject of wide and general comment in the kennel world. The merits and demerits of the question, it would seem have, by many of the writers on the subject, been almost completely lost sight of in their attempts to follow out and demonstrate the falsity or fairness of certain articles. The real question to us seems to be this: Should or should not field trials be devoted, exclusively, to the work of advancing and developing the desirable natural qualities of the dog?

Bird sense or bird scent is the prime natural quality. Essential to the development of this quality, undoubtedly, pace and range must be taken into consideration. A dog must come within scenting distance of the birds before using the prime quality, the highest natural quality of pointing the birds. How fast, how far can a dog range and yet not injure his capacity to scent the birds when found? Many of the adherents of so called "high class" dogs admit the great danger of a dog becoming "too fast for his nose" that is to say speed and range above a certain limit is to the detriment of the dog's scenting power. That speed and range have been pushed too far, we are firmly convinced. Many a dog, possessing most excellent natural qualities as to bird scent has been handicapped, when the birds have been finally located, by reason of the fact that his previous speed and range has been so great that his blood has become heated to such a state that as a result he has run over and failed to locate or point his birds with anything like the merit he would have shown had speed and range been less pronounced.

In this respect it would seem that the advocates of "high-class" dogs or those gentlemen who take the position that field trials should be devoted alone to the work of developing the natural qualities of the dog, stand in a fair way to defeat their expressed intentions. It would seem reasonable to suppose that the high string active dogs when developing speed and range would lose that calmer and more collected quality which would seem essential in locating and pointing the birds after they have once been flushed and scattered. If this be so how then are we to determine their natural qualities of bird sense? This quality being defined as follows:

"Bird sense is shown in a dog by his desire to hunt for birds; his selection of likely places to hunt in; his method of hunting the places; his industry in staying out at his work; and his skill in handling and pointing the birds after he finds them."

If obedience be not a natural quality, it will be at least by all conceded to be a very essential and necessary one, and we are also clearly of the opinion that the quality of retrieving, when properly taught, is not to the detriment of bird sense. The difference between the point to which speed and range may be pushed without impairiug the scent of the dog, and the point desirable in this line, for a good hunting dog, is not so far removed as to be a matter for serious difference on this very important question.

The Occidental's Meating.

The Occidental Coursing Club has decided to hold a final meeting with the club members only as participants in the event, and have chosen Monday, the 30th inst., as the day upon which the meeting will take place. Newark Park has witnessed some very fine coursing meets during the year but for the true pleasures of the sport we much doubt if any of them will exceed the coming event.

It is the intention of the club to duplicate the courses run at the last event, which took place Sunday last and which furnished such grand sport for the enjoyment of all those present.

The meeting is for all who may desire to attend, the entrance of dogs only being confined to the membership of the clnb.

The Pacific Kennel Club.

The work of the reorganization of the Pacific Kennel Club in anticipation of its show to be given next May is progressing finely. Since the meeting of last week a large number of gentlemen have signified their intention of joining this club which already numbers in its membership the best element of the fancy on the Pacific Coast. At the recent meeting President Raymon E. Wilson, suggested the propriety of having the constitution and by-laws of the club revised and amended in several important particulars, especially as to the matter of an executive committee as he favored the more democratic policy of having all matters transacted by the club as a body. In conformity with the action of the club a committee was appointed by the chair, consisting of Measrs. J. B. Martin, E. H. Wakeman and J. T. Watson, on revision of constitution and by-laws, to which all suggestions as to amendments were referred, with instructions to report the result of their deliberations at the next meeting of the club, which takes place on next Wednesday evening the 25th inst., at 21 Kearney street.

Messrs. P. D. Linville, T. J. Watson and H. L. Miller were appointed b committee to investigate and report on certain claims held against the club.

The Secretary, Mr. Clarence Height, read a communication from A. P. Vredenburg, Secretary A. K. C., recognizing claim of the club for the dates May 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th next for the club's coming Kennel show.

Every indication now points to a most powerful organization in the Pacific for the Kennel interest on this coast.

There are moments when even the quiet, obscure reporter catches the ebb of the tide and floats out upon the broad sea of public attention and at once becomes a prominent figure by reason of his work The reporter who wrote up the great wolf, barzoi, deerhound, comic pantomime which was recently enacted in Colorado is a humorist and on account of his work in this matter is entitled to a medal. On it might be engraved a wolf with a kind of a flag-of-truce-while-we-consult-about-the-matter look upon its face, with the barzoi and deerhound at a respectful distance, while the spectators with derisive sneers and grins depicted on their countenances fill out the scene, as they see their hopes of a fight fade away and the certainty of a "no contest" settle down. The English Stock-Keeper referring to this matter says:

"In another column we give a lengthy account of Borzoi trials on wolf in the United States, and we have taken the opportunity to interpolate several observations of our own. The American Borzoi fanciers, Messrs. Hacke and Grimes, appeared to have deluded their countrymen into an idea of the Borzois' work, which is altogether at variance with facts, and in consequence an exceedingly satisfactory trial has been completely misunderstood and falsely adjudged. We are of opinion that the Colorado ranchers would find Great Danes better for their purpose of protecting stock and killing wolves; the Greyhound family in its purity lacks the dogged tenacity that is required for seizing a wolf and sticking to him like grim death. As the Great Dane would possibly not be speedy enough, a cross might be bred for, with two parts Borzoi and one of Great Dane. Both breeds have courage and elan; the Russian would provide the speed and the Dane would give the tenaciousness.

The Denver Republican reporter, whose humorous account we have used, refers to a piece of Borzoi information retailed by Dr. Grimes to the effect that "when a Borzoi got a grip on a wolf the muscles of his jaw underwent a peculiar spasm and his mouth had to be pried open after the wolf's death." Dr. Grimes is pleased to strut before his fellows as an authority, and it was no doubt very gratifying to his vanity to have such a peculiar instance of special knowledge to air around, and it was no less comforting to him to reflect that but few of his listeners were likely to have read the Stock-Keeper of December 26, 1890, wherein the incident is described upon which the learned doctor has founded his contention that it is "a peculiarity of the breed." Only we might just state, for the sake of truth and that sort of thing, that the locked jaw was not "pried" open, but the muscles were massaged till they relaxed. We are under the impression that it would not be the worst thing that has happened for Borzoi interests in the States if Messrs. Hacke and Grimes "got a grip on a wolf and the muscles of their jaws underwent a peculiar spasm," only we don't think people would worry much about finding crowbars to pry them open again."

The Camping Season.

A week in camp! What a thrill of delight trembles along ones nerves at the very thought of a vacation in the hills. To awaken at dawn and live a round of happy surprises through the day, to recount them to companionable souls about the glowing campfire walled about by gloom which is pierced alone by the stars, and then the strange, wierd silence broken only by the chorus of nocturnal insects.

To tramp about through the hills, under the sheltering redwoods and pines and revel in the pleasures of the forests, streams and glens. To change the boards of the drama of life from the office, the shop and the counter to those of the hills. There with gun and rod to seek pleasure by pursuing the fleet hoof and wing, or to lure the scaly life within the stream.

There under the shade of that clump of willows just below the ripples in the stream where the calmer waters of the river expand into a lake-like pool the best "catches" will be found headed up the stream. Be cautious, a quick turn of the wrist at the instant the first message is sent by the operator beneath the waves as he makes a strike, will win you the first "trick" in the game. Now the sport begins. You must "play it alone" and be sure and play your "hand" for all it is worth. There is danger of loss in every move and the chances are, unless you are an "artist" with the rod and reel, that you will lose. Yonder, in the valley, where the shadows chase across the golden grain whose billows rise and fall in response to the touches of the wind, you catch the graceful pigeons flight, returning to roost amid the pines of the wooded glen. To check them in their swift and lofty flight, as singly, they pass to and fro, requires a clear eye, quick judgment and a steady nerve.

Look out! Here he comes! Bang! bang! still he swiftly wings his way up the glen. Your shot whistled harmlessly full ten feet behind him. Hold ahead and shoot high, for from your position on the elevated bank of the mountain side, the birds present a quartering and gradually rising flight. It is hard to judge them accurately for the mountain side beyond is so distant that it presents no objects to assist in aligning the flight of the birds. Here comes another, now try again. A clean miss with first but a beautiful second quickly used. You simply threw your gun so far ahead in shooting your second barrel that you thought you'd miss? But you found you centered the bird nicely. This has given you some idea of distance, speed and range or elevation of flight. You'll do better now. But every shot will not bring down a bird. The sport would soon lose its potent charms if it should. A not too frequent miss but spices add to the essentially exhilerating sport. Especially is this true here where the wildwoods, streams and mountains charm the sense with every form of beauty and granduer known to the hand divine.

The hillside covered with the stately redwoods and pines appear like columns of some giant's castle as you tread upon the tesselated floor with its pattern of gloom and gold the whole area woven with fern and blossom, velvet moss and vari-colored leaf and blade and creeping vine. See yonder ivy-covered column. What work, save some counterpiece of Nature's can with it compare? The roofing formed of Nature's broidery, how beautiful! The odor of her flowers and vines, how sweet! Pause and inhale a deep, long breath of the pure, sweet air, enriched by the stimulating odor of the pines. It is worth a journey across the continent to inhale such a breath! It gives life to the blood, causes the heart to beat still stronger, and gives elasticity to the step, a glow of health to the cheek and a sparkle to the eye. Are you going camping this summer? If so I congratulate you. If not, I mourn with you over the rich treasures lost.

Binocular Vision or Lateral-Eyed Fishes.

After a careful examination of the movement of the eyes of our common fresh-water fishes, says Prof. Austin C. Apgar, in American Angler, I have come to the conclusion that the statement made in a number of works tnat the eyes of fishes are different from most other vertebrates, in that the two have separate fields of vision, is not true. If a line extending through the center of the pupil to the center of the retina were the actual axis of vision, then such lateral-eyed fishes as the fresh-water sunfishes would have separate fields of vision; but I am convinced that the true axis extends through the anterior margin of the ovate pupil to the posterior side of the retina. The spot of most distinct vision is this posterior portion of the retina, and on this spot the images formed in both eyes coincide.

When the fish is quietly swimming in the water, this true axis is directed horizontally forward, This is true, whether the fish has its body horizontal or not. The movement of the eyeball, to retain a horizontal direction of the true visual line, is a rotating one on the apparent optical axis; the rotation of the ball is not very noticeable, except in those fishes that have a dark band across the eye. One of those best marked for this purpose is the black-banded sunfish (Mesogonistius chætodon, Baird, Gill.) There are quite a number of species marked with distinctness enough to show the rotation well, and the movement is an interesting one to watch. When the body of the fish is almost perpendicular, the eye retains its natural horizontal direction; this is true, whether the fish is swimming obliquely upward or downward.

The medium in which fresh-water fishes live gives them a chance to see a great distance only in the horizontal direction, and the proper adjustment of the eye would make, under usual conditions, the optical axis take this direction. To me it seems impossible to explain the constant revolution of the eyeball on any other hypothesis except that given, viz., that the optical axis extends forward instead of sidewise.

When a fish wishes to eat anything, either at the bottom of the pond or at the surface of the water, it swims directly toward the object; and in this case the eyes are instantly adjusted in line with the body, so as to bring the image of the particle desired upon the posterior portion of the retina. In this case they lose their usual horizontal position.

If a fish wishes to turn to the right or left in the water, the first movement is that of the eyes in unison in the direction of the turning. This would be entirely unnecessary if the apparent axis was the axis of most distinct vision, as one of the eyes would see all that was to be seen on the side of the turning After this movement of the eyes the body turns enough to bring the eyes into their normal position, then there is again a movement of the eyes, and next a movement of the body. This causes a peculiar jerking motion of the eyeballs during the whole time of the turning of the body.

May Day in the Fields.

The beautiful dressing of spring a queen might envy. Soft-footed, mild-eyed, laughing, dancing, weeping spring. What a variety of moods her queenship brings! The soft, feathery clouds of the morning wrap themselves in fleecy folds about the brow of hill and mountain, while far below in the vales, the vapory mists have rested while the world lay dreaming, and at dawn a moment lay like clouds of fine-spun silver and a moment more and they have disappeared and the lakes and glancing streams o'er which they hung, are revealed in all the magical splendor which morning sunlight on waters ever show. Where did the mists of the morning go? They were whisked "over the hills and far away" on the wings of morning or drawn skyward on the golden ladders of the sun,

> "* * * For all the morn,
> The sun on slender ropes of mist,
> Had been lowering its golden buckets down,
> Into the vapory amythist."

The sea birds settle upon the long stretch of the bar which has been left exposed by the ebbing tide. Away off to the westward rolls the billowy sea meeting, in the vista, the blue of the drooping sky. Here and there a white sail appears, spreading to catch the morning breeze. How smooth and unruffled the sea appears, but mark the long line of snowy foam which winds like a serpent's trail along the shore.

All things are not what they seem and "distance lends enchantment" to much that appears beautiful. To catch the beauty of most scenes you must view them from the proper point of vision.

The swallows, cleaving the air, describe the poetry of motion in their ever varying curves of flight. As merry as can be are they, busily building their nests of mud and lining them with lint and threads of bark spun to silken fineness by the beating of the rain and winds.

The sweet gums are russett with the first clothing of new foliage and already the rambling blackberry bushes, which clamber upon and over all the woodland fences, present their crimson berries to the sun.

The blackbird hovers over the marsh and renders musical the air with his cherry notes as he sings to his dingy russet-colored bride hidden by the waving tules sitting the live-long day upon her mottled eggs, firm in the faith which nature gives of the coming of the gaping, hungry brood.

The low stretches of open between the laurels and the pines, are covered o'er with eschscholtzias and a wealth of flowers, sky blue, straw-colored and pure white, while the crimson plume of nodding grasses interperse and lend a beauty to the floral scene.

Along the steep inclines, which mount up from the murmuring brook, on either hand, the dark, deep, green giant ferns gracefully depend their serated leaves while intermingled in pleasant contrast is seen the more delicate ferns of the maiden's hair which loves the cool, darkened and secluded chambers of the woods.

The pierceing notes of the jay is heard from shady nooks, while ever and anon, the soft, sweet, pleading of the burnished dove comes stealing through the wooded aisles, a wondrous note of harmony.

The buckeyes, those umbrellas of the wood, spread their smooth-arched coverings to the sun, and shut out every ray from the shaded circle, round their trunks where no life grows and which is kept swept clean by the under current of the winds.

Upon the wooded hillside there appears a thousand tintings all of green, dark, darker and yet more dark they grow and then light and lighter until the light amber fades into a hue, the soft tones of which elude every sense of discrimination save alone the indescribable distinction which is known to the keener sight of nature's most earnest devotees.

Here and there along the marsh a mallard drake is seen, the teal, the spoonbill, with great flocks of mudhens are weaving in and out the cover of the marsh into the open pool.

Spring, indeed, is come and every day as the sun mounts the sky with warmer gleam, the evidences of her departure and the coming of summer in her stead is seen.

It is interesting to hear the various theories which different anglers hold regarding the causes and conditions which make trout fishing favorable or otherwise. The true reason for the changes in the habits of the trout seem to be entirely owing to their food supply. Trout fishing in the mountain streams follows the supply of insect life and the presence of other foods on the surface of the pools. Fly fishing is confined almost entirely to the season when insect life is abundant and hovers over and upon the surface of the streams. Then the trout come to the surface in search of these insects and may be taken best by any lure which most resembles these natural foods. We are inclined to think that the state of the weather as to temperature or as to any other conditions has but little to do with the trout coming to the surface save in the secondary sense of bringing out an abundance of insect life. The temperature of the icy waters of the snow-fed pool changes but little, but the warm sunny days of June, July and August does have the effect of bringing out the great army of moths, bugs, grubs, millers, butterflies, and the great horde of insect life upon which the trout love to feed, hence the time for fly fishing. All surface lake anglers no doubt have noticed that at certain times when the surface of the lakes are agitated most that the fishing is best. Why? Simply because the fry of the white fish or other natural food of the trout then arise to the surface and the trout follow them. So when their natural food seeks the deeper waters the trout follow them down and deep water fishing must be resorted to in order to be successful. Any one versed in the habits of insect life and the nature of the other foods upon which the trout may be feeding will have little or no difficulty in determining when and how to angle successfully for them.

The following lines from the introduction to E. T. Allen Company's catalogue of sporting goods explain the objects of its issuance. Send for one. "To suit all tastes and incomes we are obliged to carry goods of a variety of styles and qualities. To the experienced angler we would say styles are continnally changing and we strive to keep in the lead. To the novice about to "go a-fishing," our advice is to buy the very best tackle he can afford. It is much more satisfactory to both dealer and purchaser, and in the end positively cheaper because of its lasting qualities. With a twenty-five cent rod and five cent line one may get much fun, yet with delicate tackle the pleasure of taking gamy fish is exquisite indeed. The manufacture of high grade tackle requires great care, time and experience, hence the cost; but it lasts years, where inferior grades last months. If your local dealer can not supply you with the goods you want, write us."

The New York Fish and Game Law.

What is known as the bill to codify the fish and game laws of the State of New York was signed by Governor Flower last Thursday, and it is now a law. In signing the bill the Governor said that the people, particularly the farmers, ought to be aroused on the subject of fish and game protection. That under proper laws the rivers, lakes and forests can be made a source of great income to the people. That New York has every facility for becoming a sportsman's paradise, and that means not only more and better food for the inhabitants, but it means a new source of income to many people. That all that is needed after the protective laws are framed is to instruct the people how to go to work to get the advantages which the laws offer. He signed the bill because it was the result of two years' work of a codifying commission. He did not think it was perfect, but it was a step in the right direction, "but another Legislature can easily remedy the few defects."

There are some good things in the bill and there are some that are utterly and wholly bad. So bad that it seems impossible that any thinking, reasoning man could have voted to make them the law of the State. This bill, as it was finally passed, is not the result of the labors of the Codifying Commission, although it retains some of the excellent suggestions made by the commission, and we question if the commissioners will thank anyone to credit them with the bill in its entirety at its final passage.

Governor Flower's comment upon the subject of fish and game protection and its results are clear, forceful and to the point, but he errs sadly in thinking the defects in this particular bill, now a law by reason of his signature, are few, and that they can be easily remedied. So far as the actual protection of fish is concerned the new law falls far short of the old one.

The old law did protect the black bass during the spawning season in some waters, but the new law does not cover the spawning season of this fish anywhere in the State, except in Lake George. That people living in the cities may utilize the holiday called Decoration Day, namely, the 30th of May, to fish for black bass, the bass season is made to open on that day, at least this is the plea that was made when it first became a law several years ago. Every observant angler knows that black bass spawn in New York all through the month of June and it is legal murder to open the season before July 1st.

The old law had some regard for those who have a liking for what are called coarse fish, in contra distinction to game fish, and the destruction of these fish was limited. The new law contains the vilest amendment that ever was printed in a law that pretended to protect fish, inasmuch as it allows certain fish in certain waters to be shot, speared or netted at any time. We have no liking for the pike, called pickerel, but common decency, to say nothing of a sense of fairness, compel us to regard the rights and wishes of those who have a fondness for them.

One section provides that "trout of any kind shall not be fished for, caught, killed or possessed between the first day of September and the fifteenth day of April following;" and three sections later the bill says that "salmon trout * * shall not be fished for, caught or killed in the inland waters of this State between the first day of October and the first day of May." The italics are ours. Over and over it has been pointed out that we have no fish whatever in the Eastern States rightly entitled to the name of "salmon trout," and the Fish Commissioners of New York have officially declared that the so-called salmon trout shall be known as "lake trout;" and yet men in the employ of the Fish Commission continue to report the number of salmon trout hatched and distributed, and the Commissioners sanction the report and stultify their own action, and the Legislature legislates for salmon trout and for pickerel when it means lake trout and pike. There is a salmon trout in Europe, the Pacific Coast has a trout called salmon trout, and in Canada still another fish is called salmon trout. All three are anadromous fishes with habits like the salmon, Srlar, hence the name; but the lake trout, namaycush, is a fish that never goes to salt water, and is found only in our deep, cold lakes, and it would be as fitting to call it a shad trout as it is to call it a salmon trout.

Briefly, the open seasons provided by the new law are as follows; Trout, which means all but the lake trout, April 15th to Sept. 1st, except in Spring brook, when the season opens April 1st. Lake George is also excepted and the season opens May 1st, but as there are no trout but lake trout in these waters it is an useless exception. Lake trout and land-locked salmon, May 1st to Octobler 1st; black bass, May 30th to Jan. 1st; mascalonge, same as the black bass; salmon, March 1st to August 15th.

The Canandaigua, N. Y., Angler's Association holds its second annual fishing contest at Canandaigua Lake on June 16th. The computation will be made according to the following table:

KINDS OF FISH.	LENGTH.	SCORE.
California mountain trout	8 inches	40 points.
German or brown trout	8 "	40 "
Whitefish	12 "	30 "
Lake trout	12 "	35 "
Black bass	8 "	35 "
Pike	12 "	30 "
Chub	8 "	8 "
Pickerel	12 "	8 "
Eel	18 "	6 "
Bullhead	8 "	5 "
Perch	6 "	5 "
Rock bass	6 "	5 "
Sunfish	6 "	4 "
Suckers	8 "	3 "
Carp	8 "	3 "

In all varieties each pound counts one.

All fish must be caught between 12 o'clock midnight and 10 o'clock P. M. June 16, 1892.

Fishing is restricted to Canandaigua Lake, its inlet and outlets.

Each and every fish must be caught with hook and line in hand, the lines handled and the fish landed by the contestants only.

A number of our leading anglers have been trying their skill with varying success during the past week. The proper season for fly-fishing has but just opened, and for the next two months no doubt but that great sport will be enjoyed in this line. Some of our best fly-fishermen prefer the mountain lakes over the streams of this State for the enjoyment of their favorite sport. The warm weather of the past few days has been very forceful inducements for outings in the hills.

Mrs. George T. Stagg, of Frankfort, Kentucky, now visiting in this State, holds the champion tarpon record, having caught at Fort Myers, Florida, one of these monsters weighing 205 pounds. This monster has been mounted and, at the request of Commissioner Henshall, sent to Chicago for exhibition at the World's Fair.

THE FARM.

LA SIESTA'S CATTLE CATALOGUE.

A Complete and Comprehensive List of the Holstein-Friesians There—Some Valuable Information About the Breed.

It is with feelings of pleasure that one takes up the splendidly compiled catalogue of Holstein-Friesian cattle now at this famous farm. The reputation this stock demonstrated throughout this state as well as abroad has made it an imperative duty for the proprietor to issue a catalogue. When its pages of tabulations, statistics and great records are carefully scanned the reader is immediately convinced that it must have taken weeks and months of study and labor to have it so complete and perfect. The showing made by the stock here shows that Mr. Burke has sought for the very top crosses of this great breed of cattle and the prizes the representatives of this breeding have won demonstrate clearer than anything else the estimation placed upon them by competent judges wherever these big black and white cattle have been placed in competition with others.

The herd now numbers over one hundred and twenty-five head. It is the largest west of the Rocky Mountains, and is, with very few exceptions, one of the largest in the United States. Mr. Burke carefully selected and imported for the past seven years the very best animals, as shown by their milk and butter records, that could be obtained in Holland, and in the East, and can now show in his herd celebrated cows of the Netherlands, Aggie, Artis, Menlo and Jacob families. Also young stock by two of the best bred Clothilde bulls in America, and the only two in the state, and young animals by prize winning representatives of all the great families. Nearly all of the younger animals have been born in this state, and are therefore thoroughly acclimated.

To the farmer who is seeking to improve his herd of cattle for home use and to the dairy man whose livelihood depends upon the amount of the milk and butter yield that comes from his farm this catalogue will prove most instructive and when the tables of comparisons are carefully read he can see whereon the success of the great dairy farms of the east has been founded. If space permitted, it would afford us pleasure to make excerpts from this well printed book. The following taken from its pages will be read with interest by our readers, any of whom can get catalogues on application to the owner:

In presenting this Catalogue, any lengthy history of the Holstein breed of cattle seems unnecessary. An intelligent reading public through the various able stock and agricultural journals and the public press generally, has become familiar with the history and general characteristics of the breed, but of their many triumphs I must speak at some length.

Holland, the home of this breed of cattle, has for many hundreds of years, been noted as occupying the first place in the dairy products of the world, and its cattle have been acknowledged as the most perfect for the production of milk, butter, cheese, and beef combined. The climate of their native country is rough and changeable, the range of temperature far exceeding that of our own latitude, a sufficient explanation for the hardiness which we have found in the Holsteins. They seem particularly adapted to the wants of the farmer, who is fast learning of the very great advantages they offer over all other breeds. He finds in them hardiness, early maturity, and milk in enormous quantity, and of a quality that produces the best of butter, which is remarkable for its keeping qualities, far exceeding that of the Jersey, or any other breed.

The great size of these cattle, surpassing the Short Horns, coupled with good feeding quality, assures the owner of fair compensation for his grades and old cows when turned to beef.

Motley, in his "History of the United Netherlands," speaking of these cattle and the thrifty condition in which, by their use, he found the farmers of Holland says: "On that scrap of solid ground, rescued by human energy from the ocean, were the most fertile pastures in the world. On these pastures grazed the most famous cattle in the world. An ox often weighed more than two thousand pounds. The cows produced two and three calves at a time. In a single village four thousand were counted. Butter and cheese were exported to the annual value of a million; salted provisions to an incredible extent. The farmers were industrious, thriving and independent.

We find the following in Willard's "Practical Dairy Husbandry:" "The Holstein or Dutch cattle of Holland are perhaps the most noted for the dairy of any originating on the continent of Europe. Holland has long been a dairy country, and the farmers there have given more care and attention to the r cows than to any other domestic animal. The breed is of a large size, and of a compact, massive frame, capable of making good beef. The horn is short and the hair short, fine and silky. The Holsteins have long been bred and cultivated with a view to develop their lacteal productiveness, and their milking qualities are truly wonderful."

It is a universally admitted fact that no other breed so successfully combines milk, cheese, butter and beef.

As milk producers, the Holstein-Friesians are without a parallel, and the milk containing, as it does, a large percentage of caseine, is of the very highest quality for the manufacture of cheese; nor does it sour so quickly in a warm climate.

In regard to Holstein milk for use in the creamery, the following from a large manufacturer and owner of creameries in Illinois, is taken from the National Live Stock Journal of Chicago. He says: "I determined to institute a careful comparison of the Holstein milk with that of other dairies. We have noticed all summer that our testors (cream gauges) showed in favor of the Holstein milk, and therefore were prepared for the favorable showing in the recent experiments. I set the milk of the Holstein cows—about fifty head—by itself, and in precisely the same manner as the other milk; had the cream churned separately, and the cheese also made by itself, and all in the same day, as I wished for my satisfaction to make the trial strictly impartial. From 100 pounds of Holstein milk I averaged 4 and 1-16 pounds of butter and 7 47-100 pounds of cheese. The butter was very fine, and number one in all respects, and the cheese of very superior quality. From my other milk I averaged three pounds of butter and seven pounds of cheese per 100 pounds of milk. The Holstein milk produced fourteen per cent of cream, and the other eleven to twelve per cent. The Holstein milk is drawn three miles, and the other ranging from half a mile to four miles. In both cases the night and morning milk was reset, and, of course, we could not gain as favorable results from either as we could have done if we had the milk fresh from the cows; and I think that treatment operated more against the Holstein milk than against the other, and hence the cream would not again separate so readily; but this peculiarity in the Holstein milk is offset by another, which I have noticed particularly—that is the best keeping milk I ever handled; therefore it can be held longer—a fact that ought to operate in its favor in marketing."

Twenty-seven grade Holstein cows, three of them two-year-old heifers, produced 219,900 pounds of milk, an average of 8,107 each. The milk was taken to a co-operative creamery association factory and netted $2,638.70, an average per cow of $97.73. This is exclusive of calves and pigs raised and sold. The cows on an average went dry 60 days, making an average in milk 305 days, and an average per head of over 26½ pounds per day. He raised nearly all these cows, using the best Holstein bulls he could get, always selecting the best heifer calves.

Grades milk nearly as well as thoroughbreds and such seems to be the opinion of all practical dairymen who have tried them. We seldom find a poor milker even among the grades, when sired by a bull deeply bred for many generations in well-known and tested milk and butter families. The grades are becoming very popular as family, town or city cows. When a nice, large, deep-milking, butter cow, of kind disposition, is desired at a reasonable price, a grade Holstein always fills the bill. Many of the grades are marked just like thoroughbreds, black and white in large spots or patches. However, many of the bloods, especially, have much more black than thoroughbreds. My experience is that the color of grades can be controlled to a great extent to suit the fancy of the breeder. I have observed, for years, that the grade off-spring, obtained by breeding a common or grade Short-Horn cow, to a thoroughbred Holstein-Friesian bull is, as a rule, much darker than the bull. There can be no doubt about this. Hence, if you desire to breed half-blood Holsteins, that are well marked, select for a sire, a registered bull that is mostly white, and nearly every calf will be as nicely marked as a full-blood. As a rule, roan Shorthorn cows, or roan cows of any breed do not produce, when crossed with a Holstein bull, well-marked calves. The calves from roan cows are black and white, but the black and white hairs are mixed, not separate in spots. Some men call calves of this color, black roans. They make as good milkers as the well-marked calves.

For family use, where quantity and quality of milk are both an object, the Holstein-Friesians have no equals. Their strong, vigorous constitutions and marked freedom from disease are important considerations, as milk conveys disease more readily than any other food. Further than this, the well-known cheese qualities of Holstein milk, furnish exactly what is needed to encourage the growth and strength of babes and young children.

MERITS OF HOLSTEIN MILK.

1ST.—It takes the cream longer to raise than it does the milk of other breeds.

2ND.—Holstein milk is more dense and does not sour as soon as other milk.

3RD.—Holstein milk is remarkably rich in caseine, the cheese basis; hence, for the production of cheese it is superior to the milk of other breeds.

4TH.—Holstein milk is rich and has a good body even when skimmed.

Some of our friends who are breeding Jersey cattle, may question this statement. As they claim that Holstein milk is thin even before the cream has been taken off. How do they know? Not one Jersey breeder in a hundred ever owned or milked a Holstein cow. I make no war upon Jersey cattle as they are good for butter, but I do know that many of the assertions made by Jersey breeders, respecting Holstein milk are not true. I know whereof I speak, as I have milked and owned Jerseys as well as Holsteins. Hence, I know the appearance and nature of the milk of both when it is first taken from the cow, also after it is skimmed, and for family and general dairy purposes it has no equal. After all the cream has been taken out of Holstein milk, it is not blue and thin like the skim milk from the Jersey cow, but is still rich in caseine; hence, is of superior quality for raising calves and pigs.

As butter cows, the best bred Holstein-Friesians surpass all other breeds, and within the past few years no breed has made such rapid advancement as butter producers.

Several families and several herds can show a larger average butter yield than any other breed.

In proportion to the whole number of cows tested those of this breed show a larger average yield than any other.

A large majority of all the public tests made in America, where cows of this breed have contested, have been won by Holstein-Friesians. In short, this is the greatest butter breed known.

QUALITY OF BUTTER.

The quality and flavor of Holstein-Friesian butter is very superior. It holds its flavor and carries unusually well and keeps longer.

At the Chicago Fat Stock and Dairy Show, held at Chicago in November, 1885, the following prizes were awarded the butter from registered Holstein-Friesians:

First prize on best tub of butter from New York State.

Special prize of $50 offered by the DeLaval Separator Company for the best 50 lbs. of butter, competing with 38 others.

Second prize for best five prints or rolls of one pound each, 24 competing, butter scored 96 points.

At the Minnesota State Fair Butter Test in 1886, all the prizes (three) were given to Holstein-Friesians, notwithstanding there were a greater number of Jerseys competing.

At the Iowa State Fair Butter Test the Holstein-Friesian again came out victor over the Jersey.

The Holstein-Friesian cow, Mercedes, won the Challenge Silver Cup offered by the Breeders' Gazette, of Chicago, for the largest thirty-day butter record, open for one year to July 1, 1883, to all breeds and the world, beating the celebrated Jersey butter cow, "Mary Ann of St. Lambert." She made 3 lbs. 10 oz. in one day, 24 lbs. 6 oz. in seven days, and 99 lbs. 6½ oz. in thirty days, butter being weighed before salting.

At Ohio State Fair, 1887, a Holstein cow was awarded the premium for producing the best quality of butter.

At American Fat Stock and Dairy Show of 1887, a Holstein-Friesian cow again took the premium for producing the best quality of butter.

The Sweepstakes Dairy butter of this show was also made from Holstein-Friesian cows.

The first prize for butter made in Michigan was awarded to butter made from Holstein-Friesian cows.

The Sweepstakes over butter of all breeds, there being eleven entries, was awarded the Holstein-Friesian butter, which scored higher than any other butter in the show.

PUBLIC TESTS.

In 1889, Dairy Herd Premiums were offered at the following State Fairs, and won by Holstein-Friesians:

Ohio, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas and Indiana, various breeds competing at each Fair; in Indiana the Sweepstakes Premium for bull, dairy breeds, a large number of cattle entering, the Holstein-Friesian won; also, the Sweepstakes for dairy cow was won by a Holstein-Friesian cow, with sharp competion. Among the dairy butter tests at the State Fair in 1889, those in Ohio, Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan and Detroit international, were won by cows of this breed. Holstein-Friesians made the best tests in milk at Ohio, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Michigan, Indiana and South Dakota. Thus it will be seen that this breed have won nearly all the important dairy prizes in butter and milk throughout the leading Fairs.

At the New York Dairy and Cattle Show in 1887, Holstein-Friesian butter was awarded first premium, competing with butter made from other breeds. At the same show "Clothilde" won the Sweepstakes for the best butter cow of any breed, the one producing the largest quantity of butter during twenty-four consecutive hours of the exhibition, sixteen animals being entered for the test, and twelve actually competing, of which five were Jersey, one Guernsey, and six Holstein-Friesians. Clothilde 4th, her three-year-old daughter by Netherland-Prince, stood second, the judges commending the fine quality of her butter.

In the test for "cow producing the largest quantity of butter during three consecutive days of the exhibition," at the Buffalo International Fair in 1888, the awards were first prize on Benola Fletcher, and second prize on Netherland Peeress, Holstein-Friesian both.

At the Ohio State Fair in 1887, the premium for the cow producing the greatest amount of butter in a given time was divided between two Holstein-Friesian cows, each making the same amount of butter and the most that was made.

At the Minnesota State Fair in 1887, a Holstein-Friesian cow was awarded the premium as the cow producing the greatest amount of butter.

At the Bay State Fair in 1888, a Holstein-Friesian cow won the special butter prize. Special milk prize was won by a Holstein-Friesian cow at same Fair.

In 1888 two special butter prizes were won by Holstein-Friesian cows.

At the Minnesota State Fair Butter Test in 1886, all the prizes (three) were given to Holstein-Friesians, notwithstandsng there were a great number of Jerseys competing.

At the Iowa State Fair Butter Test in 1886, the Holstein-Fresian again came out victor over the Jersey,

Many other instances of the success of the Holstein-Friesians as butter producers over cows of other breeds could be given but space forbids.

BEEF.

As a beef breed, the Holstein-Friesians are deservedly popular. In size, vigor and capacity to take on flesh at an early age (feed considered) they compare favorably with any of the distinct beef breeds.

This has been amply shown by the experience of every Holstein-Friesian breeder, dairymen who have raised their grades, various tests and experiments, and the position they have occupied whenever exhibited at the Chicago Fair Stock Show; where in 1888, it was found that a registered Holstein-Friesian steer had made the largest weight per diem of any animal ever exhibited at this show, and ever known to have been made in the United States.

Also a test made by the Agricultural College of Michigan, when two each of Galloways, Shorthorns, Holstein-Friesians and Jerseys, one Hereford and one Devon were selected and an accurate record kept for seven months, of food consumed, daily ration, monthly weights and gains, it was found that the two Holsteins had made the largest gain per day for a given time, and one of them the greatest gain per day since birth.

We would most respectfully call your attention to the following facts taken from the most reliable authority, among them, Prof. E. G. Morrow, of the State University, at Champagne, Ill., who makes the following condensed statement of his trial of the Ayrshires, Herefords, Holsteins and Shorthorns as beef producers. He shows the Holsteins to have gained 110 lbs., more than the best gain of any of the other three breeds, tried with the same care, feed, etc., for the six summer months, beginning April 26th, 1885, and at which time they were put on grass, and full grain feeding, after being wintered alike together.

The following table shows the results:

	GRASS & GRAIN.		GRASS ALONE.
Holsteins,	515	335	320	335	Four [one-half bloods, calved from March 20 to May 20, 1884.
Shorthorns,	400	270	230		Two full bloods, one high grade, calved from April 30 to May 13, 1384.

By the above table, the victory of 110 lbs. is given to the Holsteins and while none of the Holsteins have gained less than 335 lbs., on grass, not one of the other three breeds can show a gain of over 300 lbs. on grass. This not only gives the Holsteins the best gain, but also gives them the best average gain, although the trial goes to show them great beef producers as well as great milkers.

Mr. J. S. Lang, of Vassalboro, Maine, says, "his experiments with them as beef producers have been very gratifying, as they out-stripped all others in growth on the same feed, as steers at 18 months old, averaged in growth 6 feet and 7 inches, and if an impartial trial was instituted between Shorthorns and Holstein-Freisians, it would be found that the latter would cost the least per pound."

Samuel Chapman of this State, raised thirteen head of steer (half bloods) that averaged 350 lbs., in Chicago, before they averaged two years old. One averaged 1,900 lbs., at four years old.

J. B. Lucas, of Xenia, Ohio, had eight head of gray Holstein steers, that averaged 2,380 lbs., at four years old.

Syracuse weighed, alive, on day of killing	2,200 lbs.
Dressed beef	1,430 "
Hide	142 "
Rough Tallow	120 "
Per Cent of Dressed Beef	62.44
Per Cent of Offal	26
Signet weighed, alive	1,470 lbs.
Dressed Beef	915 "
Hide	76 "
Rough Tallow	126 "
Per Cent of Dressed Beef	62.31
Per Cent of Offal	24
Little Wonder weighed, alive	1,493 lbs.
Dressed Beef	791 "
Hide	78 "
Rough Tallow	124 "
Per Cent of Dressed Beef	52.93
Per Cent of Offal	33

Syracuse and Little Wonder had not been fattened for beef, and Signet had fed for some time, but she was not what beef men would regard as fat.

VEAL

For veal they far surpass all other breeds. Calves at five months, eleven days and five months twenty-three days old, each of which have weighed 600 pounds. Another at seven months, five days, weighed 705 pounds. One of these calves, commencing at three months, gained 148 lbs., in twenty-one days. Some seasons our entire herd of calves at five months of age have averaged over 500 lbs., each.

	Dec. 17, 1886,	530 "
	Mar. 17, 1887,	725 "
EUGUNE DE SUBMONTE.	Sept. 17 1886,	280 lbs.
No. 4018 H. F. H. B.	Dec. 17, 1886,	455 "
	Mar. 17, 1887,	640 "
SANTA YREZ, No. 4026 H. F. H. B.	Sept. 17, 1886,	260 lbs.
	Dec. 17, 1886,	425 "
	Mar. 17, 1887,	600 "

An increase of two pounds a day for the entire lot during the first six months while being acclimated on ordinary feed.

The following tables show that the Holstein-Friesian cattle now stand at the head in the dairy, far surpassing all other breeds in the production of milk, butter and cheese. Mr. Burke, in the closing pages, says:

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

American (U. S.) dairy interests are startlingly enormous. They represent an investment of more than three times the entire bank capital of the country; that is to say, the bank capital is a little less than $971,000,000, while the dairy interests amount to more than $3,000,000,000.

Of course my readers cannot swallow such frightful figures in a lump, and I will therefore arrange them in smaller, but still heroic doses.

The number of milch cows is over 21,000,000. They give each, annually, an average of 350 gallons of milk. This would make an aggregate milk production of 7,350,000,000 gallons, a miniature ocean, a fair-sized Niagara.

Four million gallons are used for cheese; 2,650,000,000 gallons pass through the hands of the milkman and the grocer, and down the throats of 60,000,000 men, women and babies.

The quantity of butter used is $1,350,000,000 pounds. (In this report a considerable amount of oleomargarine must have been sold as pure butter and census returns made.) And of cheese, there is consumed 6,500,000 pounds.

The value of our dairy products for 1891 was $500,000,000. This is $20,000,000 more than the value of our annual wheat yield for the entire United States.

And yet in the above figures the value of milk is put at 7 cents per gallon.

To feed these cows 6,000,000 acres of land are under cultivation (less than one acre to four cows), and 42,000,000 acres of pasture land (two acres to one cow).

The dairy machinery and agricultural implements employed are worth $200,000,000.

There are 750,000 men employed in the business (U. S. census), this allows only one man to 180 cows; whereas there is really employed, farming, milking and delivering, one man to forty cows or over 3,000,000 able-bodied men, which including their families amounts to over 9,000,000 of souls dependant on the dairy cow for their support.

One million horses are employed in producing the fodder for the cows and delivering the milk.

The cows consume 30,000,000 tons of hay, worth $6 a ton	$180,000,000
The horses consume 2,000,000 tons	12,000,000
Horses and cows consume 90,000,000 bushels of cornmeal worth at 40c. per bushel	36,000,000
The same amount of oatmeal at 35c	31,500,000
275,000,000 bushels of oats at 31½c.	85,600,000
3,200,000 bushels of bran at 32c	1,000,000
Brewery grains, sprouts and questionable feeds	2,900,000
	$350,000,000

And this allows only $17 per cow per annum or less than $1.50 per month per cow for feed, or not what the manure is worth of each animal. The reports from European countries and the United States average the product of each cow to be six tons of manure per annum and value 15 francs (3.00) per ton for grain-fed dairy animals or $18 per head per annum; being less than the cost per head for feeding as shown by the United States census.

The average cow yields 350 gallons of milk per year (U. S. census return), which gives a total product of 7,350,000,000 gallons; at 12c. per gallon (the average price of the U. S.) would give a total return to the dairy farmers of $882,000,000 per annum; deduct $350,000,000, cost of feed as above; profit, $523,000,000, less labor, interest, etc.

But suppose by the use of thoroughbred Holstein bulls on grade cows the output of milk was doubled and then the pro rata per cow would only be 700 gallons a year or less than 6,000 pounds of milk a year; and admit that the cost of feed was also doubled, it would still leave a gain of $532,000,000, representing that much more profit to the dairy farmer of the United States by the using of one pure Holstein bull to every forty cows in his heard.

In other words, valuing Holstein bulls at $100 apiece, or an expense of $52,000,000 for the first year, for the entire United States, the profits could be increased to $500,000,000 a year; or, in five years the total outlay would only amount to fifty cents per cow to obtain a profit of 5,000 per cent.

The above estimate, though double the latest census returns, is not half what hundreds of two-year-old Holstein heifers have given; and not within forty per cent of what my entire herd of thoroughbred Holstein-Friesians yield me (on ordinary dairy feed) including over thirty per cent of yearlings, past and two-year-olds (scant) with their first half.

Although wounds in man and the lower animals are similar, as far as causation and repair are concerned, there must of necessity be, in many cases, a difference in their practical treatment, on account of not being able to control our patient. The dressings used in human practice (antiseptic gauze, bandages, etc.) cannot always be kept in place and consequently the wound soon becomes infected with pus microbes and other pathogenic bacteria. Suppuration and slow heating follow, with septicæmia, pœmia, erysipelas and tetanus as possible sequelæ. All veterinary practitioners know how utterly impossible it is to keep a majority of the wounds met with in every-day practice, and which must be treated under all kinds of adverse circumstances, aseptic. While it is easier to prevent suppuration than to arrest it, we are often unable, even when the wound has been seen soon after its infliction, to get healing by primary union. Being unable to maintain asepsis and thus prevent suppuration, a majority of wounds must heal by the formation of visible granulations, and the question which presents itself to the practitioner is, how shall such such wounds be treated? Disinfecting solutions should, of course, be included in the treatment of all wounds, but what should be done after disinfecting as thoroughly as possible? Should antiseptic ointments be applied without bandages, as is sometimes done? or should the wound be dressed with some antiseptic and then bandaged? or, again, should some powder be dusted on and no bandage applied?

It is not my purpose in this article to discuss the treatment best adapted to the different classes of wounds met with in veterinary practice, but to refer briefly to a line of treatment adapted to most granulating wounds, which has given good results in my hands, the theory of which has been demonstrated to be correct by some experiments made in our laboratory at the Iowa Agricultural College. These experiments I will describe further on. It is well known that where granulating wounds are exposed to the atmosphere they have a tendency to scab over if suppuration be not too profuse. Taking advantage of this fact, the treatment referred to consists of applying something to the surface of the wound which will prevent germ growth, and at the same time assist Nature in forming a protecting scab. (While I am aware that this line of treatment is not new to many, yet I know by frequent contact with members of the profession that it is not generally practiced.) Of the many preparations used for this purpose I have found none as effective as iodoform and calomel combined. The iodoform acts as an antiseptic, and the calomel, being a dessicant, forms, in conjunction with the wound secretions, a firm scab.

Before applying the powder the wound should be irrigated for several minutes, ten at least, with a disinfecting solution. I believe the mistake of not irrigating wounds long enough is often made. As experiments have shown that the staphylococcus pyogenes aurens is not always destroyed by being ten minutes in a 1.1000 solution of corrosive sublimate, how can we expect to destroy it in less time in the recesses of the wound when it is protected by the secretions? After as thoroughly disinfecting the parts as possible, the iodoform and calomel, mixed in equal parts or one part of iodoform to two of calomel, should be dusted over the surface of the wound until no more will adhere. After about one-half hour it should be dusted again and then left until the next day, when, if suppurating but little, all that is necessary to apply again as the day before. If, however, there is much suppuration and no scab formed, the wound should be again irrigated and then treated as before. All that is generally necessary after the first or second application is to apply the powder once or twice daily until a hard scab forms over the entire surface of the wound. If this treatment is properly carried out the wound soon becomes covered with a hard, dry, protecting covering, under which cicatrization goes on rapidly. Treated in this way it will do much better than if covered with oakum, jute, or absorbent cotton and then bandaged, because in the last instance suppuration will not be entirely arrested, and what pus forms will be kept more or less in contact with the wound, and this, with the rubbing of the bandage against the part, interferes with the granulation and prevents the formation of a normal scab. As a result the wound heals slowly, and in many cases fungus granulations appear.

If the wound be simply washed with an antiseptic solution, as is often done, and no powder applied, suppuration, although retarded for a little while, soon becomes profuse again, causing the natural scab to be imperfectly formed.

I do not wish to be understood as advocating this line of treatment for all wounds. I only recommend it for those which of necessity must heal by granulation, and which cannot be kept aseptic. Those which can be induced to heal by primary union, or can be dressed antiseptically and kept aseptic, should be treated the same as similar wounds in man. The following cases will serve to illustrate to what kind of wounds the iodoform and calomel can be successfully applied.

Case 1.—Sorrel filly, about two years old, received, among other injuries, by running into a barbed-wire fence, an oblique cut three inches in length across the anterior face of the large metacarpal bone, completely severing the tendons of the ant-extensor of the phalanges. As the case was not seen until several days after the accident, no sutures were inserted, but the wound was dressed antiseptically and a roller bandage applied. This treatment did not prove satisfactory. Pus accumulated under the dressing and the granulations becoming unhealthy, I decided to apply the iodoform-calomel powder. Daily applications of this soon caused the wound to become covered with a protecting scab, under which cicatrization progressed rapidly.

Case 2.—Gelding, with a large, lacerated wound just above the inner heel of the posterior limb, involving the coronary band, was brought to the college infirmary for treatment. Disinfection of the entire foot was attempted by placing it in a bucket of corrosive sublimate solution, after which the wound was dressed antiseptically and bandaged. On account of the location of the injury it could not be kept aseptic, although suppurating but little. It was constantly irritated by the bandages and made but little progress toward repair. For this reason all bandages were discontinued and the iodoform and calomel applied. The case began to improve at once (quite a change being noticed in twenty-four hours), and made a good recovery.

Case 3.—A bay mare, three years old, running in pasture, became frightened in the night and ran into a fence, inflicting a wound about six inches in length across the inner side of the forearm, just above the lower termination of the superficial pectoral muscle. It was washed with a disinfecting solution, sutured, and bandaged. Being in a difficult place to dress properly, suppuration occurred, and only a small portion healed by primary union. After the sutures gave way bandages were discontinued and only the powder applied, as in other cases. The wound healed fast.

A good way to apply the powder is by means of the small insect-powder blower, which can be obtained of any druggist. In the absence of this or any other powder blower, I apply it with a spatula, or small wooden paddle. In some cases this is preferable to the blower, as more can be made to adhere.

The experiments and results obtained therefrom, referred to in the beginning of this article, were as follows: Knowing that iodoform was extensively used as an application to wounds, but still claimed by some to be of little value, we determined to test its effects on the stapeylococcus pyogenes aureus, one of the most common pus microbes. In order to have the circumstances as similar as possible to those in wounds treated with iodoform, surface inoculations were made on agar-agar and iodoform dusted over the surface. The cultures were than either left to develop in the temperature of the room or placed in a thermostat at a temperature of about 37 degrees Centigrade. No growth was perceptible in any tube treated in this way, even when left in the thermostat for several days, but in every instance the control tube (inoculated tube not dusted with iodoform) showed, after twenty-four hours, a vigorous growth of the aureus.

The same experiment was repeated, with the exception of using bituminized iodoform in place of the simple iodoform, with the same results. No growth whatever took place except in the control tube, where it was vigorous.

The new preparation known as idol, which is claimed to be equally as effective as iodoform, but miuus the disagreeable odor, was also tried, but with very different results. In every instance there was a very vigorous growth, apparently as vigorous as in the control tubes.

In order to determine whether or not calomel could be added to iodoform without destroying the antiseptic effects of the latter, experiments were made with a mixture of equal parts, and one part of iodoform to two of calomel. Both mixtures proved as effective as iodoform alone.

Similar experiments were also made with boracic and salycilic acid and pyoktanin (methyl violet). Each preparation was used alone, and in all cases there was no growth, except in control tubes.

From these experiments we conclude that all the preparations experimented with will prevent germ growth in a wound if kept in contact with all parts of its surface. Iodoform, bituminized iodoform, and iodoform and calomel mixed, not being soluble in the wound secretions, will remain longer on the surface, and are consequently better preparations to use than the others.—W. McGinty on the Value of Pacing Foundation Theory.

Error dies hard. It seems that several venerable and moss-grown theories still obtain support and credence—theories that never had and never could have had any foundation in fact; theories without even the shadow of a reason for their existence which can commend itself to the intelligence of any thinking man for one minuie. Such seems to be the theory that the pacing gait has been and is a factor in the production of trotting speed. That Mr. Wallace's old favorite, the plug pacer with whiskers around his ankles, was the foundation, the corner-stone, as it were, of the American trotter of to-day. That the speed of the 2:10 trotter is a legitimate heritage from the pacer of the past, who could not pace a mile in five minutes to save his life.

Why the "woods are full" of these famed plug pacers to-day, and thousands of them cannot go any faster than their ancestors could 500 years ago. The racing pacers among them are, I fancy, just about as numerous now as in the past, as numerous as white blackbirds. I venture the assertion that no breeder will claim over his own signature that a strain of racing pacers or trotters could be produced from the plug pacers of the country in one hundred and fifty years. It is hard to understand how any one conversant with the laws of heredity can claim, or even admit, that a pacer of unmixed scrub parentage can have speed or any race horse quality. If we admit, for the sake of argument, that there may have been such horses at rare intervals, it is harder still to understand how any one can claim that they could transmit speed, not only at the pacing gait, but at the trotting gait as well. Every breeder knows that any purely-accidental quality is rarely transmitted.

According to Mr. Wallace, as quoted by Abdallah in your issue of the 14th inst., the earlier breeders were ashamed of pacing crosses in their pedigrees, and many of them suppressed the truth and allowed a thoroughbred cross when an honest pedigree ought to have shown a pacer. Mr. Wallace's idea, if I understand it, was that the pacing cross was preferable, but that the earlier breeders did not know what was good for them. My idea is that the earlier breeders knew the bewhiskered one quite well, and knowing him as they did, showed their sense by being ashamed of him. They knew that the plug pacer had no speed at any gait and that nine times out of ten his gait itself was purely accidental. They knew that the thoroughbred had speed at one gait and courage, stamina and a perfect physical structure; that he inherited those qualities and transmitted them. I really don't see why we should blame the earlier breeders for being ashamed of the pacer; they are assuredly far in advance of many of the writers of the present day in their knowledge of the breeding problem.

To sum up the whole case, the plug pacer, who had no speed at any gait; whose ancestors had no speed at any gait; whose possession of the pacing gait was, in a majority of cases, purely accidental, could and did transmit speed at the trotting gait. The thoroughbred who had speed at one gait, and the physical qualities without which speed at any gait is an impossibility, could not and did not transmit speed at the trotting gait. Verily, the recorded wisdom of the ancients is a wonderful thtng, and no less wonderful is the avidity with which some writers of the present generation swallow it. No, Abdallah, Direct and the other pacers you mention are not relations to Mr. Wallace's old favorite, the bewhiskered one, and no one can prove that they are without proving that they have "whiskers on their ankles," and cannot pace a mile in five minutes.—"McGinty" in Kentucky Stock Farm.

Messrs. Baker & Hamilton, San Francisco, Cal.

Gentlemen:—The Bain wagon I got of you six or seven years ago was a good one. The tires have never been reset, and everything is solid. Yours respectfully,

Frank Femmons.

Some History.

As Capt. Treacy says: "A man that does not know horse cannot write horse." Mr. Parlin seems to be of the same opinion when he says:

Those who write on equine topics sometimes shoot very wide of the mark. The following, which is going the rounds, is an example of that sort of target practice:

The four greatest trotting sires are Electioneer with 100 in the list, George Wilkes with 76, Happy Medium with 71 and Blue Bull with 67. The second dams of each of these great sires, except George Wilkes and Happy Medium, are of unknown blood, and there is no thoroughbred blood in the dams of either of them.

As the breeding of the second dams of Electioneer and Blue Bull have been traced, how can it be known that they are not by strictly thoroughbred sires? The dam of Happy Medium was Princess, 2:30, by Andrus' Hambletonian, son of Judson's Hambletonian. Judson's Hambletonian was by Bishop's Hambletonian, a thoroughbred son of imp. Messenger. His dam was by Wells' Magnum Bonum, a son of the thoroughbred imported Magnum Bonum. Princess also gets another infusion of thoroughbred through her dam, which was by Burdick's Engineer. So much for the dam of Happy Medium.

The dam of George Wilkes was Dolly Spanker. Dolly Spanker's dam was Telegraph. Telegraph was by Baker's Highlander. Her dam was an English imported mare represented to be thoroughbred, and we have never yet seen a statement even denying this fact. Baker's Highlander was by Paul's Highlander, whose sire was Kellogg's Highlander, by Sherman Morgan.

The dam of Paul's Highlander was by a horse called Young Lion, whose sire was Defiance. The dam of Young Lion aws also an imported English thoroughbred which was once driven 100 miles in a day by Parson Steele, if report is correct. This gives Dolly Spanker a strong dash of warm blood close up. The dam of Blue Bull was "got by Selim, a Truxton horse of great power," says Mr. Wallace. Mr. Joseph Battell has investigated the matter, and finds that the "Truxton horse of great power" was largely, if not wholly, thoroughbred. The second dam of Electioneer had every appearance of close relationship with thoroughbred. She bore a strong resemblance to Cadmus stock, was found in a section of country where Cadmus stood, and if the facts could be known, we have no doubt that it would be proved that she came from the same source as Smuggler, 2:15½, and the renowned Pocahontas, 2:17½. It will be seen by the above that the dams of three out of the four above-named stallions had a strong dash of thoroughbred.—Live Stock Record.

Points About Horses.

A Gazette reporter was in the stables of M. A. Maupin on the South Side recently, and while there engaged that gentleman, who is one of the best-posted men on horses in Texas in a general conversation about the kinds and character of horses.

"A horse is an intelligent animal generally," said he, "but like some men, some horses have but little brains; unless a horse has brains you can't teach him. Some horses, like some men, are mean, and they won't do to fool with. Now, look at that horse there, pointing to a tall bay, a fine-looking animal, fifteen hands high, which was standing in a stall. "You can't teach him anything."

"Why not?"

"Well, I will tell you the difference in heads, but have a care of his heels. Now, look at that brute's head, that rounding nose, that tapering forehead and that broad, full place between the eyes. You can't trust him.

"Now look at that other animal in the stall next to him. That's an awful good mare—as true as the sun. In her you can see breadth and fullness between the eyes and ears. You couldn't induce that mare to act mean or hurt anybody. In a horse the eye should be full, and in color a hazel is good.

"Now as to the ear. I like a small, thin ear, and want a horse to throw its ears well forward. Look out for the brute that wants to listen to all the conversation going on behind him. The horse that turns back his ears till they almost meet at the points, take my word for it, is sure to do something wrong. See that straight, elegant face.

"A horse with a dishing face is cowardly, and a cowardly brute is really vicious. Then I like square muzzle with large nostrils to let in plenty of air to the lungs. For the under side of the head of a good horse should be well cut under the jowl, with jawbones broad and wide apart under the throttle.

"The next thing to consider is the build of an animal. Never buy a long-legged, stilty horse. Let him have a short, straight back and a straight rump, and you've got a gentleman's horse. The withers should be high and the shoulders well set back and broad, but don't get them too deep in the chest. The foreleg should be short. Give him a pretty straight hind leg with the hock low down, the pastern joint of good length, and a medium broad foot."—Fort Worth Gazette.

The Name Hambletonian.

In answer to the question why the Messengers are not called Messengers instead of Hambletonians, a writer in the Spirit of the Hub says: "The word Hambletonian originated from the word Hambleton. The first horse of that name was Hambletonian, son of imported Messenger. He was called by Mr. Wallace a thoroughbred horse and he claims that he was out of a mare by imported Shark and she out of one by imported Medley. In 1819 he was sold to Isaac Bishop and with the exception of the years 1823 and 1824 in Duchess County, N. Y., he made all his seasons in Washington County, and on the border of Vermont. He left numerous sons and daughters in that country the best of which was Harris Hambletonian known as Liberty. Black Hawk covered a mare by Liberty, and produced Sherman Black Hawk, he in turn was mated with a daughter of Liberty and get Vermont Hero and he was mated with a mare which had the blood of Bishop Hambletonian and the result was Gen. Knox. Bishop Hambletonian from Silvertail, imp. Messenger, got One Eye, and she was the dam of the Charles Kent Mare, dam of Rysdyk's Hambletonian. We presume that this is where Hambletonian 10 gets his name. Why the Hambletonians are not called Messengers is because a later family has been founded than that of Hambletonian, and it is being divided into others like the Wilkes and Nutwoods. The Hambletonians cannot properly be called Messengers for the reason that they are so mixed with Clays, Stars, Pilots, Morgans, Blackwoods, etc., that the old Messenger form is running out. Gideon was the strongest inbred Messenger horse in his day. Thorndale Chief is one of the closest inbred Messengers which we know, and he possesses many of the qualities of old Winthrop Messenger."

THE BROOKLYN HANDICAP OF 1892.

Judge Morrow Wins It in Fast Time From a Big Field—Favorite Longstreet Last.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The spring meeting of the Brooklyn Jockey Club opened to-day at Gravesend. Six events were on the programme, including the great Brooklyn Handicap, the fourth race, worth $25,000. It was expected that there would be eighteen starters, with all the leading jockeys up except Garrison. During the night it rained heavily and the track was very muddy this morning, but under the effect of the sun and wind it dried out rapidly.

It was conceded that Longstreet was unbeatable, at least on a good track, though there was some expectation that he would not be started, as the Dwyers would not care to risk straining him. Many pinned their faith upon such good mud horses as Russell, Judge Morrow, Pickicker and Kingmaker.

The perfect summer weather during the morning brought out between 30,000 and 35,000 people, who crowded into the grounds to witness the great Brooklyn Handicap. Early this morning a great force of men were put at work on the track, with the result that it was in fairly good condition when time for racing came. The crowd took little interest in the events preceding the handicap. They were waiting for the struggle for the $25,000 stake.

The starters were: Longstreet, 128 (McLaughlin); Raceland, 120 (Fitzpatrick); Banquet, 110 (Lamley); Judge Morrow, 116 (Covington); Pessara, 115 (Taral); Clarendon, 114 (Murphy); Fairview, 100 (Doggett); Russell, 114 (Littlefield); Portchester, 112 (Simms); Madstone, 108 (Bergen); George W., 100 (Midgley), and Kingmaker, 97 (Narvaez).

The second betting was: Longstreet, 4 to 5, out; Raceland, 10 to 1, 4 to 1; Banquet, 20 to 1, 8 to 1; Judge Morrow, 6 to 1, 2 to 1; Pessara, 20 to 1, 8 to 1; Clarendon, 20 to 1, 80 to 1; Fairview, 10 to 1, 4 to 1; Russell, 4 to 1, 8 to 5; Portchester, 50 to 1, 20 to 1; Madstone, 25 to 1. 8 to 1; George W., 200 to 1, 50 to 1; Kingmaker, 50 to 1, 20 to 1.

The start was delayed fully 10 minutes, and there were several uneven breakaways before the flag finally dropped, when the favorite, Longstreet, was the most prominent of the bunch. There was a lightweight on Fairview, who was hurried out in front of Longstreet to make the running. His rider's orders was to take the lead, and Doggett obeyed his instructions, giving the backers of the others a bad scare in the opening furlong by opening up a gap of three lengths from Longstreet. The pace was a killing one, and at the quarter-pole the timers marked it down as 23 seconds, with Fairview five lengths in front of Russell. Longstreet succumbed to the hot pace and dropped back alongside of Raceland and Pessara.

When well into the homestretch Mac became worried at Fairview's great advantage, and, cutting loose from his companions set out to catch him. Soon after, the race was seen to lie between Russell, Judge Morrow, Pessara and Raceland. On the upper turn Russell held the first place by an open length from Judge Morrow. His backers were temporarily jubilant, but Russell quit just where he did last year. When he refused to to run further Covington became overconfident and began easing up on Judge Morrow, whereupon Taral, on Pessara, who had been unable to get through the bunch, came up with a tremendous burst of speed. Fortunately for Morris, Covington turned in his saddle and discovered the danger just in time, a sixteenth from the finish. He then began to ride Judge Morrow hard. Pessara was slowly but surely gaining on him, and undoubtedly would pass had not Covington drawn his whip and began to flog Morrow. In reality he was hitting Pessara on the nose, and each time the lash came down Pessara would draw back his head to escape punishment. Taral shouted to the lad to stop, but he kept right on smashing Pessara over the nose. The finish saw Judge Morrow the victor by a head over Pessara, Russell third, three lengths away. Then came Raceland, Claredon, Banquet, George W., Kingmaker, Fairview, Madstone, Portchester, and last of all the 4 to 5 favorite, Longstreet, The distance was one and a quarter miles, and the time was: First furlong, 23 sec., the half, 47¾, three-quarters, 1:14, mile, 1:42½, and mile and a quarter, 2:08¾. The winner is a five-year-old bay horse, by Vagabond-Moonlight. He took part in 28 races last year, winning 8.

Raceland's poor performance is explained by the fact that when he returned to the stand after the race it was seen that his saddle-girth had broken and Fitzpatrick was minus one of his stirrups.

Major Covington rode a really clever race on the winner, and when he was placed in the floral chair and horseshoe that was presented to the winning jockey by the association the vast assemblage favored him with a grand salvo of applause. The lad deserved all the praise that was heaped upon him by the distinguished group of turfmen surrounding the judges' stand.

Following is a list we have compiled of the winners of the Brooklyn, placed horses, time, etc.:

WINNERS OF BROOKLYN HANDICAP—1¼ MILES.

1887	Dry Monopole..	Glenelg (imp.).....	Blue Wing.....	106	2:07
1888	The Bard.....	Longfellow.....	Hanover.....	125	2:13
1889	Exile.....	Mortemer (imp.).....	Prince Royal	116	2:07½
1890	Castaway II.....	Outcast.....	Badge.....	100	2:10
1891	Tenny.....	Rayon d' Or (imp...	Prince Royal	128	2:10
1892	Judge Morrow..	Vagabond.....	Pessara	116	2:08¾

In 1887 came the famous heads-apart finish between Dry Monopole, Blue Wing and Hidalgo. Castaway's win was on a slow track, and the time made was very creditable. He was at 10 to 1 in the betting. Judge Morrow was at 7 to 1 last Monday. Vagabond, sire of the winner of this season's Brooklyn, was by Vandal, dam Gem, by Childe Harold, second dam Diamond, by Epsilon. Judge Morrow's dam, Moonlight, was by Joe Johnson, dam Skylight, by Jack Malone; second dam, Vesperlight, by Childe Harold—distinguished families. Joe Johnson was by Hunter's Lexington (sire of Maud Hampton, dam of Ban Fox and King Fox; Belle of Maywood, dam of Tenny, and many other good ones), dam Betsy Hunter, by Oliver. Judge Morrow is a bay horse of good size, with a long neck and body, which is extremely shapely. He is not deep through the heart and has two hind legs white nearly up to the hock. As a two-year-old he won four races out of eleven starts, amongst his wins being the the Titan Stakes, worth $12,840 to the winner. As a three-year-old, twelve races ont of eighteen starts, among the stakes captured being the Bayonne Stakes at Elizabeth, N. J., worth $940 to the winner; the Fort Hamilton Handicap at Brooklyn, worth $2,295, to Green B. Morris, his owner; San Simeon Handicap at Westchester, worth $910; the Volunteer Handicap, at Coney Island, worth $3,080 to the winner; the Raritan Stakes, at Monmouth, worth $1,900; the Palisade Stakes, at Monmouth (ridden by Narvaez), worth $1,850; Cape May Handicap, same place, value to winner $3,350, and September Stakes, at Coney Island, value $2,000. As stated above, he won eight races as a four-year-old out of twenty-eight starts, the Sheepshead Bay Handicap, value $2,295; the Knickerbocker Handicap, $1,990, and Second Special at Brooklyn, $3,100, being his most notable wins.

How Direct Learned to Pace.

"Speaking of Direct," Monroe Salisbury said the other day, "I notice that the writers on horse topics persist in saying that Direct is a converted trotter. The contrary is the fact. He was a natural trotter until converted to pacing. When he was a little fellow running with his mother he would start off on an amble, but as soon as he increased his speed always broke into a square trot. Every one knows he was trotting bred. The reason why he carried quite a good deal of weight was because he seemed to be better balanced when shod that way, and not because it was necessary to keep him from pacing. The amount of weight he carried has been greatly exaggerated. Do you know from the day the little black devil was foaled I believed that he would prove a phenomenon, a world-beater. As a three-year-old he trotted way down in 18 and a fraction, and was showing increased speed every hour. A mile in 2:10 was not below his limit had I kept him going at the trot. In his four-year-old form I took him East and slowly prepared him for races. He showed phenomenal bursts of speed in his work, and crowds gathered on the quarterstretch to see him come down. At East Saginaw he met with a terrible accident that ended his trotting days. My driver hitched him up one morning to give him his usual work, when I discovered a loose shoe in front and told him he had better not work him. He insisted that the shoe would stick, and I let him go. He was moving so well that when he reached the homestretch the crowd that usually gathered to see him yelled at the driver to let him out. He did so, and the little fellow came home as if he was running away at a trot. In the effort he threw the loose front shoe, which struck him in the flank with such force as to cut a frightful gash. He lost a great deal of blood and was very weak. The accident threw him out of training that season. Last spring I took a fancy to see if he could not be made to pace. So one morning I called to one of my men to bring me the hobbles, and they were put on the little fellow. He had to pace, and with patience and care I got him going about a six-minute gait. In spots, however, he showed a good deal of speed. I took him into the stable and ordered my foreman to enter him throughout the grand circuit in every pacing stake. 'Why,' exclaimed my man, 'Direct can't pace.' 'Well, I said, 'he has paced with me;' and so the thing was done. I drove him in hobbles a few times, got him to going well, and then turned him over to my trainer. Before he left the Slope I knew we had a world-beater. In all of Direct's racing he has never made a mistake; he always sticks to his gait. I should not be surprised if eventually he paced a mile in two minutes. All the Directors stick to their gait. I had to give the owner of Direct's dam the service of Director and a year's keep of mare and colt to get him to breed his mare to the old horse. One day I asked the owner what he would rather have than the mare and colt. He said $2,000. I gave him his price, and subsequently told him that I expected to make more money out of that black colt than he would make out of his orange grove in a lifetime. The old man laughed at what he termed my folly. As to Director, 2:17 was no limit to his speed. Had I continued him on the turf, 2:12 would not have stopped him."

The Stark Mare.

In the summer of 1887 John Splan brought east with Rarus a mare that was considered the trotting wonder of the Pacific slope. Budd Doble and Mr. Salisbury had seen this mare trot at the Sacramento track a half in 1:06 and a quarter in 31½ seconds. She was at that time called the "Stark Mare" and $27,000 was refused for her, but by the time she arrived at Chicago she was unfit to start in her races. She was not much improved when she reached Rochester and then she was shipped to the stable of Milton Hoag, at Seneca Falls, whose brother was a half owner of the mare, and there, after a few weeks' rest, she came to herself again and was given a couple of trials on the half-mile track at the farm. She showed a quarter there in 33 seconds and a half in 1:10 to a 145-lb. wagon, but she went lame before she was ever started in a race and has never taken any record. When a Review representative called upon Milton Hoag recently at his handsome residence in Seneca Falls the first animal that he placed his eye on was this grand old mare, now twenty years old, but strong and rugged and well preserved, suckling a colt by Seneca Nutbourne that had arrived but a few days previous. The old mare is called Lady Hoag. She is by Niagara, son of Mambrino Chief 11, dam by Belmont, thoroughbred, and second dam by St. Clair, a pacer of unknown breeding that sired Lady St. Clair 2:20 and dams of Bonita, 2:18½, Manzanita, 2:16 and others.

It seems the very irony of fate that a mare with such a phenomenal flight of speed should never have been able to have a fast record or even to have made herself standard by entering the 2:30 list. She has produced five colts. The first of these, Springbrook, by William M. Rysdyk 5703, went a mile last year in 2:27 to a road cart, and, it is believed, will enter the list this year. Her second foal, Eddy Jerome, is the premier stallion at the Hoag Stock Farm. Her third foal was by Nutbourne, her fourth by Waterloo and her fifth by Seneca Nutbourne. Mr. Hoag's farm of fifty acres lies about two miles from the city, but his stables in town are large enough to accommodate most of his stock, of which he has thirty-one head at present, and are located back of his residence within a block of the hotel. Eddy Jerome is a brown stallion, by Jerome Eddy 2:15½, out of Lady Hoag, that, with the speed inheritance derived from both sire and dam, will undoubtedly prove a very valuable sire. He is a large rangy, clean-limbed horse, and many of his colts are showing that they possess speed. Among the mares and fillies that I saw at Mr. Hoag's stable were daughters of Mercury 847, Schuyler 2:26, Homer 1235, Yataghan 10879 and others. Some of Mr. Hoag's recent purchases are remarkably rich in fashionable blood. Tiburon is a chestnut colt, by Yataghan, dam by Guy Wilkes 2:15¼; second dam by The Moor; third dam by Clark Chief 89. As Yataghan is sired by Lord Russell, the now famous brother to Maud S. 2:08¾, out of Yolande, the dam of three in the list, it will be seen that this youngster combines the blood of three remarkably great broodmares—Miss Russell, Yolande and Lady Bunker.—Horse Review.

The Driving Horse.

While we are day by day striving after the glory and profit that springs from the production of the campaigning trotters, how many breeders are there trying to swell the supply that has never yet equaled the demand for stylish, first-class drivers? Though it is quite possible to breed for speed and beauty—to breed horses equally fitted for the turf and the road—few have ever succeeded in doing well two things at once, either in horse-breeding or in any other direction. It is true that those natural qualifications that as a rule best fit a horse for the track also best fit him for the road, boulevard and park; but it is also true that the training and racing of turf horses, in the great majority of cases, render them anything but ideal drivers.

What is an ideal driver? We should define him, briefly, as a horse of good size, high style and finish, including of course acceptable (preferably solid) color, magnificence of carriage and action, fair trotting speed, absolute soundness and nerve and ambition in harness, combined with a safe and docile disposition. The horse combining all these qualities must of course be produced from trotting blood; and as in his breeding the question of high speed is subordinated to the greater essentials in an ideal driver, fashionable trotting blood is not necessary to his production, though of course the truth should not be overlooked that the better the blood the better the horse, and the purer the pedigree the more money he will bring in open market. Outside of specimens of this class of horse found in the trotting breed, the hackney comes the nearest to filling the place; but we contend that by intelligent selection and breeding we can produce from trotting blood road and park horses with all the excellences possessed by the hackney and superior to him in many points. It is certainly a perverted taste that prefers the chopping knee-action of the hackney to the smooth, rolling glide of the trotting-bred horse; and he who avers that among trotting-bred horses cannot be found individuals possessing beauty, finish and structural quality equal to those found in the best hackney specimens has but an imperfect acquaintance with the national American breed of horses. It is true that in the mad race after speed alone many breed from misshapen, unsound, coarse and individually inferior trotting horses—and the same may be said of breeders of thoroughbreds; but we hold that the ideal breeder, either in the trotting or thoroughbred ranks, does not breed for speed alone, and will turn away from inferior individuality, no matter what high degree of speed potency marks the blood. The pernicious idea that a fashionable pedigree or a fast record or fast progeny excuses individual inferiority does not appeal to the discriminating intelligence of advanced horsemen. And, of course, our best breeders of trotters are becoming more and more exacting as to the individuality of the animals from which they breed, and so are the buyers at the great sales, as the observing attendant at the ringside may readily perceive, says the Horseman.

To breed desirable road horses does not involve great expenditure, as does the establishment of a stud for the production of turf horses. It is not difficult to find at moderate prices stallions sufficiently well-bred for this purpose, and of the requisite size, style, quality, action and general individuality. The great essential is that the stallion shall have the blood force to reproduce himself with uniformity, for the demand for matched teams is a never-ceasing, a never-supplied one, and one that it is richly remunerative to meet. Mares suitable to produce fancy roadsters and drivers, though necessarily mares of fine individuality, can be readily secured at prices not above their intrinsic value, and the produce of such mare from a stallion worthy of the mating will at all times sell at a price remunerative to the producer. The demand for the class of horses under discussion is as unquestionable as the fact of their scarcity. If you doubt their scarcity try to select and buy an ideal gentleman's driver, or, more difficult still, a well-matched and first-class trotting team; if you doubt the demand offer such goods for sale in any of the great horse markets, and you will be convinced. Though the time may come when ultra-fashionable trotting blood will not sell for the fabulous prices of the present, we shall not see the day when fine-blooded and first-class driving horses or matched teams will not sell at prices making their production a profitable branch of the breeding business. The production and training of turf horses will more and more, as time goes on, center in the establishments operated and expensively equipped for that especial purpose; but the production of drivers, driving teams—horses for the road, the park and the boulevard—is open to the American farmer and breeder as an ever-widening field of profitable enterprise.

DON'T be afraid to give the horses that are in training grass once or twice a day. It opens the bowels, cools the system and nourishes the body. It is the most perfect food that can be given the horse, and although not strong enough diet to supply sufficient strength for hard work, yet it is a very valuable and essential diet for horses in training to keep them healthy, their pores open and their bowels in good order. All experienced and successful trainers see that their horses have more or less grass every day, and the man who fails to snpply it makes a mistake that his horses will feel and show before the season closes. It is better where it can be done to let horses pick the grass in the natural way. By holding them out every evening, they get needed change and exercise, fresh air and good food, and enjoy the change from the stable to the comparative freedom which the grass plot affords.

A LARGE horse-breeder once said: "Never breed from parentage, unless they fill the eye; and never from a horse that looks his size. Capability should be stamped on every point." The fact is that faulty action and faulty limbs comprise the majority of horses now offered. Quality in the markets is conspicuous by its absence, so many horses being badly put together, or "coupled up," lacking in character, short in courage, deficient in endurance, and wanting in stamina. A good horse lasts, and hence always fetches a good price. Patrician elegance will not "nick" with shoddy vulgarity. Stoutness and flashiness are incompatible. In horse-breeding, as in everything else, it is the best that pays. Any one conversant with the horse market knows this. Good horses leave a lot of good money behind them for the breeder. Blood, bone, action and manners will secure good prices.

A WONDERFUL BROODMARE.

Martha Washington, the Mother of a Great Family of Trotters and Pacers.

Martha Washington (Whipple's), foaled about 1845, by Washington 332, son of Burr's Napoleon, dam by Abdallah 1, is, like Blandina and Lizzie Peebles, one of the great broodmares that is not entitled to rank among the great broodmares in the Year Book, owing to the fact that she did not produce a standard performer. The following table shows that she was a mare of far more than ordinary ability. Among the many performers who carry her blood are Faustino (3), 2:14¾, Edwin C. (p), 2:15; Homestake (p), 2:16½; Frank M., 2:17; Chesterfield (p), 2:17½; Dawn, 2:18¾; Graves, 2:19; Alfred, G., 2:19¾, and Fausta (p, 1), 2:22½.

The Dams of Five.

There are in history nine mares that have produced five or more 2:30 trotters, and this group of great matrons are worthy of the study of students of trotting blood. Arranging them alphabetically, the first in the list is Alma Mater, the great daughter of Mambrino Patchen. Alma Mater is a chestnut mare, foaled 1872, by Mambrino Patchen out of Estella, thoroughbred daughter of imp. Australian. The next dam was Fanny G., by imp. Margrave, and this mare was also the grandam of that other great broodmare Dame Winnie, the dam of Palo Alto, 2:08¾, the stallion champion. Alma Mater early passed into the hands of Dr. P. S. Talbert, Lexington, Ky., and he bred her famous progeny. Her first foal was Alcantara, 2:23, and a year later, in 1877, came his brother Alcyone, 2:27. George Wilkes got few horses equal to these. We have always thought that the dead Alcyone was the most superbly-finished son of George Wilkes that we had seen. Alma Mater's third foal was the black horse Arbiter, by Administrator, and he took a record of 2:22¾ in 1882. Alicia, by George Wilkes, was foaled in 1881, took a mark of 2:30 in 1890, and is in the court of Nutwood at Dubuque. The foal of 1882 was the chestnut horse Allandorf, by Onward, and he is the sire of the great four-year-old pacer of last year, Strong Boy, 2:12. Almater is by Hambrino and was foaled in 1884. Her record, 2:29½, was acquired in 1889. Alma Mater was bought by W. S. Hobart, of San Mateo, Cal., after his purchase of Stamboul. In 1889 Senator Stanford allowed Alma Mater to be bred to Electioneer, and in return Manzanita was bred to Stamboul, but the former failed to "catch." A colt by Electioneer out of this great mare would have been worth abundant gold.

Going down the list of the greatest brood mares we next reach Beautiful Bells, the black daughter of The Moor, the prolificacy of whose blood has added so mightily to the fame of Palo Alto and its dead hero, Electioneer. Her history is so familiar that it seems a work of supererogation to recall it. She is of an age with Alma Mater, both being foaled in 1872, and was by The Moor, 2:37, out of the great mare Minnehaha, the dam of Alcazar, Eve, Sweetheart, etc. Beautiful Bells took a record of 2:29½, as a six-year-old, when she was purchased from L. J. Rose, her breeder, by Senator Stanford. Her first foal was Hinda Rose, who broke the yearling and the three-year-old record. Beautiful Bells has nine foals two years old and over, and as these six are in the 2:30 list, including the yearling Bell Bird, 2:26½; Chimes has a three-year-old mark of 2:30¾, and Rosemont is the dam of Montrose, 2:16, while St. Bel, Bell Boy and Chimes are in the list of sires. Considering all things, there is no mare in the books that has such a remarkable showing as the handsome black mother of the "Bell" family.

Emeline, by Henry B. Patchen, has seven to her credit, viz.: Adele Gould, 2:19; Carrie R., 2:28½, and Ray Gould, 2:29½, by Jay Gould, 2:21½; Augusta Schuyler, 2:26; Daisy Hartshorn, 2:24½, and Kate Taylor, 2:23½, by Aberdeen, and Jersey Prince, 2:27½, by Kentucky Prince. Augusta Schuyler produced Edith R., 2:17½; Alice Blackwood, 2:31½, another daughter of Eme'ine produced Alice Black, 2:29½. Carrie R. is the dam of Jourdan Wilkes, 2:30, while Jersey Prince has two in the list.

Emeline was a chestnut mare, foaled either in 1863 or 1864, and was bred by the late Colonel E. W. Conover, Middletown, N. J. She was a very fast trotter, and of all her foals there were but two that have not either performed or produced, or both, and one of these was killed young. She was truly a marvelous producer.

Green Mountain Maid, the dam of eight 2:30 trotters, and of Electioneer, needs no eulogy, nor need her history be repeated. She was a fast little mare by Harry Clay, 2:29½, out of the old trotter of unknown blood, Shanghai Mary. To Messenger Duroc she threw Antonio, 2:28¾; Dame Trot, 2:22; Elaine, 2:20; Elma, 2:29½; Elista, 2:20¾; Mansfield, 2:26, and Prospero, 2:20; to Middletown, Storm, 2:26¾, and to Hambletonian the mighty Electioneer, the greatest sire of trotters by the records. Green Mountain Maid's grave is at Stony Ford, Orange county, N. Y., on a slope overlooking the Walkill, and on the stone are graven the words: "The Great Mother of Trotters."

Lucia, by Jay Gould, is the youngest of the great band of mares that have produced five or more. She was bred at Fashion Farm, Trenton, N. J., foaled 1876, and is by Jay Gould, 2:21½, out of the great mare Lucy, 2:18½, by George M. Patchen, 2:23½. Lucia is, of course, the queen of the Fashion paddocks. By General Knox she produced Beulah, 2:19½; by Pancoast, Lucy Pancoast, 2:30, and by Rumor, 2:20½, she had Lammermoor, 2:23; Edgardo, 2:26, and Hurly Burly, 2:27, and her daughter Zoe, by General Knox, produced Trapeze, 2:29½. Lucia is still a regular breeder, and bids fair to take still higher rank in the table. She is the only mare with five to her credit whose sire is living.

Minnehaha, the dam of Beautiful Bells, has a remarkable progeny. She was foaled in 1868, was got by Stevens' Bald Chief, out of a daughter of Strader's Cassius M. Clay, and was taken to California by L. J. Rose at the same time that he took The Moor, Overland and other horses purchased from the late George Stevens, of Wisconsin, to California. She was a remarkably plain, even commonplace, looking mare, but trotting speed was an inherent quality of her blood. To The Moor she produced Beautiful Bells, 2:29½, and to Sultan Alcazar, 2:20½; Eva, 2:23½; Sweetheart, 2:22½, and San Gabriel, 2:29½. Alcazar has four in the list, and Minnehaha's daughters have produced ten trotters to beat 2:30. Her blood gave early speed, and has long been a sensational element when offered at the auction mart.

Ned, or "Old Ned," as she was peculiarly called, was a bay daughter of Berkley's Edwin Forrest, out of a Mambrino Chief mare. She produced Clemmie G. 2:15½; Mystery, 2:25½, and Post Boy, 2:23, by Magic; Alice Stoner, 2:24½, by Strathmore, and Forest Wilkes, 2:24½, by Bourbon Wilkes. Her daughter Steinette, by Steinway, is the dam of Bourbon Russell, 2:30. The blood of Ned carried resolution and finish.

Sontag Mohawk, the gray daughter of that colossal failure Mohawk Chief, has seven in the list, and must be accounted a truly marvelous mare. She was foaled 1875, and with a single exception all of her foals that were then two years old and upward, found their way into the 2:30 list before the close of 1891. She produced speed to four different horses, Electioneer, General Benton, Norval and Piedmont. The fastest of her get is Sallie Benton, 2:17¾, the champion four-year-old of her day, and dam of Starlight, 2:26½. Her other performers are Mohawk, 2:20½; Sport, 2:22¾; Colma, 2:25½; Conductor, 2:25½; Sonoma, 2:28, and Eros, 2:29½. She is a large gray mare, seventeen years old, and takes her color and doubtless her speed-imparting quality from the family of her dam, Sontag Nellie, by Toronto Sontag, son of Toronto Chief.

The famous Waterwitch, daughter of Pilot Jr., will long maintain her rank as one of the most prolific of mares. She is the dam of Viking, 2:19½; Mambrino Gift, 2:20; Scotland, 2:22½; Waterloo, 2:23½, and Wavelet, 2:24½. Her sons Mambrino Gift and Warlock are in the list of sires, while from her daughters have come Sphinx, 2:29½; Egotist, 2:22½; Stornway, 2:26; Nymphia, 2:25½; Spry, 2:28¾; Alice Tyler, 2:30, and Fairy Gift, 2:30. The blood of Waterwitch enriches all it touches, and is a deservedly cherished element in the structure of the trotting breed.

These are the mares that lead as producers of trotters. Waterwitch, Ned, Emeline and Green Mountain Maid are dead—the others are still breedihg. The fact is worthy of note that but one of these mares has failed to produce through her daughters, showing that the demand for continuous lines of producing broodmare blood is a sound one.—The Horseman.

The Daly Stables.

In an unaccountable way circulation has been given to the report that none of the horses in the Daly stable are to appear on the Montana circuit this year. The report is entirely false. Two trotting stables under the care of Andy McDowell and Ben Kenney, and a string of thoroughbreds which will be handled by Norman Smith will make the Montana circuit this season and will do their level best to carry off their share of the prizes.

Yesterday Norman Smith was in Anaconda on business relating to his string. "The horses at the Daly ranch appear to be in excellent condition," said Mr. Smith, "and we expect to make a first-rate showing this year. The weather has been so unsettled that the stables have not been getting the usual amount of work, but we shall be in good shape just the same when the season opens. I see it announced in San Francisco newspapers that the Daly horses are not going into the Montana circuit. This is a mistake, and it ought to be corrected, as we want to have everybody understand that Montana men are going to appear with good horses and we would like to induce eastern owners and the horsemen on the Pacific coast to come here and try it on with us. The purses are handsome and they ought to attract a great many owners of first class horses. Those who do come may as well understand in advance that if they carry away anything they will have to race hard for all they get."

Last evening, at the Montana, Mr. Daly told a Standard reporter that there is no foundation for the report that the horses are not to make the circuit in this state. "On the contrary," added Mr. Daly, "we have made all our plans to take in the Montana circuit, and the stable will fight hard in hope of making a good record. It looks to me as if we were going to have a much more successful season this year than Montana has ever seen, and you will be surprised at the number of first-class horses that will be out. I hope that some of the best stables in California and Kentucky will be represented. Owners in those states will find an opportunity in Montana for contests that will be worthy of the best horses they can send."

It is understood that the managers of the circuit are doing everything in their power to let outsiders know about the big inducements offered in this state. Preparations for the season have been made on an extremely generous scale, and it is believed that the record for the year will be brilliant beyond precedent.—Anaconda Standard, May 11.

Oakland Race Track.

We are informed on good authority that Benj. Wright, of the Galindo Hotel, has leased the Oakland Race Track for a term of ten years and will immediately expend about $20,000 in putting it in first-class condition. New grandstands, club house, stalls and roadways between the stalls will be among the improvements. It is Mr. Wright's intention to make it first class in every respect. He is no "green hand in the business" for he was lessee of the track at Milwaukee after everybody had failed to make it successful, and under his management it became one of the best paying as well as best patronized tracks in the West. Mr. Wright is a thorough horseman and we have no hesitancy in saying that the horsemen will have no truer friend than he. In this undertaking he has the best wishes of all, for everyone believes that the "Wright" man has "Ben" found at last.

THE story about Belle of Wabash, the dam of The Moor, is nearly straightened at last. Roe Weisiger, of Franklin, Pennsylvania, has been working hard gathering the details about this remarkable mare. There is no doubt but that she was sired by Bassinger, a son of Lieutenant Bassinger, but the dam's history is what Mr. Weisiger is now trying to seek. John Williams, the veteran driver, who cared for the Belle of Wabash some six years, recently sent on to Mr. Weisiger a complete history of the mare while he had her, and also a clue as to how that gentleman may be enabled to learn all the facts he is seeking.

HOOF BEATS.

THE dam of the $27,000 colt Constantine, 2:19¾, will be bred to Director, 2:17.

HERM. H. MULLER, of Santa Rosa, has placed his promising Silas Skinner (2:17) colt, Wm. McG., in the hands of Thos. Kinney, the well-known trainer.

LITTLE ALBERT, owned by Mr. Bradbury, of San Francisco, arrived at Pleasanton last week, where he will be put under training at the Salisbury race track.

JOHN E. TURNER, with a string of eight trotters, including Mambrino Hannis, Happy Bee, Rosalind Wilkes and Abbie V. arrived at Belmont Course, Philadelphia, on Monday.

WM. LYLE'S beautiful foal by Sir Roderic (son of Dictator and Prospect Maid), out of his John Nelson mare, died last week, while playing in a paddock; cause of death, rupture.

SPEED, size, soundness and individual excellence are the four aces in the pack of the trotting-horse world, while cheap-looking customers that can not trot, pace or gallop well can be bunched as the deuces.

NANCY HANKS will trot against time at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, during the meeting in July. She will essay to beat the three fastest heats made over that track by Maud S. in 1881—2:12, 2:13¼, 2:12½.

IT IS a somewhat singular coincidence that Rollo, 2:28¾, the first yearling pacer to beat 2:30, Manager, 2:11½, the champion two and three-year-old, and Strong Boy, 2:12, the fastest four-year-old pacing stallion, are all gray in color.

MR. BIGGINS, of Sonoma, informs us that work is progressrapidly on the new race track on Senator Fair's ranch. Several dwelling houses have been completed the past week, and work will be commenced on the stables Monday. It will be a mile track.

MAMBRINO KATE, 2:24, the property of Mr. W. H. Wilson, Cynthiana, Ky., died a few days since. She was 23 years old, sired by Mambrino Patchen, dam State of Maine, and had foaled the day before her death a bay filly by Simmons, which lives and has been named Bay Kate. This filly is entered in the C. W. Williams Stake.

A RACE for $20 a side between Chas. Carty's McClellan horse and C. Northrup's Dawn filly took place from the Fashion stable Satureay evening at 7:30 o'clock. The distancewas sixteen miles to Santa Rosa and was won by C. Northrup in fifty-nine minutes. Carty took the lead at the start but was overtaken and passed at O'Hara's. It is understood that another race will take place in the near future.—Petaluma Imprint.

"MAMBRINO" gives the following good advice anent the standard: Advancing the standard means to check registration. To abandon the standard would have the same effect, therefore as a business proposition it would seem for the best interests of all the breeders as well as the stockholders of the Register Association that we adhere to our present standard and build as rapidly and as solidly as we can upon the foundation already laid.

THERE are some queer signs in this city, says the Fresno Republican, but the following, which is posted at the entrance of a house on J street, between Mariposa and Tulare, is probably the queerest: "Dr. Gambel, Veterinery Surgeon. I garient two Cure Bots, Colice Worms, Dry Murn and Bloat and distemper nasel Gleet Or no paye. Leave your orders here on this Slate horses and Cows." Of course the sign attracts a good deal of attention.

AN OLD horseman at the Oakland race track was expatiating upon the merits of a mare he once owned which was sold by him for breeding purposes. To the question, "Did she ever win any races?" he indignantly answered: "I tell yer she's the greatest mar I ever druv. Why, win races? Yes, sir, she won every time I wanted her to win. She was always thar whar I placed her, and I win plenty of money with her in Nebraska, Montana and Nevada, because I knew just when to bet and whar to drive to win."

IN OUR notice of the death of Sister (dam of Albert W. 2:20) last week we omitted to mention the fact that her foal by Eros is alive and doing well, being raised by hand. This is considered one of the strongest-built and most perfect of all the foals that ever Eros sired. This is saying a great deal, but horsemen who are competent to judge good colts declare this to be a fact. The little fellow has a white elongated star and irregular, thin, white blaze in his face, similar to the one seen on Bonanza, 2:29¾, who was also out of Sister.

CALIFORNIANS who witnessed Saturday's running at Sacramento claim that they never saw such a lot of good racing in one day in their lives. Monowai proved himself the best two-year-old colt shown here in many a long day by taking up 120 pounds and running the five-eighths in 1:02; Early, carrying 110 pounds, went a mile in 1:42; Acclaim packed 120 pounds and did her mile and a quarter in 2:08 flat, while April Fool created a sensation by defeating Geraldine at even weights, the half mile being run in 0:47¼, the fastest time ever made in California by three-quarters of a second.

PALMER L. CLARK, president of the Horse Review Company of Chicago, was an interested spectator at the Sacramento races last week. If he should see many more thoroughbreds run as well as they did there it would not surprise us if he bought a few "bang tails" to bring to Chicago. He visited Rancho del Paso, and was delighted with the array of beautiful horses there. Salvator, Sir Modred and Maxim came in for their share of praise, and when he returns to the "Windy City by the Big Lake" he will have a fund of pleasant reminiscences of that visit to this "the largest stock farm in the world."

ONE of the best three-year-olds shown in Kentucky among the thoroughbreds this season is Wadsworth, who took up 122 pounds at Lexington, Ky., recently and won, pulled up, in 1:54¾, the distance being a mile and an eighth. The colt is by Longfellow, out of Trophy, by Alarm, and was bred by James B. Ferguson, the popular gentleman who did the flag-wielding at Bay District track this spring. The third dam of Wadsworth is also the third dam of Judge Morrow, the Brooklyn Handicap winner of 1892, while the second dam of each horse is by Jack Malone, making the relationship very close.

SOME wonderful winnings have been made in California this spring by a couple of young men rejoicing in the names of Albert Hess and Ralph Curtis. The former was glad enough to be alive and selling programmes on the Blood Horse Association meeting's opening day, but is now said to be between $4000 and $5000 ahead. Curtis took a $20 piece, rolled it into a roll of $7000, and has purchased the three-year-old gelding Borealis, half-brother to Guido. The lucky youths are going East, but it is rumored that Hess has purchased some real estate here, so that the chances for all his money going glimmering will not be so good.

THE veterinarians who were called to attend to Tilton Almont, 2:26, deemed it advisable to put him out of misery last Monday and shot him. A notice of the injuries which happened to this great horse appears in another column. Tilton Almont was foaled in 1872; sired by Almont 33, dam by Clark Chief 89; second dam by imp. Hooton. He was a game trotter and got a record of 2:26. He was the sire of seven 2:30 trotters and the sire of Almont Patchen, 2:15. Tilton Almont was a remarkably strong horse and all of his progeny inherited his good qualities of conformation, color and dispositiod and perfect trotting action.

SUNOL is safely in Marvin's charge again, and Mr. Bonner is evidently very hopeful that she will lower her record this year. In an interview he says: "I believe that I have been able to benefit Sunol more than any other horse I ever owned, and it remains to be seen whether she will fulfill Senator Stanfords expectations. You know he predicted she would go in 2:04, a pace that I predicted no trotter would ever reach. Her achievements up to this time were under unfavorable conditions, especially regarding the important thing known as balance. How fast do you think you could run if you were thrown back on your heels, with your toes quite off the ground? Well, that about illustrates the way Sunol stood behind when she made her various records. No man can get up speed unless he is firmly on his feet, and it is just the same way with a horse."

B. C. HOLLY, the Flosden turfman, left Sacramento for Denver last Tuesday with a grand string of horses, as follows: El Rayo, 5, by Grinstead—Sunlit, by Monday; Homer, 4, by Shannon—Sallie Gardner; Acclaim, 3, by Three Cheers—Rosette, by Wheatley; Montana, 5, by Storey—Uga, by King Alfonso; Revolver, 6, by Joe Daniels—Young Jule, by imp. Partisan; Oscar, 4, by Wildidle—imp. Petroleuse; Charmion, 2, by Tyrant—Unit, by Onondaga; Bert Hart, 3, by Hamlet—Ninena. Mr. Holly is in luck when he secured the racing qualities of such really good ones as Acclaim, Homer and Charmion, in addition to the splendid performers in his own stable, and should sweep away a world of stakes and purses at Salt Lake and Denver and on the Montana circuit during the present racing season. It will take world-beaters to down Acclaim, Homer and El Rayo in the all-aged division, Bert Hart is unbeatable in the mud, Revolver and Montana are more than useful horses, while Charmion is almost certain to win more races than she loses amongst the two-year-olds. Salt Lake is the first point at which the string will race.

A TRIBUNE reporter was invited last Thursday by Mr. Chrisman, one of the directors of the Gonzales Racecourse Association, to ride with him to the race track, and on arriving there he was surprised to see the amount of work that has been done since the organization of the association. The track is all graded and ready for use, the fences on both sides are completed and a fine windmill and tank has just been erected. The total cost of the work done and improvements made will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $2,000. The directors made a good selection in choosing Mr. Chrisman as the one to superintend the work, for he has been on the track every day giving orders to the workmen and personally superintending the work. Several private stables have been built and they are models of neatness, adding much to the appearance of the track. Messrs. Theuerkauf, Widemann, Lynn, Chrisman, Faw and Talbott have each private stables for their own use. Work will soon be commenced on the grand and judges' stands, and when they are finished the track will be ready for use. The people of Gonzales may well feel proud of the new kite-shaped track.—Gonzales Tribune.

IT is probable that trotting is more popular in Russia than in any other country outside of our own. Instead of a sulky, however, the Russian trainer sits on a four-wheeled trap called a droschky, built very light and of the best material, weighing more than our sulkies and costing fully twice as much. At a trotting meeting which began at Moscow May 3, over 200,000 roubles were hung up in purses and stakes. Trotting is popular in Russia during the entire year, and, contrary to the facts here, the ice records are not as fast as turf records. At St. Petersburg during the past winter, from December to March, there were sixteen days of trotting on the ice, the purses aggregating 109,309 roubles. At last winter's meeting there were 353 trotters in training, but only 90 of these were contestants in the different events, and sixty-two were winners. The best records made at the meeting were as follows: One mile, flying start, four-year-olds, 2:32; one mile, flying start, all ages, 2:26 1-3; two miles, standing start, 5:04; four versts (2 2-3 miles), standing start, 6:54; five versts, standing start, 8:43; six versts (four miles), standing start, 10:50 1-3.

THE Fair Directors met in Benicia Saturday to discuss the holding of a district fair. There were present to take active part in the meeting: Directors Ben Rush, D. G. Barnes, Joseph Hoyt and V. V. Harrier, besides Messrs. Alfred Dalton, Henry Connolly, J. C. Anthony, F. A. Trull, Jeff. Aspenall and Thomas Smith. The Vallejo men were backed by an agreement from citizens to expend at once $1000 in putting the new work and nearly completed track in condition and the word of Dr. Trull that the necessary buildings would be constructed. These assurances rendered it easy for the Directors to decide upon Vallejo as the proper place for holding the annual meeting and it was so decided. The time was discussed and the month of August, being in advance of dates already taken, was decided to be the most desirable. Two vacancies that exist in the Board by reason of the removal of Messrs. Leake and Shippee from the county were made the subject of recommendation and the names of John Callender, of Vallejo, and J. P. Martin, of Dixon, sent to the Governor with a request that they be appointed. When the vacancies are filled, a meeting will be held in Vallejo and officers selected for the ensuing year. Work has been commenced on the track. The buildings will be completed and a grand stand erected. The elevation in the track will be levelled down, and city water at once put in. Everything looks promising for a successful afiair.—Vallejo Chronicle.

WINNING HORSES.

Racers Trained on San Jose Track Were Winners in Thirty Events at the Blood Horse Races.

The remarkable success that has been attained by horsemen who have trained their animals on the track at Agricultural Park in this city, has made that course by far the most popular one for speeding purposes in the State or on the Coast. The results of the spring races of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association on the Bay District track in San Francisco, which closed last Saturday, has greatly added to and strengthened that popularity, says the San Jose Evening News.

The success of the horses that trained on the San Jose track last winter as compared with all other stock is now the subject of remark by horsemen generally. In thirty of the events San Jose trained horses were winners. Bernardo took first money in no less than five races, and Esperanza in three. The following six horses that were worked at Agricultural Park last winter each won two races, Adolph, Monowai, Castro, Bridal Veil, Orrin and Joe Ellis.

The following San Jose trained horses each won a race at the Blood Horse meet: Fannie F., Initiation, Castanet, Catradge, Mezzotint, Tearless, St. Patrick, Elmwood, Applause and San Pedro.

The following are the names of these horses, with the number of races won by each: Bernardo, 5; Esperanza, 3; Adolph, 2; Monowai, 2; Castro, 2; Bridal Veil, 2; Orrin, 2; Joe Ellis, 2; Fannie F., 1; Initiation, 1; Castanet, 1; Cartridge, 1; Mezzotint, 1; Tearless, 1; St. Patrick, 1; Elmwood, 1; Applause, 1; San Pedro, 1.

Undoubtedly the reason of the success of the San Jose track is the fact that about two years ago a valuable discovery of a strata of loam was made within its confines. The discovery was that of a yellow clay with just sufficient sand to make it of the proper consistency for track purposes. The loam was found a few feet below the surface when an excavation was made for a cess pool, and Secretary G. H. Bragg and other members of the Board of Directors of the Agricultural Association immediately recognized it as being a valuable material to form a surface for the tracks.

The Board of Directors then, independent of any financial aid from the Association, proceeded to excavate in the center of the track inclosure, and under Mr. Bragg's direction 10,000 loads of earth were spread on both the running and trotting tracks. The result even exceeded the expectation of the Directors. The principal advantage is the soft elastic character of the surface, making it at once fast, and at the same time insuring that no horse will go lame training on it. Such a thing as lameness has not been known on the San Jose track since the spreading of the loam.

The track at Agricultural Park now has the reputation of being the only winter track in the State. This is owing in a great part to the character of the track soil, and also to the fact that a good portion of the course is sheltered by heavy pine trees, so that training can go on even during the heaviest rains. During all last winter and in early spring not a day was lost by the horsemen who were working the racers at the track. There are now over 150 horses, mostly trotters, in the stables training for the fall races.

Woodland Races.

The first day of the first Spring races under the managemen t of the Yolo Agricultural Association, presages the success of the meeting in every respect. The attendance is good and the day an ideal one from a horseman's standpoint. All the hotels are well filled and the greatest enthusiasm is observed.

The directors have thrown the gates open free to the ladies, and the grand stand swarms with new Spring bonnets.

The pluck of Jas. G. Crutcher in running free busses to the fair grounds is applauded on all sides, and those who applaud the sincerest ride with him and pay their fare. Mr. Crutcher is making the score of interloping Sacramento horsemen sick.

L. B. Adams, of Woodland, C. R. Hoppin, of Yolo, and James Dustin, of San Francisco, were chosen judges. William George, of San Francisco, and S. C. Tyron, of Sacramento, acted as timers.

The following are the summaries for the first two days, Tuesday and Wednesday.

TUESDAY, MAY 17, 1892. Five-eighths of a mile dash—Donna Dilla won, Nickle Exchange second. Time, 1:06½.

Pacing, 2:35 class—Geraldine won in three straight heats, Colina second, Albert B. third. Time, 2:36, 2:32½, 2:31.

Trotting, 2:25 class—Laura Z. won, Nevada second, Brown Prince third Time, 2:26, 2:26¾, 2:25¾, 2:31. Laura took the first, second and fourth heats, and Nevada the third heat.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 18, 1889.—In the mile race Braw Scot was first, Lottie Mills second, Crystal R. third. Time, 1:41½.

In the trotting race, 2:40 class, Colonel McNassar won, Hattie B. second, Billy B. third. Time, 2:38½, 2:34¾, 2:35¾.

The pacing race, three-year-olds, was won by Bonnie B., Clara Belle second, Nellie B. third. Time, 3:00, 3:07½, 2:56.

PURE water ought to be where stock can get at it at all times, particularly during warm weather, says an exchange, as it very often makes the difference between gain or loss. A half-dozen times a day is not too often to offer water to stock any time of year. During the hot weather of summer animals suffer more from lack of proper care in watering than they could from neglect in the matter of sufficient food. Many farmers take a barrel of water to the field when plowing, fitting land, cultivating, haying, harvesting or any work where it is necessary to be away from water for a half day, and offer the horses some every hour or two, also bathing the head and nostrils with a sponge. The jug containing water for the men can be kept cool by setting in the barrel of water. A barrel with one head out set in the water, then filled with pure well water and covered with old, clean blankets or gunny sacks, will keep cool a long time. By watering often horses will do very much more work without fatigue or overheating, having practiced it for years.

Turf Journals—Their Mission

The large number of journals devoted exclusively to the trotting horse industry that have come into existence during the past few years demonstrate most clearly that there is a growing demand among the majority of farmers as well as breeders to become better acquainted with the entrancing subject of breeding and raising trotters. It seems but a very few years since the only papers that devoted their columns to equine literature could be counted upon one's fingers, and the writers who contributed articles on the various horse topics were known throughout the United States and Canada; but a great change has lately taken place. The papers that included all the sports and amusements of the day such as yachting, hunting, fishing, athletics, baseball, theatricals, chess, draughts and billiards are going out of existence. Class journals are now published that take up each of these themes in their order and devote their columns exclusively to them. The journals that tried to cover the whole field of sports have been compelled to relinquish one department after another until they finally became identified as the exponents of the particular class which seemed most suitable to them.

The journals devoted to equine topics to-day are making great headway toward the goal of success. The large community entitled "admirers of the trotting horse," which includes the farmers,—people who are near to Nature's heart,—the breeders, trainers, bankers, the lawyers, the tradesmen, and the thousands who are not able to afford the luxury of owning their own horse, has shown a willingness to subscribe and endorse those journals which apprise them of all the events that transpire in the horse world.

The growth of the great industry of breeding first-class horses is almost marvelous. The knowledge that was at one time conceded to the breeders of thoroughbreds only, is becoming disseminated among the breeders of trotters. The questions of pedigrees are being decided by Father Time. The tracing to thoroughbreds and to the origin of our greatest and best horses has about run its limit. The trotters that will enter upon the scenes hereafter, unless of plebian birth or creatures of accident, can all be traced to those great fountain heads that are recognized as such.

The breeding of trotters has advanced beyond the haphazard stage. Time and money have been devoted by our richest breeders in demonstrating theories of breeding that may and will prove of incalculable value to the young breeders that join the ranks of those who are already in the field.

The turf journals of to-day are conservative and instructive. If the editor should become contracted in his views, bigoted in his ideas and totally regardless of the claims of all good breeds or families of trotters, financial ruin would follow. The exercise of judgment is needful in the conducting of all turf journals, for among no other class of subscribers are there so many "practical theorists" as turf men. The various questions regarding horses have received a trial from the most advanced of these gentlemen, commencing with breeding, then feeding, conditioning, training and racing.

Under these different themes are columns of articles printed every week, and the readers profit by what they see. Most of them are quick to discover the "chaff from the wheat," and know how much faith to place in many of the theories advanced. The question of breeding trotters has received a greater amount of discussion than that of any other ever advanced. It is one of so vast a range that even now the horizon of its scope can hardly be imagined. In the breeding of thoroughbreds certain lines have always been pursued, the question of outcrossing to get the greatest speed has been answered by hundreds of practical tests, and although to the average student it appears that the day for the breeding of a class of four milers has lapsed, yet we believe the breeders of thoroughbreds have become apprised of the fact that they have of late been approaching the "quarter-horse limits" and must soon change their modes, and instead of giving sprint races they must have races that will test the best qualities of their horses. To the breeder of thoroughbreds the question of breeding horses for endurance is like an open book, for they have only to turn back the leaves and see what produced the great long-distance racehorses that formerly added glory to the turf.

To the trotting horse men there is no such book, for the strides that are being made every year toward nearing the two-minute limit, almost compel the trotting horse breeder to hesitate in his prophecies and falter in his predictions as to what his own horses may do.

In training and conditioning horses, more humane rules are followed and the trotter's limbs are better protected, the sulky is lighter, the track is smoother and its surface is prepared to help the horse to reach his highest limit of speed with the least expenditure of muscle, wind and tendons.

The turf journals are instrumental in calling the attention of breeders all over the land to the advantages each of the great centers of trotting possess, and also give the reasons why the associations are meeting with such success at their meetings because of the arrangements they are perfecting to make their race courses and all surroundings perfect.

The loud-mouthed, profane-speaking jobber who disgraced the trotting course with "his ringer," is driven back to his haunts out of the sight of honest men through the influence of the press. The readers of these journals are made acquainted with every driver that comes before the judges' stand; should one of them be found neglecting to do what is right, or be caught "putting up a job" on an unsuspecting public, the reporter is often the first to expose such actions.

These journals are filled with items of interest besides those of breeding, training and driving. The veterinary department is a valuable adjunct, which has been the means of educating readers regarding the treatment of simple wounds and diseases of the equine and bovine races.

The stories of trainers, romances of the track, reminiscences of the past, and personal events that transpire daily on turf, track and road, all have a charm for the reader, and we venture to assert that the live turf journal is looked for every week and read with more avidity than that of any daily newspaper, novel or magazine that comes to the subscriber.

Wives and children can read these columns to-day without fear of seeing anything of an immoral nature in them. It should be an editor's object to encourage the growth of this interest among the gentler sex, who from time immemorial have displayed an affection for the equine race that has been spoken of in history and quoted in prose and poetry by the greatest of our writers and bards. Therefore, the turf journals have become an absolute necessity to all, and to their heralding of the news of great events; the disseminating of all views; the adoption of the best ideas and the rejection of the poorest can, in a measure, the success of many of the trotting horse breeders be attributed.

That New Race Track.

"It is expected there will be at least 15,000 people to see the Colorado Derby run on the opening day at Denver. Why, the average attendance at Overland Park is 5,000." This remark set the writer to wondering what was the matter with San Francisco. We consider that we have a very good crowd in attendance when 2,000 go to see the events run off at Bay District track. It cannot be said in Denver's favor that she has a more populous surrounding country than has San Francisco, because she has not. It cannot be said that the average San Franciscan is not "sporty," because we can turn out a good crowd to see a glove fight or a base ball match. Then something must be radically wrong, or this state of affairs would not exist, where Denver, with one-third the population of San Francisco, could turn out 5,000 per day to attend the races to our measly 1,500. We have observed that every racing tub must stand on its own bottom, and must rely almost entirely for patronage on the people of the city or town wherein the race meeting is held. The percentage of people coming from a distance to attend races is exceedingly small, when you come to sum the matter up, and it is so the country over.

This spring we had few complaints about the events run off, had one of the best starters in the country and vigilant, painstaking judges. The competing fields were fair in quality, and in some instances really of a high class. What, then, was the matter that we did not have larger audiences? We must attribute it to the dismal prospect at Bay District track, the rickety grand stands and clubhouses, the lack of stake races and meager advertising. An association must do everything honorable in its power to popularize racing and get people to attend. The local associations have enough members that would subscribe toward building a race track, grand stands, club-houses and stables and the laying out of beautiful grounds if the matter was urged upon them, and Bay District course is anything but a pretty or attractive spot to anything living, except, perhaps, a cricket or frog. Let us, then, by all means, exert ourselves toward securing a place for racing that will be a credit to this large and prosperous city. Let it not be said by visitors from the East (with truth) that this city is several years behind the times, but let us build a track that will be a thing of beauty and a joy forever to the Californian. Let us be able to say to our scoffing Eastern friends, "We have a track, grand stands and grounds that cannot be beaten in America and we are proud of them," instead of having to apologize to visitors several times a day for our lack of enterprise.

When the track and stands have been erected it should be arranged so that a stake race is on the card four out of every five days during the progress of our meetings. Take a few chances and be progressive and enterprising. By all means, advertise the meetings in every imaginable way, and show liberality in every move. Let the people see that it is not money that our organizations are after so much as to see the "racing industry" receive such an impetus that we shall take our proper rank in the world. To those who have an eye for beauty Bay District grand stands and grounds are an eyesore and a disgrace to the sporting population of San Francisco.

Another thing that does not augur well for racing in California is the exodus of horses from the Golden State every spring and summer to compete for the rich stakes offered by associations over the Rockies. It does seem to us as if there should be enough racing organizations in the large cities on this coast to give racing pretty much the year around. Of course, once in a while there will be such a very great stake at the East that our horsemen will want to land it, but ordinarily we ought to be able to furnish enough good purses and stakes to run for. And in the winter, which is only a name so far as California is concerned, we should have first-class meetings and rich stakes and get our Eastern brothers' horses over to run for our money and to winter in our equable climate. A little enterprise and liberality will accomplish this, and we trust our city will soon have a race track and grounds that her population can point to with pride and flock to when a meeting is in progress.

The Race Horse and the "Skate."

"Why don't you have races at longer distances?" said the writer to some officials who had just formulated a programme of running races.

"We would like to make the dashes of greater length, but if we did do so, I'm afraid we wouldn't have enough entries in any of the events to draw a corporal's guard," spoke up one of the directors.

"For my part," said another gentleman on the board, "I would like to see some good, old-fashioned dashes of two and three miles, but if we did put up a purse for a race at even the first-named distance I could count the number of horses that might possibly start on the finger of one hand." And the gentlemen were eminently correct in their conclusions, no doubt, and showed, too, the feeling in the matter possessed by the public at large. Race-goers would like to see races at two, three and four miles; and events of this kind, provided there were four or more entries, would draw immensely beyond peradventure. The present state of affairs makes one think of the topical song which goes, "And gentlemen were gentlemen one hundred years ago." Race horses were race horses some twenty-odd years ago. Now a vast majority of them, although bred in the purple rise little above the level of the "quarter-horse" so despised by patrons of the turf a quarter of a century and more ago.

It is hard to explain what has brought about this change in the thoroughbred horse of the present, but certain it is that the distances in races have been made shorter and shorter with each succeeding year everywhere. What brought the old quarter-horse trainers out of the bushes and from the wilds of the West? Certainly not the desire of the public to see sprint races and little else. Twenty years ago the shortest distance run by a thoroughbred horse three years of age was mile heats, and it was considered no hardship for horses of that age to run even two-mile heats. Older horses seldom ran less than a dash of two miles. And then two persons turned out to see races (in proportion to the population) to one nowadays. A short-bred horse could no more earn salt than a Tar Flat hoodlum could enter the higher circles of society. Only the other day we saw a horse by Little, out of Nothing, running away from a mare beautifully bred (in fact, if there is anything in blood lines she should be able to go any route, for her near ancestors could) at half a mile. To old-timers it seems too bad that a "cold-blooded crittur" should be allowed to compete against such a royally-bred thoroughbred at all, and worse still, to see that "skate" defeat a race horse.

The association in California that has the courage to eliminate most of the sprints from its programme is the one we will give our heartiest support to. Our idea is that the breeding of game race horses has been on the wane for many years, almost since the days on the turf of Longfellow and Harry Bassett. In a few years, at most, the quarter-horse man will have everything his own way, if something is not done. We claim that no thoroughbred horse three years of age or over should ever be asked to go less than a mile, and four and five-year-olds should be sent into races of from a mile and a quarter to two miles and a quarter—a "cup distance."

The horses of stamina and speed are, as the director truly said, few and far between, and it should be the aim of all racing associations to elevate the standard of excellence instead of lowering it by offering programmes where three-fourths of the racing events are under a mile. "What are you going to do with the sprinters and selling-platers?" someone may say. And we answer, away with them! We've got enough of this class on hand to supply the United States army, but they would not even prove useful in that line, for a day of travel would settle any of them. We would like to see it made an imperative rule by all associations, that no racing would be had with horses three years of age and over at a less distance than one mile. Then the skates, sprinters and cold-blooded critturs would hie themselves away to the racing paths of the Indian country and Texas, amongst the festive cowboys, where they belong, and we should see in a short time a superior breed of horses. And in the meantime, while the thoroughbreds were on the road to improvement, the people would see races "as is races," and the attendance would be increased two-fold.

The first year after the abolition of sprinting there might be a falling off in the number of entries, but only for about one year. The sure-enough race horses of the present that a person can remember with pleasure are few in number, but we can still hear hoary-headed men and women telling of the performances of Boston, Fashion, Grey Eagle, Wagner, Lecompte and Lexington with all the enthusiasm of youth, and it is pleasurable indeed to be able to recount the struggles of flesh-and-blood turf monarchs. Let us hope that the race horse will soon be given another inning.

Sierraville Gets the Fair.

The Board of Directors of the Eleventh District Agricultural Association met in Quincy last Saturday, to receive bids for locating the Fair. There were present Directors Bransford, McBeth, Carter, Stephan, Dolly and Nichols, R. E. Garland being ill, and Horace Lewis, recently appointed, vice J. W. Thompson, resigned, being absent. It was concluded, of course, that the Fair should go to Sierra county, but whether Loyalton or Sierraville should get the plum was the question. Up to the time of making the bid, much rivalry between the two communities prevailed, but, at the last moment, it seems that Loyalton withdrew from the contest, leaving the field clear to Sierraville, whose bid was $3,500, together with race course and Fair grounds fully equipped, ball room, etc., reserving the amount for which the "privileges" sell for. Accordingly the Fair was awarded to Sierraville.

The Board reorganized by electing J. S. Bransford, President; A. S. Nichols, Vice-President; L. Dolly, Treasurer, and Fred Blinman, Secretary. Mr. Bransford, the newly elected President, has been a Director for many years, is well acquainted with the duties of the office to which he has been elected, and he will make an efficient head of the Association. The organization effected, the Directors decided to have the Fair begin on October 3d. The speed programme decided upon is as follows:

SALE OF TROTTING STOCK.

Excellent Amounts Realized for the Whitney Horses—Purchases and Prices.

The sun was "hotter" than the bidding at the combination sale last Tuesday, and that was saying a good deal. Especially well did the horses belonging to A. L. Whitney sell. The flower of that flock, Anna Belle, 2:27½, by Dawn, 2:18¾, dam Pacheco, by Hubbard, with Sidney foal at side, passed into the hands of William Graves, of this city, at $3,500, but not until that gentleman realized that he had some very troublesome bidders pitted against him. A sister to Anna Belle, Ida Belle, one year older (five), brought $1,000. The phenomenal Commodore yearling Marchioness, that we have mentioned in our columns many times, was secured for $2,000, by its trainer and handler, Lee Shaner, who at the time of the sale, we understand, was the proud possessor of a half interest in the wee trotting freak. William Corbitt, of San Mateo Stock Farm, secured a royally-bred four-year-old mare in Auntie, by Dawn, 2:18¾, dam Nettie, by Anteeo, 2:16¼, second dam Nettie Bennett, by Alexander 490, and third dam by Williamson's Belmont. She was a fine individual and a cheap purchase at $1,850. Kitty Irvington, by Dawn, dam Nellie Irvington, by Irvington 379, together with chestnut colt at side by Sidney, brought $1,185, William McConnell, of Petaluma, getting her after some spirited bidding. As she is the dam of the yearling Marchioness, who brought $2,000 to-day, Kitty Irvington is a great buy at the figure named. Lady Clare, by Swigert 650, dam Eva R., by Alden Goldsmith 733, was a splendid individual and a bargain at $660, H. Dutard, of San Francisco, being the fortunate purchaser. Nonpareil, a grand-looking black colt by Dawn, out of Jennie Offutt, went at $380, to Harry Slocum, while another bargain was the good-looksng brown thoroughbred mare by imp. Young Prince, dam Piney Lewis, by Longfellow. She was secured at $220 by J. A. McDonald, of San Rafael. That gentleman also bought a standard-bred two-year-old colt (by Oaknut out of Blackbird, by Reavis' Blackbird; second dam by George M. Patchen Jr. 31) for a small sum. Alamotine, a good-looking daughter of Dawn, out of a mare by imp. Haddington, with a fine foal at foot by Commodore (son of Sidney), was a splendid buy at $325. The horses other than those belonging to Mr. Whitney did not bring encouraging prices, but the animals of the former gentleman averaged up so well that the sale, taken as a whole, can be said to have been a most successful one.

Turfmen and breeders from all parts of the State were in attendance, and among those we noticed in the crowd were: G. Tompkins, of Souther Farm; S. H. Crane, of Turlock; J. H. Wallick, the actor; Nathan Coombs, of Napa; D. J. Murphy, of Milpitas; J. H. Glide, G. W. Hancock, Chris. Greeu and F. Lowell, of Sacramento; J. A. McDonald, of San Rafael; Lee Shaner and William McConnell, of Petaluma; L. H. McIntosh and A. L. Nichols, of Chico; T. C. Snyder, of Yolo; Charles Neal, of Alameda; Sam Gamble, of Hobart Stock Farm; William Corbitt, of San Mateo Stock Farm; Frank H. Burke, of La Siesta Stock Farm; J. A. McKerron, Henry Pierce, E. I. Robinson, Lot and Harry Slocum, C. D. Milles, John Layng, Capt. B E. Harris, L. E. Clausen, William Graves and C. W. Welby, of this city.

SUMMARY.

During the present month the two most important events will be the annual boxing tournament, which will be held in the Olympic Club gymnasium on the evening of the 26th inst. and the annual out-door champion ship meeting of the P. A. A. A. U., which will be held at the Olympic Club grounds on Decoration Day. The boxing tournament will bring out some new men, and many of the bouts will be both hot and interesting. The members of the U. C. championship team are getting into fine condition and there is no doubt but that one or two of the coast records will be broken on May 30th.

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN GENERAL.

The fourth semi-annual out-door meeting of the Amateur Academic Athletic Association was held at the Olympic Club grounds last Saturday afternoon. The weather was just suited for out-door games, and in nearly every instance good records were made by the boy athletes. The friends of the students were present in large numbers, and the contestants were encouraged to the highest pitch. Many of the young men made a remarkable showing for novices, and in a year or two they will certainly equal, if not excel, the majority of the present coast records for running and jumping. The following is a summary of the results:

[SCHOOLS WITH THEIR ABBREVIATIONS.—Oakland High School, O. H. S.; Hopkins Academy, H. A.; Berkeley Gymnasium, B. G.; Berkeley High School, B. H. S.; Bowen's Academy, B. A.; San Francisco Boys High School, S. F. B. H. S.; Coggswell's Polytechnic Institute, C. P. I.; Mount Tamalpais Military Academy, M. T. A.]

The first annual Spring field-day of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club of Portland, Oregon, will be held in that city on May 30th. The programme will consist of the following events: 100, 220, 440, 880 yards run; one mile run, 2-mile bicycle race, pole vault, running high jump, putting 16 lb. shot, throwing 56 lb. weight, running long jump, 120 and 220 yards hurdle races. Entries will close on May 27th.

The members of the San Francisco Bicycle Club will hold a club run to morrow morning. The start will be made from the club house, 501 Golden Gate Avenue, at 9.30 o'clock. The route will be through the Park and via the Cliff House to the Presidio.

G. D. Bairns' famous half mile walking record of 2 minutes and 53 secs. was smashed all to pieces last week by Henry Klink, Jr. who covered the distance in 2 minutes and 15 seconds, at Birmingham, Ala. Baird should make another effort and try and lower the new record.

It is expected that C. J. Schuster of the O. A. C. will win the all-event gymnastic championship next month. Besides being a fine indoor athlete Mr. Schuster is a good sprinter and long jumper, and, if he makes up his mind to compete, there is no reason why he should forfeit the title which he now holds.

The wheelmen are training faithfully for the coming field-day of the Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club. A fine programme of races is being arranged and many valuable prizes will be awarded the winners of the different events.

A special "Ladies Night" was given by the Olympic Club on Thursday evening last when Professor J. J. Corbett donned the mittens with one of his former pupils, and afterwards with James Daley, for the edification of the ladies who were present.

The Bay City Wheelmen are keeping an eye out for a suitable piece of property on which to build a new club house and establish a track.

The entry list for the boxing tournament will close at the Olympic Club on next Monday evening. Already a large number of entries have been received, but many of the old-timers are holding back their names until the very last moment. It is expected that the tournament will be a big success. Dooley, of the Alpine Club, has been training hard for some weeks past and the chances are that he will get the best of Green of the O. A. C., should that boxer enter the contests.

Al. Lean is training for the all-event gymnastic tournament, and he will give a good account of himself when the time arrives.

Frank L. Cooley is studying hard in order to fit himself for the professional stage. Like a good many other old-time champions he appears to have lost all interest in athletics. Cooley has won many a good race in his day, and when he finally retires from the cinder track his club will miss a game and fast runner.

The mile walk at the coming championship games will be a very tame affair, as Horace Coffin will have no opposition in that event.

E. Phil. Moody has been again elected secretary of the P. A. A. A. U. Mr. Moody has always been a good officer and he is just the man for the position of secretary.

The Acme Athletic Club of Oakland gave one of its most successful "Ladies Nights" on Wednesday evening May 18th, and the gymnasium was crowded with a very enthusiastic audience, among whom were a large number of Oakland's most charming young ladies. The evening's entertainment opened with a double horizontal bar act by Messrs. Stack and Leando whose neat work was much appreciated by the ladies. A boxing set-to between the Smyth brothers of the Acme Club was the next event. C. J. Lutzen, Olympic Club, and C. W. Andrews, Acme Club, gave two very interesting wrestling bouts, each winning a fall after much hard work. Jack Kitchen then gave an exhibition of fancy club swinging. Stack, Leands, Dowdle and Master Coey then did some feats in tumbling which brought down the house. High jumping by Dowdle, Pickard, Smyth and Stulz. The evening's entertainment concluded with a baton drill by Mr. Hadley of San Francisco.

Arrangements are completed for the bicycle race at Alameda on Decoration Day. The new track at the club grounds, Encinal station, is furnished and the crack riders are now training on it. There are two State championship racers—one mile safety and three mile ordinary—on the programme, L. A. W. rules will govern all races.

Disgusted Horsemen.

By a late dispatch from Garfield Park, Chicago, it is learned that the strings of horses that left here for Chicago and were placed in the stalls at Garfield Park have been standing idle ever since, consequently they have been losing form and growing stale. Romair, Bernardo, Ulster and a number of others will not be fit to start until they receive more work. A large number of our Californians have applied at the Washington Park Course for stalls and intend to remove their strings of flyers there if they can be accommodated.

It is of pecuniary interest to every horseman to aid in the introduction of Judge Burlingame's new book, "Parket," the Horseman's Hand-Book, for the reason that it educates the masses in all that pertains to the race-course and speed trials, teaches them the technical terms of the turf, and how to mark and read a score-card correctly, and must thus increase the attendance and interest in races. See advertisement in another column.

NONE of Haggins' thoroughbreds will be raced on the Eastern tracks this year. John Mackay, superintendent of Rancho del Paso, leaves for the East next Saturday with 125 youngsters, which will be sold at auction at the Tattersall's sale, New York, on the 14th and 15th of June.

A FEW FACTS.

The attention of the horsemen of the West is respectfully called to the following facts: Our track is conceded by all to be the fastest and safest in the West, and holds the trotting record, also the fastest stallion record for the North Pacific Coast. Our city to-day is the liveliest in the Pacific Northwest. Our people are hospitable and progressive and turn out en masse to the sport of Kings. If you want to get your horse acclimated before entering the Montana Circuit there is abundant opportunity in this program. If you want to sell, this is a good market for a good individual. It will pay you to spend a week with us.

Training The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:18¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¾, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

The Fast Trotting Stallion

SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINNER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾ Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted—80 horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17½, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the Stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1411, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¾, trial 2:25), by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27½, and the dams of Executor, 2:24½, Ranchero, 2.21½, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18¼, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddle Burns, th roughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS $30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¼; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

MOORLAND, $40.

Moorland's colts show speed. His dam, Lady Budd, was a wonderful road mare; nothing ever beat her in an all-day tussle on the Cliff House road.

The training department is very complete, and curing faults in gait is a specialty. The Souther Farm system of balancing was used most successfully during the past season on several well known horses, of which one took a record of 2:16 1-2, another 2:22 3-4 with several other creditable records and trials.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives EXERCISE WITHOUT CONCUSSION, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201)

CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

DIRECTOR JR.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

ANTEENUT stands 16 hands high; blood bay; best disposition; square trotter; quite speedy; had no track work; never worked for speed. *Balkan.

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and evel-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:08¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Toolhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.

COMBINED BLOOD

— And the Greatest Son of
ELECTIONEER,

ANTEEO WILKES.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:18¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19¼, James Madison, record 2:17¾; second dam by Alexander, record 2:31¼, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:24½ and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 28:30, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:23; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten mile record 31:07, one-mile record 2:38.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15.3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

SERVICE FEE $100.

Limited to twelve approved mares, season to end June 15th. Box stalls and corrals for mares. Address

WHEN YOUR BLACKSMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is glori ously mistaken. However, don't poin ou the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing of both heels and the entire wearing surface.

ONE MILE RECORD, 1:35 1-2. SALVATOR. BY PRINCE CHARLIE, DAM SALINA, BY LEXINGTON.

PROPERTY OF J. B. HAGGIN, Esq., RANCHO DEL PASO, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

RANCHO DEL PASO THOROUGHBREDS.

Some of the World-Renowned Horses to be Seen on the Largest Stock Farm on Earth —The Yearlings That Leave To-morrow for New York.

Rancho del Paso is a pleasing name given to the most extensive and beautiful stock farm in all the world. It could be termed with utter aptness Equine Paradise. Beside Rancho del Paso all other stock farms pale into insignificance. The visitor from San Francisco can reach the great Haggin horse-breeding establishment after a ride lasting a little over four hours through a country full of features interesting to any lover of scenery; skirting the shores of the beautiful San Francisco bay and the mighty Sacramento river, which is crossed at Port Costa on the Solano (the largest ferryboat ever built) to Benicia, thence through a beautiful level stretch of country for several miles, till the tule marshes are upon us, and a slow run is made over the trestles. Sacramento is reached in three and one-half hours, where, after a wait of twenty minutes, the iron horse pulls its riders eleven miles further to the east, and the train halts for a few seconds at Ben Ali.

A short walk up a well-kept road, past three or four paddocks, brings you close to a number of neat, airy barns painted a reddish-brown color. Passing by a number of these barns, turning to the left, beyond the trotting stallion barn and coach house, and you see, off to the left, a pretty residence, built in the old-fashioned Southern style, with wide verandahs on all sides. This is the home of the capable anp affable superintendent of Rancho del Paso, John Mackey. Straight ahead on the road you have been traversing is the kitchen and dining-room, wash-house and office. The latter place is presided over by Philip Johnson, a pleasant young man who has been at the ranch for several y ears. The Ben Ali establishment is called "The Arcade," on account of the situation of the buildings thereon. Here are quartered only two thoroughbred stallions (Milner and Alexander), the latter a full brother to Foxhall, being by King Alfonso, out of Jamaica, by Lexington. Milner is a beautiful chestnut in color, with well-turned limbs, neat body, and handsome head and neck, but, on account of his age, is not being used much in the stud. Alexander, however, is only seven years old, and is expected to make a good sire of race-horses. He is a bay horse with a rather plain head, but has a most substantial body of good length and limbs that denote great power.

In one of the paddocks we saw that much-prized matron, Lou Lanier, by Lever, out of Lady Hardaway, with a foal at her side by the mighty Salvator that had just made its earthly debut. This youngster looks more like its kingly parent than any yet foaled, which is saying a good deal, for Salvator is "breeding after himself" in a way that is decidely pleasing to his many adorers at Rancho del Paso. This colt has, though, the exact Salvator markings—four white legs and a large irregular strip of white in his princely "phiz." In a paddock adjoining Lou Lanier's was a brown filly foal by Salvator, out of Electra, Hidalgo's distinguished and much-prized mamma, and a chestnut colt by St. Blaise, at the side of that good-looking matron, Carina (therefore a full brother to St. Carlo).

Further to the east, in another "lot," we came across one of America's most distinguished mares—Salina—distinguished as a turf queen and as the dam of the turf emperor, Salvator, the Great. At Salina's side was a young colt foal by "the black whirlwind," Tremont, son of Virgil and Ann Fief. Salina bears her weight of twenty-four years lightly, and is still a handsome mare. There were in the labyrinthian mazes of paddocks at "The Arcade" several other young foals of distinguished parentage, but,as our enthusiastic guide assured us, "This is nothing beside what we've got at 'The Bottoms.' The horses are down there." And he was eminently correct in his statement. There were enough famous thoroughbreds down at "The Bottoms" to turn a person's head gray with envy.

Bright and early next morning your representative, accompanied by an accomplished horseman and well-posted gentleman named Michael Cassidy, was driven behind a fast thoroughbred mare to The Bottoms, five miles away, past the seven palace horse cars that are to carry the valuable consignment of 122 youngsters to New York, through fields of succulent alfalfa which were being rapidly mowed down and the hay carried off in wagons to the numerous spacious barns on that place. Our guide informed us that in a "good" year no less than five crops of alfalfa were raised, and that as far as that went the soil was so rich that anything could thrive there the year around. The American river once passed over a large part of what is now the most valuable and rich-soiled portion of the great ranch, but, like many swift streams, had changed its course, and was now a long distance away. Looking to the left, in the first good-sized paddock near the road, we saw a band of perhaps thirty royally-bred matrons, while in another mammoth paddock not far distant from that, we saw probably forty more. To give an idea of the magnitude of the establishment, we will state that there are in all at least 200 thoroughbred mares at Rancho del Paso, sixteen thoroughbred stallions doing stud service, while Mr. Haggin owns in one body 44,000 acres of land, a large portion of which is let out on shares. From a mammoth power house along the road to the home of Salvator, Maxim and their worthy associates is pumped the water that supplies every paddock, and these paddocks, all with grand old white oak trees in them, are divided for the most part into strips of 200 acres, and reach for miles. So many are there that a glance at them reminds one of an immense chess-board with the "pieces" being moved around in an exceedingly lively manner. The yearlings are very sociable, and seem to hate one to leave them, coming up and rubbing their aristocratic noses on one's cheek or coat collar, whichever place strikes their fancy. Hitching the good daughter of Jim Brown to a post in the roomy blacksmith shop, we went past the big "boarding-house" and Mr. Haggin's neat private residence to the stallion barns, wherein are kept horses that one million dollars could not purchase.

In the furthest barn are kept Salvator, Maxim and Sir Modred, the lords of the Rancho del Paso harem. Salvator was led out for my inspection first, and although I had visited many stock farms and seen several celebrated stallions, I said to myself instinctively as I gazed at this turf giant: "Never before have I seen anything to compare with this horse!" Standing a good sixteen hands, he covers an immense amount of ground. His head and neck are certainly the cleanest-cut and shapeliest that it has ever been my good fortune to see, while that large, irregular white streak extending down to the nose seems to give his face an expression that leads one to believe he is going to talk to you presently, so intelligent does he look. His eyes are mischievous but clear and bright, his nostrils are full and blood-like, his nose shapely in the extreme, and his muzzle shows his royal breeding by its fine shape and entire lack of coarseness. His ears are small and set beautifully on his kingly head, while Salvator has not as thick a throat or neck as most stallions. His shoulder is where he denotes his power, and in no other place does he show it, for he is not unusually deep through the heart. Salvator's body is very long and shapely, and he was in splendid condition to-day—neither too fleshy nor too thin. The great horse is cut off rather squarely behind, as a racehorse of stamina should be, and he has an immense sweep from hip to hock and the straight hind leg so much sought after by experienced horsemen. His muscles are like those of the best athletes—long and not bunched—and you cannot tell for the life of you where he gets all his strength. There is not much difference between the height of Salvator at the withers and the highest portion of the rump, and he has a short, strong back. His legs and feet are without a blemish. Viewed from behind, he would not strike you as being the most powerful racehorse you had ever seen, but as a well-turned one, with legs of flinty hardness. To sum Salvator up, he is a beautiful stallion and a deceptive one, for you cannot discern where he gets his great power. A peculiarity about the horse is the darkness of his skin where the saddle rests, said by Groom McDonald to be a characteristic of the members of the Stockwell family.

Maxim, the newly-arrived New Zealand crack, was next in order. The son of Musket and Realization is a dark bay horse standing 15.3 hands and weighing, I should say, in the neighborhood of 1200 pounds. He has a beautiful head, neither too large nor too small, ears that set well forward, wide jowls and a delicate throat that betokens much quality. His neck is long and thickens out wonderfully, and he has shoulders that show a world of muscle. Maxim is very deep through the heart, and has rather a heavy, round barrel of fine length, short legs, and broad, short back. "There is a giant," anyone would say that looked at him critically, and he has truly wonderful quarters. His cannon-bones are unusually short, and he has strong-looking limbs all round. Withal he is a horse with lots of "quality," and at the same time of a type seldom seen in America. The sons of Musket have been very successful, and as this is one of the best ever produced by that horse, he should accomplish wonders, mated with our thoroughly American mares.

Sir Modred, in the adjoining stall, was inspected, but as he has been so often described, we will pass him by with the remark that he is a handsome horse, built on much the same lines as Maxim, though not so heavy as his Antipodean friend.

Ben Ali is looking well, and so are his yearlings. Darebin was never in better health, and is a fine-shaped horse, 16.2 in height and weighing nearly 1,300 pounds.

Imported Midlothian (son of Strathconan and Lufra, by Windhound) filled the eye of the writer about as well as anything at the great stock farm; and he is not only a beautifully bred horse, with lots of the much-prized blood of Touchstone, Irish Birdcatcher and Pantaloon in his veins, but was a wonderful race horse as well. Here is a stallion that has been "buried" in England and Illinois, and now, with only limited opportunities, his light is coming out brilliantly from under the proverbial bushel. Monowai is the greatest two-year-old colt shown in California this season, and Braw Scot is faster than a bullet. Midlothian is a dark bay horse, standing 15.1½ hands, with a gamey, clean-cut head and bright eyes, a shapely neck, strong body, deep through the heart, and a stallion with legs of steel. He looks a race horse all over, and is a fine type of an English thoroughbred.

Fitz James is a fine-looking, big young stallion, well thought of by the attaches of the establishment, and is getting a fair share of well-bred matrons. Fresno, the black son of Falsetto and Cachuca, by King Alfonso, third in the Junior Champion of 1889, and a good winner thereafter, is a fine looking, medium-sized horse, who has been bred to a few mares this season. Tyrant is looking splendidly, and is, like Salvator, stamping his likeness on his progeny.

Before going to look at the yearlings I expressed a desire to see Firenzi, Miss Woodford, Lizzie Lucas and Vandalite, retired queens of the turf. Firenzi is looking better than she ever did in her life, beyond doubt, and is the most deceiving little-big mare in the world, probably. What a beautiful head and splendid arched neck she has, to be sure, how deep she is through the heart, what quarters, what a flinty set of legs she's got, and how short she is from hock to hoof. When you are through looking her over you are almost certain to upbraid yourself for having called Firenzi small, for she will outweigh most 16-hand mares, even though herself not over 15.1½.

Old Lizzie Lucas has a likely-looking dark gray filly foal at foot by Salvator, and as Lizzie is a great producer of winners we look for this miss to bring a great sum at the sale of 1893.

Miss Woodford is in an adjoining paddock with another ex-champion, Vandalite. Miss Woodford's foal is a brown filly by Salvator that looks as if she is going to be as big as her mother and built on the same staunch lines. Miss Woodford is a "tremendous" mare and should produce world-beaters, being about as good-looking a matron as one would care to see. Vandalite's Salvator foal is a colt, a dark chestnut in color, and a fine-looking fellow, too, that is highly prized by the Rancho del Paso people.

Having seen the celebrities of the running turf of the past, I now expressed a desire to see the coming champions. So, kindly piloted around by a young man named Samuel King, who is a walking pedigree book, and knows every yearling on the ranch intimately, we looked on the youngsters that are going to New York to be sold on the 13th and 14th of June, and following is a description of some of the princes and princesses:

A substantial-looking chestnut filly with clean limbs and handsome head and neck is by imp. Kyrle Daly out of Abra, by Alarm. This filly is not a little like Motto (Senator Rose's fast three-year-old), and being from great racing families on both sides of the house and a full sister to the winners, Abra Daly and Candelabra, should likewise make her mark. In the paddock she came up like a whirlwind, and with the stout Leamington and Wagner blood on the dam's side, backed up by the much-prized blood of Stockwell, Orlando and Lanercost, she should be able to carry that speed over a distance of ground.

The bay Darebin–Ailee filly has a magnificent head and neck, a well-turned body and limbs that could hardly be improved on. Her dam was a high-class race mare out of a daughter of the mighty Bonnie Scotland, while her fourth dam was the famed Fashion, who beat the great Boston twice and others of little less note. Hurrah, sire of this filly's dam, was very successful in the stud, and one of the best-bred horses ever imported to America, being by Newminster, dam Jovial, by the crack Bay Middleton, winner of the English Derby and Two Thousand Guineas.

No. 5 on the catalogue is a colt that is sure to attract considerable attention wherever seen. He is by imp. Sir Modred and out of Allannah, by Onondaga, therefore a half-brother to that good colt Joe Kelly. Allannah, in her day, defeated Los Angeles, Zuleika and Raceland, and that is a sufficient guarantee of her worth. Her son is only of medium size, but is exceedingly racy-looking and beautifully bred, tracing back into the celebrated Dance family, which gave us Reel and Waltz, Schottische, Dance, Glidelia and Farandole, amongst others famous on the track and in the stud. Onondaga, sire of Allannah, is producing winners right along, while Sir Modred has conclusively demonstrated through Sir Matthew, Tournament and scores of others his great value as a sire.

A royal looker is No. 9 on the catalogue, a brown filly by imp. Kingston (son of Hampton and Lady Langden, by Kettledrum), dam Bedotte (sister to Brocade), by imp. Bonnie Scotland This filly has a most shapely head, a body of good length and plenty of substance, clean, strong limbs, and shows plenty of power. There were more great producers in her family than one can often find. Among the celebrated mares that figure in her pedigree are Queen Mary, Blue Bonnet, Sister to Ruric, Levity, Alice Carneal and Anticipation. Bonnie Scotland was probably the most wonderful producer that ever came to this country, and bred as this filly is, combined with her racy conformation, she should make a race mare second to none.

The bay filly numbered 12 on the catalogue is a nice one, surely, and if there is anything in looks should be able to stay the route and be speedy as well. She is a remarkably strong miss with handsome head and neck, staunch legs, substantial barrel, and as she came up to see the strangers she showed a turn of speed that was not to be despised. This filly is by Florentine (full brother to the turf queen, Firenzi), and out of Cachuca, by imp. St. Blaise (the English Derby winner and wonderful sire); second dam Carmen, by Fiddlesticks and third dam Camilla, by King Tom (sire of Great Tom and Phaeton, latter sire of Ten Broeck and King Alfonso). Cachuca, dam of the filly, is but five years of age, and this is a mighty promising beginning.

By imp. Sir Modred, dam Caress, by Wanderer, is the way the pedigree of the bay colt numbered 14 on the catalogue reads. This youngster resembles his illustrious sire more than any of his yearlings, consequently he is a good-sized, evenly-turned colt with a beautiful head and neck and clean set of legs, showing lots of power. Caress, dam of number 14, is out of Carrissima, by Kingfisher, and she is from imp. Camilla, by King Tom.

A bay filly by Sir Modred and out of Carissima, by Kingfisher (the grand race horse and successful sire), is highly prized by the Rancho del Paso folks. Like her close relative described above, she has a beautifully shaped body with a most handsome head and neck and limbs that appear as strong as steel. Coming from families that like a distance, she should, with her splendid appearance, bring a pretty penny at the New York sale.

The brown colt, by imp. Darebin, out of Chatelaine, by Norfolk, second dam Neapolitan, by War Dance, is smaller than most of the Darebins, but, like the big, brown Antipodean, is built to stay the route with any of them. Chatelaine, dam of this brown fellow, is a young mare—too young to have any of her progeny appear on the turf—but having a double cross of Lexington, linked with the blood of imp. Knight of St. George, who has produced some of America's greatest broodmares, she should be a great producer. In Chatelaine's pedigree figure some wonderful mares, as well as sires, notably, Eliza Davis (dam of War Song, who produced Eole, Eolist, Eolo, St. Savior and Eon, all great on the turf), imp. Melrose (dam of Melbourne, Jr., Keene Richards and Target), and Reel (by many considered the greatest broodmare Americans ever saw, as well as a splendid racer). That this brown son of Darebin should race well is unquestionable.

A colt that looks as if he ought to race early, as well as late, is by Hyder Ali and from Clarissa, by Wanderer. In color he is chestnut, with star in forehead and both hind legs white nearly to hock. He is not large, but oh, how well he is built—a regular Bootjack style of a colt that ought to run half a mile or two miles, one distance as well as the other, and both like chain lightning. His second dam is Carissima, the noted daughter of Kingfisher, whom we have described above.

Royally-bred and racy-looking in the extreme is a medium-sized bay filly that we saw by Tyrant and out of Cresset, by Alarm (son of imp. Eclipse and imp. Maud, by Stockwell), second dam Lady Salvers, by Longfellow, and third dam Geneura, by Lexington. Here is a breeding for you, and if that is not enough, we will state that the filly's sixth dam is the celebrated Grecian Princess, by Whip, and she traced back to the great mother of race horses, imported Cub mare, so highly and justly prized by all American students of the breeding problem. Tyrant, the filly's sire, was a number one race horse, and bred as she is, and looking as she does, this filly cannot help being a good one on a race track.

A grand-looking big fellow is the brown colt by Darebin, out of Cuyama, by Glenelg. He shows his royal breeding, for he not only has size, but substance, length and the appearance of a race horse all over. The first of Cuyama's produce to race was Little Dick, by John Happy, and he won last season in good company. The Glenelg family is a famous one in the female line, some of our most noted race horses having come from Glenelg mares, notably Volante, Troubadour, Kaloolah, La Sylphide, Bermuda, Dagonet, Chaos and Livonia.

Daruna, by Mortemer, is the dam of a strong, likely-looking little roan colt by Warwick (sire of Wary, Grandee and other good race horses). If there was ever a better-bred mare than Daruna (herself a fine race animal), it would take a powerful glass to discover that matron. She was by the great French horse Mortemer (sire of Exile and other grand ones), out of Explosion (dam of the wonderful Dewdrop), by imp. Hampton Court, second dam Napa, by imp. Eclipse, and so on, tracing to the imported Cub mare and on to the twenty-second dam. We look for this yearling to gallop fast early and to develop into a race mare of the first water.

No. 25 on the catalogue, the bay filly with a white strip in her face, by Kyrle Daly, out of Emotion, by Falsetto, is sure to race early, and to be a fast one. She is a neatly-turned miss with limbs that should carry her anywhere speedily. Emotion, her dam, was a cracking race mare, and out of a splendid producer, Emeti, dam of Ems and Brodhead. Ems is the dam of that grand performer, Big Three, also of the stake winners Lackawanna, Tom Rogers and Orlie. Emotion's sire, Falsetto, was a wonderful race horse, and is now one of our most successful sires. In the pedigree of Emotion figure the famous producers of winners—Farfaletta, Elkhorna, Nebula (dam of Asteroid), Blue Bonnet (dam of Thunder, Lightning and Loadstone), Emma Wright and Fannie Wright.

The Sir Modred-Faux Pas filly, numbered 27 on the catalogue, is highly thought of by every one that has ever seen her. She is in color a chestnut, with a broad strip of white in face and two hind legs white. She has every mark of a race horse—long body, sturdy limbs, clean-cut, gamey-looking head and short cannon-bones. If she is not a good one there is nothing in conformation.

One that is almost certain to make her mark on the turf and to like a distance of ground is the bay filly with a broad strip of white in her face and three white feet, by Darebin, out of Finanza, by Virgil. She is a filly of great substance, and from distinguished families on both sides. This is Finanza's second foal, consequently she has had nothing old enough to race. Through Filagree, the fifth dam, the filly gets some of the prized blood of Stockwell and Touchstone, while the second dam, Finance, is by Leamington (sire of Longfellow and Onondaga). Through Virgil she gets some exceedingly stout American blood.

A racy-looking chestnut colt is the one by Hyder Ali out of Garnet, by Glenelg—not only racy-looking, but strong as a lion as well.

The brown colt with large pointed star in his forehead, by Sir Modred from Glad Eyes, by Onondaga, although a trifle small, shows lots of "quality," and we look for him to race well early. He is royally-bred, going back into the beloved Dance family, his third dam being Waltz, the great race mare and dam of Glidelia, holder for nine years of the mile and three-quarter record. Onondaga's performances and pedigree are too well known to need repetition. Gladiola, the second dam gets the blood of Touchstone, Pantaloon and that great English mare Alice Hawthorne through her sire, imp. Glengarry, therefore outside of the colt's racy aprearance, his breeding is as fashionable as the most fastidious could desire.

Look out for No. 34 on the catalogue, gentlemen, and get out your bank checks, for here is one of the prizes of the sale. It is the bay colt with star in forehead and white spot on his nose, by imp. Darebin out of Glendair, by Norfolk. He is rangy and racy-looking, of good size and with lots of substance, flinty limbs and short cannon-bones, usually denoting a speedy and strong horse. His dam was a winner and could go the route, her sire was the unbeaten Norfolk. The colt's second dam is Glendew, who produced those good race horses, Guenn, Geoffrey and Guardsman, while the third dam threw two winners in Restless and Pirate. The fourth dam was the celebrated Sallie Lewis, dam of John Morgan, Hunter's Lexington (dam of Maud Hampton and Belle of Maywood), Acrobat, Minnie Lewis, Lotta, Glenrose and Susan Beane, dam of Sensation, Susquehanna, Stratford, Soubrette and Onondaga, famous on the track and in the stud. There are nothing but notables on both sides of the house, and this good-looker must naturally be a race horse.

The bay colt by Sir Modred, dam Glendora (dam of Bessie W.), by Glenelg, looks like a race horse, and has a staunch-looking barrel set on the strongest limbs, and is unusually deep through the heart. His breeding is fashionable, and Glendora, the dam of the youngster, started but twice as a two-year-old, and won both times, defeating Miss Ford and many other good ones. She also produced a fast winner in Bessie W., by Darebin, who last season, as a two-year-old, ran five-eighths in California in 1:01½ with big weight up. The second dam threw two winners and two dams of winners, while the third dam was equally successful. Emma Wright, the colt's fourth dam, produced the wonderful race mare Molly Jackson (dam of Monday, Fanny Ludlow and Doubt), Laura Farris, Earring and Emeti. Nothing can beat this, and linked with the stout blood of Glenelg, Lexington, Stockwell, Melbourne, Glencoe, Touchstone and Venison, how can a youngster built like he is fail to be a great race horse?

No. 38 is a brown colt by Darebin and from Gondole, by Iroquois, second dam imp. Gondola, by Beadsman (winner of English Derby), and third dam Felucca, by Buccaneer. The youngster is not as large as most of the Darebins, but is beautifully and strongly built and has a very handsome head and neck. He looks as if he ought to race early.

Another likely-looking brown colt is the one by Hidalgo, out of Graciosa, by imp. Glengarry, second dam Bessie Belle, by imp. Bonnie Scotland, third dam Bryonia, by Jack Malone, and fourth dam Arnica, by Asteroid, all producers of great prominence, and two of the four winners themselves of no little reputation. Graciosa, the first dam, won the California Stake at Bay District track, San Francisco. The colt looks like a fellow that would like to go a distance.

The best-appearing youngster by Joe Daniels is the bay filly out of Guilia, by imp. Kyrle Daly. Those who ought to know say she will, barring accidents, prove a winner early and often.

A chestnut colt by Hidalgo out of Helena, by War Dance, strikes me very favorably. Although a large colt for his age, he has the substance and the breeding from which race horses should come. His head and neck are models of beauty, and he is bred to go the route. He traces twice to the Dance family, and that should settle it that he will race well.

No 44 on the list is a bay filly by imp. Darebin out of Illusion, by Alarm (dam of Raveloe and Brown Fox). Illusion's family rather takes the cake as a producing one, for there were too many noted winners in it to mention in this article. Suffice it to say that the filly is the pick of the bunch in the large paddock she was in, and there must have been a dozen or more along with her.

The chestnut filly by Joe Daniels and from Irian, by King Ban, second dam Irene, by imp. Leamington, looks and acts like a crackerjack. She is of good length, with powerful limbs, is deep through the heart, and as a lot-galloper is a decided success. We predict a brilliant turf career for this one.

Ben Ali is the sire of No. 46 on the catalogue, and the bay filly is out of Italia, by Enquirer, second dam Blondina, by imp. Bonnie Scotland. This is a good-sized miss, strong and racy-looking.

One of the high-priced ones of the sale should be the brown filly, numbered 48, by Hidalgo, out of Judith, by Glenelg. This is going to be a race mare, sure, and my guide was very enthusiastic over the youngster. She is a half sister to the winners La Juive and Esau, and her dam was a superior race mare; the second dam was the stake-winner and wonderful producer, Madam Dudley, by Lexington, while the third dam, Brittania IV, produced Brigand, Booty, Brown Prince and Duhme, fine race horses. Brown Prince was sent to England, and there ran second for the Two Thousand Guineas.

A chestnut filly, numbered 52 looks very much like Monowai, the best colt in California. The youngster is by imp. Midlothian, out of La Scala, by Joe Hooker, second dam Abbie W. (dam of Porter Ashe), by Norfolk, third dam Ada C. (dam of the winners Conner, Ballot-Box, Spring Box, Narcola, Surinam and Sacramento), fourth dam Sallie Morgan, by imp. Emancipation, even as great a producer as any of the others mentioned. This filly will be a wear-and-tear, speedy mare, and should race early.

One that should be able to stay the route and go like a flash is the chunky bay filly with a handsome head, by Darebin, dam Letola, by Lexington, (therefore half-sister to Cayuga and Unrest), second dam the famous Capitola (dam of King Alfonso, Belle Barclay, Hospador and Stilletto), by Vandal, while the next two dams were scarcely less productive of winners.

The more a person sees of the brown filly by imp. Midlothan—Lima, by Enquirer, the more in love with it he becomes. It possesses one of the most shaply forms and best dispositions we have observed in many a day.

"That filly will race some," said my kind guide, and indeed she looks like a race mare, having good length and steely limbs. We refer to No. 56 on the catalogue, a bay miss by Hyder Ali, out of Lorilla, by imp. Mortemer.

Lulu, by Virgil out of La Polka (dam of Los Angeles, Post Guard, Strathspey, La Esmeralda, Heel and Toe, Elmendorf, Gallop and Minuet), is the dam of a bay filly by imp. Darebin that is highly prized and almost sure to cut a large swath on the racing lawn. The filly in question is a most substantial as well as fast one, and traces to the Dance family also.

No. 63 is likely to evoke some lively bidding, and it would not surprise me a bit if he brought about the longest price of anything at the sale. We refer to the bay colt with large star in forehead and near fore foot white, by Sir Modred, out of Mabel (full sister to Ban Fox and King Fox), by imp. King Ban; second dam Maud Hampton, by Hunter's Lexington; third dam Mollie Fisher, by Knight of St. George. The colt is considered at the farm to be one of the most promising youngsters that ever left Rancho del Paso, being strongly and at the same time racily-built and of royal breeding.

A big, strong, gamey-looking bay colt that is large enough to break now is by Ben Ali out of Mariposa, by Monarchist; second dam Heliotrope (dam of Long Jack and Marchioness), by imp. Knight of St. George; third dam the famous race and broodmare, Mistletoe, by imp. Glencoe.

Another likely-looking Midlothian is the bay filly out of Misfortune, by Wheatley (son of War Dance). The youngster is very rangy and racy looking.

No. 72 ought to make his mark on the turf, for he is gamey, good-looking and bred in the purple. By Hyder Ali, dam Miss Clay, by Hindoo; second dam Belle of Runnymede (sister to Miss Woodford), by Billet, is the way the brown colt's pedigree reads, and the family will add one more winner to its already long list when this colt starts.

The half-sister to Motto (by Hyder Ali—Mottle, by Billet), from great producing famlies, is a nice, little, strongly-built chestnut filly numbered 75 on the catalogue.

A chestnut filly, by Warwick out of Nana, by Virgil, appears to us very much like a sprinter, and should race early.

"Nice-looking filly," would be a very likely exclamation when a person's eyes light on a bay filly by Sir Modred out of Napa (winner of the Gano and Ladies' Stakes), by Enquirer; second dam Bandana (dam of the phenomenal Red Banner, Banner-Bearer and Equipoise), by imp. Bonnie Scotland. Evadne, the third dam, threw no less than five winners. The filly is only medium-sized, but exceedingly racy in appearance.

"Rangy, with a handsome head and neck," is the way one would size up the chestnut fillly by Hidalgo out of Nehusta, by imp. Fechter; second dam Henlopen, a grand two-year-old and half-sister to Thora, dam of Yorkville Belle; third dam Susan Ann, a fine producer and noted race mare by Lexington.

A hard one to beat in any county is a bay colt numbered 82, by Ben Ali out of Parthenia (dam of Rizpah), by Alarm; second dam Maiden (dam of Parole, James A., Pawnee and Paw-Paw, stake-winners, and Powhattan, sire of Poteen and Burlington), by Lexington. If this colt is not a wonderful performer there is nothing in racing conformation or beautiful breeding.

Quite a likely-looking one is the chestnut filly by imp. Midlothian, dam Patty, by Longfellow; second dam Patty of Cork, by imp. Kyrle Daly; third dam Lady Stanhope (dam of Ban Hope), by imp. Glenelg; fourth dam Ada Cheatham (dam of Lida Stanhope, Frogtown and Ada Ban), by Lexington. The filly is strongly-built, is deep through the heart and has a body of medium length.

No. 84 is going to be a bull dog race horse, and is one of the most promising yearlings in the entire collection. He has the length, substance, short cannon-bone—in fact, he looks a winner all over. This chestnut colt is by imp. Kingston out of Peoria, by imp. Mortemer; second dam imp. Matchless (a stake-winner in England), by Stockwell. A glance at the pedigree of this youngster is calculated to enthuse a student of blood lines, bristling as it is with the blood of the greatest horses in English turf history.

"How can they beat her?" "I don't see how," Echo answers, when one speaks of the full sister to Tournament (by Sir Modred out of Plaything, by Alarm). She is one of the best-looking yearlings that any one ever saw, being of good height, with a rather plain head, long body and great depth through the heart, sturdy limbs, with short cannon-bones and the appearance of a race mare all over. If she don't prove as great or greater than her brother then her good looks belie her.

Preciosa was a grand race mare, and has reproduced herself in a bay filly by imp. Sir Modred. She has a nice head, compact body, well-turned limbs and substantial barrel.

Premium's filly by Tyrant is as fast as a bullet, as strong as a lioness, and should be a crack sprinter, if she does not go over a distance of ground.

The Ben Ali–Prose filly, a bay, with star in forehead and snip on nose, is a large, prettily-shaped miss with a pedigree that ought to suit any student of blood lines in the land.

If I were called on to pick out the handsomest youngster in the big bunch of fine ones I believe my choice would fall on No. 90, a bay colt by imp. Galore (the $30,000 importation) out of Prude, by King Alfonso; second dam Marguerite (dam of Katie Creel), by Lexington. He is of a fine size and looks every inch a prince of the turf.

A medium-sized bay colt, but a strong-looking, resolute fellow, is number 97, by Hyder Ali out of Santa Rita, by Virgil; second dam Madam Dudley, by Lexington. Santa Rita was a mighty good race mare, royally bred, and this colt reflects credit on the young matron.

When the bidders come to No. 98 they should calculate on paying a pretty price for the chestnut colt representing that number by imp. Sir Modred, out of School Girl, by Pat Malloy; second dam Glenuline (dam of the mighty Troubadour and the Illinois Derby winner, Windrush); third dam Lute (dam of Virginius), by Lexington. My, what a good-looker this fellow is! He has great length, depth through the heart and the kind of legs that make horses win at all distances. Here is a race horse, boys, and no mistake.

Ninety and nine is a "corker"—a neatly turned chestnut colt with a look about him that will catch any horseman at once. He is by Tyrant, dam Shena Van, by Luke Blackburn; second dam the cracking race mare Gossip, by imp. Leamington, third dam Henrietta Welch (dam of the winners Love Chase and Hibernia), by Colton (sire of Monday). The dams are traced back twenty-one generations, and that tacked on to a fine individual should result in the auctioneer knocking down the colt at a long price.

From a racing family of considerable note is No. 100 on the catalogue, a brown colt by Hidalgo, out of Sister to Jim Douglas (dam of Hotspur, the record-breaker, Kingmaker and Lyceum), by Wildidle. The second dam, Yolone, by Norfolk, also threw three winners. This brown colt is a sturdy fellow, if he is not altogether pretty.

Sozodont (dam of So-So), by Longfellow, is the dam of a gamey-looking chestnut yearling colt by Florentin (brother to Firenzi). He is of medium size, but the ranch people say he is going to be a race horse of the first class.

The Sir Modred-Stella filly is a handsome, strong, useful-looking brown miss, and coming from a first-class producing family, we look to see her win early.

Handsome, indeed, is the long-bodied, neatly-turned black filly by Hidalgo, out of Timbale, by imp. Great Tom; second dam Bonnie Belle, by imp. Bonnie Scotland; third dam Nina Turner (dam of Babee, Telie Doe, Paymaster, Ascot and Madstone), by Hiawatha.

One that is highly-prized is a black filly by Hidalgo out of Touche Pas, by Spendthrift. It is not such a strong looking miss, but is extremely racy-looking and a bullet-fast lot-galloper.

A Great Tom mare, Tourmaline, is the mother of a mighty big chestnut colt, with a gamey-looking head, by Sir Modred. Tourmaline is a full sister to Tyrant and Tyranny, and therefore should be a producer second to none.

No. 113 is a full brother to Gold Dollar, being by Sir Modred, out of Trade Dollar, by Norfolk. He is a speedy colt of fine size, with substantial barrel and staunch-looking underpinning.

A colt that should, on good looks alone, bring lots of money, is a chestnut fellow by Sir Modred, dam Typhoon, by King Alfonso; second dam Zephyr, by Lexington.

The sister to Tyrant, Tyranny, is the dam of an exceedingly tall and rangy bay filly, by Sir Modred. This youngster should make a cracking three-year-old.

A medium-sized, chain-lightning sort of filly is the one numbered 119 on the catalogue, by Hidalgo, out of Veracity by Wanderer. The purchaser of this chestnut filly will get a racer sure.

Lots of substance has the bay filly that is by Sir Modred and out of Wanda, by Norfolk, and No. 123 ought to bring a good price.

Yum-Yum's chestnut filly by Hidalgo is a lengthy youngster with a beautiful head and light body, and if she is anything like her mamma (daughter of Onondaga and War Over, by War Dance), the best horses in the country will have to stretch their necks to beat her.

Not having the space to describe the balance of the splendid consignment of yearlings, we will merely give the color and sex of the youngsters and their breeding, as follows:

TURF AND TRACK.

The English "Darby" will be run at Epsom next Wednesday, June 1st.

If a sire can transmit what he does not possess or inherit, then a thoroughbred can produce pacers.

All of the producing daughters of Pilot, Jr., with a single exception, are in the table of great brood mares.

Seven thoroughbred mares are to be bred to the Brooklyn stallion Baron Rose, a son of Stamboul and Minnehaha.

J. W. Werner of Erie, Pa., has shipped a filly by Pocahontas Boy to Tennessee, to be bred to Bronze Hal, by Brown Hal, 2:12½.

A. B. Rodman, of Lakeport, owner of Advocate and a number of very well-bred trotting horses, left this city for Chicago last Monday.

There are two kinds of vicious, high-strung mares. Some lack brains; others, being highly intelligent, resist first efforts to break them.

The Scoggan Bros. have sold the two-year-old filly Quiver, by Faustus, dam Belle Broeck, to Murray Keller, of Louisville, for $4,000.

The instinct to move rapidly at the trotting gait is as traceable to Bellfounder as to Messenger. The latter had no trotting blood in him.

Washington, sire of Laura M., 2:27, and Fred Ackerman (p), 2:23½, will be registered in volume 12 of the American Trotting Register.

There are sixty-eight mares of unknown breeding in the table of great brood mares and a still greater number whose dams are untraced.

There is a great hue and cry now over the overhead check. It is an instrument of torture at times. At other times it is an unqualified blessing.

It is singular how the ailments of a favorite horse will prey upon the mind of his master. Some men can scarcely sleep if they have a sick or lame horse.

The pacing stallion Brown Hal, 2:12½, is being worked, but will not be started this year. In his work last week he scored a quarter in 32½ seconds.

The Gambrinus Stable is after Wadsworth, the sensational three-year-old who showed such form at the recent Lexington meeting. It is said that $8,000 was offered him.

All the colts and fillies at Palo Alto are moving well. It will be only a few months more until we see another large number from this celebrated farm entering the 2:30 list.

"I never knew horse items could be made so interesting," said a veteran Presbyterian last week. Exactly. Good horse news will take the very juice out of a Puritan temperament.

There is no lack of standard-bred horses, but it is a significant fact the standard-bred trotter is not a drug on the market, and it will be many a day before such a thing will occur.

J. De Witt Butts, of Ashland, Oregon, has his horse Guy Mar, by Guy Wilkes, in charge of Mr. Schultius, Sacramento. Guy Mar is in the pink of condition, and will be heard from this fall.

D. L. Grum, of Sacramento, has his fine stallion Falrose looking well. By the way this splendid son of Fallis is moving, there is no doubting his ability to go inside the 2:20 mark this fall.

Conqueror, the horse that trotted a hundred miles in the year 1853 in 8 hours, 55 minutes and 53 seconds, was sired by a son of imp. Bellfounder, and was out of a mare by the same horse.

Minnehaha, dam of Alcazar, 2:20½, and four others in the list, foaled a bay filly at Rosemeade on the 19th inst. The aristocratic youngster is by Stamboul Chief, by Stamboul, he dam by Dictator.

Longstreet is himself again, and is more than likely to surprise lots of people on Suburban Day. Last Monday he defeated Judge Morrow and ran a mile and a quarter on a muddy track in 2:12.

The great Tennessee filly Belle Archer 2:15½, that last year downed Faustino, Dr. Sparks and others, is as round as a dollar and is working more kindly than last year. She will be a dangerous free-for-aller.

It is believed that Senator James G. Fair has given up the idea of holding an auction sale of his stock at present. It is getting late in the year, and the market is overstocked with work and light harness horses.

There are over 300 thoroughbred broodmares at Rancho del Paso and sixteen of the most famous stallions in the world, including Salvator, Maxim, Sir Modred, Darebin, Midlothian, Tyrant, Ben Ali and Kyrle Daly.

Blanche, foaled 1879, by Arthurton 365, dam Nancy, by Gen. Taylor, is the youngest mare that is credited with two 2:20 performers. They are Una Wilkes, 2:19¼ and Hazel Wilkes, 2:20, both by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼.

Tristan has exhibited weakness in one of his hind legs, and it looks doubtful if he will be a starter in the Suburban, for which he has been heavily backed. He has already been declared out of the Metropolitan Handicap.

Diablo seems to be returning to his three-year-old form; he is looking magnificently and working with his old vim and dash, besides reeling off his miles in excellent time. He recently worked a mile and a furlong in 1:59½.

The three-year-old bay filly Luck, bred at La Siesta Ranch, and by Eros 5326, dam Nettie Nutwood, by Nutwood 600; second dam Lady Scully (dam of Vanderlynn, 2:21), by Joseph (thoroughbred), has been bred to Allerton, 2:09¼.

Salina, dam of the mighty Salvator and queen of the turf in her day, bears her weight of years easily, and is a fine looking mare still. She has a Tremont colt foal at her side, and seems good for many years on this terrestial sphere, although he has passed the twenty-fourth milestone of life's road.

Everyone who sees the mares, colts and fillies at the Hobart Farm comes away fully convinced that they never saw such an aggregation of good-lookers in their lives, and Mr. Gamble, the superintendent, has them looking as fine as silk.

Rufus Smith, of Salinas, sold his yearling colt by Napa Wilkes to J. Harris, of Denver, for $500 last week. The purchaser is to be congratulated upon getting one of the finest-looking and most promising youngsters ever raised in Salinas.

Narvaez is certainly the best jockey in the country when it comes to getting away well. He rode Kingmaker in the Brooklyn Handicap, recently, and got off in front with his mount, who is a son of Warwick and Sister to Jim Douglas.

T. W. Fitzgerald, well-known in California horse circles for over thirty years, is now quartered at Rancho del Paso, near Sacramento, engaged in training a string of fourteen of the most promising young trotters in the State, all by Algona.

Scotland has long been famous for her religion. "My boy," said an Englishman, "I must tell thee that I was never done in a horse deal but once, and that was by a Scotchman, who throwed me off my guard by saying grace over a gill of whiskey."

The yearlings going East from Rancho del Paso to be sold are a grand lot all through. The sister to Tournament and some youngsters by Tyrant, Midlothian and Hyder Ali are likely to catch a turfman's eye when racy looks are the qualifications desired.

From all parts of the State reports come about the work of preparation that is now going on among horsemen. Every race track in the land is beginning to present an animated appearance with its scores of drivers and trainers handling trotters and pacers.

Orrin A. Hickok on his trip East, brought the large bay gelding by Whips, 2:27½, that showed such great speed at Pleasanton a month ago. He is highly-formed, pure-gaited and a horse that will be able to trot his heats without "sitting down in the breeching."

For three generations the mare Queen (2:22 with Oakland Maid to pole)—now owned by Senator Jas. G. Fair—her daughter, Queen Piedmont, by Piedmont, and her granddaughter, by Elmo, have all had colts by Eros, son of Electioneer and Sontag Mohawk.

One of the handsomest foals at Rancho del Paso is a colt by St. Blaise, out of Carina, by Kingfisher, and therefore a full brother to W. O'B. Macdonough's great horse St. Carlo. It is easy to see at a glance why the youngster is so likely-looking, because Carina is an ideal young matron.

The man who will run a horse into town, tie him to a post and let him stand there nearly all night without a blanket in order to save twenty-five cents, while he blows in four or five times that amount on his own worthless carcass, is a meaner man than the one who would come along and steal said horse.

Memo has been taking "swimming lessons" on the Souther Farm, and looks better than he has since his memorable race with Grandee at the Bay District track. Mr. Groom says he has not shown any signs of lameness and believes he will stand up to his work this fall; if he does, 2:20 will not stop him.

Rosa Bonheur, by Erwin Davis, dam by Washington, 2:21¾, foaled a brown colt May 14th. This is the fifth year in succession that she has presented within two days of the same time each year a horse colt to Mr. Frank Burke, of La Siesta Ranch. Verily she may well be called a regular breeder.

Judge W. E. Greene tendered his resignation as a member of Agricultural District 1 last Saturday. Every one connected with this live association will hear with regret of this decisive step on his part. His presence will be missed in the judges' stand and on the committees of awards, in which he took great pride.

When Monroe Salisbury was inspecting the thoroughbreds at Rancho del Paso, he stopped in front of Salvator, the American Equine Monarch, and walked all around the chestnut beauty. Then placing his hand upon the horse's white face, he said: "Any man that would not love this horse can be no friend of mine."

Dr. Dunn, of Oakland, has a chestnut colt at the Oakland Trotting Park that can pace very fast. He is a good-looker, and as game a colt as ever was hitched. He is by Sidney, 2:19¾, out of a mare by Captain Webster 10,173, second dam by Admiral. Adonis, 2:11¼, and the fast trotter Cupid, 2:18, are bred just like him.

Californians ran first and third in the rich Street Railway Stakes at St. Louis on the 14th inst., distance three-quarters of a mile. Oregon Eclipse won, Lord Willowbrook second, Pescador third. In another race at the same place and on the same date Hoodlum, son of Joe Daniels and Miss Clay, captured the coin in fine style.

The Rancho del Paso yearlings start for the East to-morrow in seven palace horse cars. As good a lot never started from one stock farm in the history of the world. Out of the 122 to be sold in New York on June 13th and 14th not one is bad-looking, while every youngster in the consignment comes from a fine producing family.

When the improvements now going on at Washington Park, Chicago, are completed, the betting inclosure will be 320 feet long by 90 feet wide, and will contain 31,500 feet square of space, enough for 20,000 standing people, and an increase of 15,680 square feet. This will make it, next to Morris Park, the largest betting-ring in America.

Recent advices from Australia are to the effect that Maxim, the great black horse by Marvellous out of La Belle, by Maribyrnong, won the Doncaster Handicap at Sydney, carrying 144 pounds, one mile, and running the distance in 1:41¾ from a standing start—the best performance on record, with weight up. There were over thirty-seven starters in the race.

Electra, dam of Hidalgo, foaled a brown filly by the great Salvator a few days ago. The old black mare had to be very carefully attended to, and the foal is being nursed by a more youthful "mammy." Electra comes from a distinguished family, from which have come Mollie McCarty, Flood and Shannon, and is one of the highest prized mares at Rancho del Paso.

Senator Stanford recently said his filly Rowena was looked upon as being the greatest of her age on the Pacific Slope until she went wrong. She is now being prepared to lower Monbars' two-year-old record. She is by the half-thoroughbred sire Azmoor, out of Emma Robson, a fine thoroughbred mare, and she is consequently 75 per cent. thoroughbred.

"We thought we had some Salvators at the ranch that looked like their great sire, but this fellow (pointing to a foal by the side of Lou Lanier) beats them all," said the veteran horseman, Mike Fox, at Rancho del Paso last week. Indeed, there was a Salvator—the four white legs, the big, irregular-shaped strip of white in the face and the handsomest head and neck imaginable.

An Eastern breeder has bought Dan McCarty's stallion Princewood, by Dexter Prince, dam by Nutwood, and paid $7,500 for him. McCarty has corralled within the past year nearly all of the Dexter Prince blood in the State, and now he is getting high prices for them. He intends to go exclusively into the trotting industry, and has announced a sale of all his runners in Chicago.

Artificial impregnation has been practiced successfully at Saginaw Stock Farm. Out of five applications three were successful, one mare by Coaster, 2:26½, producing a filly sired by Sphinx, and two others are heavy with foal. This is the first foal produced by the novel process east of the Rocky Mountains. The mare that produced was repeatedly bred since 1888, and was supposed to be barren. The filly is a strong one, and resembles her sire.

Australia has a good race horse called St. Blaise, by St. Albans out of Margaret, also a grand mare called La Tosca and a Bettina. Our La Tosca and Bettina are good ones too. The Australian St. Blaise was second, only a neck behind Marvel, in the race where the latter carried 144 pounds and ran the mile in 1:41½. St. Blaise's weight was 117 pounds, while he is a year younger than Marvel.

Latest advices from Terre Haute are to the effect that every horseman who visits John A Goldsmith's string of trotters, is charmed with their excellent appearance. And, as one observer remarked, "It would be a difficult matter to go to any stock farm outside of California to get a like number of such good-looking ones." The weather has been disagreeable there, so that the horsemen have not been able to praise their trotting qualities. They will have an opportunity before long.

A. B. Rodman sent his broodmare Nellie Burns to be bred to Richards' Elector last week. Nellie Burns is by McDonald Chief, out of Fanny Rose (dam of Geo. Washington, 2:20), by Vick's Ethan Allen; she is a grand individual, and will be a splendid cross for Elector. It is pretty hard to explain her relationship to Geo. Washington, 2:20, however, as she is out of his dam and by his grandsire. Mr. Rodman says many have undertaken to make it clear to him, but so far have failed.

W. O'B. Macdonough, of San Francisco, the popular owner of St. Carlo, Suwarrow and a large string of thoroughbreds in training, has secured the race track at Rancho del Paso near "The Arcade." On this course a number of Mr. M.'s horses will be prepared for their races hereafter, and as many of America's most celebrated horses have been put through their gallops on the track mentioned, we look for not a few winners to come from the Macdonough stable in the future.

In Rancho del Paso's broodmare ranks are five mares that have been the champions of their day as racers, beyond dispute. We refer to Salina (dam of Salvator), Lizzie Lucas (dam of Cambyses and Cyclops), Vandalite (dam of Hiawasse and Housatonic), Miss Woodford and Firenzi. The last two mentioned won considerably over $100,000 each during their turf careers. Miss Woodford has no foals old enough to race, while Firenzi was but a short while ago retired and bred to Salvator.

From an analysis of the list of animals with records between 2:20 and 2:08¼, it would appear that a trotter is at his best when seven years old, as animals of that age in this list exceed in numbers those of any other age. The figures are as follows: Two years, 3; three years, 17; four years, 31; five years, 54; six years, 70; seven years, 80; eight years, 56; nine years, 49; ten years, 35; eleven years, 21; twelve years, 13; thirteen years, 10; fourteen years, 2; fifteen years, 1; seventeen years, 1.

One of the best-bred fillies in America, a yearling, has been secured by J. A. McDonald, of San Rafael. The youngster referred to is by Pancoast, 2:21¾ (sire of Patron, 2:14¼, and twelve others in the list), dam by Dictator (sire of Jay-Eye-See, 2:10; Director, 2:17, and 34 others in the list); second dam Lady Lightfoot (2:35 as a two-year-old), by Mambrino Time (son of Mambrino Patchen 58 and Puss Prall, dam of Lady Stout, 2:29, by Mark Time); third dam by Paddy Burns son of Gold Eagle.

Secretary Steiner has written to a gentleman in this city concerning the breeding of Chaldean as follows: "In your remarks regarding the breeding of Mambrino Wilkes, you are in error. The dam of Mambrino Wilkes was not a daughter of Marmaduke. This is not the first time this question has come up. There were two horses known as Todhunter's Mambrino, one of them a son of Mambrino Chief, who was the sire of Lady Chrisman, the other a son of Marion, who is registered as Marmaduke."

Gold Dollar, a Rancho del Paso-bred colt (by imp. Sir Modred—Trade Dollar), won a three-quarter mile dash race at Brooklyn on the 17th inst., doing the distance in 1:15 with 114 pounds up. On the same date Osric, three years, by imp. Cheviot—Abbie W., ran second in a mile and a sixteenth handicap race won by Willie L., the latter, four years of age, carrying 112 pounds and the three-year-old 111. Osric, amongst others, defeated Merry Monarch and gave him weight, Tammany, King Crap and Now or Never.

A characteristic correspondence per telegraph passed between Ed. Corrigan and Green Morris previous to the Brooklyn Handicap. Corrigan telegraphed Morris asking him about Judge Morrow. "Telegraph him, Mac," said Green to his right hand man, "that the Jedge hoss is a better hoss than the Riley hoss. He'll know then that the hoss is a racehoss." "Will I say anything about yourself?" asked Mr. McCullough. "You may," answered Green, with his sweetest smile. "If Corrigan has to pay for it say that I'm all right, except for a little rheumatics off and on, but that I expect to cool out the winner of the handicap if the Longstreet hoss gets disqualified for going the wrong cose."

THE famous horse Rarus, 2:13¼, so long king of the trotting turf, died of old age at Robert Bonner's farm at Tarrytown, N. Y., a few days ago. He won his first race on August 21, 1874, at Hornellsville, N. Y., and trotted 185 heats in 2:30 or better. Rarus was by Conkling's Abdallah, dam Nancy Awful, by Telegraph, and made his record at Buffalo, N. Y., August 3, 1878. Mr. Bonner purchased him in 1870, the price paid being $36,000.

JOE MCCARTY, who is in Chicago with his string of flyers, in a letter recently said that the track at Garfield Park is hardly fit to work horses on. After the races last fall the managers covered the course with a coating of sand, and when the rain soaks through that layer to the hard soil beneath the horses can find no foothold. Three gallopers fell down while exercising the other morning, and young Dan wishes for some of the soil of the Bay District track to speed his Cheviots on.

FIRENZI is looking and feeling elegantly these days. A person to see the queen at a distance in a paddock with one or two other mares would say at once: "What two-year-old old is that over there?" But closer inspection reveals one of the most compact bunches of horseflesh in the world. What a beautiful head and grandly-arched neck has the retired queen of the American turf and what a great depth through the heart, iron limbs, with wonderfully short cannon bones and quarters that would, for strength do credit to any strongly-built stallion in the world!

THE track at San Jose is keeping up its reputation this year as a splendid place to train horses, and a number of fast ones will graduate from there this fall. It is said that there are some yearling colts by Eros in Mr. Vioget's string of twenty that will come close to the 2:30 mark this fall. All of the old-time trainers are busy with promising ones. John Gordon, Wm. Donathan, M. H. McManus, Peter Williams, C. H. Corey, C. F. Bunch and a number of others who are closely identified with the trotting interests in this State are kept very busy, and not a sick one is on their lists.

OWING to a considerable rush last week, we made a couple of errors in the table showing the work of California horses on the track and in the stud. One mistake was in stating that Roy Wilkes, 2:08¼, is the fastest pacer bred east of the Rockies. It should have read Johnston, 2:06¼, instead. We also understand that R. P. Ashe did not breed the sprinting queen, Geraldine, but the credit is due to James Adams, of Los Angeles. The mare was foaled at Rancho del Paso, but as Mr. Ashe owned Cousin Peggy, her dam, we naturally thought Geraldine was bred by him, for she has always been raced in his colors.

RANCHO DEL PASO has been noted as the training-ground of scores of wonderful thoroughbred race horses in the past, but is now rapidly becoming famous as the birthplace and breeding ground of world-beaters. Taking the time that breeding has been carried on at Mr. Haggin's Sacramento valley place into consideration, the strides it has made are wonderful. If it had not turned out a number of winners even this early in the season, the success of Tournament, Ludwig, Kildeer, Masterlode, Sir Matthew, Montana, Grand Prix, Braw Scot, Monowai, Grandee and Sir John was enough for California to crow over.

MONROE SALISBURY was observed walking amid the infield of the Oakland race track last Monday; on inquiry, it was learned that he was looking for a little filly by Direct, 2:06, that he heard was there, belonging to Mr. J. C. Smith, of Oakland. It did not take him long to pick the little brown lassie out from among the large number of foals, and it would not surprise me if he purchased her. She is out of a good looking mare by Antevolo, 2:19½, second dam by Signal. The Direct fillies are scarce, and next to the old horse it is hard to say which is nearer to the Salisbury heart, the champion pacer Direct or these little ones.

THE Bettie colt has been winning at the East. This unnamed youngster is out of one of the most wonderful broodmares in America—Bettie (by Gen. Longstreet, out of Fawn, by St. Louis). Bettie is the dam of eight winners, viz.: John Davis, Bernice, Kate Fletcher, Nodaway, Mamie Hunt, Margo, Eatontown and Bettie colt. Only two mares in America ever produced as many winners—Marian, by Malcolm, and Belle Knight, by Knighthood. John Davis and Mamie Hunt were heavy winners. The former, although sixteen years of age, is still on the turf, while Mamie Hunt was about the best two-year-old filly of 1885.

OUT of fifteen Salvator foals that have come at Rancho del Paso this season twelve are chestnuts (like their sire), with white feet and strip in face. This shows conclusively that Salvator will be a most successful sire for racehorses, for he "breeds after himself," as all great stallions do, to a marked degree. A person can pick the Salvators out of a bunch of youngsters easily by the marks and "high-headedness" of the young princes and princesses. Tyrant is also producing youngsters that are very like their sire in color and markings, and the Tyrant yearlings at the coming sale in New York should excite the admiration of the turfmen gathered at Gotham.

THE busiest men at Pleasanton are Messrs. Salisbury, Starr and Neal, who are getting horses ready to take East. The string will start some-time between the first and the tenth of next month. We shall have a full list of the chosen ones for our next issue. There is one thing certain, Mr. Starr will not start with a lot of second-class "skates." The very fastest are not too good for him. He will go down the line we hope as triumphantly as he did last year. His sidewheelers, Direct, San Pedro, Flying Jib and Killarney Maid, compose a quartette of flyers that will improve the melody of the pool boxes as they beat time down the grand circuit or the Eastern and Southeastern circuits.

WORK is being rapidly pushed on the new mile track at the Souther Farm. When it is finished, which will be in the course of a few weeks, J. Groom will make his debut with a string of very promising horses. Mr. Tompkins has spared neither money nor labor to make his farm a model one for the purposes for which it is intended, and as soon as this latest improvement is completed horsemen can have an opportunity of having their horses gaited properly and trained carefully. The study of balancing trotters is one that Mr. Tompkins has spent a great amount of time on, and so far his efforts have been crowned with success. He is not one, however, who believes it is thoroughly mastered yet, and is continually experimenting with a view to becoming more perfect in this important branch of training trotters and pacers.

ALBERT W., 2:20, looks splendidly, and is about as handsome a large horse as one would come across in many a day's journey. A number of his youngsters can be seen at Rancho del Paso, and are hard to beat for good looks as well as breeding. Knight, 2:28½, is an exceedingly handsome brown horse, compact in build and a splendid-gaited horse as well. He has been bred this year to a number of gilt-edged matrons. Knight is an inbred Wilkes, being by Woodford Wilkes, dam by Adrian Wilkes (sire of Roy Wilkes, 2:08¼, pacing). Old Echo, the grand old sire of game trotters, is holding down Father Time like a hero, and instead of twenty-six appears like a ten-year-old horse.

A DISASTROUS fire occurred at the Edgewater Stock Farm seven miles from Cynthiana, Kentucky, on the 14th of this month. Two large barns were entirely destroyed and the following horses are known to have been burned: Easter Planet, by Planet, and a colt by Springbok; yearling filly by Outcast, dam Sister Monica, dam of Pessara; colt by Springbok; bay filly by imp. Moccasin; Springtime, filly by Springbok; Polly H. H., filly by Audrain, dam Mademoiselle, and a filly by Springbok, out of Brunette, half sister to Huron. The farm, stable and stock are owned by a stock company since the death of the Hon. T. J. McGibben, the former owner, and is devoted to the raising of thoroughbreds exclusively. The losses will reach $20,000, with only $2,000 insurance.

FOR $20,000 Gen. W. H. Jackson, of the Belle Meade Stud, in Tennessee, has secured the refusal of the great race horse, Kingston, foaled 1883, by Spendthrift, dam imp. Kapanga, of M. F. Dwyer, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The transfer is to take place so soon as it is ascertained that the horse's racing days are over, probably at the close of the present racing season. Kingston's final location in the stud is a matter of national importance in turf circles. No horse ever started in America has made a more remarkable record on the turf. Out of eighty-four starts he has won no less than sixty-three races, and only once during his career has he finished unplaced. In money his earnings amount to $114,677, making him rank fifth in the list of turf winners in the history of the American turf.

IT was in the rotunda of the Eastman Hotel, and Captain Knorr, the livery-stable man, was taking orders, says a St. Louis exchange. Up came a Boston tourist, very rich and very deaf. When he had anything to say he shouted it, as is the habit of deaf people, and everybody in the neighborhood heard him exclaim: "I've taken a great fancy to that horse of yours, Captain. How much do you want for him?" "Three hundred dollars," was the answer. "Too much," said the deaf man, who had not caught the figures quoted by the Captain; "but"—with the air of a man who knows how to make a bargain—"I'll give you $400 for him." "Done," came the quick acceptance; and it was hard to tell who was the better pleased, the man who made that one hundred dollars or the man who thought he had.

J. A. MCKERRON, the celebrated horse-boot manufacturer, has a little collection of good colts and fillies at his farm near Gilroy. Among them he has a yearling colt by Noonday 10,000, out of Cressida by Yosemite; second dam Maud H. by The Moor; third dam Katydid by Fireman (thoroughbred). Noonday is by Wedgewood 692 out of Noontide 2:20, by Harold 413; second dam Midnight (dam of Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, Electricity, 2:17¾), by Pilot Jr., etc. Yosemite 4906 is by Egbert 1136, out of a daughter of Woodford Mambrino; second dam Maud (dam of King Jim, 2:20), by Abdallah 15; third dam Mucklejohn (thoroughbred), etc. This is one of the strongest and most perfectly-made Noondays we have seen, and as Mr. McKerron has no need for a young stallion, will sell this fellow at a very low figure. He is a seal brown in color and a pure-gaited trotter.

AMONG the finest stables in the world are undoubtedly those belonging to His Imperial Majesty, the Czar of all the Russias. The royal stables at St. Petersburg excel all others for magnificence and completeness. In the coachhouse there may be seen a carriage which cost nearly $1,000,000. It appears like a golden chariot, and will accommodate a dozen passengers. Diamonds, rubies and pearls abound in the interior decoration of the vehicle. It was the carriage in which the great (and notorious) Catherine of Russia rode to her coronation. Another interesting vehicle, which does not run on wheels, is a sled or sleigh, built by Peter the Great. He was an industrious workman and an enterprising ruler. This sleigh would not do credit to any one's workmanship at this day; but, being shaped and fashioned by the hands of the Czar of all the Russias, its rude workmanship was obscured by the greatness of the workman.

THE trotting horse interests of this vicinity have grown to such an extent during the past few years, that in the tracing of pedigrees, naming horses when applying for registration, and settling disputes, not only as to breed, but performances, it became necessary to have at hand an authority on these subjects. Hence a number of gentlemen formed a club here and ordered from Chicago through the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of San Francisco a complete set of Wallace's Trotting Register. A couple of days ago there were received here the set complete so far as the volumes are now in print; that is to say, volumes from three to ten inclusive, volumes number one and two being now out of print. The Register is almost indispensable to persons who desire to engage in breeding trotters. Following are the names of the persons forming the club that have procured the Register: J. B. Iverson, Hebert & Son, M. Lynn, J. D. Carr, Hiram Corey, W. J. Hill, B. V. Sargent, Harris & Smeltzer, C. F. Langley, J. W. Tholcke.—Salinas Daily Journal.

IT IS odd how men will fill reporters of dailies up with "bogus" horse "news." Monowai, the great two-year-old by imp. Midlothian out of Eliza, by Norfolk, was reported sold to Philip Dwyer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for $15,000 in last Tuesday's papers. Tuesday morning John Mackey, of Rancho del Paso, called in, and said he had heard nothing of the sale or intended sale, and as he has a two-thirds interest in the wonderful youngster, it is altogether likely that he would know something about the matter, had there been such an important transaction. Another statement in the daily papers was to the effect that Yo El Rey and six other yearlings by Joe Hooker had been sold to Charles Fair, of this city, for $30,000. One correspondent telegraphed that the amount paid was $60,000. Our understanding of the matter is that outside of Messrs. Fair, Winters and Havey few know what the young San Franciscan really did pay for the seven yearlings, but $27,500 would probably not be far from the mark. It is also pretty certain that Mr. Winters would not have parted with Yo El Rey without selling the other six in the bunch.

IMPORTED MIDLOTHIAN is a medium-sized horse (about 15.2), but is a splendid type of the English racer. He sires nothing but winners, was a great winner on the turf himself, and shows as much "quality" as any horse at Rancho del Paso, which is saying a good deal, considering that Salvator, Maxim, Sir Modred and Ben Ali are quartered on that great breeding farm. Now that the horse's real merits have been discovered, we look to see his sons and daughters sell for big money. Midlothian is a dark bay horse by Strathconan out of Lufra, by Windhound (son of Pantaloon and Phyrne, by Touchstone); second dam Maud, by Loup Garon; third dam Venilia, by Velocipede. His son, Monowai, is undoubtedly the best two-year-old colt seen in California in many a day, while Braw Scot, another son, has this early in the season ran a mile in 1:41½, beating a select field of horses.

A GOOD horse can no more stand on bad feet than a good house can stand on a bad foundation. It matters not how beautiful the head and neck, how strong the back nor how clean the limbs. If there is canker in the hoof or unsoundness of any kind about that member the horse is not a good one. For this reason many buyers begin at the feet and pass upwards before making up their minds as to the horse's fitness for service. Ride a horse that flinches with every step and you are in constant sympathy with his suffering, and he is a heartless man indeed who can drive a lame horse and not suffer himself. There are many diseases which are located in the hores's foot, rendering a search often necessary to discover them. A purchaser should, if possible, ride or drive the animal a mile or so, as sometimes these troubles only appear after a little warming up and the cooling off which follows. Be sure of the feet, then examine other points.

MR. KNOX'S version of the misunderstanding with regard to the breeding of Arion is said to be as follows: There were two mares, both owned by the same man, and both in foal to Nutwood. These mares were in charge of a farmer in Wisconsin, the owner having gone to California. One was Addie, by Hambletonian Chief; second dam Manton, by Harry Clay 45. The second mare was bred at Woodburn, and was a full sister to Voltaire, being by Tattler, dam Portia, by Mambrino Chief 11, second dam Portia, by Roebuck, third dam by Whips, thoroughbred. This latter mare is the second dam of Arion, and not Addie. It appears that Addie had a colt and the sister of Voltaire a filly, and when the produce was sent to California the description was so imperfect that "the children got mixed up." [Can it be possible that this sister to Voltaire is the mare Emblem, dam of Figaro, the stallion now at the Souther Farm, San Leandro? She is also the grandam of Flying Jib, the wonderful pacer, and a sister to him called Lorena, 2:25. Emblem was owned by Peter Coutts of Mayfield.—ED.]

ABOUT two weeks ago a strange disease broke out among a number of horses on a large ranch near Dunningan's, Yolo County. Eight fine large horses died within a few hours of each other. A "veterinarian" from a neighboring town was called in who pronounced the disease "glanders." Every living animal on the place was quarantined until Dr. McCollum of Sacramento arrived. As soon as this gentleman saw the first carcass he said the animal was poisoned, and asked if the farmers noticed any deadly nightshade growing in the low grounds where the horses were eating, or if not, had they noticed any in the hay that was cut there. In a moment the truth dawned upon them and they remembered cutting some stubble, and perhaps it was in that. Dr. McCollum visited the hay barn and found that his surmises were correct. He forthwith treated the remaining nine horses that were suffering from the effects of the deadly plant, and at last accounts they were all on the fair road to recovery. Cases of this kind are very rare in California, for the plant is seldom found here. The "veterinarian" who pronounced the disease "glanders" should study the symptoms and appearance of that disease before pronouncing judgment on an ailment he apparently knows nothing about.

IT IS a favorite excuse for all men who go wrong financially to lay their troubles to the turf, and the institution of racing is accordingly held accountable for much of which it is innocent. Speaking on this subject, the New York Sun properly remarks: "Nine-tenths of all the sins charged to the turf are not of its creation. When a confidential clerk goes wrong or a husband drags the name of his family into disgrace, the easiest and the readiest and the most reputable excuse he can make is that the races caused his ruin. The races do ruin some people. They have done so and doubtless will again, but not one-tenth of the number who cloak themselves as their victims. The world attaches less odium to a man who falls through a weakness for racing than one who has been dragged down from respectability and disgraced by wine and women and a thousand other causes. It brings less shame to his wife and mother. It weighs less heavily upon his father and his family. It was only a weakness in its beginning. The others are crimes from their very inception. To accuse racing as it is done these days is very much like railing against a profession because some of its members may be disreputable. People want racing and they will have it until there is upon the statute-book some definite, unequivocal legislation against it."

WILLIAM HAYWARD is the oldest jockey on the turf. His experiences would fill a book. "How does it feel to ride at a record pace?" repeated he to a question asked him. "Well, if you know how to ride it's very exhilarating; but if you don't know how it is anything but pleasant, as that boy evidently thinks now. If you ride with your head down, that is to say, bent slightly so that the wind does not beat right on your face, you can breathe easily, but you hold your mouth wide open and let the air beat right in your face, then you will have great difficulty in breathing, and if the race is a long one you will become exhausted by the end of the ride. A mile race on a good horse is run in about 1 minute and 40 seconds—that is the near record made in a race. It has been made in 1:39¾, but that was on a prepared track. A mile in 1:40 is at the rate of thirty-six miles an hour; so you see a race horse travels at express speed. If you want to see how it feels to go through the air at racehorse speed, just hang your head out of a railroad carriage window, turning your face toward the way the train it traveling. At the same time imagine that you are sitting in a saddle and have to hold on to your horse and guide him on to victory, if possible, keeping him from being run down or interfered with. It is no easy task to ride a horse in a race. The jockey must have all his wits about him. He does not have much time to think how he feels. When riding in a neck-and-neck race down the homestretch I forget everything except that I must strain every nerve to pass the other horses; no thought is then given to the plaudits from the grand stand."

The Whales of the Indian Seas.

To the great majority of Anglo-Indians the leviathan of the deep are only known by the "schools" of porpoises, or the occasional spouting of a whale, which, for a few moments, serve to relieve the tedium of the voyage across the Indian Ocean or up the Bay of Bengal. Those, however, who are stationed on the banks of the larger rivers, like the Ganges Brahmaputra, and Indus, are familiar with the graceful gambolings of the fresh water Dolphins says the Asian, while to those whose lot is cast in the neighborhood of the coast opportunities of becoming more intimately acquainted with stranded examples of the larger cetaceans may from time to time occur. Indeed, with a seaboard so extensive as is that of our Indian domains, it is practically certain that a considerable number of whales, porpoises, or dolphins must be stranded upon various parts of the coasts, although the records of such occurrences are comparatively few. The paucity of such records is doubtless due to large tracts of coast consisting of more or less uninhabitable swamps; while in other cases it may be attributed to a want of interest in the subject on the part of those who are residing in the neighborhood at the time such occurrences take place. On the other hand, it might seem probable that the stranding of the larger whales would be events of such comparative rarity in any one locality that the news of such occurrences would be sure to be reported; but the scarcity of such records seem to negative such an idea, for when we reflect that almost every year several whales are cast up on the shores of the British Isles, we might fairly expect at least as many instances to occur annually on the vast seaboard or the territories under the Indian Government.

The lack of such records—and also of accurate descriptions and measurements of such cetaceans as have been observed when stranded—is the more to be lamented since our acquaintance with the whales of the Indian seas is extremely imperfect, and it is at present a matter of uncertainty as to whether several of them are or are not identical with those inhabiting the Atlantic. It is with the hope of exciting an interest in this subject that we draw attention to the present state of our knowledge of the whales of the Indian seas; and we trust that all Anglo-Indians who may have the opportunity of adding, even in a slight degree, to our information on this subject, will not fail to do so. It is important that when a whale (under which term we include all Cetaceans which have no teeth in the upper jaw) is found stranded, its dimensions should be accurately determined, and, if possible, a good sketch, or if the finder is no draughtsman but possesses a camera, a photograph made. Its color should also be recorded, as well as the presence or absence of a back fin, together with such other structural features as may strike the observer. The task of preparing a skeleton is by no means a light one, but if it can be undertaken, and the bones transmitted to a museum, a valuable addition to our knowledge may, in some instances, be at once made.

With the object of acquiring reliable records we shall now endeavor to point out some of the leading characteristics of the different kinds of Indian whales, which may aid those who have no especial knowledge of Natural History in determining the species of any example which may happen to come under their notice.

By far the largest of all the whales inhabiting the seas around India is the great Indian Finwhale, or Rorqual, the Balænoptera indica of Blyth. The Finners, or Rorquals, it may be observed, while agreeing with the "right whales," such as the Greenland whale, in having the mouth filled with "whalebone," and in the total absence of teeth, differ from those animals by the presence of a fin on the back, and also by the chin and throat being marked by a series of grooves or puckerings running in a longitudinal direction. These Finners are further characterized by the comparatively small size of their flippers, and also by the long and slender form of their bodies. Of this particular whale we unfortunately know nothing of the external appearance, as it was described by Blyth merely from some of the bones obtained from a specimen stranded on Amherst Island, in Arakan, in the year 1851. The length of that specimen was said to be 84 feet when in the flesh, and its lower jaw-bone, now in the Indian Museum, measures close upon 21 feet. Another example was thrown up alive on the coast near Chittagong in the autumn of 1842, and is reported to have measured 90 feet in length and 42 feet in circumference. Other specimens have also been recorded from the coasts of Sind, Malabar and Ceylon; but none of these seem to have come under the observation of Europeans while in a fresh condition. In size this huge species is only equalled by Sibbold's Finwhale of the Atlantic; and competent authorities have suggested that both really belong to a single species. According, however, to Mr. Blyth, the lower jaw of the Indian Finner is more slender than that of the Atlantic Form; while, as Mr. Blanford remarks, this whale has been seen in summer in the Indian seas at the time that Sibbard's Finner has migrated from the south to the coasts of Norway, in order to enjoy a lower temperature. If, therefore, the Indian Finner be the same as Sibbald's Finner, it is evident that their habits must differ considerably. It is highly important that we should obtain a good description and drawing of this whale in the flesh, while further particulars as to its skeleton would also aid in determining whether or not it is really the same as the Great Atlantic Finner. To those who may have the opportunity of making such observations it may be mentioned that particular attention should be directed to the color of the skin, and also to the proportionate length of the flippers to that of the entire body. In the skeleton it is important to determine the number of joints in the back bone, and the number of pieces of ribs, since both these are subject to considerable variation in the different species of Rorquals. Observations on the time of the year in which this Whale is seen in the Indian seas are also worthy of record. This whale may always be recognized, when in the water, by its great size, and the prominence of the small and sharply-pointed back fin above the level of the highest point of the back.

Although during numerous passages across the Indian Ocean we have never had the good fortune to see one of these whales, it appears that they are by no means uncommon, and on some occasions will even come quite close to vessels, when their presence, as indicated by the following anecdote related by a ship captain to Mr. R. A. Sterndale, is not always desirable. The captain stated that on one occasion a whale "had for about half an hour amused itself by crossing and recrossing the bows, and then at last suddenly turned and came straight for the vessel, striking us about ten feet from the stern. It struck with such force as to send a considerable quantity of spray on deck."

The only other Rorqual definitely known to occur in Indian seas is a much smaller species, for which Dr. John Anderson, formerly Superintendent of the Indian Museum, proposed the name of Eden's Finner-whale (Balænoptera edeni), in honor of the late Sir Ashley Eden, K. C. S. I. Like the last, we have no definite knowledge of the external characters of this whale; the specimen, on the evidence of which this species was named, not having been fully described when in the flesh. The individual in question was stranded in the summer of 1871 in the estuary of the Sittoring river, flowing into the gulf of Martaban; and its skeleton was forwarded to Calcutta by Sir Ashley Eden and Major Duff. It is rather curious, by the way, that the typical skeletons of the two species of Indian finners were obtained so close together, Amherst Island being just below the mouth of the Gulf of Martaban. This whale, which, as shown by the condition of its bones, was not quite adult, measured 37 feet in length; and we may, therefore, assume that full-grown examples would reach about 40 feet. It has been considered by a great authority on whales that Eden'a Finwhale is the same as the Lesser Finwhale (Balænoptera rostrata) of the Atlantic, which is usually not more than 30 feet in length, and rarely, if ever, exceeds 33 or 34. The Indian form is, however, as we have seen, considerably larger than these dimensions; while it is believed to have possessed about 52 joints in the backbone, whereas those of the Lesser Rorqual are about 48 in number. A second skeleton, almost complete, of this whale, was obtained in 1890 on Sidhi Island, in the Noakholly district, and was presented to the Indian Museum by the late Mr. C. E. Fabre-Tonnerre of the Bengal Police, but does not yet seem to have been described. It is to be hoped that ere long a standard example of this whale may come under the notice of some one sufficiently interested in the subject to give us a description of its external appearance and proportions.

Fish Charmed By a Snake.

Approaching a pool as large as a big dining-room we found "millions in it," and the fright that our moving bodies gave them sent them scurrying in every direction with such energy that the mere contact of one with another killed them by dozens. Then we laid down on the ground by the pool, one on each side and remained motionless for a few minutes, and we were rewarded by a sight entirely new to us. The water was perfectly clear, and not above two feet deep, the day calm and bright, and the proceedings below the surface easily observed. In the deepest part of the pool a school of little fish was swimming around and around in a ring of about two feet in diameter, the school being about six inches wide and two or three layers deep. Around and around they went, at the least motion on our part breaking ranks, to resume their circus at once when we were quiet again. We were interested, of course, and puzzled, and we tried for half an hour or more to learn the cause of such unusual movements. Our talk, for we did talk, did not disturb them, from which we inferred that they could not hear us. Carefully crawling a little nearer, we discovered the center of the moving circle was a large water-snake, coiled, quiet and watchful. Ornithologists have told us, in unreliable school books, that snakes can, and often do, charm birds, and some have in their more elaborate works tried to substantiate that theory. I never believed it, and I certainly never heard of snakes charming fish, but what were these shad doing? Were they charmed? If not, why did they return after we frightened them away?

Mr. Gunther, in his valuable work on "The Study of Fishes," p. 160, states that the only species of fish in which the mother takes care of her offspring are of the genera Asperedo and Solenostoma. But I have seen the common catfish guarding her young in the most devoted manner; it may, however, have been the male, but I don't believe it. It was in July, 1882, and I was on the west shore of Long Lake, in the Great Northern Wilderness of New York State. The catfish had got her young (fifty or sixty in the school, I should say) into a little bay so shallow that her enemies could not swim in it. The young catfishes were very small indeed, and looked like little tadpoles. Whenever any one of the little fellows ventured into a deepish place, he was sure to be seized by some larger fish—the large fish seemed to be perch; and there were half a dozen or so of them. Every perch that came near was attacked by the mother-fish and driven back several feet or yards; but whenever the mother-fish turned to go back to her young, one or more of the perch would bite her. Her caudal fin, or tail, was torn in pieces. I watched the battle for some time. The old catfish was getting the worst of it, and when I left she was making a brave, but losing fight. One by one her offsprings were picked off, the perch occasionally rushing into the shallow water close to the school of young fishes. I do not know whether my observation is the only one of the kind or not.—Obed, in American Notes and Queries.

All the mystery about the eel, as science has learned with, in the past few years, is due to the fact that it lays its eggs or brings forth its young alive, in the sun, where no one has a chance to observe the process. Other fishes—shad, leave the ocean to spawn in fresh water streams, but this curious and slippery customer does precisely the reverse. The young eels, newly born or hatched, leave the salt water and make their way in armies up the river island, explains the New York Star. Of course it is impossible for them to get over the falls, and thus it happens that, although eels have always been plentiful in Lake Ontario, there were none in Lake Erie until planted in the latter part of the water artificially. In all probability eels lay eggs just as do nearly all other fishes, the only difference is that they deposit them in the sea instead of in fresh water. It is believed that the mother eel dies soon after she has spawned.

Among the anglers novelties now advertised are an alarm float made of metal which gives out an audible sound when a fish bites, a rod tip with small pulleys in it to prevent friction of the line, a minnow trap made of wire netting, a landing net for wading, which has a long, elastic band to pass around the shoulders of the angler and may be used without detatching it, and a new pickerel and bass spoon built by Chapman, which looks as if it might be a successful lure, inasmuch as it is equipped with a gang of six hooks.

Clubbing Torpid Fish.

The following from American Fish Culture shows how fish may be taken with a club:

Catching fish with the aid of a club is something new under the sun. It is an inexpensive method to say the least, and as the writer saw it practiced recently in some of the shallow lakes that skirt to the Illinois River south of this place, it is quite successful. There are a great many of these small lakes along either side of the Illinois River, and as they are fed by springs fish seek their fresh waters in countless numbers. When the weather is very cold and the surface of the shallow bodies freeze over entirely the millions of fish soon exhaust the oxygen, or hydrogen, or Holland gin, or whatever property it is that the water takes from the atmosphere, and then they seek the surface for "air." Coming to the top they bump their foreheads against the ice and swim sluggishly about, apparently seeking an "air-hole." Should they find such a place as they do occassionally, they stick their noses partly out of the water and seem to gasp for breath for all the world like a person coming out of a fit of suffocation. Where one of these "air holes" is found a man can stand with a bludgeon, and by rapping the snouts as they appear above the surface capture as many fish as he cares to carry away. The spring water of the lakes does not freeze to a very great thickners, rarely more than three inches, and when there are no air holes a sharp blow on the ice immediately above where a fish is resting seldom fails to stun the creature and cause it to turn belly up. It can then be taken out by chopping a hole in the ice with a hatchet. The ice is very clear and the fish can be seen through it almost as plainly as through a pane of glass.

The Herald correspondent accompanied a party of miners from this place recently on a trip to two of the lakes near by. Each man carried a basket, a hatchet and a heavy club with a knot on the end of it. On reaching the first lake the ice was found to be about two inches thick and the water under it from two to four feet deep. Air holes were very scarce, but down in the clear water hundreds of catfish, buffalo, suckers, sunfish, and now and then a bass or a wall-eyed pike could be seen, almost motionless, with his nose pressed close up against the ice as though trying to extract from it the life-giving elixir that the water no longer afforded. Every man went at once to work, and in two hours all the baskets were filled with fish. It is a method of fishing that requires no skill, no caution and no knowledge of fish nature. You simply walk about looking down into the water, locate the fish you want, hit the ice directly above him as hard a blow with the big end of your club as you can, chop a small hole with your hatchet and take out your fish. It is unsportmanlike and ignoble, but you get the fish, and the fish will sell, and that is what most of those who engage in this method of fishing care about principally. When a man out of employment can take a club and go out and knock over something that he can sell and yet not be violating any of the statutes he isn't likely to care much whether it is sportsmanlike or not. It is a means of procuring food, and it is far less to be deprecated than the doings of some Chicago's unemployed citizens who go out to work armed with a club.

The novelty of taking fish in this manner is sufficient to try it once, at least, no matter how severely he may condemn the method from a sportsman's standpoint. The writer, having a suspicion that fish apparently so nearly suffocated as were those seen at the air holes and under the ice might be unfit for food succeeded in catching a few with an improvised landing net at one of the air holes, and tried an experiment of placing them in a tub of water freshened by dipping and pouring. In less than half a minute these fish came to life and were as frisky and vigorous as any fish taken in June. Cooked in three ways, fried, baked and boiled, they tasted as fresh and good as any fish, and the conclusion naturally reached was that their qualities as an article of food was in no wise impaired by their confinement under the ice. Men along the river state that many thousands of pounds of these torpid fishes are taken every week, and much of its catch finds its way to the Chicago market.

Carp in California.

In American Fish Culture appears the following:

The State Fish Commissioners are no longer paying any attention to the propagation of carp, not deeming them worth the time expended on them. A hatcher in California writes: "I cannot imagine what the United States Fish Commission was about in sending out such a coarse-fleshed, ravenous fish as the carp are. They are certainly worse to eat than almost any fish we have in California, and they are thinning the good fish out." The above clipping was sent me by one of our subscribers. Shakespeare tells us of the lie that is only half a lie, it fits the above nicely. The California Commission never did do much with carp, it went to smash for want of funds shortly after the carp were introduced to this country by the National Commission. Then the State was already stocked by the importation of J. A. Poffe, of Sonoma, in 1872, five years before the National Commission made their importation. That the carp are not the equal of salt water fishes is true, but taste is largely a matter of education, and there are men in plenty the equal in every way of the California writer, who will champion the carp against our best fresh water fishes. The claim that they are thinning out the other fishes is simply riduculous. The fact is they are not a fish of prey; while they may occasionally, when forced by hunger, feed on small fish; while on the other their great prolificiness furnish food in abundance for the game fishes. Such articles are detrimental to the welfare not because of their truth, but because the public do not know the facts that make the articles ludicrous.

If there is any subject upon which the sportsmen, both with rod and gun, in California are agreed, it is upon the suoject of carp. Beyond question the carp, wherever introduced in the waters of this State, have proven an unmitigated nuisance. Most lovers of the gun are also devotees of the rod, and to this class the carp are particularly obnoxious. The greedy gormands literally destroy every duck ground to which they have access by totally destroying and uprooting the natural or cultivated foods of the birds. The carp may be acceptable both for food and sport in some places, but Nature has so favored California, that the introduction of this fish has been and is considered a curse of no small magnitude.

Risso relates that on one occasion a huge female ray was captured at sea, and her mate followed the boat for three days and then died. These "devil fishes" are said by some to defend their young with great courage.

THE GUN.

The Country Club holds its regular monthly trap event to-day. The attendance will, no doubt, be good as there has been but little in the gun line since this club's last match.

The State Sportsmen's Association is daily growing and gaining in force and numbers which argues well for its influence for good in the future. Let every sportsman in the State join this Association at once. Send name and address with $1 to the Secretary, 313 Bush street, city.

Mr. Harvey McMurchy, after a very pleasant and, we trust, profitable stay in this city of two weeks, departed on Wednesday evening last for Portland. He goes from Portland to Tacoma and Seattle, and from the last-named point to St. Paul (Minn.), then down to Chicago in time to attend the Illinois State Tournament. This latter event is said to present an exceptionally meritorious programme.

To-morrow the monthly contest for the Selby Medal takes place at Oakland Track. It is expected that a large entrance will be made as more than usual interest has been awakened for this event. Twenty birds makes a very nice match and there are a number of new men at the score this season who have a fair show at the prize. A number of them will contest to-morrow.

For the week past our local contingent of trap shooters have been taking a rest or, more properly speaking, they have been unusually restless on account of the fact of not having an opportunity to practice at their favorite sport. During the immediate future there will be an abundance of sport. The Country Club to-day, the Selby Medal contest to-morrow and the San Francisco Gun Club's picnic on Monday following. A splendid gathering after the week's vacation.

The Imperal eagle, the largest of the species known, flies to a height of from 10,000 feet to 15,000 feet. It is a native of South America and its habitat is amongst the lofty mountains of that country. Its power of flying to high altitudes is only exceeded by the condor of the Andes, which is said to have attained the height of six miles, or within one mile of the greatest height ever attained by a baloon. The eagle sails in the air at heights ranging from three to five miles, and when seen to soar upwards by an observer on the earth's surface, disappears from sight in about three minutes.

The San Francisco Gun Club's annual picnic will take place in Ross Valley on Monday next. It is to be hoped that the weather will be fine with never a cloud to mar the beauty of the occasion. The spot chosen for the picnic is a lovely one and no doubt but that the outing will prove an occasion of the very first interest to all who may be so fortunate as to attend. There was enjoyed a most excellent season of sport at this club's outing for last season at the same spot as has been selected again for this year's annual recreation.

Mr. George T. Mills, Fish and Game Commissioner for Nevada, has been spending some time in the city during the past week. Mr. Mills is a thorough sportsman and especially a most earnest devotee of the rod, and he is doing very much for the interest of his State in the piscatorial line. He proposes sending a number of specimens of the so-called rainbow trout to Prof. Jordan for classification. Steelhead trout in their various stages of development, as noted by Prof. Jordan, seem to have demoralized all previous ideas respecting the classification of fish on this coast.

The effect of contrast is always interesting. The experience arising from the rapid change from one condition to another strikingly opposite one is ever worthy of record. In short, the hunger necessary to the enjoyment of anything, in its highest sense, is an essential act of preparation. It does one a wonderful amount of good to feel the pangs of physical hunger once in a while; it gives one's appetite a zest and vigor which lends to a dry crust a flavor which excels the most delicate dish under ordinary circumstances. So it is with camp life. To properly enjoy an outing one must feel a hunger for the woods, the hills, the streams, the forests, in short, for any spot that has not been defaced and permanently marred by the barbarous hand of man, whose refined cruelty has been misnamed civilization.

To burst out of the straight-jacket, the armor of defense and universal mask of policy worn by all when in close contact with fellowmen and be one's self again; to live, to move, to act naturally for a day—to know for a period, however short, what the word liberty means, is an experience, every step of which is productive of satisfaction. Try a week's outing in the mountains next month and note the effect. It will do you good.

Do you not know that one of the most sensitive points in all creation is that of one's skill at the trap? In approaching this point you must be in full dress of suavity, bearing in one hand a scepter and in the other a crown, presenting them with due obeisance to the individual addressed. You may be at liberty to commend, but never under penalty of banishment from his presence forever; never depreciate or suggest any change in aught he may do, as a sportsman, at the trap. Of course the above is an extreme view, but yet it contains much of truth. The class of men who are willing to learn anything about shooting is small. Most men have their own ideas about shooting, and you cannot move them one hair's breath one way or the other however you may try.

There are two sportsmen in this city, each of whom are good shots and withal good friends. Each of these gentlemen recognize the faults of the other at the trap, but each one is strangely blind to his own defects. They will not speak to one another on this subject, and each in turn have suggested to us, that if some one who could properly do so would only point out, in a kindly way, to the other his faults, it would be of very great benefit.

Well, perhaps, but please to excuse us. We suggested to a certain gentleman, about a year since, that he might find it advantageous to do so and so; he has not as yet ceased to look upon us with an injured air which arises, no donbt, from his feelings of compassion for our inability to recognize surpassing skill and unquestioned merit when presented.

After The Wild Goat.

Some two years ago I spent a very pleasurable weeks outing in the region of Pike's Peak. The Colorado Midland Railway pierces the Eastern range of the Rockies in its route westward from Colorado Springs, a beautiful little city of some 10,000 inhabitants which is nestled on the edge of the great plains at the foot and in the shadow of the giant peak above mentioned, which has long since become one of the most famous and well known of all the mountain peaks on this continent. Strange as it may seem, yet it is nevertheless true, that within field-glass range from the busy streets of the above mentioned city, may to-day, and for indefinite periods of the future will doubtless be found, deer, bear, wild goats and mountain sheep. All who may have cast their eyes upon, and especially those who have been so venturesome as to place their feet upon the rugged sides of the mountains composing this region will readily conceded the fact that nature has by her most forceful edict said to man "Thus for shalt that go and no farther."

The lofty altitude conspires with the rugged, seamed, chasmed, collumned and pinacled mountains, to check any attempted familiarity on the part of man, by depriving him of his usual supply of oxygen, as found at lower altitudes. After a few, a very few hours of struggle when above or near 10,000 feet above sea level, and the average prospector or tourist is willing to cry quits and yield over any previously formed intention of conquering those snowy heights.

Of all game pursued by sportsmen in any part of the world, for keeness of sight, scent and hearing commend me to the mountain sheep and wild goat. They are the very personification of alertness, agility and endurance. It requires more confidence, hope and faith, than the average sportsman possesses, to make more than one attempt to capture the above named species of game in that region.

While that miserable work of destruction was going on—the building of the railway up Pike's Peak—I took occasion to once more visit the crest of that grand old monument of Nature's power before the evidences of its fall were completed and while it was yet free from the iron fetters which man was daily forging upon it.

On our way up the old trail we caught sight of a number of mountain sheep, but so far away and upward at an angle of about forty-five degrees, that we knew it was useless to even think of breaking the law, at that season of the year in force, by attempting to capture hide or horns.

Adjusting our glass we took a long look at a magnificent old ram that stood at the edge of a precipice which seemed bottomless from our point of view. While watching him he suddenly bounded away and at a flash was out of sight and look as often as we would during the afternoon of our assent up the mountain we could not catch a glimpse of them again. Nature has provided for the preservation of this species of game and no doubt but that they will live and increase for years to come secure in the protection which nature here affords them. Running up the Colorado Midland for about forty miles to the westward, a few months' later, we stopped at a small station which had been recommended as being the center of a good hunting region and especially affording advantages for hunting the mountain goat.

During the evening, after our arrival the landlord of the primitive hostelry smiled depreciatingly when in answer to an interrogatory we informed him that we had come for the express purpose of killing a mountain goat.

"How do you expect to go about it?" he asked, and when we informed him that we proposed to employ the oldest and most experienced hunter in the country to accompany us and direct our hunting he looked us over and said, "You'r not much like most chaps that come up hyar huntin'. They think they know et all an' aint after learnin' nothin'. Sich alluz gets left, but seein' ez you be on the right trail I wouldn't be surprised that you'd get some goats."

In accordance with the landlord's instructions we sent for and engaged old Ike Moore, who had spent the past twenty years or more in hunting in the Rockies and over the adjoining plains. Recent years had found the game all driven into the mountains and hither old Ike had come and stayed save for occasional excursions in search of game further into the interior of the mountain ranges to the westward.

The next day found us wending our way through the scattered pines and undergrowth of brush and vine toward Crystal Peak, beyond which the favorite grounds of the Mountain goat were said to be found.

We journed most of the day without incident save the perfect charm of the mountain scenery as our little party wended its way through one of the most picturesque regions in the entire range of the Rocky Mountains.

During the early evening we sighted a flock of goats, but did not attempt to pursue them as the main object for the day was to reach a given point where we expected to camp, and from which we intended to make our daily excursions in search of the wily game.

We were out early next morning, and, fired with a fervent desire to succeed in the capture of our chosen game, we worked with an ardor only known to sportsmen all the day, but at night we returned to camp empty handed. We had seen the game several times, but never had a reasonable opportunity for securing a shot that had been presented. Our ardor was somewhat cooled, but we were not what many would have been under the circumstances—totally discouraged. The next day was spent in much the same manner. The goats would be sighted and then would begin a system of maneuvering which would have placed victory in the hands of many a defeated general had he but exercised it. But it was no use. The goats absolutely refused to allow us a shot. Toward evening, after we had sighted a lone goat on a rocky peak, and while we were trying to creep up on the same, we were startled by hearing a scrambling noise near us, and glancing along a cliff which overhung, as a shelf, the mountain side for some distance, we caught sight of a splendid specimen, with finely curved horns bounding along at lightning speed. Instantaneously our Winchesters began a fusillade, but the goat bounded along as if unharmed and an instant more had disappeared. More out of curiosity than from any other reason, we climbed up along the line taken by the fleeing game. Over the rough boulders and the broken square-like blocks of granite, we clambered, wondering at the marvelous ease which had marked the flight of the game.

Look,—there is where one of our bullets struck on the rock leaving its long marking of lead where it glanced from its course. There is another higher up. Ah, there is a drop of blood! Surely success will be the result of this effort. We clamber along, looking cautiously about for further signs. There is more blood, quite a quantity, showing the game to be bleeding freely. On and on until night's coming suggested that we had best look out for camp, which we reluctantly did.

After five days spent in hard work, the very hardest imaginable, we succeeded in securing our much coveted prize, but we have no desire to try it again.

Rapid Firing System.

It has been the studied aim of inventors for some years to perfect and present an improved gun which would by the act of firing regulate itself for the successive fire and so on until the magazine should be exhausted of its entire charge. Many attempts have been made in this direction and it has remained, however, for a San Francisco inventor to perfect the system so that by simply pulling the trigger that the gun may be discharged as rapidly, as this may be done, which practically keeps a stream of fire and bullets flowing from the gun.

The model completed, and upon which this system has been demonstrated to be a success is a small 22-calibre rifle. If, as is shown in this model, the 22 short rim fire cartridge produces recoil enough to cock the piece, throw out the empty, and replace a loaded cartridge in its stead, what may not reasonably expected of the system when applied to heavier rifles and shot guns? A more direct system of exploding the cartridge is said to have been provided, and as we understand it, this feature partakes of the nature of a direct coil spring, which at the same time in addition to acting as a hammer also takes up the force which otherwise would produce recoil and thus renders the shooting devoid of this one feature of annoyance.

Many eminent gun men claim that a single barrel gun is the most perfect of all guns where uniformity and absolute regularity of pattern is sought to be obtained.

If there be anything in the evenness of expansion which may effect the charge then certainly the single barrel is the one above all others with which to hope to attain practical perfection.

That shotguns will be shortly produced on this plan experts who are working constantly with this object in view confidently affirm. In any event no sportsman of to-day is going to prove himself so much of a back number as to doubt the probability of any proposition looking to the further advancement of firearms. So much has been done in the decade just passed that it would indeed be very strange if the work of improvement should stop all at once. We shall rejoice to see the gun with a "you-press-the-trigger-and-we-do-the-rest" attachment.

The Keystone Gun Club.

The regular monthly shoot of the Keystone Gun Club for the Melrose Medal took place on Saturday last at the Lincoln Gun Club grounds at Alameda Point.

The attendance was good and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all present. The weather was most charming and in fact everything was good save with some notable exceptions, the shooting.

The scores as presented in the main contest were as follows:

Pollock	0	0	0	0	1	1	0	1	1	0	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	—16
McMurchy	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	0	0	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	—21

Kellogg won the medal; second and third money going to Adams and Kyle. In a bout at six singles and three pairs, Slade and McMurchy tied for first on a score of ten each. De Pue third with nine credits. McMurchy and Adams led with 12 credits each, Kellogg and Ostrander scoring 11 each. The trapping and targets furnished were of the very first order and an unusually splendid season of sport was enjoyed. This Club shoots regularly on the third Saturday in each month. The sportsmen generally are cordially invited to attend.

Almost every sportsman you meet has some formula for loading his own shells, and various as these loads must of a necessity be, it would appear somewhat strange if there was not some reasonable solution to the fact that each man in his class uses some chosen formula with great effect. Some men in firing at inamiate targets will use Wood powder while for trap work at live birds they prefer Schultze. Some prefer American E. C. to that of all other powders, while others will not use it at all. One of our local sportsmen who has for years fired his full quota of shots at the trap and in the field, took occasion to say that he did not like the "snappy" unpleasantness produced by the use of the American E. C., and on this acconnt preferred Schultze. On the very next day another local sportsman of equal experience and accuracy at the trap or in the field gave his preference to American E. C., and strange as it may seem used the same reasons as above given only reversing the order of application in favor of American E. C. Another sportsman is disconsolate and is sure he cannot kill a bird unless he has his favorite shells carefully loaded with English E. C., while still another tolerates some brand of nitro powder in his first barrel but swears only by "reliable old black powder" for his second fire. All do equally, or well nigh equally well, at the trap and one is forced to the conclusion that a man may to good work with almost any first grade powder of any make so long as it is carefully loaded and handled judiciously. There is, no doubt, a great deal in loading one's shell's properly. There is also a great deal in becoming used to a certain brand of powder. Especially would a change be detrimental if made at once from a slow or low grade explosive to that of an instantaneons explosive.

The coming contest for the Selby Medal, which takes place to-morrow, will call forth a large contingent of our local sportsmen. Let every one who desires to enter the race do so. It is about the only free-for-all we have on the monthly programme.

The present year will unquestionably prove to be the one in which more guns have been fired at the trap than ever before.

The preparations for the San Francisco Gun Club's picnic in Ross Valley on Monday are such as to indicate a splendid outing.

NAPA SOAD is beneficial in cases of kidney affections.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

When leaving the Wigwam the last night of the show, a disgruntled exhibitor made this remark "Well any dog can whip the first prize winner anyhow."

The Eastern Field Trial Club's event will be judged thit year by R. L. Cook and H. B. Duryea, of New York, and Col. A. Merriman, of Memphis, Tenn.

We should be pleased to see our sportsmen try the Cocker, as a field dog, more generally. For much of the shooting presented in this State they make an admirable field dog.

The Mascoutah Kennel Club has decided not to hold a bench show next year. This leaves the bench show to be given at the World's Fair full sweep. We trust it will be successful.

Mr. James Mortimer was delayed on his return trip to New York, after judging the San Francisco show by washouts. The floods seem to have damaged everything and everybody east of the Rockies.

John Heffernan has received a splendid offer for his St. Bernard Grand Chancellor. If he makes the sale, it is Mr. Heffernan's intention to purchase a brood bitch in whelp to one of the crack Eastern dogs.

A number of omissions occurred in the California Kennel Club's catalogue, some of which were, to say the least, inexcusable. For instance, Captain Poole's dog, Gillott, was printed as "breeder unknown;" W. H. McFee's fox-terrier, Le Logos, was printed as "Llogos" and his winnings were omitted.

Mr. Albert Johnson, of 1718 Howard street, city, offers for sale the imported Great Dane dog Hector (Murilo—Diana) and also Leda (Caesar—Lea) the latter in whelp to Hector. These are splendid specimens of the Great Dane breed and any one wishing dogs of this nature could do no better than to close with this offer.

The meeting of the Pacific Kennel Club on last Wednesday evening was just such a meeting as every lover of the dog enjoys attending. The business coming before the club was promptly dispatched, and important advances were made to the end that the show next year shall represent the full interests of the Pacific Coast.

It would seem that the ruling forces of the wrecked California Kennel Club are determined to do all in their power to gratify personal spite and give vent to their malevolence. We understand that they have put in a claim for dates for a show next year conflicting with the dates claimed by the Pacific Kennel Club.

F. W. Skaife, M. R. C. V. S., has fitted up at his place at corner Taylor and Geary streets very handsome and commodious kennels for use in treating dogs that are placed in his charge. Mr. Skaife is one of those courteous gentlemen whom it is a pleasure to meet, whose thoroughness of preparation and wealth of experience commends him to the favorable consideration of all who may require the services of a skilled veterinarian in their kennels.

All lovers of coursing should remember that the Occidental Coursing Club meet at Newark on Monday next, the 30th inst., to celebrate the club's final meeting for the year. An abundance of hares have been secured for this occasion, and no doubt but that the meet will be one long to be remembered on account of the fine sport displayed. Some of the finest dogs of the State are entered for the contest. It is a pleasant run to Newark, aside from the pleasures of the sport.

The development of the kennel interest in this city is becoming more marked every day. It is a matter for congratulation to notice how the interest in field trialwork has developed since the last meeting of the club in January. There seems to be a general determination among a number of our kennel men to procure pnppies that will be eligible for the Derby of '94. This is commendable, and we trust will be followed by still many more to the end that the interest may be still further awakened.

The practice of exhibiting dogs at bench shows in the name of parties who do not own them, was one of the faults of the California Kennel Club's last show. A number of dogs were so entered, which is in direct violation of the American Kennel Club's rules, and all the prizes won by these dogs should be forfeited. Another rule of the American Kennel Club was openly violated, and that was the rule in reference to the age of puppies. Several puppies under six months were on exhibition, some of these winning prizes.

The difference arising out of the final in last year's All-Age Stake, at the International Coursing meet at Great Bend, Kansas, seems to be farther from solution now than ever before. There seems to be an air of shiftlessness and indecision regarding the matter. It should have been settled long ago. There seems to be no good reason for delaying final and conclusive action in the matter and it is plain to be seen that this delay only adds grounds for discontent and dissatisfaction on the part of all who are directly interested in the matter while it lends no added honors to the sport generally.

Dominick Shannon, the enthusiastic coursing man, has a litter of four greyhound pups that for breeding cannot be excelled. They are by El Rey out of Verdure Clad, she by Greentick out of Cotillion. El Rey is by Sir William 2d, out of Lady Lizzy, who is by Misterton. Several Waterloo winners appear in the above pedigree. Verdure Clad is half sister to the mighty Fullerton, and is the dam of Van's Richard and Van Ness) winner of third and fourth at the recent American Coursing Club's meet at Great Bend. Messrs. McHugh and Shannon have a pair of twelve months greyhounds brought out from New York. They are by Lord Neversettle, out of Prima Donna by Sir William 2nd, ex Lady Lizzie by Misterton. Lord Neversettle is the sire of several winners at the recent meeting at Great Bend. These two pups will be run at the Interstate meeting this fall.

When Will the Fool-Killer Come?

"Whom the gods destroy they first make mad," and when a man is mad he generally succeeds in making an ass of himself. This is bad enough for a single individual, but when a body of men, even though it be an executive committee of a kennel club, gets so far off their bearings as to deliberately pass such enactments as will warrant the inquiry made in the headline of this article, then indeed has the merriment of ridicule full play.

But it must be remembered that even executive committees are supposed to be governed by majorities, and we are sorry in this instance that the vote on the motion referred to is not before us on the ayes and nays, so that the men who may have proved themselves such, and averse to being branded as ignorant asses, might be given the benefit of the credit of having voted against the venal and futile action of the majority of that body.

The ignorant, would-be wreckers of all opposition, we are informed, moved that that genial and courteous little gentleman, Mr. Henry Huber, the owner of Duke of Vernon and Sallie Brass II, be expelled from the California Kennel Club because he had joined the Pacific Kennel Club! This is not to be wondered at coming from the source which it did, but it does seem strange that this obstreperous, ill-tempered individual should have the absolute control of a majority of the committee, but when it is remembered that he virtually controlled its formation the wonder ceases. The only wonder now is that this committee, while it was passing resolutions and motions, did not condemn the Duke of Vernon and Sally Brass II and all their progeny to be shot! Clearly they had as much a right to do so as to pass a motion to expel Mr. Huber from the California Kennel Club, simply because he saw fit to join the Pacific Kennel Club. Poor ignoramuses, they will learn in due season that the will of the vicious and ignorant cannot deprive a man of his rights. Mr. Huber is a member of the California Kennel Club, notwithstanding the hasty, ill-tempered action of last Monday night. It requires something more than the ill will of an ignorant blackguard to place a gentleman out of a club to which he has contributed much of his time, means and energy. The one man responsible, we are informed, for this act has been instrumental in making himself so obnoxious to the gentlemanly membership of the California Kennel Club that they have been compelled to leave its meetings time and again in order to get rid of his vicious and ignorant attacks on everything and everybody who felt compelled to oppose any of his proposed measures. Now when they seek companionable society, freed from his presence, he seeks to slur them by attempting to expel them from the club without notice, trial or even the formal introduction of charges. Compared to such action, the braying of asses is wisdom personified.

Notes From Suisun.

San Francisco, May 21, 1892.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Last Sunday I visted the California Kennels at Suisun and had the pleasure of seeing the best collection of English setters on this coast, and in fact as good a lot as there is in the United States.

Sportsmen, one of the grandest bird dogs living, being one of the celebrated Gladstone—Sue cross, is at the head of the stud dogs. He is rather heavily marked, but stands on the best of legs and feet, has a good head, splendid body and is certainly a successful sire, having produced Sunlit, winner of the Derby, Pacific Coast Field Trial Club 1888; third in Aged Stake 1889 and first Aged Stake 1890, also sire of Sirius, winner of second Aged Stake 1889 and third Aged Stake 1890 at the above trials.

The next dog I had the gratification of seeing was Harold, a lemon and white son of the famous Gath–Gem cross. He is litter brother to Gath's Mark, Gath's Hope and Gath's Pride, and these four brothers have sired seventeen field trial winners. Some of Harold's produce have run in the Pacific Coast Field Trials, namely: Haroldine, divided third in Derby, 1888, Salina, winner Derby 1890, and Stephanie, winner, third in Derby 1890, and Petronella, winner third, Derby, 1891.

Two other stud dogs are in the kennels. Gladstone 2d, by Gladstone—Lady M. and Paul Noble, by Count Noble—Florence. The former has sired a number of nice pups on the place; the latter has not as yet any pups.

The pups are a splendid lot, healthy and strong; some of them are future field trial winners. J. B. Martin.

Visits.

May 22, 1892, Frank H. Allens' rough coated St. Bernard dog California Alton, A. K. C. S. B. 22347, to same owners rough coated St. Bernard bitch Tomah, A. K. C. S. B. 18522. Tomah is dam of Jos. B. Coryells' St. Elmo, winner of first prize in California Kennel Club's show, May 1892, and her sire is full little brother to the famous Sir Bedivere champion of the world, bred May 22, 1892, to California Alton (A. K. C. S. B. 22347) winner of first prize, San Francisco, May 1892, out of Champion Alto—Corette. She will undoubtedly throw a fine litter of St. Bernard pups. Tomah is a full sister to Mr. Jno. Heffernan's Grand Chancellor, and her breeding is unsurpassed; she has perfect markings, including black shadings, broad white collar, white blaze, four feet, belly and tip of tail, her body color is rich dark orange.

On Saturday. May 21st, Mr. E. P. Schell's St. Bernard bitch Lady Gladys (23043) (Valvour—Editha) to same owner's Judge 7512.

Whelps.

Bay View Kennels' Belle Gladstone (Ch. Gladstone—Zell) whelped on May 21st to M. D. Walter's Lee R. (Rodney—Phyllis II.), fourteen, seven dogs and seven bitches.

J. B. Martin's foxterrier bitch Blemton Rapture, by Champion Regent—Champion Rachel, whelped May 11th, two dogs and four bitches by Woodale Rustic, by Warren Jim—ex. Warren Torment.

On May 22d Henry Bamber's (Hollister) fox-terrier bitch Flirt, by Punch, out of Nellie, threw six pups (two dogs, four bitches) to same owner's Golden Tip, by Blemton Shiner, out of Beatrice.

Names Claimed.

Sales.

P. D. Nolan, of this city, has purchased from T. J. Cooney, of San Jose, brindle greyhound dog Carpine, two years old by Laurelwood out of Black Bess. Also black and white bitch Tempest, 14 months, by Dandy Jim—Black Bess.

The American Field produces in current number a splendid picture of Black Wonder, winner of the Pointer Derby and the All-Age Pointer Stake, at the United States Field Trial Club's trials last year. Of this splendid dog our contemporary says:

"He is owned by Messrs. Joseph H. & John A. Hunter, was born January 30, 1890, was bred by Mr. B. Brown, Georgetown, D. C., and is bp Cowell's Ike, out of Bang Bang's Pride, by Bang Bang—Bessie Hazel, by Rocket—Lillie-Sensation, by Sensation—Dodge's Dolly. Rocket by Strong's Pete—Strong's Mab. Cowell's Ike is by Coleman's Sport—Lyde I., by Sensation—Dodge's Dolly. Ike is descended from a strain of pointers imported in the sixties by the Dulaneys. Black Wonder comes by his color legitimately, as Ike, Sport, Lyde, Rocket, Strong's Pete and Pete's sire, Waddell's Phil, were all black. Black Wonder is an easy and quick mover, high-headed and snappy, and has an excellent nose, which enables him to locate his game promptly and decidedly. He was trained and handled in his races last year by Mr. John A. Hunter, who very wisely determined not to break him, but to train him, and gradually, so as not to destroy the vim and snap that is in him; consequently his training was not completed when he ran last year. On the bench he won second in the open class, first in the novice class and first for the pointer with the best field trial record, at Washington, this year, which is the only time he was shown."

"There was published in the Sunday Advertiser of April 10th an article which contained a number of serious reflections on the integrity and financial standing of James L. Anthony, a member of the Advisory Committee of the American Kennel Club and a prominent Wall-street broker. The article in question was sent to this newspaper by a New Jersry news agency, and as it came from a source which was believed to be trustworthy, the Sunday Advertiser was misled into publishing it. It afterward transpired that the article was the malicious production of a personal enemy of Mr. Anthony, who used his acquaintance with the news agency to deceive the editor of this newspaper and procure the publication of an article whose sole purpose was the gratification of his personal animosity toward Mr. Antony.

As soon as the article was brought to Mr. Anthony's attention he satisfied the editor of the Sunday Advertiser by indisputable documentary evidence that the statements made were false and unfounded, and that they emanated from an unscrupulous personal enemy of his who had used his influence with a news agency to deceive the publisher of this newspaper. The sole foundation for the unfortunate reflections on Mr. Anthony was an ordinary business suit, resulting in a small judgment against him, which was satisfied before the publication of the article referred to, and with this exception every statement made in the story which was palmed off on the Sunday Advertiser was unqualifiedly false."

Mr. Norris, of Iceboro, while working near the river, last winter, heard the baying of a hound in the camp-meeting woods, and supposed that a fox-hunting party was abroad, says the Augusta Journal. A minute later the fox appeared; he crossed the railroad track and ran on to the ice at the top of his speed, heading directly for the hole in the ice. Mr. Norris thought he would run into the hole and be drowned. But such a finale was not down on reynard's programme. On arriving at the hole in the ice he turned back, and, doubling his track till he reached the railroad, and turning down that, which runs at right angles with his own track, he ran several rods, then sat down to wait and watch. He had but a few moments to wait before the hound appeared in hot pursuit of the scent. The dog, with his nose to the snow, kept on across the railroad track on to the ice, and straight for the hole where reynard had turned back. As is well known, hounds trust to their keen scent rather than to their sight, and when the dog arrived at the end of the trail his momentum was too great to stop short of the hole in the ice, and with a farewell yelp he disappeared into the swift current of the Kennebec, never to re-appear. Whether reynard smiled as he trotted leisurely off is not known, but can be imagined.

The name of Judge O. N. Denny is inseparably connected with that of the Mongolian pheasant. He it was who moved first in a practical way toward introducing these splendid game birds into Oregon where to-day they are looked upon not only as a first-class game bird, but also as one of the finest table birds known to the sportsmen of to-day. The Williamette Rod and Gun Club of Portland have just presented Judge Denny with a very handsome appropriate gift in the form of a group of Mongolian pheasants, cock, hen and brood arranged, true to life, by a skilled artist. The occasion of the presentation of this testimonial to Judge Denny was one long to be remembered by all those present. In addition to the voice of the sportsmen of Oregon, we desire to tender Judge Denny the heartfelt thanks af the sportsmen of California, and of the country generally, for having introduced this new, beautiful game bird to America.

The Pacific Kennel Club met at 21 Kearny street on Wednesday evening last, President Ramon E. Wilson in the chair. The report of the Committee on Constitution and By-laws was received and adopted. The committee appointed to investigate the claim of parties for chicken and pigeon prizes incurred at the last show held by the club recommended that these claims be paid. A motion instructing the payment of these claims as recommended by the committee was then passed. Secretary Haight reported the addition of fourteen new members to the club since last meeting. There was a large attendance at the meeting and the interest was of such a nature as augurs well for the future of this organization.

Wanted—pairs of live coyotes, coons, wildcats, brown bears, and in fact any wild animals of California, for shipment to Australia, for which any of the rare and curious birds and animals of that oldest land on earth will be given in exchange duty free. Address this office for particulars.

The lesson received by the local bull terrier fancy at the late show as to what was not bull terriers is in a fair way to bear good fruit. We understand that some good ones will be brought out from the East in the near future.

THE FARM.

For a Discouraged Farmer.

The Summer winds is sniffin' round the bloomin' locus' trees,
And the clover in the pastur' is a big day for the bees.
Till they stutter in their buzzin' and stagger as they fly.

* * * * *

They's been a heap o' rain, but the sun's out to-day,
And the clouds of the wet spell is all cleared away.
And the woods is all the greener and the grass is greener still,
It may rain again to-morry, but I don't think it will.

Some say the crops is ruined, and the corn's drowned out,
And prophesy the wheat will be a failure without doubt;
But the kind Providence that has never failed us yet
Will be on hand onc't more at the 'leventh hour, I bet!

Does the meadow lark complain as he swims high and dry
Through the waves of the wind and the blue of the sky?
Does the quail set up and whistle in a disappointed way,
Er hang his head in silence and sorrow all the day?

Is the chipmunk's health a failure? Does he walk or does he run?
Don't the buzzards ooze around up there just like they've allus done?
Is there anything the matter with the rooster's lungs or voice?
Ort a mortal be complainin' when dumb animal's rejoice?

Then let us, one and all, be contented with our lot;
The June is here this morning and the sun is shining hot.
Oh, let us fill our hearts with the glory of the day,
And banish ev'ry doubt and care and sorrow far away!

Such fine circumstances ort to make us satisfied.
For the world is full of roses and the roses full of dew,
And the dew is full of heavenly love that c'rips for me and you.

Summer Pruning.

Intelligent pruning is one of the most important points of a garden and orchard practice, and when judiciously pruned a tree or shrub can be made to work wonders. Pruning in the garden is for a two-fold object—to give beauty and shape to the shrub and trees, and to increase their fruit and foliage. The first depends upon the taste and inclinations of the owner, but the latter are subject to the immutable laws of nature. Too much pruning will rob the growths of their strength and vitality, and too little pruning will probably permit them to overgrow in useless shoots and wood. Ignorant pruning will kill; intelligent pruning will give life.

If shrubs and trees are pruned for flowers and foliage, summer pruning is a good practice, for then all the surplus wood and suckers can be cut out. Wounds which are cut clean in midsummer will heal more quickly than those made in frosty weather. Maples, birches, yellow-wood and many other trees bleed copiously when their branches are cut when in full leaf. Where there is an extensive collection of shrubs and trees, constant attention, and it may be constant pruning, will be required. This is especially true where tender and coarse-growing plants are growing together, or the latter will soon kill the tender ones by their great growth. The true way to prune shrubs is to give a thorough, intelligent pruning at the outset, and then the stronger shoots should be pinched back with the thumb every summer. This will hasten the growth of the flowering buds, and it will also ripen up the wood and leave it in good condition to stand the cold of winter. Trees that are naturally tender can often be found comparatively hardy by this summer pinching process. This is especially true in wet seasons, when the branches continue to grow until the frost kills them.

In the fruit orchards the same principle holds, and many of the tender fruit trees could be hardened a great deal by more of this summer pruning with the thumb and finger. Another advantage is obtained in this way: If the new growth is stopped once or twice in the summer on young trees, the apples, peaches, plums, filberts and many others can be made to produce large quantities of fruit when very small. Peach trees five or six feet high will produce loads of peaches simply as a result of this summer pinching back. If the trees are growing vigorously all of the strength and vitality of the growth goes to form new wood and foliage, while the flower buds suffer. The summer pinching checks flow of sap, and it causes the buds to be developed.

A great many of our fruit trees ripen their fruit when all of the strong shoots above the fruit are stopped by pinching, and this is another point which is of great advantage to young trees. The size of the trees in the end may be permanently dwarfed by this process, if carried on to any extent, by this process, if carried on to any extent, but this loss of size is more than compensated for by the superior hardness and toughness of the wood, and the superior quality and quantity of the fruit. Size in fruit trees it not always desirable, for too often nothing more than that comes with it. The true way to train the young fruit trees is to begin with them early, and see that all of the wood formed is good, solid, substantial and useful. Keep up the process of ripening all of the new growth every season, and a grove of fine fruit trees will soon be produced. In short, summer pruning and pinching back are indispensible, for they give new vigor and nourishment to the trees and shrubs.—S. W. C. in Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Useful Knowledge.

It is not often that the farmer finds leisure to attend to the manure heap in summer, but at no season of the year is it more important to watch the heap in order to prevent the manure from overheating, or "fire-fanging," as it is styled. The heat created within the heap, intensified by the surrounding temperature, is such as to destroy its value entirely, burning it up as with fire, and in this manner a loss occurs that cannot be estimated by any process.

All manure should be composted in summer. This does not mean that such absorbent materials as straw or other substances used in the stalls should be used only, but that the manure should be so preserved as to avoid heating except by gradual process. For this purpose nothing is superior to dry dirt, the rakings of the farm, turfs drawn out by the harrow, and even sawdust. Dry dirt is probably better and cheaper than anything else, as it is not only an excellent absorbent, but also serves to finely divide the manure. Make a foundation of dirt and over this throw the fresh manure, adding more dirt as occasion demands. It will be but a short time before quite a heap will be accumulated, upon which all the urine and soapsuds may be thrown, while a peck of land plaster occasionally will be of assistance. Should the compost become heated it will be but little labor to turn it over, owing to its fine condition, and cold water thrown upon it will arrest the heat.

Use the manure on the fields as fast as it is made in summer, if it can be accomplished, and at no time can this be done to better advantage than on the corn crop, as the corn plant is a gross feeder and will appropriate all kinds of manure. If wheat is to go in this fall, the wheat land may get the manure after the corn crop is in. If the manure is lightly turned under with a one-horse plow, the seeds of weeds that may be in the manure will be germinated, and can then be destroyed. The utilization of the manure saves loss of volatile matter, and the labor required will be no greater than at any other season.

Handling Sows.

We have recently had a bit of experience in handling sows with young litters that may be of interest and help to pig growers, says M. in National Stockman, and which we present in the following: "In pleasant weather we do not confine our sows to lots and sheds at farrowing time, but give them the freedom of the pasture fields to select a place and make their nests. By allowing them this liberty they almost invariably do well. Our sows did this way this fall and have an average of over seven pigs each following them. To avoid accident from inclement weather we moved our portable sheds into the fields and placed them in convenient positions. On the appearance of changeable weather, the pigs being yet too small to follow their dams, we took a basket fastened a sack over it for a cover, and placing a litter in the basket carried them to the shed we wished them to occupy. Usually we have very little trouble in moving a litter in this way. If the sow knows the pigs are in the basket and is allowed to see them every few steps she will follow without much trouble. One man can handle a sow much better than two or more. The moment an effort is made to drive her after the person carrying the basket she rebels and wants to return to her old nest. In moving one sow we had an assistant, a stranger to her, as soon as she noticed him trouble began, leaving the basket containing her pigs and returning to the nest. As we could not do better we took the pigs to the shed and then with some trouble drove the sow to them. We thought them all right until we went to feed them the next day when we found the sow had returned to her old nest with five of the pigs, leaving three in the shed that could not get over the six inch piece at the bottom of the door.

These were nearly starved by their fast and were reduced in appearance to that of runts, and it is our belief that they will never recover from this loss of the dam's milk for nearly one day. The pigs were two or three days old when the fast began.

As a rule we do not pay much attention to the sows if they show fight when we want to handle the pigs; they are not half as vicious as they would have us believe. A sow changed with her pigs to new quarters, if done in a quiet way, will seldom return to the old quarters unless excited and mad. Kindness without any appearance of fear will enable the farmer to handle nearly all his sows without danger when the pigs are young, and that without any great amount of time being spent to tame for the occasion. It is well to remember that a sow is not tamed by being kicked every time she is within reach of the owner or herdsman.

Sure Cure for Scab.

Take fifty pounds of tobacco stems that you can get at a cigar factory. Steep this in 100 gallons of water until the strength is all out of the stems. Then take 25 gallons of the tobacco liquid and put in 25 gallons of sulphur and boil, not simmer it, for one-half hour. Take three-fourths of a gallon of crude carbolic acid, add four gallons of soft soap and beat up till it will be of the consistency of an egg prepared for use. Mix all together and then have a vat 16 inches wide and deep enough so that the fluid will cover the back of the sheep when standing. Let the sheep remain in this fluid 90 seconds, then immerse the head entirely under the water and let the sheep out onto a platform to drain. Have the platform so that the liquid will run back into the vat, and have the liquid above blood heat. In ten days after the first dip use the same process again. If the sheep are bad use one gallon of carbolic acid to five gallons of soft soap. This treatment won't kill the sheep but I am positive it will clean out the scab. As soon after dipping as possible turn the sheep into the yard and stable that they may be saturated from the drippings of the sheep. If I had sheep that had the scab badly I would fix them a warm place, shear, feed liberally with grain to keep up vitality and in a week after shearing I would dip them. You must be thorough and if the scab become firmly seated nothing weaker than this will do the work. I cured 400 that were badly infected. I would dip the third time before turning to grass. I have given this as a preparation to kill scab, but it is a good general dip.—S. H. Todd, in National Stockman.

Bill Nye, who has evidently inherited vast agricultural knowledge, believes in feeding bran mash to cows. He believes the hard times for farmers are due to their not feeding enough bran to their cows. He gives his experience in feeding bran mash to a sickly "taffy-colored Jersey," as follows: At first she would insert her nose in it up to the top of the lower eyelid, and then looking far away over the purple hills, she would blow this bran mash across the State, and what did not go up the sleeves of my overcoat would chink up the barn and freckle our family carriage. But after a while she ate it almost greedily, and soon the birds sang again in her sorrowing heart. She forgot her grief, had no more acidity of stomach, flashes of heat or sinking, ringing in the ears, dizziness or tired feeling and now she is perfectly well. Last fall she ate not only her three meals a day, but also a scarlet geranium belonging to my wife, a Mackinaw straw hat of mine, two yards of brocaded ribbon from the costume of a young lady from Chicago who was patting her on the head, $4 worth of gladiolus bulbs, a child's shirt and a dish of blanc mange which was cooling on the rain barrel for the pastor.

A humble boy with a shining pail went gaily singing down the dale to where the cow with brindle tail on the alfalfa pasture did regale. A bumble bee did gaily sail over the soft and shady vale, to where the boy with shining pail was milking the cow with a brindle tail. The bee lit down on the cows left ear, her heels flew up through the atmosphere, and through the leaves of a cottonwood tree, the boy soared into eternity.

GARGET IN MILCH COWS.

What it is, and a Sure Remedy Usually.

The Island cattle which are known as Alderneys, Guernseys and Jerseys, are predisposed to garget, which is in an inflamed condition in the milk glands, and especially of nerves connected with them, and through those extending to the animal's whole nervous system. Though these animals are very large and continuous milkers, they are usually treated like other cows by attempting to dry them up, and letting them dry from a week to a month prior to calving. As a rule, this is not best; indeed, it is a very exceptional case when they should be dried up st all. Keep milking at least once a day until calving, being very careful after calving to milk perfectly dry, and not trust to the milk being fully sucked out. Garget manifests itself first by the cow's becoming uneasy and worrying, or kicking on the most affected side. A close observer will notice from this restlessness and anxiety that something is the matter. There were until recently very few cases of recovery, in my observation during many years; but if taken in time, with proper remedies, there need be no trouble in effecting a cure. The treatment which has proved successful, not a case being lost when so treated, is as follows: Give the udder a thorough bathing in water as warm as the hand can bear, three, four, five or six times a day, according to the condition of the cow. If the fever is high, bathe it even more frequently. Follow this bathing, and sometimes between the bathing, with an application of melted lard in which has been dissolved in the melting, say from one to two ounces of gum camphor to a pint of lard. The use of this lard is mainly subsequent to the bathing; the bathing prepares the udder for its absorption, and must be done thoroughly. Rub this camphorated lard briskly into the udder with the hand. Follow this immediately with a strong alcoholic tincture of calendula, which is also to be thoroughly rubbed into the udder with the hand.

At the start, give the animal internally, in whatever manner she will best take it, one to two pounds of Epsom Salts, dissolved in, say two quarts of water to the pound of salts. Sometimes a cow will eat this if mixed with considerable bran and water; but ordinarily they will not, as they are suffering great pain. In most cases it is necessary to put the dissolved salts in a bottle, around the neck of which a rag should be thickly wrapped so they will not break the glass and get it into their throats. From one quart to a gallon of this mixture is to be given as often as necessary, until it is evident that it is having a good effect upon the blood, shown by the abatement of the fever.

This treatment will ordinarily relieve the animal within 4 to 12 hours. Continue to relieve the udder as much as possible by milking all that can be done without exciting her by harshness. Of course the udder is the seat of this disease, as it acts upon and aggravates the nervous system, and should always be looked after. Unless thoroughly drawn, the milk promotes and increases the irritation.—Dr. G. C. Pearson in Orange Judd Farmer.

Artificial Impregnation.

SAGINAW, MICH., May 11, 1892.

I thought I would write and give you a little information about a colt foaled May 10, 1892. This mare was bred two or three times, but never caught. Last summer, as an experiment, she was bred by artificial impregnation. The name of the mare is Mollie K., owned by H. Coleman, Saginaw, East Side. She is by Coaster 418, dam Kroll Mare; the mare could trot in 2:30.

A mare was bred to Sphinx, 2:20½. When the service was completed the semen was caught in a glass, and then after cleaning the vagina (the glass in the meanwhile was put in a pail of water, heated to such a temperature as needed) the other mare was brought up, and he took a syringe about eight inches long and filled it with the semen in the glass and then injected it into the mare.

She foaled May 10, 1892, a fine bay filly, black points, very strong and smart. Up to date four mares have been bred by artificial impregnation, and three are safe in foal. I think this is the second colt foaled in this country by artificial impregnation, isn't it.

Both members of the firm are still on the sick list. The horses around here are doing nicely, but have not been speeded yet on account of bad weather. At present there are about sixty horses at Union Park, and we think we will have a great meeting here this summer. Yours truly,

G. SUTHERLAND.

Madam Baldwin as a Broodmare.

ROHNERVILLE, Cal., May 17, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Mention has frequently been made in your columns of the great broodmare Madam Baldwin and her progeny (Bay Rose, Red Rose and Majester). It is not generally known that another worthy son of that grand old matron is owned up in this north-woods country. He has never been prepared for nor entered in any race, but his owner, H. S. Hogoboom, claims that it will be but a jog to trot him in the "charmed circle." The horse is now doing quite a heavy stud service, but last Saturday, and the second time hitched to a sulky this year, he trotted quarters in 36½ seconds, and driven by a young man who had never driven a trotting horse a mile faster than four minutes. The name and description of horse is as follows: Gold Rose 12,596 (by Sterling 6,223), brown horse, six years old, over sixteen hands and weighing nearly 1,300 pounds, full brother to Majester 8142. Gold Rose possesses unsurpassed trotting action, and imparts this quality to all his colts. His oldest foals are but two-year-olds, and but three of his colts have ever been harnessed, but these show style and speed equal to any in the valley. "Barring accidents," I predict for Madam Baldwin at the close of 1892 four trotters in the 2:30 list.

EEL RIVER.

AN answer was filed Wednesday in the suit of W. R. Loose against Leland Stanford to recover $25,000 damages for the alleged conversion by the defendant to his own use of the trotting mare Hinda Rose, claimed to be the property of the plaintiff The answer sets up two defenses to the suit. Stanford first says that he purchased the mare from the plaintiff as a weanling filly. He adds that he has had undisputed and adverse possession or control of the animal for eleven years, and that therefore the action is barred under the provisions of section 338 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

EXTREME SPEED.

A Compilation Showing the Blood That Has Produced the Fastest Performers.

The question which interests breeders is how to produce horses to bring long prices. In other words, how to produce extreme speed. It has been demonstrated that the big money is at the swift end of the 2:30 list. There was a time within the memory of many horsemen now in active life when breeding was not counted as one of the essential attributes of the trotter. It is now known that trotting instinct is as important as the ability to go fast. A level head, power, stamina, lung capacity, and endurance are all essential to a race horse, and all, to a greater or less extent, hereditary, so that a study of the breeding which has resulted in producing the most remarkable specimens of trotting speed is not only interesting, but of practical value to breeders. With that view I submit a list of twenty-six horses with records of 2:08¼ to 2:12¾, with breeding, including their second dams, and a statement of the blood lines of each:

Vic H., 2:13½, by Blackbird 402, dam Ellen Swigert; second dam Little Ellen (dam of Mary Sprague, 2:21), by Abdallah 164—Hambletonian, pacing and thoroughbred.

It has come to be a fact so well established that Hambletonian 10 is the great source of speed that little need be said about the prominence of his blood in this list of horses. Suffice it to say that twenty out of the twenty-six are descended in the male line from the Hero of Chester, and that one of the others, Stamboul, is out of Fleetwing, one of the great daughters of Hambletonian, and Nelson, 2:10, and Vic H., 2:13½, are out of his granddaughters, and the phenomenal Pat Downing has a double cross of Hambletonian blood through Mambrino Abdallah, sire of his dam; so that there are only Guy and Rarus of the list that do not carry Hambletonian blood. Many of these horses have several crosses to Hambletonian.

Next in prominence to the Hambletonian is the Clay blood. Not so close up usually as the Hambletonian, but nevertheless so prevalent as to be an undoubted factor in speed. Sunol, Palo Alto and Arion receive Clay blood from Green Mountain Maid, dam of Electioneer. Allerton and Axtell from Dolly Spanker, dam of George Wilkes, and from Roving Nelly, by C. M. Clay 22, dam of Mambrino Boy, sire of their dams. Stamboul is in direct male descent from Henry Clay 8, and also receives Clay blood from his second dam, Patchen Maid, by Geo. M. Patchen 30. St. Julien is out of the great broodmare Flora (dam of three in the list), by Harry Clay 45. Delmarch receives Clay blood through his dam, Ella G., by Geo. Wilkes. McKinney through his sire, Alcyone, son of Geo. Wilkes. Belle Hamlin's dam, Toy, is a granddaughter of Geo. M. Patchen 30, one of the best of the Clays. Maxie Cobb gets Clay blood in his second dam, a granddaughter of Andrew Jackson 4, the head of the Clay family. Robert Rysdyk, 2:13½, gets Clay blood through the dam of his sire, Wm. Rysdyk, who was also a granddaughter of Andrew Jackson 4. Harry Wilkes gets Clay blood from his sire, Geo. Wilkes. Margaret S. was out of May Day, 2:30, by C. M. Clay 54.

Mambrino blood is represented by Guy, 2:10½, in direct line of male descent. Stamboul has an infusion through the second dam of his sire; Delmarch through Hambrino, his sire; Axtell and Allerton through their dams; Egthorne through Thorndale, sire of his dam; McKinney through his second dam; Belle Hamlin through Almont 33, her grandsire; Pat Downing through his dam, and Robert Rysdyk through his second dam.

Running blood forms a background in almost every individual. While there is no sure way to produce a 2:08 trotting horse, yet it is either an exceedingly wise man or an exceedingly obtuse one who cannot learn something from the tracks of his predecessors marked in these specimens of breeding. There is no reason now why any man with good judgment may not hope to get all the qualifications desired in breeding speed. There are hundreds of young stallions at reasonable stud fees, and many of them are as well bred and as likely to produce first-class progeny as the noted sires if judiciously mated. The remarkable prevalence of great broodmares in the pedigrees of this list of horses is one feature that is worthy of consideration. As there are few great men without great mothers, so there are few great horses without great dams.—Scribbler in Clark's Horse Review.

Bellfounder Blood.

Many breeders of trotting horses give much credit to Bellfounder for the speed which has been obtained at that gait. Some writer says: Why this marvelous speed-producing quality in Hambletonian 10 and his descendants? Some will answer because he was an inbred Messenger. But no other inbred Messenger has produced such results. True, he was inbred to Messenger. His sire was by a son of Messenger, and his grandam by another son, while his great-grandam was by Messenger himself. But it should not be forgotten that his dam was by imported Bellfounder, a horse whose family had a trotting reputation in England.

Inbred to Messenger! Yes, but all the Messenger strains in Hambletonian 10 combined made him but one-fourth Messenger. He was also one-fourth Bellfounder, just as much Bellfounder as Messenger. Who then can fairly claim, as Wallace does, that his greatness is solely due to Messenger blood, and that the Belfounder cross is a "down-right detriment?" According to this, what a horse he would have been had his dam been anything but a Bellfounder mare!

On the contrary, how much more reasonable to claim that Bellfounder blood was just the thing, and probably the only thing, that could have been united with Messenger blood to produce this great progenitor of trotters, this most wonderful horse of modern times, indeed, the most wonderful in all history.

The potency of Bellfounder blood, like that of Diomed, Pilot, the Clays and Patchens, is not so manifest in a large family of trotters in the male line, as in the speed and vigor it has given every other trotting family with which it has mingled. More trotters trace to Sayre's Harry Clay than to all other Clays put together (excepting, of course, his ancestors), and his dam was by imported Bellfounder.

California Patchen, with the largest 2:30 list of any Patchen, had a Bellfounder dam. Pilot Medium, sire of Jack (2:12½), with sixteen new ones in the list this year, making twenty-nine in all, while all the other sons of Happy Medium combined have less than one-half that number, has, an additional Bellfounder cross, from which, and the Pilot and Diomed blood through the dam, comes his quality as a sire. This horse is but twelve years old, and if he lives will surely rank with the very best.

Then, as we have already, in fact, seen, there is Hambletonian's greatest son, Electioneer, with 101 sons and daughters in the list, twenty-two of which have gone in 2:20 or better and two in 2:08¾ and more wonderful still, a two-year-old, Arion, in 2:10½ and a yearling, Bell Bird, in 2:26½; and here again, in this unequaled sire, is an additional strain to Bellfounder through his dam, whose sire was Sayre's Harry Clay.

Then, when we further find an additional Bellfounder strain in such trotters as St. Julien (2:11½), and in such sires as Belmont, who was not only the sire of Nutwood (2:18¾), with his wonderful 2:30 list, and of Wedgewood (2:19) and Viking (2:19½,) all great campaigners, but which is, also, honored by 415 of his progeny in the list, among which are 57 performers in 2:20 or better, it makes one think that Bellfounder blood cannot be as weak and worthless as some of our great teachers have told us, but has a rightful place among the best in trotting pedigrees. Bellfounder strains, additional to that in Hambletonian, are certainly found in these and other great performers and great producers.

Sciatica in Horses.

The following article, read before the Illinois State Veterinary Medical Association by John Scott, V. S., will prove of interest to horsemen generally:

During the summer of 1890 I was called upon to treat the following case, which I diagnosed as sciatica, and as I have only seen two such cases during a practice of six years, both of which occurred under conditions almost identical and both in horses kept for racing purposes, I judge that such cases are somewhat rare in our patients. I am forced to this conclusion not because I have only been fortunate enough to see two cases, but from the fact that in all the works on veterinary science that I have had an opportunity of reading, I fail to find such a disease even mentioned, and in our veterinary journals the only place I see such a disease referred to is in the March, 1889, number of the Review, where a case is recorded, but that is an extract from a foreign journal. For those reasons I call your attention to it to-day, and hope it may prove as interesting to you as it did to me.

I was called to the case on Wednesday, July 22, 1890, during our summer race-meeting, and on reaching the driving park found that the animal affected was a seven-year-old pacing gelding, record, 2:23½.

I asked for and obtained the following history of the case from his owner: He had been started in his first race of the season, at Bloomington, the first week in July; next week was in a hard-tested race at Springfield, after which he went a trifle lame in near hind leg; the next week he was in Decatur, but was not started; from Decatur was shipped to Peoria, arriving there on Sunday, July 19; on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings he was jogged for a few miles on the track, but being still slightly lame, his owner concluded to ship him home until fully recovered; but when they started to lead him to the shipping platform they only got about 300 yards from the stall when he was taken so suddenly and violently lame, and seemed to be in such agony, that it was almost impossible to get him back to the stall, where I saw him abour half an hour later presenting the following symptoms: His general appearance showed at a glance that he was suffering intense pain of a nervous character, there being nervous twitchings, slight clonic spasms of the muscles, holding the near hind leg clear of the floor, but continually moving it in a convulsive, jerkey, nervous manner, nostrils dilated, breathing very much accelerated, pulse 85 and weak, temperature 103, body covered with perspiration.

A close and careful examination of the foot and leg revealed nothing wrong, but on manipulating the hip and thigh the symptoms were very much aggravated, the poor animal groaning from pain on pressure being brought to bear on those parts, and clonic spasm of the muscles being much more severe. I gave potassium bromide one dram, and also morph. sulp. four grains hypodermically; injected a five per cent solution of cocaine into muscles of hip and thigh, and ordered hot woolen blankets applied to the hip. On my return in abont two hours I found him in about the same condition, suffering intensely, sweating profusely, but body cold. To satisfy the owner I passed the catheter and drew off a small quantity of natural-looking urine. I then gave him potassium bromide one drachm, chloral hydrate one drachm, and gelsemium fluid extract one drachm; in an hour repeated the bromide and gelsemium, and after that every two hours; kept hot blankets to the hip, and used an anodyne linlment. At 10 P. M. he was feeling easier, so I left him in charge of the attendant, with instructions to give two doses of bromide and gelsemium during the night.

I saw him next morning about 5 o'clock, when he was looking and feeling better; he had turned around in his stall during the night, being the first time he had changed his position, but would bear no weight on the affected limb. I continued giving the bromide and gelsemium every four or five hours, gradually decreasing the dose as the nervous symptoms disappeared, and on the fifth day discontinued them entirely, and prescribed tonics, as his appetite was very poor.

During this time I had been treating the hip and thigh with hot blankets and anodyne liniments, but as the gluteal muscles began to show signs of becoming atrophied, and the pain still being severe, I applied a blister to the parts. The third day after applying it we led him out of the stall for the first time, but he would scarcely bear any weight on the afflicted limb, merely touching the toe to the ground, but as the owner was anxious to get away we concluded to try and move him to my hospital, which we did the following night, where he lay down for the first time. He lay down pretty regular after this, but had to be helped up for several days. I continued giving him tonics for about three weeks before he regained his appetite, and by this time he wasn't much more than a thadow, but was able to walk out for a little exercise, and from this time on he improved quite rapidly.

The gluteal muscles became very much atrophied, but this I finally overcame by repeated blistering. In about six weeks from the time he was admitted to the hospital I put him in harness for the first time and drove him a few blocks. After this I gave him regular exercise, and in sixty days from the date of admission I sent him home all right in every way, except that the gluteal muscles were still slightly atrophied; but I had an opportunity of seeing him again in about six weeks, and at that time they were entirely filled out and had regained their natural appearance.

The other case I saw was during a race meeting in July, 1891, and occurred in a seven-year-old trotting gelding, record 2:22¾. He started in a race on Thursday, winning two heats, when darkness came and the race was postponed. The next day he came out all right, but in scoring down for the first heat he went suddenly lame in near hind leg—so lame that it was difficult to get him to his stall. He presented the same symptoms in general that the other horse did, but not nearly so severe. I treated him the same as my first case, and in about a week he was sufficiently recovered to be shipped home.

To a hard-working horse repose is almost as much a necessity as good food, but tired though he be, he is often very shy about lying down, even when a clean bed is provided for him. Unless a horse lies down regularly his rest is never complete, and his joints and sinews stiffen; and while it is true that some horses that sleep in a standing position continue to work for many years, it is equally true that they would wear much longer, and perform their work much better, if they rested naturally. Young horses may refuse to lie down when first in a stall, and when brought into a town stable the habit may be confirmed unless inducements are offered.

A Visit to Robert Bonner's Farm.

A representative of the New York Sun visited Robert Bonner's breeding and training farm, near Tarrytown, last week. He tells of his visit as follows:

Two or three sharp hills in quick succession bring one to the gates of the home of Maud S. A cosy white frame house with green shutters fronts the road, and never-failing springs on either side of the gateway, with a pumping house to force the water to the tanks at the barn, furnish water for the blue-blooded equines housed in the drab-colored stables ranged in rows a stone's throw from the road or ranging at will in the numerous paddocks, where the grass is almost knee deep. The farm consists of 113 acres, and a stone wall forms the boundary, but a stranger with any knowledge of agriculture could tell where Mr. Bonner's holdings ceased by the color and luxuriance of the grass. The ground has been fertilized until the grass will compare with any in the famous Blue Grass Country of Kentucky. In this the broodmares and their foals and the horses not in training range at will during the day. Every acre of the farm save a small patch 100 feet square, where one man has a small garden planted, and the space occupied by the track and buildings, is in grass. Even the orchards, red and pink in the glory of their blossoms, had bands of mares grazing in them on Thursday last.

While the men were straightening the hair on the horses to be photographed, Mr. Bouner drove Uncle Dave out upon the three-quarter mile track, over which greater flights of speed have been made than any private course in the world. It is beautifully constructed, and so admirable is the drainage that it was in fair condition for work, despite the hevay rains of Tuesday and Wednesday. A handsome bay mare was being jogged the reverse way of the track, which has 300 yard stretches. At the timing stand Mr. Bonner stopped and told the reporter that he would find something of interest scribbled on the posts and roof. The view from the small wooden structure was beautiful, but with trotting history written on the pine boards, the scenery had to wait a closer inspection.

Written in a large, bold hand was:

"Maud S., Aug. 13, 1887, 2:10½."

Beneath it and in Mr. Bonner's writing was:

"July 2, 1879, the greatest mile ever trotted in the world. Edwin Forrest, wagon—34, 1:08, 1:41¾, 2:16¼."

Beneath it and in another hand was found:

"THIS BEATS IT. Edwin Forrest to sulky (Alley), July 28, 1879—33, 1:06½, 1:40½, 2:13½."

Then in Mr. Bonner's hand:

Then came a record of a great performance:

"Maud S., Aug. 10, 1887, driven by R. B. (Robert Bonner) to wagon, 2:14½."

"Yes," said Mr. Bonner, in speaking about the performance, "I drove her in 2:14½ to wagon without weights, and then drove her in 2:13½ with four-ounce weights." The Alley who drove Edwin Forrest in 2:13½ is Mr. Bonner's son, A. A. Bonner, one of the best amateur reinsmen in the world. Almost every inch of the little stand is covered with pencillings noting the time made by different horses owned by Mr. Bonner in their trials. Considering that the trials given above were made on a fractional course of the regulation shape, other records seem tame in comparison. That narrow ribbon of yellowish soil had been pressed by the hoofs of world beaters.

Returning to the stables, Mr. Bonner had Ansel led out. The lordly bay marched about the square formed by the stables, with impressive tread. A rich solid cherry bay with black points, he is so strongly made that it is no wonder he himself is a trotter, and that all of his get should have natural speed at the trotting gait. He shows the blood of thoroughbred Lexington, which he received through his dam Annette, in his fine neck and head and in his great length. His shoulders are strong and powerful, and his quarters indicate a world of driving power. Mr. Bonner is very fond of this horse, and selected him from Palo Alto stud of Senator Leland Stanford as his beau ideal of a trotting sire. One of the fastest-gaited trotting horses in the world, Ansel has speed enough to lower his records many seconds. Mr. David Bonner can drive him at almost any rate of speed, from a three-minute gait down fo a 2:12 shot. Ansel is being mated with the best mares owned by Mr. Bonner, and the young things by him out of daughters of Cuyler and Harold, of which something will be said further on, leave nothing to be desired. Eldridge, trial 2:20½, by Edward Everett, out of the far-famed broodmare Jessie Kirk (dam of Majolica, 2:15), and others in the charmed circle come next. A bay horse of 15¾ hands high he looks smaller, so stoutly made is he. Fewer horses have better bone, the legs being broad, flat and cordy. He is highly finished and a trotter.

Mr. Bonner's face beamed with pleasure as the door of the box nearest the road opened and a chestnut mare walked out and glanced inquiringly at the visitors. It was Maud S., 2:08¾, bearing her eighteen years as lightly as though she had never heard the bell ring or electrified the world by her flights of speed on almost every prominent trotting course in America. The beautiful eyes were as bright as ever, and as she stood before the camera she was truly a picture of equine beauty. Her rich chestnut coat shone like burnished gold, and the silken mane and tail hung in graceful waves. She knew her loved master was there, and the boy at her head had difficulty in keeping her attention from him while the artist was at work. Mr. Bonner is not sure whether his pride—for Maud S. is still the joy of his heart, although he owns Sunol—is with foal or not. She was mated with Ansel on August 25th of last year, and, as in the cases of most mares that have been driven for years before being bred, she shows very little fullness at the flank. Mr. Bonner hopes for the best, though, and inclined to the belief that the great mare is with foal. She never looked better than since she enjoyed the freedom of the Westchester hills. Hers will be a life of peace and quietude, and every care and attention paid her until the flying feet have been stilled forever.

A very promising two-year-old colt by Ansel, dam Gretchen, by Whipple's Hambletonion, bought by Mr. Bonner at the Stanford sale last winter, was next led out. Mr. Bonner says this fellow, who greatly resembles his sire, can show better than a 2:30 gait in harness; in fact, he trotted eighths in 19 seconds before leaving California. But the gem of Ansel's get is a weanling filly, bred at the home farm. Her dam is Halcyon by Cuyler, trial 2:21 at five years old, and, although only eleven months old, she appears to be able to trot as fast as she likes. The pace cut out by a small boy is only a jog for her, and Mr. Bonner hopes that in her he has another Sunol, whom she greatly resembles in conformation. The men at the farm, accustomed to great flights of speed, say that she is a wonder.

Lucy Cuyler, by Cuyler, dam by Alexander's Norman, one of the speediest mares that ever lived, having trotted a mile to wagon in 2:15½ over the private track at the farm, and a half over Fleetwood Park to top wagon in 1:05, is in rugged condition, and seems to be heavy with foal. All the produce of this mare are speedy. Maud Macey, with a record of 2:16½, was brought in from the orchard to have her picture taken, and so was the gray mare Russella, sister to Maud S. and Daybreak, by Harold, out of Midnight, the dam of Jay-Eye-See, two of the best-bred mares ever foaled. Mated with Ansel, they cannot fail to throw great trotters, as they unite the blood of Electioneer, Nutwood, Lexington, and his sire, Boston. Lady Winfield, a grand old chestnut mare, full sister to Sheridan, record 2:20½, by Edward Everett, dam by Eureka, came into the square, accompanied by a handsome bay colt by Ansel. The mare was led about at a trot, and the foal swung along behind with the ease and grace of an old campaigner.

"A born trotter," was Mr. Bonner's comment. Mother and foal were photographed together. Daisy Darling, trial 2:18¾, by Kentucky Prince, dam by Strideaway, now seventeen years old, looks well. She was followed by the handsome young mare Reverie, 2:31¾, as a yearling, and Marguerite, sister to Margaret S., Director's great daughter. Reverie is by Alcazar, and last year as a three-year-old she trotted quarters in 34 seconds, pulling a cart. Mr. Bonner expects great things of her this year. Both she and Marguerite are shapely bays of good size. Reverie is wonderfully long, and should trot low in the 'teens.

Other great mares inspected were: Lady Stout, 2:29, by Mambrino Patchen, the first three-year-old to beat 2:30; Malice, trial 2:19¾, by Woodford Mambrino; May Bird, 2:21, by George Wilkes; Music, 2:22½, by Middleton; Garland by Cuyler; Grip by Mambrino Time; Caprice by Startle; Ansella by Ansel, and Catherine by Sidney.

A trip to Tarrytown would be incomplete without a visit to Mr. Bonner's blacksmith shop, which is between the stable and the house. A chair with a cushion, in which Mr. Bonner sits while instructing the smith how to prepare the foot for the shoe, and then how to put it on when the shoe is made, is the only furniture of the small building. Shoes of every conceivable pattern known to blacksmiths hang upon the wall, and whisper—there are some others on the wall that blacksmiths never dreamed of. They are the children of Mr. Bonner's brain, fashioned under his directions, to cure every ill in foot or leg brought about by faulty treatment of the hoof. Mr. Bonner is the recognized authority on the horse's foot, and the cures that he has made seem almost miraculous.

Meadville's Track.

The Kentucky Stock Farm contains the following interesting item in reference to the Meadville, Pa., track, which is owned by those enterprising horsemen, Miller & Sibley, and over which Charley Marvin is almost monarch of all he surveys: "Miller & Sibley, judging from the work now under way, intend to make their kite-shaped track and training stables second to nothing of the kind in the world. The work is being done under the personal supervision of Secretary George A. Achuff, and the stretches are being widened to a full 100 feet with a mean width of 65 feet on the turn. Just think of it! a racing course 100 feet wide, as level and smooth as a floor, and on a soil as elastic as rubber! One hundred feet wide—wide enough for a dozen trotters to get away abreast, and with a turn that is wider than the stretches of most of the country's boasted great tracks. The course will be accurately resurveyed, and when finished its span will be exactly a mile. The work is being done on scientific principles, and when it is finished the Meadville kite track will be as near perfection as money and labor can make a race course. The grand stand will probably be built at the south side of the starting point, and the present grand stand, moved to join it on the left, will be free. The judges' and press stand will, of course, stand in the neck, about where the present one is now located, and will be supported on an iron frame so as not to obstruct the view of the finish from the grand stand. The buildings being erected by the proprietors for their own use are nearly finished. These comprise four rows of stables, forming a large enclosed square, the whole comprising some fifty box stalls, each 12x15 feet. In the center of each row or section is a sulky and harness room, and in the rear of the north section is an office for the use of Mr. Marvin, the $10,000 a year trainer. These stables are covered, roof and sides, with shingles, and are warmer than most houses. The main roofs slope out, with a shed roof inside of the square sufficiently wide to protect the stall entrances from the sun or storms. In addition to this work there are stalls for upward of 200 head of horses, and plenty of room for others, and in addition to all this is to be built the three-eighths mile inclosed track, the course of which will be 40 feet wide. Although the location of this building has not been fully decided on, much of the lumber is already on the ground, and the work will also soon be under way. It is thought that this track (the inclosed one) may be built just north of the homestretch, near the finish. Another work of no small importance is the fencing, of which there will be some three miles built. Of the outlook for the success of the enterprise it is perhaps unnecessary to speak, as that is already generally conceded to be of the most promising character. It is known that the great Sunol and others of the famous horses of the day are to be here this season, and the horse world confidently expects the Meadville track to witness the coming season some of the most marvelous speeding the world has ever known.

The Calico Horse.

Many people think the calico or pinto-colored horses of the North Pacific coast came from Spanish stock that the Cayuse Indians brought up from California. We know that this is not true, for the reason that Bancroft's history tells us that the first horses that the Indians of the Columbia River basin ever saw were in the camp of Lewis & Clark on Clearwater River, just above the present town of Lewiston, Idaho, in the waters of 1804 ond 1805. And we find that old Indians now say they went hundreds of miles to see the "big deer that was so large that a man could ride on his back." The calico horse with chalk eyes, the progeny which is now so common among the Indians of the New Northwest, came from the fine English stock brought in by the Hudson Bay Fur Company, says the Washington Farmer.

Those who say the Indians of this section went to California for horses forget that when Fremont, with such guides as Kit Carson, could find no trail from the Columbia to California in 1845, there was no trail. Fremont's party replenished their stores at Fort Vancouver and then returned to the mouth of Des Chutes River and followed up that stream to near Klamath Lake, thence bore easterly via Lakes Albert, Christmas and Goose, thence southerly to Lake Pyramid, thence westerly up Truckee River to the head of the American fork of the Sacramento River, thence to Sutter's Fort. It is well known that in attempting to find their way through under Indian guidance they came near perishing, and killed and ate the last dog they got from the Klamaths, and Professor Preuse became insane from starvation.

Those familiar with the history of Alexander the Great knows that he paid $15,000 for the famous war steed Bucephalus, and that he was a "skewbald" or "pinto" horse, being white, marked with large deep bay spots, a breed held in high esteem by the Parthians. At the battle of Hydaspes the noble creature received his death wound, and for the first time disobedient to his master's command, galloped out of the fight, carried Alexander out of danger, then knelt for him to alight, as was his custom, and having performed this last act of duty, fell over and died.

Bucephalus was of the true Barb stock of the Arabians. Many of the best horses of the Columbia River basin were from the same stock, but by maltreatment at hands of Indians and frontiersmen they have become much degenerated.

The pinto gelding C. W. G. of A. J. Ross, at Spokane, has a record of 2:22½, pacing, and in double harness, with the bay gelding, Gold Medal, with a record of 2:14½, pacing, makes the finest pacing team in the State of Washington.

Abdallah 15.

It seems probable now that Alexander's Abdallah will always remain the greatest progenitor of the Hambletonian line, aside from the Old Hero of Chester himself. He was foaled when Hambletonian was but three years old, and time is a tremendous factor in breeding trotters. He had many years the start of George Wilkes and still more of Electioneer. Although his stud services were limited and he did not sire a great number of foals, it was still his good fortuue to have been bred to a good many mares that were then among the best-bred of the country—along with others, it must be admitted, that have done him slight honor. His dam, Katy Darling, must have been a great mare, and some conjecture that she was a Clay, but the probabilities are that the unsatisfactory letters s. t. b. will always stand in the front of her pedigree.

The best sons of Abdallah—Almont, Belmont, Wood's Hambletonian and Thorndale—got an early start in the stud (although the opportunities of the last named two were not great), and, as a consequence (the blood being good), had a considerable progeny before many good sons of Hambletonian began their stud careers. Through his daughters, too, Abdallah has communicated his qualities to a numerous progeny. He was the most successful brood-mare stallion that ever lived, considering the number of his foals. A horse entering the stud eight or ten years later than he has to advance with tremendous strides in order to overtake him. In the meantime, it must be remembered that he is very rapidly advancing himself. The many generations descended from him are still breeding on and producing trotters year by year, and among them are some of the most prepotent sires in the country. It is for this reason that I do not look to see any other Hambletonian stallion overtake him as a progenitor of trotting horses. His blood is so intermingled with that of the best strains that in a large proportion of cases, where you get a scion of another great Hambletonian family, you also get a descendant of Abdallah.

The Evolution of a Breed.

Breeds of animals are not formed in a day. To say that this cross or that cross will produce a certain result is vain. To start with, a definite aim must be in mind, and an intelligent course be pursued toward the consummation of that aim. Because Electioneer got Palo Alto from Dame Winnie; because Bonnie Scotland got Scotland from Waterwich, or because there may be in history other instances of what may appear like violations of heredity does not furnish sufficient reason for men to doubt that in the majority of cases the law prevails. The exception does not disprove the rule.

The Arabian and Barb horses were undoubtedly at one time the swiftest in the world. The English thoroughbred was at the outset bred from Arab or Barb blood. But to-day an Arab horse would be utterly helpless in a contest with an English thoroughbred.

In this country it is the fashion to teach that the gray horse Messenger was the founder of the trotting breed. It is said of Messenger that his progeny favored the trotting gait; but more of theory than of fact has been contributed to history upon those points.

Mambrino, the son of Messenger, did not get trotters. Abdallah, the son of Mambrino, did not get trotters, but from a daughter of Bellfounder, Abdallah got Hambletonian, the Father of Trotters. Bellfounder was an imported Norfolk trotter and a horse of free action, while Abdallah had no known speed and was individually inferior. The late William M. Rysdyk always said that Hambletonian was more of "a Bellfounder" than an Abdallah. He had the superabundant action that marked the sire of his dam. He had the formation of Bellfounder, the same massive quarters and the same general structure, if the testimony of the living may be believed. And Abdallah got nothing of great worth except Hambletonian. He had other sons, but none worthy of mention in the same breath with the colt out of the Bellfounder mare.

And it was in the order of Nature that it should be so. Bellfounder was a trotter and came from a trotting breed. True, the speed of the Norfolks was not of high degree, but they had trotting action, and that through years of selection and development has given us the modern fast trotter. It is beyond question the law that like produces like. You cannot breed trotters uniformly from animals that cannot trot. The fact that a freak may come once in a thousand times does not controvert the general law that governs reproduction of kind from kind. The best trotters of the future will be bred from developed trotters of trotting blood, just as the best racehorses are bred from horses that race and are racing-bred. We shall yet see a breed of horses knowing no faster gait than the trot, and the evolution of that breed will not be consummated by disregard of the law that the place to look for grapes is on grapevines.—The Horseman.

HOOF-BEATS.

Maud S., 2:08¾, is not in foal to Ansel, 2:20, after all.

Director Jr. will be sent to Petaluma next Monday, and it is expected that he will take a low mark this season.

A match of $5,000 has been made between Direct and Hal Pointer to take place during the Grand Rapids meeting in August.

Fond du Lac, Wis., is to have a kite track. The Kite Park Fair Association was organized there Saturday last, with a capital of $20,000.

The match race between Lottie Mills and Inkerman, three-quarters of a mile, was won by the former in 1:15 at Sacramento, Cal., last Tuesday.

Millard Saunders, who has been working for G. Valensin at the Valensin Stock Farm, resigned his position and accepted a place on the San Mateo Stock Farm.

The Mercury, published in Bradley, Monterey county, is one of the best exchanges that comes to our table. Its columns are replete with news, and the horse items it contains are very readable.

Foxhall Keene's horses are ready for the campaign. His two-year-olds have shown well enough in their work to be fighting for money from start to finish in any race in which they may start.

Brewer J. Ruppert's high-priced imp. Dandie Dinmont—Moonlight two-year-old colt opened up the season by downing a great field at Brooklyn last week, running half a mile with 115 pounds up in 0:49½.

The double team trotting record on a regulation track was reduced to 2:13¼ on Wednesday by Belle Hamlin and Globe at Belmont Driving Park, Philadelphia. The team was hooked to a skeleton wagon weighing less than 100 pounds.

Charles Thomas' two-year-old bay colt Lew Martin, by Gano—Armeda Howard, won a good race from a big field at St. Louis on the 17th inst. The Californian won easily by three lengths. Hy-Dy, by Hyder Ali—Addie Warren, won on the same date.

Secretary Brewster, of the Washington Park track in Chicago, says that the owner of the winner of the American Derby in Chicago in 1893 will receive a certified check for $50,000 immediately after the race, and that he will hand it to the lucky man himself.

Our Dick, the horse that was sent to Sacramento last week and was driven in a race there by George Starr, winning the same, returned to Pleasanton last Saturday, but was again sent up there Wednesday, where he will be trained for a few weeks, when he will be sent to Montana.

A correspondent at San Bernardino, Cal., writes us that he expects Glendine, 2:20, to lower his record this season to at least 2:16, and declares that he saw the horse work a mile on May 10th in 2:21½. At this rate of going so early in the season our correspondent is certainly justified in his prediction.

Of the outlawed owners at Guttenberg, Eugene Leigh, G. W. Poole, W. H. Roller and R Bradley will ship their horses to Chicago for the Garfield Park meeting. C. F. Sanders, S. Love, W. Lovell and W. E. Cotton will go to Gloucester. J. H. McCormick will take a rest until the meeting at Brighton Beach opens.

Two American trotters which the Duke of Marlborough sent to the horse-show at Islington, England were the main attractions of that exhibition. Their gait amazed and charmed the spectators. The Duke of Marlborough says they can trot a mile in 2:25, and that one of them has trotted ten miles in less than thirty minutes.

As fast and game as the Cheviots have proved themselves this season, we understand there are a couple by the Australian horse at Palo Alto that money cannot purchase and which are simply wonderful. McCarty has not turned Prize loose on an unsuspecting public either, and when he does she should come pretty near getting first money.

"The second payments of $15 each in colt stakes of Montana Circuit are due and payable June 1st," says Chas. S. Eltinge, secretary of the West Side Racing Association, Butte City, Montana. He also adds, "Everything looks most favorable for a great circuit this year; large fields of horses are expected and a good time is in store for all who come."

John Dickerson has lost through pneumonia the bay six-year-old stallion, Stamboul, Jr., by Stamboul, 2:11, dam Flower Girl (dam of Kaffir, 2:29½), by Arthurton. The horse was given the best of medical attention and nursing, but as both lungs were affected death won the heat. The loss is quite a serious one for Johnny, as he recently turned down an offer of $3,000 for him.

The Alameda Gentlemen's Driving Club has secured the old race track at Melrose, and will make a first-class track of it. In its day it was one of the best tracks in the State, and when renewed will be at least the finest one about the bay. The organization is perfected, and has elected Charles S. Neal president; Al Cohen, secretary and treasurer; L. L. Borden, superintendent of the track.

The rule on nomenclature: Any horse, mare, or gelding which has started or obtained a record in a race, and is eligible to registration, may be registered by the name under which said start was made or record obtained, if such race shall have occurred before January 1, 1892; but no mare foaled after January 1, 1890, shall be registered under a name by which another animal has been registered, except as above provided.

W. A. James kindly writes us as follows from Tulare, Cal.: "I drop you a few lines to let you know what is being done with our kite-shaped track. The track is all graded and work on the 20,000-gallon tank and well is being pushed rapidly forward, also work on the 100 box stalls. The band and grandstand will shortly be built. The track is to be fenced in with an eight-foot tight board fence. In the course of two weeks or so upward of fifty horses will be at work on the track getting themselves in shape for the fall races to be held here."

Among the horses being jogged every day at Cloverdell Farm are Mambrino Maid, 2:15½; Margaret S., 2:12½; Position, 2:22½; Lizzie Mac, 2:24, by Nutwood; Hildeburn, 2:34; Worth, brother to Sunol, 2:08½; Albert H., by Red Wilkes; Sweetness, by Alcazar, 2:20½; Gros Grain, by Bell Boy, 2:19½; Estelle, by Aberdeen; Hickory Nut, by Nutwood, 2:18¾; Little Liz, by Woodnut, 2:16½; Costa Diva, by Robert McGregor, 2:17½; Reynard, yearling, by Alcantara, 2:23, dam Palo Alto Belle; Medium Wilkes, yearling, by Red Wilkes, dam Letta Medium, by Happy Medium.

W. M. Swallow, of Maple Farm, Holliston, Mass., has the champion broodmare of the world, says the American Horse Breeder. She dropped four foals in 11 months and 9 days, a pair of twin fillies by Sir Walter Jr., 2.18¼, foaled May 29, 1891, one a bay, the other a gray; May 7, 1892, twin colts by Del Sur, 2:24, both black with star in forehead. The dam of this wonderful quartette of youngsters is a gray, by Smuggler, 2:15½, out of the famous gray mare owned by Dr. Loring. The yearlings are rugged, and the youngest pair appear as strong at their age as the others did.

J. A. McDonald, of San Rafael, has a great young stallion in Director Jr., surely—at least there are several confident owners of Director Jr. colts. Those who have seen the youngsters in question believe that quite a number will go into the charmed circle this season, notwithstanding the fact that Director Jr. is but six years of age now. The horse is bred on the same lines as Direct, 2:06, being by Director, 2:17, dam Brainey, by Echo; second dam thoroughbred. It is claimed for Director Jr. that he breeds more like his illustrious sire than any son of the "Black Tornado," and, like Director, is as game as a pebble and exceedingly promising as a racehorse. However, Director Jr.'s days have been for the most part spent in the stud, and he has had little or no track work.

Alex. Lewis, who, next to Col. Dickey, is perhaps the best-known man in the trotting horse business, recently arrived at Baltimore from Los Angeles, bringing with him the pacer Mikado, 2:19½, and the old trotter Contractor, 2:22. Mikado is a sort humpback, the result of an accident in colthood, but the deformity does not in any way interfere with his speed or staying qualities. Lewis is a pretty old man now and has been around with the trotters ever since he was a stripling. In some respects he is a fairly-good conditioner and driver, but a weakness for stacking up his bets on the green cloth, as Jack Batchelor used to put it "from the green earth below, the blue sky above," has prevented him from accumulating any great store of this world's goods. However, Mikado won for Mr. Lewis at Baltimore, and everything is serene.

For some little time there has been considerable talk around the Palace Hotel about the respective merits of a couple of unusually promising yearling trotting fillies by the mighty Stamboul, 2:11. The discussion has led up to a match being made for $2,000 a side, and the money of S. G. Reed, of Oregon, and Adolph Speckles, of this city, the owners, is already in the hands of a stakeholder and the conditions governing the interesting affair drawn up. It is to be trotted in the fall of 1894, when the misses are three years old. The competitors are respectively daughters of Belle H., 2:24 (dam of Cœur d'Alene, 2:19½), and the Bull Pup mare Jennie, that is the dam of Gracie S., 2:22, Gus Speckles, 2:30, and Hulda, who is expected to trot in 2:15 this season. Both owners are confident of winning, and have been chuckling over the match ever since it was made, and that was last Tuesday night.

Michael Fox, now at Rancho del Paso, formerly owned the beautiful gray mare Sweetbriar, 2:26¼, and bred her to Abbottsford 2:19½; the result of this union was the gray mare Jasmine. This mare was bred to Eros, and last Wednesday at San Jose she foaled a beautiful brown colt by Eros 2:29¾, for which $1,000 were refused. Jasmine, dam Sweetbriar, is by Eugene Casserly, son of Gen. Taylor; second dam Peanuts, by George M. Patchen Jr. 31; third dam Old Peanuts (or Grey Lize as she was sometimes called, dam of Billy Hayward, sire of Alonzo Hayward 2:30 and Poscora Hayward 2:23½), by the Morse Horse 6. If this youngster lives to be a trotter he will be worth a great deal more than the price refused for him. His dam as a yearling with very little work trotted a mile in 2:57, and his grandam was one of the gamest mares that ever looked through a bridle.

Vacaville people will not down. Fires and earthquakes do not check the spirit of enterprise, but appears to give them a more tenacious grip and a determination to surmount all calamities. Three times destroyed by fire and once by seismic force, Phœnix-like she arises from ashes and toppled walls with renewed vigor, and comes up smiling and serene. The Vaca Valley Driving Association has completed an excellent kite-shaped track, over which racing will take place on Fourth of July. Five hundred dollars in purses is offered, and a grand time is anticipated. If nothing is to be done in Suisun on the natal day of our independence that marks an important epoch in the history of America, let us join with Vacaville if there is nothing more to comemorate the day than horse-racing. We can take along a few small flags and a half-dozen packages of fire-crackers, at least. If any demonstration is to be had it is time some effort is being put forth with that end in view.—Republican.

Secretary E. S. Hawley, of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Park Association, says that he has arranged with Monroe Salisbury, of Pleasanton, Cal., and Harry Hamlin, of Buffalo, for a match race between Direct, the champion pacer of the world, and Hal Pointer, 2:09¼, the game ex-champion. This will be the feature of the Grand Circuit meeting in Buffalo, and will be one of the harness events of the year. The purse will be $5,000 and Mr. Hawley has been assured that this will be the first race between Direct and Pointer. Many trotting associations have announced that they have arranged races between these campaigners, but if they take place they will be after the Buffalo meeting. The race will surely be a hot one. Direct and Hal Pointer met three times last season. At Terre Haute on a muddy track Pointer won in 2:11, 2:10¼ and 2:13¾, after dropping the first heat in 2:13. The second race took place in Nashville, and the black wonder defeated the Tennessee horse in 2:10, 2:09¼ and 2:11. A week later, at Hal Pointer's birthplace, Direct finished three times in front over the Columbia kite track in 2:09, 2:08 and 2:08¾. Mr. Geers said the track was too hard for Pointer, and that this year he expected to beat Direct four times should they meet on tracks not quite so hard as asphalt. The Buffalo track is soft and elastic, and Pointer will have an opportunity of regaining the championship.

Did You See It?

Several weeks ago we published an important item, and as we have reason to fear that it may have been overlooked by a number of our readers who should have been interested, we beg leave to call attention to it again. The article referred to related to delinquent subscribers to this paper. While they are greatly in the minority, still the amount they owe in the aggregate represents quite a neat sum of money, which would be most acceptable at this particular time of the year, especially as we contemplate making a number of improvements in the paper that will be expensive. If you were one of those who received a bill last month, a prompt remittance will place you high in our favor, while if you did not get a bill, and are among the great majority who have paid in advance for the current year, the only advantage you will receive for the perusal of this is to know that we reckon you among "the salt of the earth."

Agricultural Society.

The Board of Directors of the Ninth District Agricultural Society met in Rohnerville, May 7th. Present: Lamb, McNeil, Russ, Byard, Pine and Barber; S. F. Pine, chairman, pro tem.; George Underwood, Secretary.

Treasurer's report for the year 1891 received, accepted and ordered on file.

This being the annual meeting, the Board proceeded to reorganize in accordance with law. On ballot, S. F. Pine was chosen President of the Society, George Underwood, Secretary, and L. Feigenbaum, Treasurer.

A speed programme for the Thirteenth Annual Fair was adopted, and President Pine and Director McNeil were constituted a committee with full power to act in regard to the free-for-all race.

Directors McNeil and Lamb and Secretary Underwood were named as a committee to arrange the speed programme for the forthcoming annal Fair.

Rules and regulations in regard to entries were adopted, and the premium list of 1891 was adopted as a whole as the premium list for 1892.

Old committees were retained with one exception. Director Russ was substituted for Director Pine on the Printing Committee. Director Lamb was appointed a special committee to arrange for the confectionery privilege.

September 19th to 23d inclusive was the time fixed for holding the Thirteenth Annual Fair.

Board adjourned to meet August 13th.

Saved a Horse.

"I had a horse whose feet were so badly contracted that I almost gave him up as a hopeless case. I tried 'Spelterine' without much faith in its virture, but to my surprise found that from the first use of it he began rapidly to improve. I now have a horse with sound and good feet, and highly recommend the new discovery." This is an extract from a letter from a prominent livery stable keeper in this city, to N. E. May & Co., the agents for Spelterine.

In a letter received from Joseph Cairn Simpson, dated at Binghamton, N. Y., May 19th, the veteran turfman and writer informs us that he has been a very busy man since leaving California, and will hardly have an opportunity of furnishing matter for his most interesting department in the Breeder and Sportsman until he reaches home, which he expects to do ere long. "I am now in a town," Mr. Simpson writes, "where I spent a good deal of time, but as that was nearly fifty years ago none of my old companions are forthcoming. Quite different yesterday, when I was in Montrose, Pa., scores of old comrades turning up." Mr. Simpson winds up his missive by saying that he has considerable interesting material for the future—"good matter which will not spoil by being delayed." Our readers can therefore count on a literary treat upon his return.

California horses were successful on two tracks at the East last Thursday. At Gravesend Sir Walter, a bay two-year-old son of imp. Midlothian (sire of Monowai and Braw Scot) and La Scala, by Joe Hooker, won the Great American Stakes against a field of twelve. The stake was worth several thousands of dollars to the owner of the winner, Dr. Gideon Knapp, the wing shot. Garrison got $2,000 for riding the victory. At Chicago Dan McCarty's Hercules pulled off a three-quarter mile dash in the mud.

At the Oakland Track.

For years the old fences, rickety grand stands and long rows of box-stalls and sheds that have been glued together by coats of whitewash. have made the Oakland Trotting Park a rival to our own disjointed and patched-up "improvements" at the Bay District track; but a change will soon come "o'er the scene," for enterprise, money and brains will be used to make it worthy of the name of a "trotting park." Last week Benj. Wright, of the Galindo Hotel, leased the place from Judge Mee, and already signs of a change are observed. A large force of carpenters and painters commenced working there on Monday, and when they get through with the club house it will be a far different-looking building from the one that has so long stood deserted and alone. The amount of improvements in contemplation will completely alter the aspect of this place. Many of the old broken stalls will be torn down and new ones will be erected, although not upon their site, for it is Mr. Wright's intention to place the stalls facing a circular court or yard in which the horses can be exercised. Gravelled walks will be laid in all directions, and everything that can be done to make this place fit to travel on in wintry weather.

The grand and judges' stands, will also be renovated. It is hoped that the big barn-like judges stand' will be razed and in its place a neat one erected. A saddling paddock will be made; most of the old fences are to be destroyed and new and more substantial ones will take their place. The track will receive attention; its soil is unsurpassed in this State for either running or trotting purposes; but the turns have become leveled, they will be raised to the standard and we can look for the greatest of records to be smashed upon its smooth surface.

From what can be learned, it is the intention of the new lessee to make this the greatest winter track in America. A large number of horses from the East will come and be exercised here to prepare them for the hard races that commence in May in the East. The track may also be used for racing purposes, the scheme for giving winter races has not been abandoned by our Eastern brethren, and the Oakland track would fill all the requirements necessary.

The need of a good track in proximity to this metropolis has been recognized by all lovers of trotters and runners and we hail with delight this move on the part of Mr. Wright to fill this long-felt want.

A few trainers are still domiciled on the track and have endeavored to keep the old course in fair order since Mr. Hinchman left, and they are delighted at the prospects.

Mr. Cody is working his fine stallion Winwood every day, and says the horse never showed greater promise. Mr. Cody has been the track superintendent.

J. C. Smith, of Oakland, has a few good ones there in charge of J. H. Crowe. Among them is the stallion Anteeo Jr. (sire of Hailstorm, 2:30). This horse has just finished a most successful season in the stud at Livermore,and will now be trained for a record this fall. He has also a good-looking Sidney colt out of a Linwood mare that is quite a mover.

A. L. Hinds has Balkan, 2:15, looking in better shape and we believe feeling better than he has ever been. This fine-skinned, well-muscled, pure-gaited, stylish trotter has a very low mark, but it is not one that will test his greatest speed,for he will be a faster horse this year than he was last. He is physically stronger, and all horsemen know what that means. He has had a good season in the stud, and if all the reports are true regarding the excellence of the Balkans that are now entering their yearling form we shall not be surprised to learn that they are "just as good as gold." It is undecided who will handle Balkan this fall. Orrin A. Hickok drove him to his record last year.

The Mortimer filly Tannis that Mr. Hinds has did not seem to thrive well during the winter; she is beginning ts "round to" a little, however, and if she gets a year to rest will make a phenomenal trotter next fall. She is growing very fast and is worthy—from what she has shown—of all the care her owner has lavished upon her.

There is a fine pacing mare by Mambrino Wilkes out of a mare by Chieftain that will bring in some ducats this fall for her owner. She is called Laura B.

James Crane of Oakland has a standard mare in Mr. Hinds' stable that will pay for her training. She is very well shaped, large in body, short in back, with a neck like a thoroughbred and legs that cannot be improved. She is by Western 11,334, out of a mare by Bismarck 19,240; second dam by Gen. McClellan 144. She is five years old, and although never having received seven weeks' work, can trot quarters in thirty-eight seconds.

Wm. Johnson has a chestnut trotter by Oakland Boy that he is "gwine to back wid coin" this fall. He has a number of green ones that are not named yet in his string.

J. Rowan has a few colts and fillies that he expects will prove worthy of the care he is bestowing on them. They are by St. Nicholas. He has a pacer by Sidney out of a Captain Webster mare that is very promising.

E. Smith has about ten horses in his string, and says that all of them are just being worked quietly.

From all appearances if the work is pushed promptly on the track many other trainers will locate there.

The Home of Hock Wilkes.

Some keen observer once remarked that "lovers of good horses are found in every calling in life,"and as one looks down the lists of names of men who have devoted all their spare time to the industry of breeding and developing horses, how true this observation appears?

Dr. C. E. Farnum, one of our foremost physicians, has been a close student of the equine problems. He secured a number of fine thoroughbred mares and bred them to the best thoroughbred sires; not content with this, the mares that had the best trotting action he bred to trotters, and likewise sought the best representatives. His handsome chestnut mare Eda, by Hock-Hocking, out of Eva Coombs (dam of St. David, Wild Idler, Maid of the Mist), by Billy Cheatham, he by Cracker, a son of Boston, was bred to Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, and the well-shaped stallion Hock Wilkes is the result of that union. He resembles his sire in conformation, color and disposition. He has magnificent quarters, good shoulders, short back, flat, clean legs; his joints are of the very best, and were it not for an accident that happened to one of his pasterns he would undoubtedly get a very low record, as he was pure-gaited and very promising before this happened to him. It is hoped that he will be able to stand training. He has been bred to some very fine mares, and is sure to make a name as a sire. His dam, Eda, is a splendid looking mare; she has a Cheviot colt —a yearling—that will earn brackets if given an opportunity next year. He is of good size, with a set of limbs that cannot be improved, and a back and loins that should make him a great weight-carrier. The Cheviots are in the ascendancy, and we doubt if there are many yearlings by that Australian horse that will surpass this son of Eda's. Last year Dr. Farnum bred the mare to Loyalist, another Australian sire, and on May 14th she foaled a bay filly that anyone would be proud of. She trotted alongside of her dam outside on the strange street on her way to the Menlo Stock Farm last Monday. Her dam is to be bred to St. Carlo, the son of St. Blaise.

The Colt Stakes.

OLEMA, MARIN CO., May 23, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I am sorry that the Oakland Directors did not restrict entries in the two or three-year-old stake races to the 2:30 class. By so doing Frou-Frou, Bell Bird and Athadon would have been by this law placed outside, which would have invited competition. Perhaps Count Valensin or Palo Alto have two-year-olds which can give the big three a race. I doubt it. As there is no bar in the three-year-olds, what about Kebir having a walk or trot over? There is no doubt that Kebir has months ago trotted quarters in 34 seconds. As a two-year-old Kebir only had one competitor, and that was the phenomenal Arion.

A horse or colt race to attract the public must be uncertain. It is dollars to peanuts that the above-named colts beat all two and three-year-old competitors. Napa has re-opened her two and three-year-old free-for-all because they are not full. I doubt if Petaluma's free-for-all is filled; while the District two and three-year-old trots have twelve entries each in Napa and ten each in Petaluma. Of course with colt races, with these great colts in, we will have great exhibitions of speed. The oval track is for races; the kite for exhibitions. Thereby hangs a tale. RUSTIC.

Board of Review, N. T. A.—Official Report.

A meeting of the Board of Review was held pursuant to adjournment at the Leland Hotel in Chicago, commencing May 10, 1892.

Owing to illness, the President was unable fo attend, and the Board organized at 7 P. M., Gov. M. G. Bulkeley, of the Eastern District being selected as Chairman, the members present being Frank Bower, of the Atlantic District; G. M. Fogg, of the Central District; Charles Schwartz, of the Western District, and the undersigned Secretary.

Following is a condensed report of the proceedings that related to the Pacific Coast. Parties having cases in litigation before the Board and who were present in person or by counsel, were first heard in open session, and the decisions rendered were as follows:

2,198—S. S. Benton, Colfax, Wash., vs. Lewis Child, Walla Walla, Wash. Complaint and application for an order.

The member at Portland, Or., offered a purse for a 2:29 class, in which plaintiff ordered his b s Almont Medium, which was driven by defendant and declared distanced in the first heat. Plaintiff sends a number of affidavits to sustain his allegation that defendant drove him purposely to lose the race. Defendant sends numerous affidavits showing that the horse was not in condition and could not win. Among these is the statement of one of the judges that from close observation it was his opinion that the horse was honestly driven and through causes named he was outside the flag in the first heat and so declared. The evidence being very largely in favor of defendant, it is Held, That the allegation is not sustained, and Ordered, That the case be dismissed.

Application for rehearing of case No. 2,143.

At the last December meeting a question was presented by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association as to whether a horse having made all the payments in a stake race, no other horse having done so, was obliged to appear on the track for a walk-over in order to be entitled to the stakes and forfeits. The Board decided that such horse was obliged to appear, failing in which he, as well as the others, had not fulfilled the conditions and the race was off. At the same time it was suggested that the individual stakes and forfeits be returned by the member to the nominators. Mr. Joseph Cairn Simpson, the President of the Association, appeared and desired an absolute ruling as to whom the stakes and forfeits belonged.

Held, That the failure of all the nominators to comply with the conditions was an absolute forfeiture of any right to any part of the stake, and it reverts to the Association.

L. J. Powers was re-elected Treasurer, and M. M. Morse, Secretary.

The semi-annual report of the Treasurer was presented, and approved.

A list of new members was presented and approved, as per By-Law, Article XII.

The second Vice-President, Hon. Frank L. Coombs, of Napa, Cal., having been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary to Japan, tendered his letter of resignation, which was not accepted, and it was resolved that the Secretary be directed to express to Mr. Coombs the wishes of the Board that he withdraw his resignation and continue as Vice-President of the Association.

No further business appearing, the Board adjourned to meet again at the call of the President.

M. M. MORSE, Secretary.

Golden Gate Fair.

The Directors of the Golden Gate Fair Association held an important meeting at Oakland last Saturday, and the programme for the race meeting, to be held for six days, commencing August 15th, was definitely decided and made public.

President W. N. Kent, Vice-President C. S. Crittenden and Directors E. S. Dennison, Alexander P. Waugh, P. E. Dalton and Charles N. Neal were all present, and they transacted the business that came before them with a zeal and spirit that bodes well for the success of the coming session. The report of the Programme Committee was adopted providing for three days of trotting and a like number for the running events. Big purses were hung up for all the contests, and the schedule for the week is as follows:

Trotting—Purse $1,200 for 2:17 class; purse $1,000 for 2:22 class; purse $1,000 for 2:28 class; purse $1,000 for 2:30 class.

Pacing—Purse $300 for 2:25 class; purse $1,200 free-for-all.

Stake races—For two-year-olds and unrestricted, $50 each and $200 added; for three-year-olds and unrestricted, $50 each and $300 added.

The programme for the three running days is as follows:

Monday, August 15th.—First race—Purse $400; handicap for all ages: one mile and a sixteenth.

Second race—Purse $350; for two-year-olds, with winning penalties; five pounds extra for horses having won once a year, eight pounds for those winning twice and ten pounds for three or more wins; five furlongs.

Third race—Selling; purse $350; top valuation to be $1,200; seven furlongs.

Wednesday, August 17th.—First race, selling; purse $350, top valuation $1,000: one mile.

Second race—Purse $350; for two-year-olds, with winning penalties as before noted; five and a half furlongs.

Friday, August 19th.—First race—Purse $400; handicap: one mile and a quarter.

Second race—Purse $350; handicap; for two-year-olds; six furlongs.

Fourth race—Selling; purse $300, top valuation $800; half-mile heats.

A communication was received by the Board from Ben Wright, the new lessee of the Oakland track, tendering them the use of the Oakland track and agreeing to keep the course in prime condition and the buildings in repair, reserving only the right of the refreshment privileges. The offer was accepted.

Notice was received from Governor Markham that Judge Greene had tendered his resignation as a director of the association. The same was accepted and an unanimous request was sent to the executive asking for the appointment of A. H. Cohen to fill the vacancy.

GERTRUDE, March 4, 1892.

MESSRS. BAKER & HAMILTON, San Francisco, Cal.

Gentlemen:—The Bain wagon I got of you six or seven years ago was a good one. The tires have never been reset, and everything is solid. Yours Respectfully,

The Pedigree Web and Its Unravelers.

There is no subject so dear to the mind of the breeder of fine stock as that of the history, description and performances of the ancestors of every colt and filly that he has on his farm. He knows what the sire is and has every faith in the dam's qualifications; perhaps her breeding may be "buried in obscurity's depths," yet she has qualities that in his mind place her far above many that are "bred in the purple." He may have purchased her from a band of gypsies traveling along the highway, or from some dust-covered emigrant, looking for a place to locate, who was moving across the country with his prairie schooner, drawn by a mule and the dam of the filly that has since proved so valuable. He bred her after she had proven her worth as a speedy roadster and all of her produce show that they inherit her bloodlike appearance—her gameness and beautiful trotting action. He never looks upon her produce as they approach the age of usefulness without mentally wishing that "he had the pedigree of the old mare, for she must have good blood in her, to produce such youngsters from the common stallions whose progeny in the neighborhood do not look a bit like her's and none of them have so much finish."

Can any of our readers comprehend the pleasure it would give the owner if the man who bred that mare should drive up to his door and ask if he remembered the filly he sold him many years before, and, on being answered in the affirmative, the visitor should say: "Well, sir, you know I hated to part with her, but circumstances were such that I had to, and since you were so kind as to give me my price, I want to impart a little good news to you. Here in this old letter is the full pedigree of that filly; she is, as you can see, one of the best-bred ones in the country. I am sorry I did not get this information before, but the man from whom I bought her dam found this letter in an old trunk and sent it to me by a friend of his who was coming out West. You can have it with pleasure."

Perhaps that visitor would not be most cordially welcomed, and what a repast would be set before him. The best room in the farm-house is not too good, and the choicest old wine is brought up from the cool cellar; cigars are lighted and the history of the little bay mare and what she has done since she was relegated to the harem, and what her produce is like, are talked over and all her good qualities are expatiated upon. Little incidents are recalled of how she was, when but a wild two-year-old, ridden bareback by the little girl who was now a blushing young lady. Then the gentleness and intelligence of the mare was feelingly spoken of; how the boys would go down swimming on her in the creek, and how they used to crawl upon her back; sometimes the four of them would be all riding together, and how she would not run away with them. The time she won the race at the district fair and trotted faster than the "ringer" that the city sharps brought up from "the Bay" was a great episode in her triumphant career; then the eventful stormy night in March when she guarded her little weanling from the coyotes as they barked and circled around her until found in the morning away up on the clearing by the hired man who had failed to find her in the evening, although "he knew she was due to foal." All these, and many more incidents, were recounted for their visitor, who listened with pleasure to all that was said, and then the stranger spoke of her dams and her sires, what they looked like, how they won races and were related to the greatest horses of the day. It was nearly midnight when the folks retired, but every one felt so happy to think that the pedigree and history of the little bay mare were found.

In the morning, after a hearty breakfast, a walk across the green fields of alfalfa and rye grass was proposed; the reader can easily imagine that the owner of the mare was leading the visitor to the pasture where the subject of their conversation of the evening before was nibbling the succulent grasses and was glad to show them the lusty little foal by her side.

This is no fancy sketch, but it is one that teaches all of us the great value of having a well-authenticated pedigree, if possible, of every horse, mare, colt and filly on the farm. Of course, it is not so difficult to buy trotters to-day that are registered, for we can learn from the registry books all about the sires and dams, but they do not convey an idea of what these ancestors were like. That knowledge becomes almost legendary. We must learn from the lips of those who have seen these horses trot, knew what they were like, how they were gaited and how they acted.

In California the years seem to pass away quicker than in any other State in the Union. The absence of the cold wintry months, the balmy spring, the heat of summer and the cheerless winds of the autumnal season have much to do with the lapse of time; consequently, men grow forgetful of the years. As the saying is, "the older they grow the faster the years roll round;" and too much stress cannot be laid upon the fact that if ever the threads of the past must be woven into the web of history it must be done now. Californians who have watched the events in the horse world have forgotten much about them, except it may be some eventful race or the arrival of some horses that afterwards became famous. Many of our most influential men, as well as those who are not so wealthy, have stored away in their desks or among their private papers pedigrees and descriptions of such horses. These scraps of information would be most valuable to all horsemen if published. As the time has come when something should be done to rescue the histories and descriptions of these great horses "that crossed the plains," we we would esteem it a favor if all of our thousands of readers throughout California, Oregon, Nevada, Washington and Arizona would send us whatever data they can: any sale catalogues, stallion cards, descriptive letters, clippings from newspapers or other information they may possess. We shall copy the same and return the originals to whoever sends them.

We intend to publish a history soon of the California horses whose progeny have done so much toward making this State one of the greatest in the equine world. The horses and mares that crossed the plains left an indelible impress on the stock of this coast that time will never efface, and it should be a matter of personal pride with every horseman to wrest the hidden history of this stock from oblivion and place it here where it belongs—where every horseman in the United States can see it.

The Right Way and the Wrong.

The large number of stock farms devoted exclusively to breeding and developing light harness horses would surprise the average horseman were he to scan the directory for them.

Twenty years ago there were no trotting horse stock farms worthy of being called such. Trotters were picked up accidentally and were not bred with a view to having them transmit their qualities. Stallions were considered slower than geldings among the habitues of trotting tracks, notwithstanding the examples set by the thoroughbreds which were earning brackets on the tracks both in England and America.

Trotting horses were bought by trainers and drivers, who paid low prices for them and went through the circuits, regardless of how the animals were bred and oblivious to the destiny of the animals after they left their hands. All these gentlemen sought for was SPEED and the ability of the horses "to go down the line and win a bar'l o' money." They would not listen to the pedigree of the trotter they purchased; if they heard the name of the sire and dam that was enough for them. SPEED, endurance and a disposition to act well in company was all they required in any horse.

This band of trotting "phenomenals," as they "went down the line to win a bar'l o' money," would be laughed at to-day. The high, old-fashioned sulkies, the suits the drivers wore, the heavy harness and the manner in which the horses' legs were protected, besides the way the drivers used to yell like a band of Comanches on the war-path, would be quite a revelation to our horsemen. An army of boys like that which followed Hiram Woodruff when he speeded his trotters on the track at Long Island track would surely prove an attraction to our large crowd of visitors, far greater than the "army of touts" that are seen perched on the fences whenever a bangtail is being worked out at four o'clock in the morning now-a-days.

These old-time horsemen never figure as breeders; few of them own stock farms. Breeding and training are entirely different avocations according to their way of thinking.

The reason there are so many men in the business to-day is, aside from the pleasure they derive from it—there is a grand opportunity to make money "if they get started right." And here again is a stumbling-block just as big and as hard to climb over as it is for the old-time horseman spoken of to give up his idea of what horse-training and breeding should be. That class of men are not identified among the largest owners of stock farms. They made their exit when the pace got too fast for them and men of wealth, refinement and education came to take an interest in the business. The question of trotting "skates" throughout the country and winning money from the unsophisticated by bringing "ringers" in to hoodwink these people was quickly solved when the breeding farms became established and the owners of them took a "hand in the game" and checkmated the gang that infested all the mile and half-mile tracks in the country. These breeders have rescued the trotting horse, and to-day he stands as the representative horse of the country and a purely American institution.

There are many men in the business now who will never succeed unless they change their ideas; become converted to the new order of things, read, study and follow the examples set by the successful breeders. The following instances are given of this class of men who have remained deaf to all they have heard and closed their eyes to what they should have seen:

The person who starts a breeding establishment with a stallion that is not bred in the most fashionable lines and is going to make him fashionable by breeding to a number of fairly good mares without pedigrees, but, because—like the trotters above spoken of—"they could go some," will be ruined.

The breeder who attempts to start a stock farm with a half-thoroughbred and a half-trotting-bred stallion and breeds him to half-Clydesdale and Percheron mares will in three years wish that he had his life to live "all over" again, for then he would have started differently.

The man who starts a breeding farm by buying a lot of mares and is going to have them made standard by his own inventive ideas regarding "Pedigrees and How They are Made," and by breeding these mares to standard horses that were more eligible to castration than to registration, will, after a few years, be trying to save distance by dodging into some legal paddock in front of the sheriff's red distance flag.

The man who starts a stock farm with one good stallion and a number of highly-bred mares that are lacking in individuality and are crazy-headed and knock-kneed, although full of royal blood (and purchased cheap) will clothe himself in sack cloth and ashes, and sit outside the gates of his more successful neighbor, who used his knowledge of form as well as pedigree and paid the highest price for the very best.

The lover of horses who starts a farm and never makes a study of the different "crosses" that have brought about the grandest results in breeding will offer his stock farm for sale in a few years.

The man who becomes wedded to one particular strain of horses will be inbreeding in a few years, and his stock will never bring anything near what they originally cost.

The man who runs his stock farm without keeping a strict account of every cent he spends upon it, and does not conducts his farm on strictly business principles, will have hard work to make a success of the business, no matter how well he may be started.

The above are but a few of the many ways in which a man can "court failure," and if he does not get wedded to "misfortune" it will not be because he has been told otherwise.

How different is the picture of the successful breeder of trotting stock whose colts and fillies command the highest price because buyers can rely on what they purchase and know that the gentlemen conducting these places have been studious, progressive and alive to the demands of the times. They are quick to learn, and "barring accidents" meet with few reverses. They pay their help good wages and keep everything looking neat. They sell all the stock at a very low figure that they consider faulty or unworthy of gracing their paddocks, no matter what the breeding may be. They may have started on a very small foundation, but it was a good one, and by intelligently carrying out their plans on a sound business basis they have succeeded, and are extending their interests.

Purchasing the proper material is their aim, in order to extend the foundation to the business they have already laid. The superstructure of breeding, weeding and developing receives his next care. The guides that he follows besides personal experience are found in the files of the leading turf journals of the day which lie upon the desk of his library. The shelves are filled with catalogues and books on equine topics, works on registration and veterinary practice. The "medicine chest" is well supplied with everything that may be needed in an emergency, in case the surgeon should be called and finds that he has not the necessary medicines with him.

The harness and carriage rooms are kept as neat as a pin. The box stalls are large, well-lighted and made comfortable for the youngsters that are in training. The little track and kindergarten is kept in good order. The paddocks and brood mare barns are carefully looked after, and when the critical period called "foaling-time" approaches a first-class groom is employed to give his attention night and day to this important branch of a breeding farm. Water buckets are placed in convenient places so that they can be used in case of fire, and all the watering troughs are cleaned of any vegetable growths or offensive smelling fungus that may be there. When visitors come to inspect the colts or fillies they are charmed by the gentleness of the youngsters, as well as their uniformity in color, gait and size. It leaves him in doubt almost as to which one he will take. The result is that he generally buys two or more at prices that pay the breeder well for his trouble, and when overtures are made to the buyer to develop the colts on the farm, in nine cases out of ten this is always agreed to.

Gallopers and Trotters.

"Thoroughbreds ought to last a long time on the race tracks," said a veteran trotting horse man to some friend the other day. "How is that?" asked some one in the assemblage. "Did you ever think how much more stamina a trotter has to possess than a thoroughbred to be a successful campaigner?" They had not thought of that, but on pondering over the matter, it was a fact. It is all bosh to talk about the superior strength and gameness of the thoroughbred of the present. A few years ago there might have been something for lovers of the blue-blooded gallopers to boast about, but there has been a mighty change within the past twenty years.

It is acknowledged to be a much easier task for a horse to gallop a mile with 120 pounds on his back than to pull a sulky with an 150-pound man in it, and in trotting harness besides. The average number of heats in a trotting race is four, and in these heats a horse will in "scoring" cover two miles more, making him go six miles, pull a medium-sized man and travel at an "acquired" gait in the bargain. Then, too, the preparation of a trotter for racing involves three times the amount of work. Where a thoroughbred is sent three miles, two at a slow gallop and one at a stiff rate of speed, many trotters are given ten miles a day, seven of them "jogs" and three miles at nearly top speed. The average age of retirement of a thoroughbred from track service is about five years, of the trotter perhaps nine, while many are racing at the diagonal gait at sixteen years of age. Goldsmith Maid lowered her record to 2:14 when she was seventeen years old and past, J. B. Richardson lowered his mark to 2:16¾ in a race during 1891, when he was fourteen. Rarus, Smuggler and Maud S. did their best work when about eleven years of age. Few indeed are the thoroughbreds that are even taking slow gallops at ten years and not one in the United States is of any account as a race horse at seventeen. Therefore, the trot being a harder gait on a horse, there can be but two deductions drawn. One is that the trotting horse conditioners show far more intelligence in their work when they make a trotter last a dozen years or more—and race—than the majority of thoroughbred trainers, who send horses into retirement hopeless cripples at five. The other deduction is that the trotter is superior in point of stamina to the thoroughbred, who, with one-third the work, breaks down long before the harness horse is even at his best.

We would like to see a return to old methods, so far as the thoroughbred is concerned, believing that it would result in having a much better race of horses. By "old methods" we mean the almost total abolition of two-year-old racing and making the distance in races for three-year-olds and over never under any circumstances less than one mile, and from that to four miles. If a "cold-blooded" trotter can go six and seven mile heats gamely in one day, surely the "blue-blooded" thoroughbred horse ought to gallop four miles pulling a much lighter weight. It is veriest nonsense to have so many two-year-old sprints and all-aged selling races where the distance is almost invariably under one mile. Unless something is done by the associations in the matter we have mentioned the thoroughbred horse will deteriorate ere long until he reaches the level of the cowboy's broncho, but as for endurance he would hardly class with that sturdy little beast. Some truly wonderful two-year-olds have never been able to face a starter in their three-year-old form, simply because they were "raced off their feet" when they were "vealy." The associations have not the welfare of the thoroughbred at heart when they keep on increasing the number of rich two-year-old stakes and sprints. It is also safe to assert that nine persons out of every ten would rather see a mile and a half dash between horses three years of age and over than a half-mile scramble between bad-acting two-year-olds, and racing organizations must cater to the public as much as to horse-owners if they wish to succeed. Of course, owners of thoroughbreds wish to win early and often with their youngsters, many not caring greatly for the future of their horses. If they can sweep a $10,000 stake away with a two-year-old, in most instances they care little if the animal does not come out as a three-year-old at all. We would like to see the number of two-year-old racing events cut down just about two-thirds and a number of four-year-old stakes instituted, where the distance would not be less than a mile and a half. Raise the standard of excellence; do not lower it. There might be some difficulty getting entries for perhaps a year if every association on this coast followed out what we have outlined, but the organizations would be doing a good work and the public would be quick to reward the efforts of the members thereof.

WE received a pleasant call from two Kentucky editors last Wednesday, Messrs. Samuel G. Boyle, of the Kentucky Stock Farm, Lexington, and Henry E. Woolfolk, of the Advocate, Danville. These gentlemen attended the editorial convention in San Francisco as delegates, and will, ere their return to the grand old commonwealth, visit some of our leading stock farms. In addition to being accomplished journalists the Kentuckians are, as they should be, lovers of fine horses and well-posted on matters horsey. We bespeak for them a welcome at the hands of our many friends at the breeding establishments they will grace with their presence before leaving the Golden State.

LUTE WILCOX, editor and manager of The Field and Farm, of Denver, Colorado, is one of the delegates to the National Editorial Association now visiting this Coast. Mr. Wilcox is accompanied by his wife, and both are very much interested in the sights and scenes on the Slope. They have been visiting some of our stock farms, and are well pleased with all that they have seen. We know that a cordial welcome will be extended them wherever they may go, for every stock farm-owner is pleased to see visitors who take an interest in fine horses and are good judges of the same.

The Dobles.

A man slightly below medium height, iron gray hair, compactly-built frame and eyes that sparkled so bright they scarce needed the glasses worn, stood in a group in the corridor of the Terre Haute the other evening. No one to see the quick step and lithe movements would believe him to be William H. Doble Sr., the venerable father of Budd, William H. Jr., and Charles Doble, and now in his 76th year. He arrived recently from Philadelphia. In the party was Mr. Daniel Strauss, one of the Quaker City's leading merchants, Mr. Frank Bower, President of the Belmont Driving Park, and Mr. H. C. Shoemaker, a director of the Park Association. The group of noted horsemen were augmented by the presence of Colonel John W. Conley, of Chicago; Dr. Killip, the noted veterinary surgeon, and Budd Doble.

Mr. Budd Doble has been urging his father for some time to visit him here, but the latter could not be persuaded to leave his business until a ruse was resorted to by the gentlemen who accompanied him. They insisted they must visit Terre Haute, and would not make the trip unless Mr. Doble came along. To talk with Mr. Doble takes one back to the earliest triumphs of the trotting horse. As contemporary and friend of Hiram Woodruff, he began handling horses way back in the early thirties. One of the horses he gave a low mark was the great Rockingham, a splendid dapple gray, 15.3 hands high, with fine tail and mane. He was a level-headed horse and an honest trotter. This was in 1857, when Lady Safford and the many other horses whose deeds are recorded by Woodruff were in there prime. Mr. Doble rode him under saddle and gave him a mark of 2:22¼, which was then considered phenomenal. A few days later "The Youngster," as Budd Doble was then known, drove Rockingham to harness to a mark of 2:24½. The history of Rockingham was a strange one. Owned by a man named Granger in Connecticut, he was worked on the farm, and on his trips to the mill with grist the Granger colt, as he was then known, was raced against and beat everything in that part of the country.

The Granger colt's fame spread to New Haven where Jarvis Joslin, a noted horse fancier of those days, heard of him and made a trip to the little town where Granger lived in affluent style for a farmer at that period. The colt was exercised up and down the road by Granger's sons, and he was asked to put a price on him. He named $1,000, but when Joslin offered to take him, Granger refused. Others heard of the colt's great speed, but Granger refused repeated offers for him after putting a price on him, until he firmly refused $3,000. He neglected farm and business generally to exhibit and race the colt at county fairs, and finally became embarrassed. He was sold out at Sheriff's sale, and Joslin bought the colt. Afterward he was owned by John Morrison and placed in Budd Doble's hands to train. It was then that Budd Doble drove Rockingham against Count Fillingham, afterwards named George Wilkes, the greatest progenitor of trotters that ever lived.

Mr. Doble hopes to keep his father and the Philadelphia party with him until the weather clears and they can be shown the beauties of our stock farms and race track.—Terre Haute Express.

SUMMARY.

The annual field day of the Caledonian Club will be held at Shell Mound Park, Berkeley, to-day. The list of games is a very lengthy one, and some fine sport will be enjoyed by those who attend the picnic. To-morrow two very interesting games of cricket will be played across the bay. Both the wheelmen and athletes will be busy on Monday next, as the annual out-door championship meeting will be held at the Olympic Club grounds, and a grand bicycle tournament will be held at the new grounds of the Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club at Schutzen Park, Alameda. Field-days will also be held at Los Angeles and at Portland, and it is a certainty that many of the old records will be lowered during the day.

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN GENERAL

Before the next issue of this paper will be printed the second annual out-door championship meeting of the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union will have been event of the past. On the results of the various events will depend, in a great measure, the future of athletics on the Pacific Coast. Since the holding of the last champion ship meeting the U. C. has turned out a good many new athletes whose ability is greater than the majority of novices. The O. A. C. has not put forth any new performers of note, but, if its old team had taken more real interest in their work and held together better the fact that the U. C. team was stronger than ever would not in the least interfere with their chances of victory. Skillman, one of the most useful, as well as reliable men on the O. A. C. team, has deserted his colors, and his absence on Monday next may greatly lessen the chances of his club in walking off with the majority of prizes. Several other old standbys have also failed to enter for the contests and, on the whole, the outlook is rather blue for the O. A. C. team. If the U. C. team should be defeated with all the aid of Cassidy, Jervis, McArthur, Cooley, Bakubich and Skillman, then it were about time that the students from Berkeley gave up a wild goose chase. The number of entries is about as large as last year, but the average ability of those who have entered is not to be compared with those who contested the championships in 1891. The following is a list of the entries:

R. C. F., Watsonville.—I have a large draught horse that picked up a nail last week in his right front foot. He did not go very lame, but I poulticed it and did not take him out of the stable until this morning. He went out feeling good and not a bit lame, but before he went a quarter of a mile he began to sweat and shake, and all I could do was to get him back to the stable. He lay down as soon as he got there and appeared to be in pain. I gave him a dose of nitre and tincture of opium, which appeared to help him some. He has great difficulty in getting on his feet again, and is very stiff behind, especially in his left hind leg. Please let me know what is wrong with him and what to do for him in this week's paper. Answer—Your horse has got "Azoturia," what is commonly termed paralysis. It was caused, not by the nail, but from leaving him without exercise for so many days, and not restricting his food. Give him a purgative immediately, such as a quart of linseed oil. Take the chill off his drinking water, blanket him, apply a mild liniment over his kidneys, and give him nothing to eat but a little warm bran mash morning and evening until you communicate with us again, which you may do in forty-eight hours after giving him the medicine.

Will some one please give us the breeding of the dams of Billy Roberts, by Williamson's Belmont?

Can any of our readers give us any information regarding the pedigree of the dam of David Hill Jr., a son of Easton's David Hill?

Can any of our readers inform us of the history or pedigree of the Jeffrey filly that was owned and raced by Wm. Hinman, of Dixon, Cal., some thirty years ago?

To Recent Inquirer—Molly McGuire was by Inauguration, out of Mott mare, s. t. b. by the Backus Horse, brought out to California by Judge Mott. She is great grandam of Alfred G., 2:19¾, by Anteeo, 2:16¼.

Inquirer, Sacramento, Cal.—Please answer through your paper to decide a bet: A bets B that Jackson will win. B bets that he will not win. If the fight is a draw does A lose in his fight with Slavin? Answer—A will lose if the fight is a draw.

E. W. W., Petaluma, Cal.—How is Elmwood, son of Nutwood 600, bred on dam's side? Is he standard? Answer—We know nothing of the breeding of the mares, but if you will write to E. I. Robinson, attorney-at-law, San Francisco, Cal., he may be able to put you on the right track.

A. N. W., Oakland.—Please inform me through the columns of your paper when and where the best yearling record was made, and by what horse? Answer—Trotting, Frou-Frou 2:25¼, at Stockton, Cal., November 28, 1891; pacing, Fausta, 2:22¼, at Stockton, Cal., November 28, 1891.

L. L., San Ramon, Cal.—Give me the breeding of Norfolk Kentucky, sire of Queen, pacing record 2:31¼, also the number of Roach's American Star, by Seely's American Star. Answer—We find no Norfolk Kentucky in any of the stud books or records of racing. Roach's American Star has no number on the register.

W. G., Sacramento.—What thoroughbred horses in California were sires of 2:30 performers (trotters)? Answer—Newry (brother to Norfolk) sired Maggie F., 2:26; Woodburn, by Lexington, sired Monarch, 2:28¼; Belmont (Williamson's) sired Venture, 2:27¼; Jim Hawkins (by Jack Hawkins, dam by Woodford) sired Belle B., 2:26½; Tamarack, 2:28½.

R. B., Riverside.—Do you know anything about a mare described as follows: Imp. Patchen mare Flora Owens, her dam Bessie W., record 2:40¾, owned by Steve Whipple. Answer—Write to Steve Whipple, San Mateo, Cal. We find in volume II. of Wallace's Register a Flora Owen, but she was by American Star 14, out of a mare whose pedigree is untraced.

R. M. B., San Pablo, Cal.—Please give in your next issue if possible the breeding of Barney's Hambletonian. He was owned by a Mr. Barney of San Francisco in 1881? Also give record, if any? Answer—All we know of this horse is that he was sired by Paul's Abdallah, and stood near Vallejo, Cal., a dozen years or more ago. Paul's Abdallah was by Hambletonian 10 (Rysdyk's), dam by imp. Roebuck; second dam by Henry, son of Sir Archy.

The following, written by Ben Roodhouse, now of Carrollton, Ill., to a friend in San Ramon, Cal., answers a number of questioners: "Your letter of April 29 at hand and contents noted. In reply, St. Lawrence was purchased in Canada by James McGregory and I, in November, 1855, was sired by the January St. Lawrence, and went to California in the Spring of 1862. He was driven to sulky by Mr. William Miller. His dam was said to be a thoroughbred mare. We did not get his pedigree. In one of his four races, he made a mark of 2:32½ on a one-quarter mile track. At that time it was the best stallion record here. Will you please be so kind to let me know what year he died, also what became of William Miller, as I feel a deep interest in the man and a horse that I consider the greatest one of his day. His stock was all picked up in a few years and shipped off, so out of his seven years' services here but few are left. Hoping this letter may reach you safe, and if I can be of further service to you, command me.

Many times we have been asked as to the breeding of Bassford's Abdallah, Ham's Abdallah, Paul's Abdallah, Bryant's Abdallah and the California Abdallah. We reprint the following letter from Joseph M. Bassford, Sr., now of Solano county, giving us the following history of the horse: "I left San Francisco on the 26th day of August, 1857, on the steamship Sonora, Captain Richard Whiting, with the intention of buying two good horses and three good mares as a starter for a breeding farm, having for some time determined in my own mind that an enterprise of the sort would pay in California. I already had a fairly good ranch, and therefore only needed the proper kind of stock. We arrived in Panama all right, but on the other side we connected with the Central America, on which we had a very rough time, which ultimately resulted in the ship's going down, and I arrived in New York in my stocking-feet, with a handkerchief tied arooud my head for a hat. My fond horse calculations were knocked in the head, and consequently I will make this letter to you as short as was my stay in New York. I bought Abdallah from Henry Chanfrau, brother to the well-known actor, paying him for the horse $1,000. Chanfrau had acted in New York as an agent for Steve Whipple, and I therefore had every confidence in him. I left New York in March, 1858, on the ship Northern Light, Captain Tinkelpaugh, laid over one trip on the Isthmus, there being a perfect flood of passengers. Among others who staid over with me were Frank Jones, who had in his possession Princess (dam of Happy Medium), a mare that afterwards became well-known on account of being taken from California by Eoff to trot against Flora Temple; another horse that remained over for the trip was Stockbridge Chief Jr., who was in charge of P. Vibard. We all arrived in San Francisco safe and sound, and I considered that I had the very best horse that up to that time had ever been brought to this State. The pedigree, as I received it at the time, and which has since been verified, is as follows: Abdallah, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, he by Abdallah 1. The dam of my Abdallah was by imp. Roebuck, the second dam being by Henry, who was the competitor of Eclipse in the great races East. I sold the horse to E. L. D. Bryant of Benicia in 1860, after serving ten mares with him in 1859, as I thought he was too young in that year for service, he being then only four years of age. In 1860 Bryant had him served to sixty mares at $50 each, which was a handsome price at that time. Bryant sold him to Ben Fish of Santa Clara county. Fish sold him to Captain Paul of Mayfield; Paul afterwards sold him to Captain Ham, in whose hands he died at twenty-one years of age, killed, I am satisfied, through kindness, as he was grain-fed constantly, and was given little or no exercise. God bless the old horse; he was a good friend to me when I needed friends. Yours sincerely, JOSEPH M. BASSFORD.

Names Claimed.

I claim the name FROLITA for black filly, no marks foaled April 24th sired by Anteeo Wilkes, No. 19,571, first dam Frolic, sired by Altoona son of Almont; second dam by Patchen; third dam by Young Belmont.

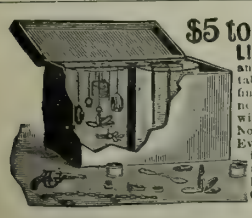
Speed Considered.

Few will deny that the first requisite of a race horse whether he be a trotter, pacer or runner, is the ability to maintain a high rate of speed for a distance. It has been said by a well-known writer on thoroughbreds, and the saying applies to the trotter as well, "that almost every horse is a race horse for some distance, and that the only difference between a first and second-class horse is that the first-class one can maintain his speed just a little bit farther than the other one."

What is speed? In my humble opinion speed is the result not of one quality but of a combination of qualities. For instance, if a Clydesdale were endowed with all the trotting instinct in the world and had no other race horse qualities, he could never trot a mile in 2:10. If a horse of the best trotting blood, sufficient instinct, fine form, and perfect bone and muscle, were cowardly or faint-hearted or lacked that intangible something called nerve force, he could never trot a mile in 2:10. A first-class race horse must have, first of all, bone and muscle of the finest quality, his driving machinery must have sufficient strength to stand the strain to which it will be subjected. This, I take it, is the first requisite, the essential quality without which high speed at any gait is and must ever be an impossibility. The first-class one must have in addition lung capacity, nerve force, courage, and if a trotter, common sense, or as some prefer to call it, trotting instinct.

There are several kinds of courage, of which the thoroughbreds Luke Blackburn, Hindoo and American Eclipse are perhaps the best examples. Blackburn was all fire; it is said of him that he ran his races "pulled double" and fighting for his head at every stride, and that when given his head in the stretch, like a roused lion running on his courage, he came away from his field without being touched with whip or spur.

No one ever doubted Hindoo's courage, yet he was essentially a level-headed horse, easily handled and did just what was asked of him and nothing more. He could be depended upon to win by an eye-lash only, if necessary, and could not be rattled.



American Eclipse was unmistakably lazy and had to be punished with the greatest severity to make him win. He was a dead game horse, however, as his performances prove. For trotting purposes I think it will be conceded that courage, like that possessed by Hindoo, or even American Eclipse, would be preferable, though it is by no means impossible that the turf may some day possess a trotting Blackburn; a horse that will run away at the trot if they let him. Should such a horse appear, trotting instinct will not, as some writers appear to think, be solely responsible for his production. Trotting instinct is not nerve force or courage any more than day is night. Trotting instinct has not its abiding place in the bone, muscle, legs and feet of a horse, and can have no influence whatever upon their quality. In fact, I fancy it would be rather difficult for the average writer to tell in what particular part of the horse's anatomy the trotting instinct is located, and if a mental attribute, how it is possible to change it to the pacing instinct or vice versa by the use of various mechanical appliances. Or to go still further, if instinct is solely a mental attribute, as it surely must be, how it can have any influence whatever, either good or bad, upon the speed of any horse?—McGinty in Western Resources.

There is quite an equine curiosity on Market Street in this city. The horse is a good-looking three-quarter Clyde, and is about 16 hands high. He is a beautiful bay in color, with a long mane and tail. When we say long we mean it, for his mane measures fourteen feet in length and his tail 16 feet. He is a greater curiosity than the famous Oregon beauty.

THE "race" for the Brooklyn Cup won last Thursday by Longstreet, disgusted the spectators, as only the winner's brother, Longford, started against the Dwyer crack. Longford made no effort to win, and the first mile was run in ridiculous time—2:02.

A FEW FACTS.

The attention of the horsemen of the West is respectfully called to the following facts: Our track is conceded by all to be the fastest and safest in the West, and holds the trotting record, also the fastest stallion record for the North Pacific Coast. Our city to-day is the liveliest in the Pacific Northwest. Our people are hospitable and progressive and turn out en masse to the sport of Kings. If you want to get your horse acclimated before entering the Montana Circuit there is abundant opportunity in this program. If you want to sell, this is a good market for a good individual. It will pay you to spend a week with us.

Training The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Stubley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¼ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and 1 half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¼, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

OPEN TO THE WORLD! $32,500. NO SECTION BARRED!

Kentucky Trotting-Horse Breeders' Association.

To Close JUNE 1st. Only Three Entries Required to Fill Any Stake.

THE STALLION REPRESENTATIVE STAKE SERIES.

$15,000 OR MORE GUARANTEED.

For foals of 1891, colts, fillies and geldings (get of stallions that may be nominated), to trot for $5,000 as two-year-olds in 1893, $5,000 as three-year-olds in 1894, and $5,000 as four-year-olds in 1895, the first race to be mile heats, 2 in 3, the others 3 in 5, in harness, according to rules of National Trotting Association, the entry of a stallion to make all of his get foaled in 1891 eligible to any one or all three races.

On or before June 1, 1892, the stallions whose get may become eligible to start must be nominated, and any stallion, even if dead, that has colts (foals of 1891) is eligible.

On the first day of June, before each race, the colts to represent the stallions must be named, and there may be as many starters by one sire as there are different owners; but no person can be interested in more than one starter in the same race.

The Association guarantees stake worth not less than $15,000, of which $5,000 will go to the two-year olds; $5,000 to the three-year olds, and $5,000 to the four-year-olds.

Each $5,000 will be divided: $3,500 to winner, $750 to second, $250 to third, and $350 to nominator of sire of winner; $100 to nominator of sire of second horse, $50 to nominator of sire of third; and if whole stake (for the three races) exceeds $15,000, the whole of excess will go to nominator of stallion whose get win the most money in the three races. Entrance as follows: $50 to nominate the stallion, which entry will nominate all of his get foaled in 1891, regardless of ownership, and keep entries good in any one or all three races until June 1 of year of race, on which day (June 1 of year of race) those desiring to start shall name their colts and pay on each a forfeit of $25; $25 more ten days ahead of race, and $50 night before race. No entry liable for more than amount paid in; no return of any payment because of death.

If in either the two or three-year-old race fewer than three start, those starting and the nominators of their sires will receive only the amounts each would have received had three horses been placed; but the other money or moneys will be carried to the four-year-old race. In case of a walk-over in four-year-old race, the winner will receive whole amount paid in, less amounts paid placed horses in two and three-year-old races, and the amounts paid and to be paid nominators of sires.

Right reserved to reject any entry; but the stake will not be declared off if three entries are received.

AMONGST THE ADVANTAGES OF ABOVE STAKE ARE:

1. An entry nominates every colt your horse has; hence starts owners to training and keeps in training for three years every youngster of promise.
2. It gives every owner three races or nine chances to win money, and every stallion nominator, AT THE WORST, nine chances to save the stallion's entrance fee.
3. ITS CHEAPNESS, as it costs but $16.2-3 to nominate a stallion in each $5,000 race, or less than $1 each for his colts, if he has as many as 17 colts foaled in 1891.
4. ITS FEW PAYMENTS. After the stallion is nominated the owners have time to try their colts before another payment, and no payment is required till year your colt is expected to start.
5. It gives all a chance. Many breeders will not trot two-year-olds; others prefer not to trot colts till four years old. This gives them a chance to pick their race without payment (except on stallion) till year they start.

Stakes to be Trotted at the Fall Meeting, October 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15.

No 2. THE TRANSYLVANIA STAKE, $5,000 OR MORE GUARANTEED: 2:18 CLASS.—For all trotters eligible to 2:18 class June 1. Entrance 5 per cent., payable as follows: $50 June 1, $50 August 1, $75 September 1, and the balance ($75) by 7:30 o'clock of evening before the race; horses to be named October 1, and the entry may be transferred any time before that day. This stake is guaranteed to amount to not less than $5,000, which amount will be divided: 60 per cent. to first horse, 25 per cent. to second, 15 per cent. to third, and the excess, if any over $5,000, will go to first horse.

The Following Stakes Name and Close June 1.

No. 3. THE SPECIAL STAKE, $5,000 OR MORE GUARANTEED; FIVE-YEAR-OLDS AND UNDER.—For stallions, mares and geldings, foaled in 1887 and later. Entrance 5 per cent., payable as follows: $50 June 1, $50 August 1, $75 September 1, and $75 by 7:30 o'clock of evening before race. Division of moneys same as in Stake No. 2.

No. 4. THE JOHNSTON STAKE FOR STALLIONS OF THE 2:30 CLASS. $2,500 OR MORE GUARANTEED.—For all stallions of the 2:30 class. Entrance 5 per cent.; $25 (forfeit) to accompany the nomination JUNE 1; $25 payable AUGUST 1; $35 SEPTEMBER 1, and the remaining $40 by 7:30 o'clock the evening before race. The guaranteed amount divided: 60, 25, 15 per cent., the excess, if any, over $2,500, going to first horse.

No. 5. THE KENTUCKY STAKE FOR THREE-YEAR-OLDS AND UNDER THAT HAVE NOT BEATEN 2:20. $2,500 OR MORE GUARANTEED.—For foals of 1889 and younger (colts, fillies and geldings). Entrance, payments and division of moneys same as in Stake No. 4.

No. 6. THE LEXINGTON STAKE FOR TWO-YEAR-OLDS, ELIGIBLE TO 2:40 CLASS. $2,500 OR MORE GUARANTEED. For foals of 1890 (colts, fillies and geldings). Entrance, payments and division of moneys same as in Stake No. 4.

THREE TO FILL; but right reserved to reject any entry that the Association does not want. All races trotted under rules of the National Trotting Association.

A walk-over will entitle the winner to whole amount paid in. No entry liable for more than amount paid in, but a non-payment forfeits previous payment. No return of any payment because of death of entry.

The above Stakes close June 1, 1892, on which day all entries must be named, except in Stake No. 2, in which horses are to be named on or before October 1.

Purse races, to average not less than $1,000 each, announced hereafter:

At close of season will be trained for a great record.

Seventh dam by Quicksilver, son of imp. Medley.
Eighth dam by Meades' Celer.

El. Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¼; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

GLEN FORTUNE

MOORLAND, $40.

Moorland's colts show speed. His dam, Lady Budd, was a wonderful road mare; nothing ever beat her in an all-day tussle on the Cliff House road.

The training department is very complete, and curing faults in gait is a specialty. The Souther Farm system of balancing was used most successfully during the past season on several well known horses, of which one took a record of 2:16 1-2, another 2:22 3-4 with several other creditable records and trials.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives EXERCISE WITHOUT CONCUSSION, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

LOYALIST - - - $100, INCLUDING KEEP OF MARE TILL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201)

CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

DIRECTOR JR.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud inOregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29¼, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000.

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If yo want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only hors in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.

The Fast Trotting Stallion

SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681,

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¾, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21½; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc., by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾ Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17¼, 2:17¼, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season if free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the Stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1411, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¾, trial 2:25, by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27½, and the dams of Excentor, 2:24½, Ranchero, 2:21¾, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18¼, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddie Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS—$30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no labilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

WHEN YOUR BLACKSMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is glori ously mistaken. However, don't poin ou the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing of both heels and the entire wearing surface.

It has sloping, chisel-shaped teeth held to the frame by a strip of iron with a bolt at each tooth, so that the teeth are easily adjusted and made to draw to the ground instead of riding on the surface and making it harder. The Old Mare's Gait.

Sum folks is quite perticaler about the way they go,
A-gallopin', a-trottin', or a-hitchin' sorter slow;
While sum has noshuns 'bout the style o' dockin' o' the tail,
An' others like to git thar this or nex' week wi'out fail;
An' others like to hurry, fur they've never larned to wait.
I'm a chap who stan's accordin' to the ole mar's gait.

She sorter ambles easy-like adown the village lane,
A-shakin o' her quarters wi' no tenshun on the rein;
A-browsin' an' a-nibblin' o' the weeds along the way;
A-sorter growin' wobbley, like her master growin' gray;
A-sorter easy-goin,' an' no matter if it's late,
It's all the same to both o' us—it is the critter's gait.

We've got beyond the hurryin' an' scamperin' to git
Down to the wire fust o' all, for easy is the bit
That rattles round among the stubs o' one that's be'n a colt,
Who's got a creakin' in her bones, though once she used to jolt
A takin' strides along the way -t'was 'fore we larned to wait,
But now we both are satisfied wi' jist a slowin' gait.

Her pedigree it reaches back to Lady Thorn, a queen
Who raked the scollups off the cake a-trottin' down the green;
Her blood was red when she was young, but now it's gettin' gray
Wi' years that come an' years that go an' years that slip away.
Fur what she's be'n an' what she's done when she was 'counted great She's jist a right to jog along accordin' to her gait.

She used to yank the purses at the county fairs when she
Was limber in her moshuns, when her j'ints they was free.
She used to fool the smarties wi' the sleepy look she wore,
But she trotted to the finish an' she always led the score.
O' course that was afore she larned, like me, to rest an' wait,
An' long afore she settled to this easy-goin' gait.

She's twenty-one this summer an' she's good for thirty-six;
She nibbles in the clover an' her feed I grind an' mix
Just like you would a pusson's who is toothless, old an' gray—
Fur, to tell you fact, her grinders, like my own, has passed away.
Thar, take her as she's standin' I love her, though she's late,
Fur we're growin' ole together, an' I fashion to her gait.

THE COAST'S LEXINGTON.

San Francisco Surrounded by Famous Stock Farms—Panoramic View of Our Great Horse Country.

The late excursion of the National Editorial Association to this coast will no doubt be productive of much good. Although restricted by time, the learned members saw much that will inspire them with a higher opinion of this State and its capabilities of soil and climate. Its vast agricultural, horticultural and viticultural advantages over all other sections of the United States will appeal more strongly to them than our old-time mining industries, which have been overshadowed by these other more lasting and substantial ones. In a gathering like this there were writers and authors who followed different channels of thought, and it would be odd indeed if there were not a few among these gentlemen who were not interested in the progress of the trotting horse industry in America. We are happy to say there were not few, but many, enthusiasts among them, and in conversation it was gratifying to hear the words of praise they had for our stock farms and the horses they had seen upon them.

The regret they had—and it seemed to be a unanimous one—was that they had not at least three weeks to visit all of these places of interest as they would like to. They believed it would take that length of time to do justice to all. They stopped at Baldwin's great stock farm and at L. J. Rose's breeding farm, near Los Angeles, on their journey. On their arrival, and being told of the places they should visit, one of the visitors said that San Francisco, was after all, the the "hub of the Pacific equine universe." When one contemplates what is meant by this terse appellation for our city the truth of it becomes more and more apparent.

Within a radius of one hundred and fifty miles of it the great stock farms are all situated. On the north we have Rancho del Paso, a description of which appeared last week; its proximity to Sacramento has made it a familiar place for all visitors, while its collection of kings, queens, princes and princesses of the running turf do not overshadow the large number of trotting horses, mares, colts and fillies that are bred and raised on its thousands of acres. Not many miles from it is the Sunny Knoll Farm, the home of Tom Benton, and a family of promising trotters. T. C. Snyder, W. P. Todunter and numerous other breeders have their stock farms in its vicinity.

Woodland, about twenty miles distance, has its stock farms, notably G. W. Woodard's and C. T. Hoppin's. If the visitors could spare the time it would pay them to visit Vina with its scores of Palo Alto bred colts and fillies; the Chico Stock Farm, where Arthur Wilkes holds the premier place in this establishment; Reavis Stock Farm, home of Blackbird, and hundreds of trotters, near Chico station; John Boggs' great farm at Princeton, Colusa County, with his choice collection of horses, and then on the return trip to the city the visitors might stop over a few days at Stockton and see the stock farms belonging to L. U. Shippee, David Young, and Chas. Needham, besides taking a spin over the world-renowned kite-shaped track on which the phenomenal trotters and pacers battled so bravely against old Father Time last fall and set marks that all trotters in the future will have to work hard to reach or to lower.

Pleasanton may be the next stopping place, and here again the visitors will see stock farms with their race tracks built around the pasture fields. Sidney, at the well-kept Valensin Farm, has enough sons and daughters to go on the track there to surprise the most sanguine of men. The marvelous flights of speed and the ability the youngsters show to stick to their gait is astonishing. A walk through the paddocks among the broodmares will bring the visitors close to many mares descended from sires that are enjoying an enviable reputation "back home" as well as here. A few miles from this place is the Santa Rita Farm, where Guide, 2:16¼, and a harem of trotting-bred matrons are domiciled.

Pleasanton Stock Farm, home of Direct, 2:06, "the fastest harness horse in the world," has its paddocks dotted with mares that have earned race records on our tracks. Standing knee-deep in the luxuriant grasses, they show that this life of retirement agrees well with them.

McCarty Stock Farm is about three miles from Pleasanton. It consists of hill and valley land, and is better stocked with horses than any farm of its size in the State. Dexter Prince, Nephwood, Princewood and Pleasanton, besides Conrad, a thoroughbred, are the premier stallions there.

The Oakwood Park Stock Farm is only seventeen miles from here over one of the finest roads in the State. Its location, natural advantages and extensive buildings and improvements would well repay the visitors, for after gazing upon the gems of architectural beauty they could step inside the large barn and see the stallion Steinway, 2:25¾, and his handsome son, Chas. Derby, 2:20, besides Prince Red and Clovis. The broodmares, colts and fillies here will compare most favorably with any in the State, and as Mr. Lafferty is busy handling a number of youngsters the visitors will eagerly scan this journal this fall to see which of their selected ones enter the "charmed circle." The ride home via Martinez is one never to be forgotten.

The next trip will be to the Talbot Stock Farm, where Mount Hood, 2:22¾, is "King of the Harem." Adjoining this beautiful retreat is the Souther Farm, where a mile track has just received its finishing touches and the water in the swimming tank is being "agitated" by the long line of horses that are taking their swimming exercises. The distance from the cars is only a little over a mile, and the hospitality for which all owners of stock farms in this State are noted is seen by the rivalry among them to escort the visitors to and from the train. The conveyances everywhere used are on a par with those that are seen daily in Central Park, New York.

The next stop will be at Irvington to see the Nutwood Stock Farm, on which California Nutwood and Nutwood Wilkes, with at least one hundred and fifty broodmares, colts and fillies are. A carriage ride, proposed by the genial proprietor, Martin Carter, is accepted, and soon the visitors are spinning along the smooth road toward the Silver Bow Stock Farm, where Messrs. Williams and Moorehouse have built a track and made many improvements. The stock seen here are principally Montana-bred, and are good ones. One mile further south is the Moorland Stock Farm belonging to D. J. Murphy. Soudan, 2:27, is the premier stallion here, and around him the proprietor has placed many of the best-bred and finest-looking broodmares he could find. The Eastern visitors can see what is meant by sub-irrigation, for the artesian wells keep continually flowing and the alfalfa and Australian rye grass grow rich and nutritive in these large fields. The trip to San Jose only takes an hour, and if the visitors would like to take a rest after their journey to look over their notes and straighten out their manuscripts while enjoying the semi-tropical climate of the Garden City there can be no more enjoyable place.

The reputation that Dawn, 2:18¾, made for the Nutwoods is world-wide, and the visitor's first visit after being rested, will be to see him. Genial Harry Agnew, the proprietor, is on hand with a team, and a ride of five miles brings the visitors within the gates of the Agnew Stock Farm, where Dawn and family hold court. The seventy mares and foals here are all solid colors, beautifully proportioned and gentle as kittens. Everyone knows how quickly this gentlemanly owner started this farm and with what material he stocked it. His mile track is a model one, and his barns, stalls, home and surroundings show rare taste.

The Bellew Farm, whereon Frank J. Burke has his band of trotting-bred matrons, is only one mile outside of San Jose. Here will be seen another lot of royally-bred ones, and the youngsters by Eros that are romping by the side of their dams demonstrate most clearly the great prepotency of this handsome son of Electioneer as a sire who is at the San Jose track with at least two dozen of his progeny; the latter are being handled by Wm. Vioget, the well-known trainer.

The Brookside Stock Farm, situated like a little nest among the mountains, should also be seen, and as it is about three miles nearer San Jose than Palo Alto, it is a pleasant place to stop on the way to the great farm.

The beauties of Palo Alto have been so often spoken of that the visitors will feel as if their journey to the Coast is in vain if they do not stop at least four days to visit all the paddocks, barns and pastures whereon the sons and daughters of Electioneer and the famous mares are glad to welcome visitors in their own way. Many hundreds of them are here. To expatiate upon the beauties of Palo Alto would take up too much space in this issue, and we know the same excuse would be made by the visitors.

The La Siesta Farm, with its colts, fillies and broodmares should also be visited, as it joins famous Palo Alto.

The next place to stop at is the Menlo Stock Farm, near Redwood City, about thirty-two miles from San Francisco, for it is "on their journey home." Here Mr. W. O'B. Macdonough has St. Carlo, Sinfax, Suwarrow, the "white king of Australia," and at least one hundred fine thoroughbred broodmares. There are a number of other matrons in Kentucky, being bred to the best stallions, that will be soon seen in these paddocks, also.

The Hobart Farm, near San Mateo, some eleven miles nearer this city, is the next place of note. The mighty Stamboul, 2:11, with the rare band of broodmares that have been selected to grace this harem of trotters, is enough to demonstrate that the cream of the equine world has been brought from the East to this Coast, and on this farm has a goodly share of it been left. The famous matrons and trotters of turf history are nibbling the grasses side by side. Many of them were contestants on the same tracks for supremacy, but now all the glamour and smoke of war is ended, and peacefully they are filling their places as matrons of promising colts and fillies that will some day be trotting against each other as they were years ago. Samuel Gamble, the superintendent, will show the visitor around, and no catalogue will be needed, for a better-versed man on blood-lines and pedigrees is not to be found anywhere. The hours spent here will be considered as profitable as any on the trip.

The next place is one around which a great amount of interest has always been centered, and that is the famous San Mateo Stock Farm, owned by William Corbitt. Here the Wilkes family of champions are to be seen. That game trotter and prepotent sire, Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, his sons, Sable Wilkes, 2:18, and Regal Wilkes, 2:17½, and hosts of wonderfully precocious youngsters and famous matrons are worthy of at least a day's visit. The track, the paddocks and the buildings are all in keeping with the preconceived notions of the visitors as to what the place should be, but the garden of flowers, the pleasant surroundings and the handsome little baby trotters will leave an impression upon the mind that time will never obliterate. The journey to the city by the train is a pleasant one.

The next places to visit is the Rancho Cotate, Penn's Grove, Sonoma county, home of Eclectic (full brother to Arion, 2:10¾)—its 9,000 acres of land and scores of well-bred matrons and foals; its large herds of short-horn cattle and immense dairy. The Santa Rosa Stock Farm will prove most interesting. The DeTurk–McGraw Stock Farm and numerous other places of interest for horsemen will occupy several days to visit, and these are all adjacent to the City of Roses.

On the return trip to this city those who wish to visit another place, as yet but little known, should stop off at the Asylum Stock Farm, near San Rafael. Here there are thousands of acres on which are many extremely well-bred horses, mares, colts and fillies, sired by the most fashionably-bred sires on this Coast. J. A. MacDonald, the superintendent, will take pleasure in showing the visitors around and telling of the work that is being done here.

The beautiful Napa Valley with his stock farms, Vineland, To-Kalon and Napa, besides innumerable other trotting horse breeding establishments, will all have a claim on the visitor's time.

To tell of the scores of other places besides those above mentioned would take up too much space. The readers of this journal are aware of the great strides that are being made in the business of raising trotters, but they will be surprised to learn that less than fifteen years ago our stock farms could be counted on the fingers of one hand. The climate and soil of this State makes this an "equine paradise," and every year this fact is becoming more universally acknowledged.

It can be seen that it will not take more than a six hours' ride on the train to reach the outer edge of the circle within the confines of which there are more valuable horses for the number than any other place in the United States. The visitor can go at any time of the year to see the stock; there are neither floods, blizzards nor cyclones to mar the pleasure of a visit. The roads are always in excellent condition, the farmers and horse owners are glad to welcome all visitors whether they wish to purchase or not, and everything will be done to make their visit a pleasant one.

San Diego Notes.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—A recent article to your valued journal from San Diego, signed "A Breeder," while it was quite interesting, needed a little correction, for the writer overlooked several good stables. Mr. Klinefelter, of the Coronado Beach Track, is working and preparing several promising colts by his horse, Chief of the Echos. Mr. Hughes is also at the Coronado track, and is working several good, promising colts—one big chestnut colt by Alert, also a very promising two-year-old stallion by Alcazar, property of W. B. Prentice. We also found at the Pacific Beach Track Thomas H. Burke, known by everyone here as Doc Burke. He is a veteran driver from Boston, "The Hub," and he has a string of good ones. He has two two-year-olds by Larco, both quite promising; he also has an exceptional fine yearling colt by Artist, the property of Dan Goldsmith, also a fine yearling filly by his horse Athens; both these colts are remarkable movers. Mr. Burke's five-year-old stallion Athens is especially worthy of notice. He is the most striking picture of his sire, Attorney, and is the coming young stallion under the skillful handling of Burke. The boys had better look out for him this coming fall, for he is bred right to stay with the gang in a hard race. Mr. Gifford is also at the Pacific Beach Track with a stable of four good ones. First Atto Rex 6821, by Attorney, and Roy Rex by Atto Rex, a fine, big bay gelding, also a fine, big two-year-old filly Alta Rena, by Atto Rex, also the gamy bay gelding Richelieu by Richmond. These animals are moving nicely and quite satisfactory to Mr. Gifford, who is giving them much steady work, and all show quite fast for this early in the season. The horse industry seems quite on the improve here and many good and promising colts are coming to the front by such sires as Atto Rex, Artist, Athens, Alert, Rex Jr., Shelby Chief, Hector, Chief of the Echo, Tom Hal Jr. (pacer), Henry Clay and Josiah A., Young Rysdyke, Banning, the three latter formerly owned by C. C. Seamen, former owner of Bell Boy. We must not overlook some of our good mares and road horses. Mr. Murphy's game little race mare has a colt by Atto Rex, and is said to be already a high stepper. Mr. Thompson's fine mare known as Josephine has a fine colt by Rex. Mr. Lightner, former owner of Atto Rex, has a fine, big, slashing black mare that has shown a 2:27 clip. She is an inbred Hambletonian, and is a great mare either as a single driver or a great pole mare.

Mr. Burns, owner of Bell B., is quite proud of Bell's colt by Atto Rex; it is said to be a beauty. Bell has a record of 2:26½ in a race. Mr. Clark, east of San Diego, has a big chestnut five-year-old gelding that shows a 2:41 gait any place in the road. Will Rogers, of the Consolidated National Bank, turns out a fine pair of geldings, a black and bay; they can show a 2:50 gait.

Mr. Hawkins, of the Diamond Stable, has a black gelding that is a big favorite on the road, but it takes a stout man to hold him. Doc Gillen drives a pair that any city would be proud to have in their streets, and we have many others.

Phœnix.

Santa Rosa Scintillations.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Trotting matters are becoming pretty speedy at Santa Rosa again. The long-drawn-out wet spell kept the boys away from the track until later than usual, but most of them have taken their quarters and are jogging their horses regularly.

Santa Rosa entertained the editorial excursionists in regal style, and none contributed toward their entertainment but the horsemen. They turned out in large numbers with their fine teams and carriages, and many were the compliments heard for Santa Rosa's horses and carriages.

And thereby hangs two tales. One of our gentlemen had a Kentucky editor and wife for his guests. After being driven around the city for awhile the gentleman asked if there were any trotting horses in town. The lady also expressed a desire to be shown some fast stock. They said there was a horse in their county which was recognized as one of the handsomest in the State, and they would like to compare some California stock with it. This suited our Santa Rosa friend, so he took the pair out to Pierce Bros.' farm and showed them Bay Rose. With one accord they declared that Bay Rose was a prettier horse than their Kentucky favorite.

The other tale concerns our genial friend George E. Guerne, one of our popular trotting-horse breeders. He saw by the published list that the editor of the Kentucky Stock Farm was in the excursion party, so he said to himself that he would give the judge from the Blue Grass region a ride behind two California horses that he would not soon forget. He hitched Graceful George and Philosopher up to his light road wagon and drove up to meet the train. Arriving at the depot he left his team in the labyrinth of carriages and proceeded on his quest for Judge Boyle. Of course there was great hurrying to and fro, and Mr. Guerne did not find the Judge in the shuffle. When he went back to his rig he found it in possession of two ladies. "Yes, they would be delighted to ride, nothing would suit them better," and so with the lady editor of a religious weekly on one side and the fair editor of a social science monthly on the other side of him, our friend went whirling through the town, past the churches, school-houses and cemeteries.

We took a stroll out to the race track to-day. Everything about the grounds look neat and clean and the track was never in better condition, which reflects great credit on Superintendent Bonner and his very capable assistants. The stalls are rapidly filling up, and by June 15th the grounds will be all animation. Most of the old-timers are there. Rollins has a long string, some of them being new ones. Lawrence is there with some very promising stock. He has Cantelope, by Antelope. Cantelope will be sent along the line for a record this season and he will get a good one for he is a perfect-gaited fellow, fast and in prime condition.

Lawrence has Examiner, W. P. Fine's promising four-year-old stallion by Dawn, dam Vashti. He will be hotly campaigned, and is expected to retire with laurels. Then there is Smoothy, a comparatively unknown horse. He is a trotter of no mean prospects and may do some lively racing before the year is out. Besides those mentioned Lawrence has Chris Near's fine Daly four-year-old, a black mare owned by Frank Ross, out of Little Mac, a bay filly out of Sunset, owned by John Scoggan and others. They are all coming along nicely and some good work is expected from them this season.

The Rose Dale Stock Farm has a number of good ones at the track. They are in charge of William Hillman, a very competent driver. Daly has not been taken away from the home place yet. Among those at the track are Laurel Dale, the Anteeo stallion, The Dude, Zora, Dahlia and Digitalis. All are in good form and doing well. Dr. Long's string is still there and receiving a good share of time and attention. DeTurk and McGraw have recently moved their stock there, and they seem quite at home in their old quarters. "Mc" has the great Silas Skinner, Major Brown, Silas Skinner Jr., Antietam, Myrtle, Ukiah, Robin, John L. and Nick Russell in his list, and it is unnecessary to say that they are all looking well.

Dave Colross has a nice lot in his care this year, and we think some of them will be heard from, too. He has the good stallion Ned Locke, the young Anteeo stallion Present, Captor, by Anteeo, the game little mare Ella H., the Alfred G. colt Harold, the Wisecarver colt sired by Redwood, Lizzie R., by Anteeo, and that splendid mare Maudee, which made Balkan hustle in one of the hottest races of last season. Maudee is without doubt one of the best race mares on the coast. She is fast, strong, enduring, and as courageous as can be. She is receiving the very best of care and attention, and we look for her to reduce her record to at least 2:20 this season. Colross is one of the best conditioners on the coast, and while he says but little about what he is going to do, yet we shall be greatly disappointed if he does not gather a good many victories into the Murphy fold this fall.

The Breeder and Sportsman continues to be the favorite of the horsemen here, and the boys swear by it through thick and thin. There have been a number of young trotters welcomed at the various farms this spring, and some time we may expect to see their names in the list of names claimed.

Santa Rosa, May 30th. "Publius."

Our Salem Letter.

Salem, Or., May 26, 1892.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Salem is rapidly becoming the blood horse center of Oregon. The permanent location of the grounds and race tracks of the State Board of Agriculture here are responsible for this fact, which is noted with pleasure by horsemen. The annual race meeting in September has been growing in popularity—until every one looks forward to the publication of the entries. The State Fair this year will be held during the week of September 12th. There are seventeen races arranged for the week. The entries for the stake races closed recently, and the number of entries and the merit of the horses argue volumes for the success of the event. Trotting purse races close on June 1st. Nominations in purse races close on August 1st. There are fifteen entries in the Nursery trotting stake. The three-year-old stake has a dozen entries.

The first meeting of the Oregon Breeding and Speed Association will be held next week for three days, commencing Thursday. There are twelve races, and the entries will number fully one hundred. This meeting—the first Spring one ever attempted on the Salem course—is a success beyond peradventure. Over $3,000 is offered in cash purses, and the best talent in the country is going to be represented. Such horses as Blondie, St. James, and Oliver Goldsmith will start in the 2:25 pace. Misty Morn will be in the half mile dash, and several California horses have places in the trots. There are horses from Yreka and Lockeport.

There are already quartered on the State Fair grounds fully a hundred head of runners, trotters and pacers, waiting to start in June. The several stables will remain here all summer, except when campaigning, to be ready for the September trials of speed.

Aside from the great amount of talent on the State track, R. E. Bybee, the breeder of running horses and owner of Misty Morn, has a seven-eighths track at his breeding farm a few miles below the city. Here he has his horses in training for the races. The principal ones in Mr. Bybee's stables are from Senator Stanford's ranch, and were purchased before the Palo Alto horses had such enviable reputations.

The queen of the ranch is Misty Morn, b m, four years old, by St. Paul, dam Why Not. Misty is entered for the June races. She will also be on hand for the fall meeting. Misty won the Oregon Derby at the State Fair races last fall.

In the stud Mr. Bybee has Oregon, ch h, seven years old, by Monday, dam Planetia, by Planet. Oregon is from the Stanford ranch, being the last and best get of that ranch's great horse. He also has Broadchurch, ch h, six years old, by Leinster, dam Tibbie Dunbar, by imported Bonnie Scotland. He will be entered at Salem this fall. Broadchurch won two Derbies in Montana.

Among the broodmares are: Nevella, b m, ten years old, by California, dam Laura Barnes, by Norfolk. She is the mother of Raindrop and Rosebud; Billow, ch m, by Longfield, dam Media, by Norfolk; Keepsake, b m, eight years old, by Flood, dam Katharion, by Harry of the West. She was bred at the Palo Alto Farm of Senator Stanford. Oceanica, ch m, seven years old, by Flood, dam Lady Evangeline, was bought from Senator Stanford in 1885. Superba, b m, six years old, by Flood, dam Nova Zembla; second dam Nevada, by Lexington, Luke Blackburn's dam and also a full sister to Salvator's dam. She is the mother of Wyanashott, Wyana (yearling) and Wyandotte (foaled on the 29th of February), all by Oregon. Assyria, bk m, nine years old, by Lever, dam Asia; Lina, b m, nine years old, by King Alfonso, dam Titania, by Lexington; Lenora, b m, five years old, by Kyrle Daly, dam Lina. Why Not, ch m, nine years old, by Geo. Wilkes, dam Flora, A. by Tom Bowling. She is the mother of Misty Morn, Patricia and Rosy Morn. Brunette, br m, nine years old, by Virgiliam, dam Jet, by Vauxhall.

Among some of his promising animals are: Raindrop, br m, five years old, by Ophir, dam Neyella. Raindrop has a good record on the track, but will not be heard from this year, she having been bred this spring—for the first time—to Broadchurch. Rosebud, b f, two years old, by St. Paul, dam Neyella. Rosebud is a half-sister of Raindrop, and won the three-eighths dash for yearlings at Salem last fall; time, 0:38. She is entered at Chicago in three races next year. Patricia, b f, three years old, by St. Paul, dam Why Not. Patricia is a full sister of Misty Morn, and won second in the two-year-old dash at Salem last fall. Wyanashoot, ch c, two years old, by Oregon, dam Superba. He is entered for the Chicago Derby and Sheridan Stakes at Chicago in 1893. Wyanashott was named in honor of Wyanashott, the last chief of the tribe of Klickitat Indians. This old fellow is still living, being over a hundred years old. He taught Mr. Bybee how to hunt.

The horse-breeders of the Willamette Valley conduct an annual stallion parade at Salem in March, and in May they have a colt show. This latter was held on Saturday, the 27th, and was largely attended.

The poultry and pet stock breeders have organized and held their first semi-annual show in March. The next one will be in January, and arrangements are already in progress for it.

Last week the Salem Rod and Gun Club conducted the second annual State trap shooting tournament. Over $1,000 was given in prizes.

Montana's Circuit.

The coming Montana circuit has already awakened great enthusiasm among horsemen at home and abroad, and the interest that has been created will increase from now on until it culminates in the best meetings that have ever been held in Montana.

Some information was gleaned yesterday from Assistant Secretary O'Connor concerning horses in training at various tracks in the State, of which horses there are quite a number.

At Helena, among the trotters at the track there, Dr. Kellogg has in training under his driver (Baker) Scotch Chief, Ben Hur and Jack Dempsey. In the same stable is Lady Flush, a pacing mare owned by G. W. Diehl.

Kirkendall & Barbour have a strong stable, and expect to make a good showing under the experienced care of Hayes as driver and trainer. The stable includes Montana Wilkes, who will pace or trot in 2:25 this season. Florida, a black mare, who will trot in 2:18, looks strong and fine, and has a smooth way of going. Katie has been bred to Montana Wilkes, but will be put in training. Gregory, Bessie K., Eagle Wilkes and Carrie C. complete the stable. Hayes has also in training the colt Valula, owned by Huntley & Clarke, also Maximilia, owned by E. W. Knight.

W. R. Rice, otherwise "Patsey," has in training at Helena, Halifax, owned by William Brickett. Irvin and Wilk Don, two colts that have shown some fine bursts of speed, are the property of T. H. Kleinschmidt. Ashby, a five-year-old stallion, is owned by Thomas Smith, of Philipsburg, and will be put in the list before Patsey returns him to his owner this fall. Forrester, owned by Court Sheriff, Polena owned by Huntley & Clarke, Hillbury owned by M. A. Wilmer, and Lady B. owned by Colonel Bannister, complete the stable.

C. H. Bartruff has in training at Helena his 2:30 stallion, Black Pilot, Benteer and the colt Venus, owned by W. Spalding.

William Pigeon has in training at the same track Lady Ran, a green one, also W. Sims' Black Tom, a pacer, and a colt, Nettie C.

The runners in training at Helena are limited to the Kirkendall & Preuitt stable, trained by Bob Smith, including X, Dot, Assinaboine, Clara Porter, and after June 1 Nevada and Montana will be added to the string. William Miller, of Miller & Swenck, of this city, shipped to Dillon last week, where they will be put in training, a stable composed of S. B., a pacer, by Knight Errant, dam Princess; the three-year-old black colt, Meteor, by Commodore Belmont, dam Eloise; a three-year-old bay colt by Montana Wilkes; a brown horse by Fieldmont, owned by James Hamilton; a two-year-old filly by Bay Boy, son of Jay Bird, sire of Allerton (2:09¼), the property of W. G. Pfouts. These will all be trained for the circuit at Dillon.

Several horses and colts are in training at Great Falls, chiefly Red Oak and Ben Lomond Jr. colts, numbering about 30 altogether.

At Missoula Moreland, by Tempest, and Chris. Patterson, by Deputy, three-year-old trotters, are in training, also the running horse Diavalo and several others who will be heard from during the season.

At Miles City track Ryan Bros.' horses are being trained by T. J. Williams and Frank Gafford. They have Al Watts, Ritta H., Rose Mary, Kathleen and the three-year-old colt Spoon.

Sam Handley has at the same track nine head of trotters—the three-year-old colt Lud L., the roan horse Robbins, a five-year-old chestnut horse by Ranchero, dam Lady Fleming, Emil H., a yearling, the bay horse William L., dam Maggie Gaines, the black mare Mattie, four-year-old, full sister to Florida, 2:21¼, the chestnut mare Little Skip, the brown stud Burgess and the brown stud Forester Boy, with a mark of 2:40½.

T. J. Williams also has there the black horse Oko, by Sailor.

At the Butte track there are no animals in training to speak of, the owners of horses there preferring to train them elsewhere. Tom Boland Jr., Half Moon, Gold Bar and a five-year-old brown stud and the trotting stable of Glen & Forschner are down there.

Every track in the State is being worked and got into condition.

Huntley & Clark's horse Mikado, by Maxim, won the 2:18 pace at Pimlico Park, Baltimore, in the excellent time of 2:21, 2:19¼ and 2:19¾, atraight heats. He sold third in the pools.—Daily News.

[Special Correspondence of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

DENVER, May 28, 1892.

This is the first time that a strictly running meeting has been given here, and since last fall, when the club had decided not to have trotting races, but to give a two weeks' running meeting, there has been a good deal of speculation as to the failure or success of the new departure, some claiming that Denver was not large enough to support a straight-out running meeting, while others contended that trotting races were not popular here, that the long and tedious scoring wearied the spectators, that more than half of the people who attended the races left the grounds after the running races were over, and that those who remained until night to see the finish of the trotting races went home disgusted and never returned again, hence the slim attendance that has been the rule heretofore. Therefore the only thing that the club could do was to cut off that portion of the programme that was not generally to the liking of the Colorado people. It was done, and to-day the great crowd (ten thousand) that filled the grounds to overflowing proves the wisdom of the act, and also proves beyond a doubt that the Colorado people are partial to the bangtails. All the business houses, theaters, banks and public offices closed at 1 o'clock, and trains ran to the track every fifteen minutes.

The weather here for the past week has been as bright and balmy as that of California, and the track in perfect condition.

The horses from California have fared well since their arrival, the stables are large and the stalls roomy and the grounds are supplied with both artesian and river water, the Platte river running within a stone's throw of the grand stand.

Messrs. Storn, Foster, Kennedy, B. C. Holly, Dennison and Ashe are well pleased with the treatment they have received at the hands of the Overland Jockey Club, and speak in the highest terms of the management and energy displayed by the Secretary, Mr. Charles B. Rhodes, and the able Superintendent, Mr. J. H. Temple.

The results in the Derby was something of a surprise to our people, who had backed Prince Henry to a man, and hoped that he would win, as he belongs to Messrs. Carlile & Shields, the former the State Treasurer and one of the most popular men in the State; but the way congratulations showered in upon Mr. Matt Storn shows how popular he is with Coloradians. There were four races on the programme for to-day.

SUMMARY.

First race—Introductory, purse $500, of which $70 to second and $30 to third; for all ages; weight for age. Allowances: Maidens if three years old, seven pounds; four years old and upwards, twelve pounds. One mile.

Honshell, ch h, 3, by Springbok—Genera, 102 pounds (including 3 pounds over).....Warren	3
Idaho Chief, b h, 5, 126 pounds.....Richards	0
Nettie Douglas, b m, 4, 117 pounds.....	0

Time, 1:43¾.

Betting—1 to 2 Acclaim, 4 to 1 Brookwood, 6 to 1 Idaho Chief, 6 to 1 Honshell and 20 to 1 Nettie Douglas.

At the second attempt the flag went down to a good start. Honshell forged to the front, and at the eighth-pole was one length ahead of Nettie Douglas, Acclaim third, Brookwood fourth and Idaho Chief well up. Honshell increased his lead to three lengths at the quarter, and in this order they ran to the upper turn, when Brookwood and Acclaim commenced to improve their positions, and Honshell and Nettie dropped back. On rounding into the homestretch Brookwood and Acclaim were ahead; at the seven-eighths pole Brookwood drew away, coming in and winning easily by half a length ahead of Acclaim, who was a length in front of Honshell.

SUMMARY.

Second race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third; for all ages; maidens, if three years old, allowed seven pounds; if older, fifteen pounds. Four furlongs.

Judge, ch g, 5 years, 125 pounds.....	0
Belle M., ch m, 6 years, 120 pounds.....	0

Time, 0:48½.

Betting—30 to 1 against Hal Fisher, 15 to 1 Maud D., 3 to 1 The Jew, 2 to 1 April Fool, 10 to 1 Stranger, 8 to 1 Sam Jones, 20 to 1 Raceland Jr., 25 to 1 Judge, 8 to 1 Green Prewitt, 2 to 1 Geraldine.

Three-quarters of an hour was spent in trying to get these sprinters off. The delay was caused by the bad acting of Green Prewitt, who threw his rider and afterwards ran off, going a mile before he could be stopped. He was then sent to the stable. The flag dropped to a straggling start, with The Jew and Maud D. in the lead. Going round the upper turn the eleven horses were somewhat strung out. On rounding into the stretch no one could tell who had the lead, but half way down, say to the seven-eighths pole, The Jew and Maud D. was seen in the front, and the brown horse Hal Fisher, coming fast from the ruck, and within fifty yards of the wire he passed the two leaders and won by a head from Maud D., who was left a neck in front of The Jew.

SUMMARY.

Third race—The Colorado Derby.—For three-year olds (foals of 1889) $10 entrance to accompany the nomination, $40 additional to start; $2,000 added, of which $400 to second and $200 to third. Winners at any time of a race of the value of $2,500 to carry three pounds; of two or more such races, or one of $5,000, five pounds extra. Allowances: Those not having won at any time a race of $1,500 value, four pounds; $1,000, seven pounds; maidens, twelve pounds. One mile and a quarter.

Top Gallant, ch c, 3, Imp. Mariner—Lady Clare, 118 pounds.....Feeny	2
Prince Henry, br c, 3, Fonso—Lottie Madam, 115 pounds.....Hart	3
Mary Hall, ch f, 3, 105 pounds.....	0

Time, 2:13.

Betting—1 to 2 Prince Henry; 2 to 1 Centella; 4 to 1 Top Gallant and 6 to 1 May Hall.

This race had twenty-seven entries, but only four came to the post. After some little delay the four got off to an excellent start. Coming down the stretch Top Gallant went to the front and passed under the wire half a length in front of May Hall, who was half a length in front of Prince Henry and Centella. Traveling in this order they raced to the mile, when Prince Henry took second place. Mary Hall dropped to the rear, having had enough of it. Coming down the stretch it was seen that Prince was laboring, and his jockey was plying both whip and spur without effect, and at the seven-eighths pole was out of the race. Here Centella came along and passed him and made play for her stable companion, and just before the wire was reached she passed him too and won by a short neck, Top Gallant half a length in front of Prince Henry, May Hall pulled up fifty yards in the rear.

SUMMARY.

Fourth race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second and $25 to third. For all ages; the winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $2,500 to carry weight for age; for less, one pound allowed for each $100 down to $1,500; then two pounds allowed for each $100 down to $1,000. One mile and seventy yards.

Dick Wright, b h, a, 106 pounds.....	0
Orrick, ch h, a, 106 pounds.....	0

Time, 1:49.

Betting—3 to 2 Minnie Elkins; 5 to 1 Jim Dunn; 2 to 1 El Rayo; 8 to 1 Dick Wright; 4 to 1 Orrick.

Minnie Elkins took the lead at the start, Jim Dunn at her neck, Orrick third and the others close up as they passed the stand. Minnie held her position to the half mile post, when Jim Dunn passed her, and before the head of the stretch was reached El Rayo had taken second place, and this order was not changed, Jim Dunn winning by half a length from El Rayo, who was two lengths in front of Minnie.

SUMMARY.

Fifth Race—Purse $400, of which $50 to second, and $25 to third. For all ages; the winner to be sold at auction. Horses entered to be sold for $1000 to carry weight for age; if for less, two pounds allowed each $100 down to $500; then three pounds allowed for each $100 down to $100. Seven furlongs.

Minora, ch m, 5, Gen. Custer—Emma Charles, 103 pounds.....Young	1
Pearl, ch m, 4, Dr. Lindsey Jr.—Unknown, 107 pounds.....Dool	2

Vassostas, ch g, 4, 112 pounds.....	0
Sam Brown, ch c, 4, 100 pounds.....	0

Betting—6 to 1 Belshazzar; 6 to 1 Billy Duncan; 4 to 1 Pearl; 4 to 1 Emmet; 3 to 1 Sam Brown; 5 to 1 Vassostas; 6 to 1 Yazoo; 3 to 1 Minora. 4 to 1 Bugle, and 8 to 1 Parson Cook.

In this race there was a supposed start by the jockeys who rode Vassostas, Sam Brown and Emmet. These three jocks rode the race out, and never discovered their mistake until they neared the stand, when they could see the rest of the horses at a stand-still at the eighth pole. After a few minutes delay the horses were sent away, Minora taking the lead followed by Belshazzar close up and the rest strung out one hundred yards, after going three-eighths, from the half-mile pole. The race was of little interest, the only three contending horses being Minora, Belshazzar and Pearl. On rounding into the homestretch Pearl passed Belshazzar, and the three fought down to the finish, Minora winning by a neck from Pearl, who was a length ahead of Belshazzar.

Major B. W. Woodruff acted as judge and Col. James B. Ferguson as starter.

A Very Sensible View.

An unusual stagnation has been encountered by stallion owners this spring, and an extraordinary amount of grumbling is being indulged in at the dearth of mares which are being booked. The complaints do not come from any one particular section, nor are they confined to this or that family. The blood lines of the most fashionable, as well as those not considered so good, are included, and the entire country seems to be suffering in this respect. Just what the cause for thi lack of expected business seems to be is hard to define, and cannot, in our judgement, be ascribed to any one particular reason, being undoubtedly due to a variety of causes, each one of which has some particular bearing on the other, the whole combining to bring abont this state of affairs. One of the prime factors is of course the vast number of stallions which are standing for public patronage in almost every town, village and hamlet in the country, which naturally does away to a certain extent with the patronizing of stallions at a distance, which, up to a few years ago, was a necessity in order to obtain the blood lines desired. In these days, when representatives of almost every fashionable family can be reached within a radius of 50 or 100 miles, the shipping of mares long distances, except where it is desired to breed to a sensational horse, is becoming obsolete. Another weighty reason can be found in the results of the various combination sales held during the past winter and spring in different parts of the country where there were so many instances in which the offspring failed to bring but little, if any more, than the service fee of the sire.

It is useless to point out isolated cases where the get of a certain stallion has sold for a sufficiently large sum to make the investment exceptionably profitable. The cold facts stare one in the face that probably the greater portion of the remainder of the get of this same stallion sold at such a figure so as to make it impossible to show any profit. Average prices for the get of a given sire is a true criterion to go by, and if they do not show at least a reasonable margin on the investment and the chances taken, it cannot be expected that his book will fill readily. Many a good youngster was sold during the past season at a figure which would make it the height of folly, from a business standpoint, to breed to him, and as long as this state of affairs exist, just so long will there be cause for complaint by stallion owners. There are too many stallions standing for service in the country whose sole claim to patronage lies in the merits of ancestors near or remote, having themselves no desirable individuality, and being apparently unable to show any speed of a marketable order, or to transmit any of these essential qualities to their offspring. The knife to-day is being used on thousands of colts who are their superior in every respect, both as regards blood inheritance, conformation and speed promise, and until breeders learn by just such experiences as the past and present seasons have shown, to discriminate properly, just so long will the present state of affairs exist.

It is also more than probable that a marked reduction of the grand average of stallion fees of the country must appear. It is true that Hambletonian stood for many years with a full book at $500, but that was at a time when there were no duplicates. At the present time there are thousands of better bred ones than the old Hero of Chester, and no horse and no family has now a monopoly of desirable blood lines. Aside from one or more undefined native characteristics, there are scores of embryotic Electioneers, Allertons, Nutwoods, etc., within reach of the breeder, and while great individuality and demonstrated prepotency crowning a superb pedigree will always attract a gilt-edged patronage and command sensational fees, the average well bred sire must stand at a fee which will allow the product to go on the market and sell at prices, one end of which, at least, rests on the earth. Nothing herein contained prevents the fortunate breeder of an Arion or a Monbars from realizing a fortune from the sale of a single animal, nor do our suggestions necessarily handicap breeders who have the good fortune to own gilt-edged stock which commands a high price in the market, quite the contrary; but there is an immense equine product, of real or supposed mediocre value, on the hands of breeders, for which, under existing circumstances, there is no remunerative market, but when the innumerable $100, $200 and $300 stallions come down to $36, $65 and $100, and when, as was recently suggested by the Review, training methods are so improved as to turn out a horse with a 2:30 brush in sight at a cost for training of $100 to $150, then will it be found that the light harness horse breeding industry is safe, steady, conservative and reasonably profitable business, and then will the owners of broodmares stop turning their mares to $10 Clydesdales, or letting them run unstinted, because of their inability to get cost for the produce. The atmosphere has of late years been so full of fictitious values that the true state of affairs has been beyond visional range, so to speak, the real danger now being that the natural and inevitable reaction will carry unthinking breeders much farther into a pessimistic view of the situation than the real circumstances warrants. The price of sugar is just half what it was only a few years ago, and yet the producers are not ruined. On the contrary they go right along reaping reasonable rewards, and no doubt the same will be true of horse breeding, even when average prices are greatly reduced. When we come right down to hard mathematics it will be seen that thirty mares at $25 pay 25 per cent. on a stallion costing $3,000, and when we come to admit, reluctantly, perhaps, that the vast majority of horses in the stud of our land were obtained at a purchase price not exceeding this amount, it becomes apparent that a very moderate fee, with a fair patronage, will pay the stallion owner a reasonable profit on the investment.—Clarks Review.

Henry, John and Lummux.

During the past two months the history and breeding of Old Henry, Old John and Lummux has been inquired after. Below will be found an article that we published in this journal in 1883, says the Rural Spirit:

Outside of well established breeds of horses few have attracted more attention among breeders and horsemen than any of the three animals named at the top of this article. The descendants of these stallions are so favorably regarded here that the prepotency of them is assured to an extent scarcely below the thoroughbred and highly-bred horse. We have spoken of these sires many times, claiming that the combination of the blood had, to a very great degree, established a breed of horses which we have been pleased to call the Oregon horse; we have argued also that this class of horse, all things considered, was superior to any other in the whole world. More than once have we been asked to give the history of these stallions, and, if possible, their breeding. We shall now do so as best we can.

The Henry horse, brought to this State by his breeder, Judge Young, from Illinois, was a gray, of fine style; stood 16½ hands high, and weighed about 1350 pounds, perhaps more; he was sired by a horse called Rambler; purchased in Ohio by Henry Van Meter, of Illinois. His dam was a remarkably handsome black mare called a Whip. Her first colt was by a large gray horse called Sampson, brought to Illinois by the same gentleman who owned Rambler—Mr. Van Meter—and it is supposed he was a son of a large imported draft horse that was kept in Ohio. A Mr. Ownsby brought the sire of the horses that were called Lummux from Missouri in 1843. In 1839 a horse racer traveled through Missouri with several head of runners, one of which was a dark brown stallion called by his owner a Whip. One of the race mares became lame and was left with a farmer. The next spring she foaled a colt. The owner not returning, the mare and colt were sold to pay charges. Mr. Ownsby, who lived some distance from this portion of the country, was travelling and happened to attend the sale, and bought the colt for $30. This colt was brought here, as stated above, and is the founder of the Lummux stock. Among his get we can name Shingle Tail, the Eads Mare, Old Dan, Old Charley, Comet and Old Nig. Most every one of these was speedy at a short distance, and for service had no superior in their day.

Within the past few years the breeders of Oregon discovered that in nearly every Oregon-bred horse of large size and fine style the blood of old John and Henry was most sure to exist, while if Lummux blood existed no objection was made. This fact became so universal that breeders could not help recognizing a superior quality in the blood of these animals. And it became evident that this blood had the effect of improvement whenever used. So important did the breeding of these horses become that a history of them and their ancestors was seemingly demanded. A year and a half since we commenced the investigation. Our account, as above, of Henry and Lummux, while no doubt correct, does not give us any correct proof of certain blood lines; as to old John, however, the case is quite different, and when the breeding of the horse is read no one will ever question the reasons of his good qualities.

In 1861 Mr. A. Shultz, now of The Dalles, Oregon, brought these stallions to Oregon from Mercer county, Illinois.

John, now called Old John, a half-brother, and their sire, Old Charley, were bred in Kentucky, their sire being a Whip mare. Old Charley was a bay, and it is said was one of the most perfect horses ever seen in Oregon; indeed, many say they don't think he could have been surpassed.

We give Old John's pedigree: Bay, 16½ hands high; weight, 1,660 pounds; by Old Charley, son of imp. Arabian, his dam a Whip mare; Old John's dam, a brown, good size, by Stockholder, by Sir Archy; Stockholder's dam by imp. Sterling; grandam by Shakespeare, by Fearnaught. Stockholder's dam weighed 1,700, and was a horse of remarkably fine action.

One observable fact here presents itself, and it is, all these horses have more or less of the Whip blood, once so popular in the United States. Enough is here thrown together to show that the Oregon horse is not without breeding, and as he has size and fine style, why not encourage the production of good qualities?

THE Owen Bros. did not send a string East after all. The horses were not in the best of racing trim after the Sacramento meeting, and therefore it was concluded to send them down to the Fresno-county ranch instead of to Denver and Chicago.

AS AN illustration of the wonderful foresight displayed by the managers of some embryonic associations, Doble recently received a four-sheet, collect telegram proposition for a match race from an association that as yet has not even purchased its grounds.

CALIFORNIA horses were quite successful at the East last Saturday. At Latonia one of Theodore Winters' cast-offs, Dolly McCone, won a three-quarter mile dash, while at St. Louis two well-known Californians got to the front—Guido and Nero.

ELIAS LAWRENCE, by imp. Billet, dam Sprightly, by Lexington, was killed at the Walter Payne farm, near Lexington, Ky., last week, by running into a fence and severing the jugular vein. He was owned by W. S. Barnes, and was a superior racehorse.

THIRTY head of Runnymede yearlings, sold May 23d at the New York Tattersalls, brought $55,050, averaging $1,835. Phil Dwyer bought a brother to Hanover for $6,000, and Rancocas Stud a brother to Carroll for $5,100. The same price was realized for a chestnut filly by Hindoo, sold to W. M. Barrick.

SIX Sir Modreds have been successful at the East thus early in the season, while two Cheviots have run second (Osric beating Merry Monarch among others), and one Joe Daniels, one Double Cross, two Joe Hookers, one Tyrant, a Kyrle Daly and a Darebin captured first money also. How is this for California?

ON THE 12th of May Fernbrae foaled a fine bay colt by Simmocolon, 2:19. He is a fine, healthy-looking little one, and shows a great deal of trot. This colt is full brother to Ferndale, who was sold at Emery & Fasig's sale last July for $6,000 as a yearling; he trotted a quarter in thirty-six seconds the day before the sale.

IT has been decided to hold the Ione Fair of 1892 on September 27, 28, 29 and 30, being the week following the Stockton Fair. There will be liberal purses all the way through for both running and trotting, but it is expected that the features of the meeting will be the 2:25 and 2:30 and two and three-year-old trots.

A MODERN compilation of engineering maxims states that a horse can drag, as compared with what he can carry on his back, in the following proportions: On the worst earthen road, three times; on a good macadamized road, nine; on plank, twenty-five; on a stone trackway, thirty-three, and on a good railway fifty-four times as much.

"FATHER BILL" DALY gave the talent a rude shock with Lepanto last Saturday at Gravesend. He had Bolero in the race also, and told his friends to play the latter, though he didn't declare to win with either. Lepanto jumped out with the lead never to be headed, winning under a pull with odds of 20 to 1 against him in some books.

MERRY MONARCH'S work so far this season has been quite disappointing. Last season he won in stakes and purses $21,020. At the Gravesend meeting Osric, by imp. Cheviot, showed his heels to Merry Monarch, and gave him some weight too. Willie L., a four-year-old with the best of the weights, was the winner, with Osric a good second.

THE tallest horse in the world, standing twenty-two hands high and weighing 2,800 pounds, owned by T. E. Ridgeway, of Fort Worth, Texas, died May 5th. Now that he is dead, his carcass will be stuffed and prepared for exhibition in Chicago next year.

AT THE Emery & Fasig sale in Cleveland Wednesday the stallion Direго, by Princeps, that is eligible to the 2:30 class, but has trotted in 2:18 in a race, was sold to John Splan, who represents a syndicate, for $10,500. Tip Tyler, a black colt by Wilton, was sold to J. W. Page of Beatrice, Neb., for $5,000 Elda B., 2:20½, was sold to James A. Bailey of New York for $1,950.

SIXTY-ONE head of trotting stock, the property of Henry C. Jewett, Buffalo, N. Y., were sold on the 24th of May. The average for the lot was $333.60. The animals sold were by Jerome Eddy, Erie Wilkes, Young Jim, Patchen Wilkes, Fieldmont and other well-known sires, and the largest amount paid was $1,100 for Mamie Clay, ten years old, by Young Jim, dam by American Clay.

THE Directors of the Twelfth District Agricultural Association met at Blue Lakes on the 27th of May and elected officers as follows: David Alexander, President; H. A. McCraney, Secretary; Farmers' Savings Bank, Treasurer; Dr. C. W. Aby, Superintendent of the Track; Morris Keating, Superintendent of Pavilion of the fair to be held at Lakeport on September 26th to October 1, 1892.

JOHN HUNTER, who was elected to succeed Mr. Withers as Chairman of the Board of Control on May 16th, is the oldest turfman in the country, although not in age. He began racing in 1854, when he was twenty-one years old, and owned Nicholas I. and the renowned horse Kentucky. He is a well-informed man, high-toned and devoted to the best interests of racing, and with a very high ideal of sport.

LEVI S. GOULD, the pedigree expert has obtained an affidavit from the breeder of May Day, 2:30, dam of Margaret S., and Incas, 2:14½, stating that she was foaled in 1870. May Day was sold to H. S. Henry at one of the Lexington spring sales for $4,000, her age being represented as eighteen years. Henry, however, repudiated his purchase, claiming that the mare was four years older, which it transpires was the fact.

A LARGE crowd of horsemen assembled at Pleasanton last Saturday to see George Starr work out his string of candidates for honors at the race track on the Pleasanton Farm. The horses he will take East, unless some accident occurs, are as follows: Flying Jib, San Pedro, Killarney Maid and a daughter of Baywood (sire of Dr. Swift, 2:20), all pacers; Homestake, 2:14¼; Directum; Little Albert, 2:17¼; Gymnast and Astrakan (the two Director two-year-olds out of thoroughbred mares); Electrina, 2:30; Steve Whipple, 2:23, and two or three others.

HORSES in Matt Storn's stable ran first and second in the Colorado Derby at Denver last Saturday. Centella, the daughter of Joe Hooker and Katy Pease, won the race, with Tom Gallant a bang-up second. The stake was worth about $4,000 to the winner—a neat amount to capture for a starter. On the same date Geraldine and Acclaim tasted the bitterness of defeat.

SIR WALTER landed the first really rich two-year-old event of the season for the Oneck Stable on the 26th of May at Gravesend, beating a fine field. It was called the Great American Stake, and is worth $17,000 to the owners of the winning horse. Sir Walter is a bay colt by imported Midlothian out of La Scala, by Joe Hooker, and was bred at Rancho del Paso.

RICHARD HAVEY will only be able to handle a few trotters this year, we understand. He has James G. Fair's stallion Vasco, J. H. Outhwaite's Stamboul-Alta Belle colt, Daghestan, and one of B. C. Holly's colts. He has nine thoroughbreds belonging to Mr. Fair, and they will occupy a great deal of his time. That he will have them in apple-pie order for the races every one knows.

BISMARCK 2857, by Index, the handsome chestnut stallion belonging to J. W. Gordon, of San Jose, met with a very painful accident to one of his forefeet last week, which may disable him for life. The veterinarian, Dr. Spencer, had the horse put in slings, and is in constant attendance upon him. Bismarck is one of the handsomest horses in Santa Clara county, and has quite a reputation as a sire.

MORE than one close judge and astute critic of horseflesh has written that the blooded horse, as distinguished from his plebeian and pedigreeless brother, is notable for his white markings. In the light of which it is a somewhat curious fact that Sunol, 2:08¼, Maud S., 2:08¾ and Palo Alto, 2:08¼, the three fastest trotters, and Direct, 2:06, Johnston, 2:06¼, and Roy Wilkes, 2:08¼, the three fastest pacers, are all entirely destitute of them.

HIS HIGHNESS is now the favorite in the Suburban at 8 to 1. Tournament has gone down to 20 to 1, and Judge Morrow is 25 to 1. Tristan has been declared out of the Suburban. For the American Derby Azra and Zaldivar are quoted at 6 to 1 in McDermott & Co.'s books; Carlsbad and Galindo are quoted at 8 to 1, and Addie and Newton at 15 to 1. Books are full on Bashford, Robert Weitbrec, Chief Justice, Cicero and Pat Woodcock.

ALDEN GOLDSMITH, son of the late James Goldsmith, is now with his uncle, John Goldsmith, at Terre Haute. This young man comes from a family noted for its successful and gentlemanly trainers, and he could not be in better hands to learn the profession than his uncle's, who is considered one of the best drivers in the country. We wish the young man success, and may he earn for himself a name as spotless as the three older Goldsmiths.

ALUMINUM shoes have been given a test on a few of the horses at the Cleveland track this spring and it has been found that when the metal is worked cold on the anvil that it wears very well. Cast shoes of this metal, however, wear away as rapidly as so much lead. A little experimenting goes to show that the longer the metal is worked the harder it gets, and it will not be long before it is given a test on the horses in active training.

MERRIWA, Matt Storn's recent $6,000 purchase, has the same blood in his veins that the mighty Abercorn had, but instead of being from a Goldsbrough mare Merriwa was sired by Goldsbrough and is from a Yattendon mare Habena. Abercorn was by Chester, son of Yattendon. Therefore if Merriwa proves a great race horse there will be many who will say, "Why shouldn't he? Wasn't Abercorn the equal of any horse ever foaled in Australia?"

DURING the recent running meeting at Lexington, Ky., John Madden was heard to remark to Capt. B. J. Treacy: "Barney, I like the way these 'running fellows' conduct their meetings. I have attended the races every day, and so far I have seen only three judges in the stand. But with the trotters it is different. Every colonel, major, or what not, as soon as he appears at a trotting meeting, is invited to act as a judge, whether he has the necessary qualifications or not."

THE effect of energetic management and bright new track appointments was strikingly shown at the Lexington meeting just closed, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. Instead of the few hundreds of people that measured the average daily attendance for several years past, it ran up into the thousands during the meeting, and on Melbourne Stakes day the accommodations were inadequate to provide for the great throng that poured through the gates of the oldest race track in the country.

THE following entries have been made for the colt stakes of the Ferndale Park and Driving Association, Humbold, to be trotted for at the fall meeting: Yearling Stake—P. McAllenan's Ira, F. Miser's Baylight, C. S. Cook's Waldstein, Lamb Bros.' Waldstein, H. S. Hogoboom's Waldstein, H. J. Bridges' Waldstein and Dr. Eby's Gold Rose. Two-year-old Stake—Robert Noble's Ira, W. Dinsmore's Grand Moor, L. Feigenbaum's Grand Moor, Ben Arthur's Poscora Hayward, W. Perrott's Waldstein, H. S. Hogoboom's Waldstein, H. S. Hogoboom's Gold Rose and Dr. Eby's Gold Rose.

THE chestnut horse, Fred Douglas, 2:20½, died a few days ago at Atlantic, Ia., the property of A. C. Walker, his death being the result of a broken fore leg. He was foaled in 1873, and was by Green's Bashaw, out of Nancy Bell, dam of Tom Kirkwood, 2:29½, by Gale's Morgan. He was a very fair race horse and is credited as winning thirteen races and twenty-two heats in 2:30 or better. His record was made at Chicago in 1882, when he beat a field of four in 2:20½, 2:23 and 2:21½. At one time considerable talk was indulged in as to his ability to trot well down in the 'teens, but he never got to the front when the heats were below 2:20.

THERE was a trotting rehearsal at Palo Alto last Monday and a large number of horses, colts and fillies, under the guidance of Messrs. Phippen, Simmons and Nolan, were shown. The few spectators were much interested in the exhibition, but there were no phenomenal bursts of speed shown. It is a little early in the season. All the trotters look strong and well, and every one showed that it will be little trouble for them to enter the list. There will be some two-year-olds to do the trick, and if at least thirty Palo Alto-bred youngsters do not get inside the charmed circle a number of people will be disappointed.

THE Woodburn yearlings were sold in New York on May 21st. Forty-six head brought a total of $40,425 an advance of $872. What appeared to be the pick of the sale was the sister to Fordham and Portchester, a filly that David Gideon bought for $3,100. C. Cornelson bought a colt by Powhattan, out of Vis-a-Vis for $3,030; J. H. McCormick bought the sister to Willie L. for $800 and after the sale sold her to W. Lakeland, who owns her brother, for the same price.

PROF. J. D. SMITH, of Livermore, had a colt foaled last last week that has a good many crosses of Strathmore in it, as can be seen by the pedigree: He is sired by Simmocolon, 2:19, dam by Sidney, 2:19¾; second dam by Steinway, 2:25¾. As these are all descendants of Strathmore, this youngster is full of his blood. The dam of this foal paced at a two-minute gait as a two-year-old. She is not to be bred this year, but will be given to a good trainer, and no doubt will get a low record.

JAMES E. PEPPER'S stable racing here has created quite a sensation by its colors—a yellow jacket with a shield of red, with the name "Pepper" across it. It is the fac-simile of the trade-mark of Mr. Pepper's excellent whisky. Everyone admits the quality of the whisky, but they dislike the idea of the race-course being made an advertising medium, and I hear Mr. Pepper has been requested to change it. If once advertising in that manner got started the patent medicine companies and every business would soon buy race horses and decorate their racing jackets with advertisements. No one wants to see things come to such a pass as this. It would disgust people and injure racing, and the sooner it is stopped the better.—N. Y. Cor. Horseman.

AFTER our "Turf and Track" news went to press last week the sale of Monowai to Phil Dwyer, for $15,000 was confirmed. Notwithstanding this, before the item was written we had it from the lips of the two-thirds owner of the Midlothian colt himself, John Mackey, superintendent of Rancho del Paso, that Monowai had not been sold. A friend of Mr. Mackey congratulated him on the sale in our office, but the latter spoke up and said that the colt had not been sold, and that if such a thing had happened he would certainly know of it. Subsequently, however, the amount offered by Mr. Dwyer was accepted, and the colt was sent to Brooklyn in charge of J. W. Donathan. He has probably reached his destination ere this.

HAL POINTER'S mile in 2:12½ at Pimlico last week, the last half of which was done in 1:04, shows that the big gelding is much further advanced than ever before at this time of the year. Geers is evidently determined to have him ordered as well as it is possible for a horse to be for his race with Direct, previous to which it is said that he will do no racing. The champion is still serving mares in Kentucky, and his preparation will evidently have to be the more hurried of the two. If he again succeeds in beating the son of Tom Hal as soundly as when last they met it will leave the partisans of the Tennesseean without a leg to stand on, while, if defeated, it can hardly dim the luster of his renown. The series of races between the pair can hardly fail to be a wonderful one.

AT A meeting of the directors of the Spokane Driving Club held on Tuesday, the 17th, it was ordered that the money contested for in the race between They're-After-Me and Gypsie should be given to Gypsie. This action shows that the directors have decided that the horse They're-After-Me is in reality Antelope; and it shows further that the directors believe Mr. Harris to have raced the animal under the name They're-After-Me without knowing that his true name was Antelope. If the directors thought Mr. Harris guilty of running the horse in under an assumed name he would have been suspended forthwith. Mr. Harris has always dealt with turf matters in an honorable manner, and it is one of the highest compliments the directors could possibly pay when they decided the case in such a manner as exonerated him from the charge of "ringing" —Washington Farmer.

WILDWOOD, Folly and Annie Lewis are quartered at the Oakland track and are looking well. It is to be regretted that Wildwood did not go to Denver and the East to fill his engagements, for he is in fine shape and undoubtedly a race horse of a high class. He made a remarkable trial recently, we understand. With 132 pounds in the saddle he went a mile in 1:44. In the first quarter, however, there was a hole in the track and he had to be pulled to a standstill almost and to the extreme outside, and it consequently took 29½ seconds to cover the first two furlongs. This made his time for the final three-quarters 1:14½—a grand performance, surely. Folly did not come up to expectations at the Blood Horse meeting, and Annie Lewis did not start. The latter is said to like a distance of ground, as does Wildwood, who is a son of Wildidle and Fedora I. V., by Monday, second dam by Norfolk.

ORRIN A. HICKOK has met with a severe loss already at the East. His fine gelding Ariel, by Whips, 2:27½, died of pneumonia at Terre Haute, Ind., on Tuesday. Ariel was a chestnut gelding with two white hind ankles and blaze. Mr. Hickok purchased him at a low figure because he believed he would make a game trotter. No one else had any idea that this horse would be made steady enough to trot a mile out in company, but his owner persevered and got him so that he would never break. He could be driven with one hand to the height of his speed. Hickok never made a record with him, but has driven him three heats inside of 2:21, and had great hopes of winning some of the purses with this handsome horse and also proving his pet theory regarding the worth of Whips as a sire. Everyone will be sorry to hear of Mr. Hickok's great loss.

DAN MCCARTY'S son Joe is in Chicago looking out for the McCarty string of thoroughbreds, and the other boy, Harry, has just finished his term in school. The latter has as strong a penchant for trotters as Joe has for runners, so his father determined to give the boy a chance. He lately made arrangements to send him in charge of a string of trotters through the Montana Circuit, consisting of the following good daughters of Dexter Prince: Princess Alice (pacer), 2:16; Chloe, 2:24; Maggie, Jessie, Cleopatra and Parthenia, besides Electrina, the daughter of Richards' Elector—candidates for 2:30 honors. As Dan will have a string of trotters on this circuit, consisting of ten Dexter Prince youngsters, besides Lady Dexter, it looks as though he will keep his word and "get more of Dexter Prince's progeny into the 2:30 list than will be to the credit of any other stallion in America." He says he will have Cupid, 2:18, Pleasanton, Flora M., 2:21¾, Dubec, 2:28, and Lady Dexter also on this circuit. It looks as if Daniel will be kept pretty busy this fall.

IT IS curious how great producers of trotters generally trace back to some noted race animal on one side of the house or the other, and then people all cry, "No wonder he was a good sire." The great granddam of Mambrino Patchen 58 and Lady Thorn, 2:18½, was Betsy Richards, by Sir Archy, who was in the stable of William Johnson, of Virginia, along with Henry. Going lame, Henry took her place in the race with American Eclipse for $20,000 a side, but Betsy Richards was considered a better racer than Henry.

THE stewards of the grand circuit held their annual meeting to fix the dates for the grand circuit races to-day at the office of the Rochester (N. Y.) Driving Park. William Edwards presided and George W. Archer was secretary. The dates were fixed as follows: Pittsburg, July 18th to 22nd; Cleveland, July 26th to 29th; Buffalo, August 2nd to 5th; Rochester, August 9th to 12th; Springfield, August 16th to 19th; Hartford, August 23d to 26th; Philadelphia, August 23d to 26th; Philadelphia, August 30th, September 1st and 2nd. The following claeses were adopted: Trotters, 2:15, 2:17, 2:19, 2:21, 2:23, 2:25, 2:27, 2:29. Pacers, free-for-all, barring Hal Pointer and Direct, 2:16, 2:19, 2:23. A motion was adopted that the entrance fee be five per cent. additional for the winner of each division of the purse.

JACK CHINN, it is reported, has been engaged by a syndicate to select a site for a winter racing track in California.—The Horseman. A rumor was current at the time Ben Wright secured a lease on the track at Emeryville that a syndicate from the East was only beaten out by a short head in a race for the lease given by Judge Mee. However, we trust that if there is to be winter racing here it will be conducted with the utmost fairness and that it will have no taint of Guttenburg crookedness about it. An army of thieves and schemers around a California race track, like the New Jersey one is afflicted with, would only set us back ten years further in the racing line. The Foster swindle in 1876 set back the hands of the California clock of progress, as far as it related to racing, at least that far, and we have never fully recovered from the shock.

PILOT JR., passed nearly all the years of his life a victim to the old-time prejudice against pacing blood. It is true that by his own merit he overcame the prejudice in a slight degree, but he never became popular during his life. He died in 1865, ten years before Hambletonian died, and nearly twenty years before the other sires mentioned died. Still a larger proportion of Pilot Jr.'s producing daughters are in the great broodmare list than those of any of the sires mentioned, and he is the only sire whose daughters have produced two trotters with records of 2:10 or better. Pilot Jr. blood is to-day valued more highly than ever before, and there can be no question but that the daughters of that horse would have made a better showing than they do make had not prejudice blinded the eyes of a former generation of breeders to their true merit.

FOLLOWING is a description of a fight recently between two Percheron stallions, that cost $7,000 each, the property of David Pullam, Leavenworth, Kan.: "When the animals got together it was like the meeting of giants, and the fight was the most furious on record. They struggled for supremacy in a way that was simply grand. They bit and tore great pieces out of each other, and their kicks and strokes with their fore feet were terrible. It was impossible to do anything toward parting them, and the owner was compelled to look helplessly on while the enraged brutes fought. One of the animals was about two hundred pounds heavier than the other, but what the lighter animal lost in strength he made up in agility, and his attack was so rapid that he finally got the larger horse down and kicked and pawed him to death. The victor was so badly beaten that he, too, died in a few hours after the fight."

THE Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association has contracted to take the old Bay District track for a period of five years, subject, however, to the order of the Board of Supervisors, which can at any time, upon complaint, order streets cut through the course. The monthly rental is $250, and it is expected that the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will want to rent the place at least two weeks during every season. In a talk with one of the Blood Horse directors last Monday night he said the Association would make a number of needed repairs, but they did not believe they would build new grand stands and stables. In our opinion the only "repairs" that can be made is the erection of first-class grand stands and a number of new stalls, for a fairly smart earthquake shock or wind storm is likely to reduce the Bay District Collisseum to ruins at any time. Surely it is not an inviting spot, and never will be until modern grand stands are put up and the miniature lakes in the center of the inclosure are hidden from view.

THE editor of the Breeder and Turfman, which paper was started not long ago in Tennessee, has quit that publication and come to Chicago, where his talents will have a chance. An exchange which assumes to know the inside facts of the matter says that Mr. Williams was hampered by the policy of the Tennessee paper to such an extent that he threw up the sponge in disgust, and as an intimation of where the trouble lay it says: "The turf paper that prints only news and write-ups of patrons will do little good for itself or the business. There are crying evils in the 'hoss business,' and a good turf paper will try and correct abuses." All of which is very true, as every man who has had any connection with the business knows, but it is also true that there will never be a reform among the horse papers which have for years been wedded to the pernicious practice of letting the advertising department control the editorial columns.—Breeders' Gazette.

"I NOW see the mistake I made by taking a stallion far from fashionable lines of extreme speed and trying to make him fashionable," was the remark that a disappointed breeder made to us the other day in a tone of bitterness. It is the rock on which many a breeder shipwrecks his prospects, and learns by experience that a man must not marry a sire and cling to him for better or worse. The breeders and buyers of the present day will not listen patiently to excuses, but look directly at results. The quickest and best way for a breeder to put his stock farm on a paying basis is to take animals of speed-producing capacity and mate them according to the proven nick, then proceed to a diligent and constant training development in order to place their names in prominent places in the turf journals and trotting compilations. Many astute breeders, who find that their horses and mares are not up to the mark of present-day requirements, reduce the number or sell the stallions, and breed their best mares to sires whose names are on everybody's tongue.

W. O'B MACDONOUGH, owner of Menlo Stock Farm, has purchased of Charles Kerr, Bakersfield, Cal., the good-looking bay broodmare Flora, foaled 1882, by Joe Hooker, dam Illusion (dam of Raveloe, Leh and Orta), by Alarm; second dam Mary Hadley, by O'Meara; third dam Parisina, by imp. Leviathan, etc., with suckling colt at side by Apache, son of imp. Mortemer and The Banshee (sister to True Blue), by Lexington. The price paid for the mare and foal was not made public, but $4,500 is understood to be not far from the figure.

THE opening race furnished considerable excitement. An even half-dozen came out to race six furlongs, and the majority of the public settled upon Tim Murphy to do the trick. At 2 to 1 and 6 to 5 he carried a whole lot of money. Jockey Harmon deliberately pulled the horse, thereby permitting Reuben Payne, a 12 to 1 chance, to win. The Peer, 3 to 1, came third. The pulling was so flagrant that a crowd of 2,000 or more gathered about the judges' stand and set up an awful howl. The judges very properly declared all bets off, which was received by shouts of approval. Jockey Harmon was ruled off, and the horse and Trainer "Cy" Mulkey were ordered to leave the grounds.—St. Louis Republic, May 27th.

A NEW device is being used at the Morris Park meeting, which began on Decoration Day. The improvement is the straightening of the angle where the straightaway track and the round track run into one broad sweep at the finish. The novelty is a movable judges' stand run on rails. The stand was tested from a right-angle sight at the straightaway finish, and it was a success. A change of an inch in the line of vision showed how observers are deceived when they believe that the wrong horse is awarded the race. When two horses, one at the inside rail and the other at the outside rail, make a dead heat, it would appear to all standing at the upper side of the judges' stand that the horse at the inner rail had won by a length. This was the case in a race last year, when Littlefield, who rode St. Florian on the inside rail, believed he had won the race by a length, when the fact was that Bergen landed His Highness winner by a length on the outside rail. It would be a good thing for race-goers to study up the angles on a circular track.

AN INTERESTING story is told by an eastern correspondent about the stallion Egthorne 2:12½, by Egbert. The horse used to be owned by Mr. Baker, a hotel keeper at Watkins, N. Y. Dr. Craig, the well-known vet. of Hamilton, went over on invitation from Mr. Baker to look at the horse, as his owner then was desirous of selling him. He didn't, however, suit the doctor, but as he was anxious to secure a stallion to bring back with him, he asked Egthorne's owner if there wasn't anything else in the neighborhood he could look over while he was there. This elicited the information that a friend of his some twenty miles distant owned a real smart kind of a horse and he agreed to go over with him and look him up. The trip was undertaken on one of the very coldest days of a very cold winter, and the result was that Dr. Craig purchased the horse, now owned by him and known as Frank Ellis, 2:26½, winner of the first prize on two occasions at the Toronto fair. After the purchase was consummated Mr. Baker challenged the doctor to trade Ellis to him for the horse he owned, and after a good deal of bantering he offered the Canadian Egthorne and $400 to boot for Ellis. The doctor, however, didn't like the former, and refused a deal on any terms. Since then Egthorne has kept on steadily reducing his record, and even before he had shown such great speed was sold by Mr. Baker for $10,000.

THE grooming of horses is only secondary in importance to that of diet. Health is secured by keeping the skin pores open, and this only can be obtained by the currycomb and the brush, removing the dead epidermis thrown off in the form of pellicles. He is a bad groom that employs the comb roughly and the brush lazily. Not only comb the mane and tail from time to time, but occasionally wash the latter with soap and water. It is a bad practice to cover saddle and carriages horses with rungs when in the stable, with the view of preserving them from catching colds, keeping the skin cleaner and the coat shining. The best service to render such horses is to accustom them to cold, to harden them. A rug ought only to be thrown across the horse when, being warm, it enters a cold stable, and only allowed to remain on the animal till the normal temperature of the body sets in. Horses with short tails may be covered with a light linen in order to keep of the flies when in the stable during summer. Pending the latter season bathing is excellent, not omitting to run the animal with a whisp of straw and walking it about for some time. Clipping horses the horse-breeder objects to. Let the old hair in the casting season be more scrupulously removed by the brush, while supplying the animal during the period with easily-digested food. When the casting of the hair does not follow its natural course, give the horse a small ration of linseed cake or linseed meal, or barley that has been well pounded in a mortar, wetted and well mixed with a good deal of kitchen salt.

TEN years ago the bay gelding Col. Wood made his first appearance, and won several races in the four-year-old classes, taking a four-year-old record of 2:35½. In 1884 he entered the 2:30 list, and the following year reduced his record to 2:24½, during which time it appears that he was constantly entered as by Charley B., and that his pedigree was not questioned. Subsequently he reduced his record to 2:21½, and about that time, we think chiefly from information furnished by the popular turf writer "Aurelius," the pedigree was changed, Billy Patterson being given as the sire in place of Charley B. The matter was brought before the Board of Censors, which at just that time Mr. Wallace had fairly well under his control, and they finally rendered a verdict in accordance with his wishes. In an editorial in the June number of 1887, Mr. Wallace, not content with a simple statement of the case, as was quite customary with him in relation to all who either directly or indirectly had objected in the least to his decisions, he very strongly reflected upon the character of Mr. Burlew, the owner of Charley B. In hundreds of similar cases men have put up with his insolence, and we do not recall another instance where suit was brought against Mr. Wallace in consequence, but Mr. Burlew did not propose to rest under such an implication. As is frequently the case, however, suits of this character remain in courts a long time before the final decision is reached, and not until a few days ago was this case terminated by the jury rendering a decision against Mr. Wallace. Although the damages Mr. Burlew recovers are merely nominal, the costs fall upon Mr. Wallace, while Charles Burlew has the satisfaction of winning the case, vindicating his character and practically proving the correctness of the claim that Col. Wood was by Charley B.—Boston Horse-Breeder.

THE GUN.

The San Francisco Gun Club's Picnic.

The annual outing of the San Francisco Gun Club took place over in Ross Valley on Monday last. To say that the occasion was one which registered even a higher mark in the line of social outings than any heretofore given by this leading sportsman's organization is but to do the club justice.

Within rifle range from Tamalpais station on the Pacific and North Coast railway lies a lovely little open space in the lap of the valley matted with grasses, bounded to the eastward by the railway while a winding timber-studded stream defines, by a semi-circle, the completion of its confines.

The grounds had been conveniently prepared, by use of the scythe and the pruning knife, for the sport of the day.

The early morning ferry for Saucelito conveyed the vanguard of the party to the grounds, where the preliminaries were soon settled and the echoing of the guns reflected from the sounding board formed of the abrupt pine-clothed mountain, at the base of which the day was spent, told that the match was on.

The second morning train brought over from the city the main portion of the membership of the club with many invited guests. The party was a merry one and when seated under the pleasant and acceptable shade of the oaks and gums which closely flanked the score line, presented a scene which would have set the average Kodakist wild with delight.

From the many flying trains which bore their precious freight of happy souls still farther up the valley to Camp Taylor, Point Reyes and intermediate grounds, this picture was presented—a little verdured-valley, hemmed about with stream and forest; underneath the trees, at the immediate rear of the traps, the Gun Club membership, with invited guests, in all one hundred and fifty in number, the bright holiday costumes of fifty or more ladies contrasting pleasantly with foliage and bloom which nature had bedecked herself in honor of May's departure.

To the right of the scene a steep incline—a veritable mountain in miniature—rising to the height of several hundred feet, clothed with oak and vine, while spiral cones of fir and pine shot upward here and there like spires and minarets from Nature's grand and imposing temples; the blue smoke curling from the guns and the falling, or all too frequently the fleeing pigeons circling high and away.

Not a perfect picture? Well, perhaps not. It is only a "Kodak shot" and if imperfect, charge it all to the "You-press-the-button-and-we-do-the-rest" man.

The club match of the day was first on the programme, resulting as follows:

The above score represents a number of surprises. Mr. Webster was heartily congratulated on his success in making a clean score, while Mr. Kilgarif by making, for him, the remarkable score of eleven out of twelve birds fired at in the main match, caused more arching of eyebrows and exclamations of surprise as the new arrivals of sportsmen came on the grounds, than was called forth by any other incident of the day.

Mr. Swett shot remarably well, making a clean score, while many other excellent shots of the club fell below the highest mark.

The birds were a splendid lot as a whole and many of them were very swift especially later in the day when assisted in flight by the wind.

LUNCHEON.

Luncheon was then announced and under the sheltering boughs of the thickly-foliaged trees, the snowy linen fluttering from the long row of tables, which the party gathered around to regale themselves upon the choice viands which had been prepared by the veteran chef, William Vance, who for so many years has formed one of the essential magnets of the Athenean Club of Oakland. Every tempting viand known to the skilled in gastronomic art was presented in the most enticing manner. All hail to the cook! The cook is king! From the chaos of Hottentots he has evolved civilization. His art alone has made the habitation of all parts of the world possible, and on this occasion rendered the sport of pigeon shooting doubly pleasurable. After luncheon a siesta of an hour was enjoyed in the shade and then free-for-all pools began and occupied the remaining hours of the day.

The first pool shot, entrance $2.50, had twenty entries, and resulted as follows:

Chapin	1	1	2	1	1	2—6
Golcher	2	1	1	2	2	1—6
R. B. Woodward	2	0	1	1	1	2— 5
Sprague	0	2	1	1	1	2— 5
Swett	2	2	2	0	2	2—5

Babcock	0	0	0	1	2	2—3
Kilgarif	0	0	1	1	1	—3

Swett	1	1	2	1	1	1— 6
Orr	1	2	1	1	2	1— 6
Wooster	2	2	2	2	2	2—6

Butler	1	1	2	0	0	—3
Kittle	1	2	0	0		—2
H. Woodward	0	2	0	0		—1
Chapin	0	0	2	0		—1
Cadman	0	1	6			—1

Woodward, Orr, Brown and Wooster divided in a squad shooting on fifth bird. Butler and Golcher divided the next purse, same conditions. The final event of the day was a freeze-out, resulting as follows:

Butler	1	2	1	1	1	1	1—7
Golcher	1	1	1	1	1	0	—5
Wooster	2	1	2	1	0		—4
Tallant	2	2	0				—2
Brown	2	0					—1
Cadman	1	0					—1
R. B. Woodward	1	0					—1
Kittle	0						—0
Sprague	0						—0

This wound up the sport of the day in time to catch a seasonable train back to the city. The day was one of pleasure not soon to be forgotten.

The Country Club.

The Country Club met at the traps on Saturday last to engage in their fourth monthly match of the season. The weather being fine, and some time having elapsed since an opportunity occured for the membership to engage in the sport, the attendance was large and the interest most marked.

The shooting was fully up to the average of this club, notwithstanding the fact that two of the best shots of the club, Mr. Roman E. Wilson and Mr. R. B. Woodward, owing to the use of strange guns, were found to be away below their usual mark.

Mr. F. W. Tallant led the shooting of the day making a clean score, which, we are informed, is the first clean score ever made at the regular matches of this club since using the present system of traps as presented at Oakland Track.

Mr. F. L. Wooster saw his last bird flutter over the boundary and fall dead, thus defeating him of the record of a clean score. Very aggravating are those strong birds which though fatally hit manage to sustain their flight until the boundary has been passed where they fall "like a bag of potatoes."

Mr. J. M. Adams shot exceedingly well making eleven out of a possible twelve.

Messrs. Webster, Grant and Edward Donohoe score ten birds each, Mr. Webster having one bird dead out of bounds while Mr. Donohoe sustained the same misfortune. The score, in the main match, was made as follows:

T. W. Tallant	1	1	2	1	1	2	2	2	2	1	1	1—12
F. L. Wooster	2	1	1	1	2	2	1	1	2	2	1	*—11
J. M. Adams	1	2	2	2	2	2	1	2	2	0	2	2—11
F. R. Webster	1	1	1	2	1	1	*	2	1	1	2	0—10

H. W. Woodward	1	0	2	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	1	0— 5

The first "freeze-out" was won by Webster and Wooster on a score of four birds each as follows:

F. R. Webster	2	2	2	2—4
F. L. Wooster	2	2	2	2—4
F. D. Atherton	2	2	1	0—3
A. B. Tubbs	2	2	0	—2
R. E. Wilson	1	1	0	—2
Geo. Crocker	1	2	0	—2
C. P. Eels	1	2	0	—2
W. S. Kittle	2	1	0	—2
E. L. Bosqui	2	*		—1

A number of the gentlemen dropping out on first bird. Messrs. Wilson, Donohoe and Wooster divided the next event on the fifth bird. The next event was divided by Wilson and Donohoe, Webster going out last on his seventh bird. In the next event Mr. Donohoe killed twelve straight to win, Mr. Wooster dropping out last on his twelfth bird, while Mr. Webster and Mr. Tubbs each were shot out on their ninth bird.

The day was well spent when the last birds were used, yet the sport grew rather than diminished in interest.

The Selby Medal Contest.

On Sunday last the monthly contest at twenty live birds, for the Selby Live Bird Gold Medal, came off at Oakland Shooting Park. The day was fine and the conditions favorable for the sport. A light, variable wind played across the traps at times so strong as to assist the "drivers" in their flight, making them exceedingly strong and in trap shooting parlance very hard birds. This character of birds were popping out of the traps and skimming away with a frequency which held the score of the best shots a bit down the scale of their average. Several new faces appeared at the score for this contest. The record presented in the match for the medal resulted as follows:

C. J. Haas	1	1	0	1	1	2	1	2	2	2	1	2	1	0	2	2	2	2	2	2—18
Crittenden Robinson	1	1	1	2	1	1	1	2	*	1	0	2	2	1	1	1	1	0	2	2—17
"Lake"	1	0	1	2	0	1	1	2	2	2	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	2	0	*—15
Smith	1	0	2	1	2	0	2	1	0	*	2	2	1	1	1	2	1	0	2	2—15
"Slade"	1	2	2	*	2	2	1	2	0	1	1	0	0	1	1	0	1	w
Brown	1	0	2	1	2	1	1	1	0	2	0	1	2	2	1	1	0	w
Axtel	1	0	0	2	1	0	1	0	w
Wilcox	2	*	0	*	1	0	w

Messrs. Barney and Haas then divided the honors of first and second and Robinson took third money.

To decide the honors of winning the medal the gentlemen scoring even points agreed to let the event follow the result of the following pool by which it will be observed that Haas again won the trophy by one bird. Eight bird pool, $5 entrance, resulting as follows:

Smith	1	1	2	1	2	1	1—8
Robinson	2	1	2	1	0	1	1— 7
Haas	0	1	1	2	2	1	2	2—7
Barney	0	1	2	2	1	1	1	*—6
Adams	2	2	2	2	0	2	2	0—6
Lake	1	2	0	*	2	2	*	w—4
Wilcox	2	0	0	1	w			—2

In an eight bird pool following, the score presented stood:

Robinson	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2—8
Barney	2	2	1	2	2	2	1	0—7
"Slade"	1	1	2	1	2	0	0	2—6
Adams	0	2	1	1	0	2	2	w—5
Brown	2	2	1	0	2	0	w	—4
"Lake"	0	2	w					—1

The third pool, same conditions as above, was fought out on good birds and resulted in some really fine shooting, as some of the birds flew off with the wind at a very swift speed. The result:

Robinson	1	1	1	2	1	1	1	1—8
Barney	2	1	2	1	2	1	2	2—8
Haas	2	1	1	1	1	2	2	1—8
Smith	1	2	0	2	2	2	2	w—6
Cadman	1	1	1	1	2	*	2	w—6
"Slade"	2	1	2	0	1	1	0	w—5
Wilcox	0	1	1	1	1	1	0	w—5
Brown	1	0	1	1	0	w		—3

The final event, same conditions obtaining, closed the sport of the day and resulted as follows:

Barney	2	2	1	1	1	2	2	2—8
Brown	1	1	1	1	2	1	1	1—8
Haas	1	2	2	1	0	1	2	1—7
Cadman	2	2	2	0	1	1	2	1—7
Wilcox	1	1	1	0	0	w		—3
Adams	1	0	1	0	0	w		—2
Robinson	0	2	1	0	w			—2
Smith	0	0	w					—0

Mr. Haas is to be congratulated on winning the medal in the last two matches. In each case he has been compelled to shoot for it in very excellent company but as he is one of the oldest and most reliable shots of the country his winnings are not surprising.

In speaking of a recent invention in the pigeon target line an Eastern writer describes it as follows:

"Some months ago I heard of this invention, but had not seen it until now. The target is a pigeon made of zinc, the shape and size being perfection. Indeed, as an imitation, it is the best I have ever seen. This pigeon is fastened to a rod, which may be of any length desired. The trap and rod, with pigeon attached, are behind a screen. When the shooter says "pull," the long arm, with pigeon attached, swings into the air, rising, until upright, the height of the arm or rod, and then descending on the other side. Of course, a semi-circle is described in the air, and the speed can be made fast or slow, as the shooter desires. The rod can be arranged so as to give right or left quarterers, straightaways or incomers, or quartering to you or away from you, as one may desire. When the imitation pigeon is struck with shot it is released by a spring and tumbles to earth. The rod can be worked from either side of the trap, so that no time is lost in turning it back to one position, in order to set it. The inventor says it has been tried in a hundred ways, and appears to be equally good in all.

Upon saying that I had heard of this artificial pigeon some months ago, he replied that without doubt that was so, for last fall he had given some exhibitions of its flying at his place, which had been quite largely attended, but that matters of greater importance had kept him from bringing it more prominently before the public until now. After some further conversation regarding it I agreed to meet Mr. Quillfeldt at his home next Friday and see the zinc pigeon worked in actual shooting practice. If it is half as good as the inventor claims, it will add greatly to the pleasure of trap shooters."

Referring to the progress made in shooting, Shooting and Fishing says:

It is singular how old ideas and old methods will cling to the average man. I ran across, in Park place, last Monday, a man that has been identified with guns and ammunition almost as long as I can remember. Conversation immediately turned upon subjects interesting to both. In the course of the talk I found my old acquaintance still questioning the utility of the so-called wood powders. But as Galileo had it, "the world does move," no matter how much argument may be indulged in to prove that it does not. Nitro-powders may not be all that they will become, but I have tables before me that tell of the growth of their use by sportsmen in a marvellous manner. One of these tables gives the names of the contestants in all matches shot at the gun club, London, from the beginning of the season 1891–1892 to its end. Out of sixty-six contestants not one used black powder in his first barrel, and toward the end of the season the nitros were used almost exclusively in both barrels. In this country the advance guard in the use of the nitro compounds are the members of the Tuxedo, Carteret, Hollywood, Larchmont, Country and Westminster Gun Clubs. I doubt if a single man in the membership of all those clubs uses anything other than nitro compositions.

During the second day's shoot of the Capital City Gun Club, J. H. Hunter lost a very highly-prized fishing knife, says Forest and Stream, and upan the assertion of some of the party that the knife had slipped under the station platform, he offered a dollar to a little darkey to recover the property. The darkey was suspicious of some trick and refused to go under the planks while the party was on the scene. Joe told the coon to recover the knife before the next day and come to the grounds for his dollar, not suspecting any trick. At dinner the next day, Billy Wagner brought the darkey into the dining room, and to the delight of Hunter, the darkey brought the lost knife. Joe did not wait long before rewarding the finder, after which he entered the bar room to "celebrate." Shortly after, as he was crossing the road, the little darkey came up and said: "Say, Mr. Hunter, dat Mr. Wagner dun gimme a dime for just givin' you dat knife wat he had in him pocket since last night." This gave the snap away and Hunter is now trying to devise a scheme for getting even with Wagner.

The deservedly popular sporting goods emporium of E. T. Allen Co., at 416 Market street are sole agents for the United States Pigeon Company's targets and target traps. These traps are so arranged that three angles may be thrown from the one trap in as rapid succession as though three traps were being used. Any man or boy can work them without difficulty. In this feature one trap is made to do the work equally as well as three of the ordinary, or any other trap now before the public. They are sold at the same price as the ordinary trap and in this saves each club one third the usual expense for traps.

Good breeding is fairly evidenced by a suspension of judgment on appearances until after due investigation. Never be in haste to condemn lest you find yourself in a position demanding an apology, and when an apology is due any one no act is evidence of a truer manliness than to make it open and frankly.

A Virginia man wants to wager $50, that he can beat any man in the world in a match at fifty live birds which shall be shot immediately after dinner, his opponent to partake of nothing save onions and lettuce. Novel idea but that combination might let any one out of the race.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

To My Dog "Blanco."

BY J. G. HOLLAND.

My dear, dumb friend, low lying there,
A willing vassal at my feet,
Glad partner of my home and fare,
My shadow in the street.

I look into your great brown eyes,
Where love and loyal homage shine,
And wonder where the difference lies
Between your soul and mine.

For all of good that I have found
Within myself or human kind,
Hath royally informed and crowned
Your gentle heart and mind.

I scan the whole broad earth around
For that one heart which, leal and true,
Bears friendship without end or bound,
And find the prize in you.

I trust you as I trust the stars;
Nor cruel loss, nor scoff nor pride,
Nor beggary, nor dungeon bars,
Can move you from my side—

As patient under injury
As any Christian saint of old,
As gentle as a lamb with me,
But with your brothers bold.

More playful than a frolic boy,
More watchful than a sentinel,
By day and night your constant joy
To guard and please me well.

I clasp your head upon my breast
The while you whine and lick my hand—
And thus our friendship is confessed,
And thus we understand

Ah, Blanco! Did I worship God
As truly as you worship me
Or follow where my master trod
With your humility;

Did I sit fondly at his feet,
As you, dear Blanco, sit at mine,
And watch him with a love as sweet,
My life would grow divine.

President Schell's Resignation.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 30, 1892.

To the California Kennel Club:

GENTLEMEN:—I herewith tender my resignation as President of the California Kennel Club and also as a member of the Executive Committe of said club, but in so doing I wish it to be distinctly understood that I do not resign my membership nor in any way withdraw from the club

In taking this step I desire to thank those gentlemen of the club who have shown enough manliness of character to entitle them to that consideration, for their willing, but as events have proven, futile efforts to assist me in conducting the affairs of this body in a fair and honorable manner.

I resign my official positions only after being fully convinced that I can, in those positions, no longer serve with credit the kennel interests of this city and vicinity. This step is not taken without feelings of the deepest regret that such an act should have by others been rendered necessary.

As a justification of this, my last official act as President of the California Kennel Club, I desire to state that I can no longer afford to be connected with a club, the ruling majority of which, though small, is led and controlled by so objectionable a person as A. B. Truman has proven himself to be.

The outrageous and high-handed manner in which he has practically usurped and taken possession of the offices of secretary and treasury of the club, calls for the highest and strongest condemnation possible, and presents an urgent cause for action on the part of the membership of the club.

In the face of protest after protest on my part he has unlawfully, willfully and in a manner utterly disregarding the rights of the club, placed the monies thereof to his separate account and has paid out the funds for the prizes of the club by his personal check, from monies to which he absolutely had no right or color of right whatsoever.

I decline longer to be even a silent witness to such unlawful, dangerous and questionable modes of procedure,and hereby demand of said A. B. Truman an accounting of all matters so unlawfully assumed, and that the funds be placed under the control of the club.

Disregarding every principle of decency, he has forcibly taken possession of the office of the Secretary of the Club, and in defiance of the will of that officer, has taken upon himself the duty of custodian of all matters pertaining to that office,in consequence of which the records of that office have become practically valueless as such.

In addition to the above-named reasons a multitude of others might be mentioned, but suffice it to say that his hasty, ill-tempered, vulgar and ignorant nature is fruitful of unbearable emanations.

In placing my resignation as President of this Club and as a member of its Executive Committee before you I have been impelled in the interests of this club, and more especially that of the kennel world a large, to set out for your consideration the facts herein mentioned. Respectfully.

E. P. SCHELL, President C. K. C.

Howls.

Dr. Grimes has nothing to say for publication concerning the late fiasco near Denver. Silence is golden in this particular case. Come, gents, kill some wolves.

That naughty old boy, Chas. H. Mason, alias "Can-Can," seems very much worried over his efforts to secure the name of the kennel editor of this journal. Poor fellow, how he must suffer! Something terrible would surely happen should his lord highness succeed. Blast my eyes, why don't you address with stamp to this daring and fearless paper, the paper that has the courage to strike back against such foreign importations, but on second thought, will simply advise you to take out your naturalization papers and become a citizen of this land of liberty and free press before you demand the name of an American citizen—born one.

Three cracking good shows this year for the far West—San Francisco, Los Angeles and Denver. Doing a great amount of good; keep it up, but the specialists clubs should go slow; forming new standards will cause serious trouble sooner or later. Stonhinge is good enough for me—will you "moind" now?

Mr. Stoddard, of Dayton, Ohio, has an idea that he will in the near future produce some remarkable dogs of the pointer kind; his purchase of Osborn's Ale by the same sire as "King of Kent. Now King of Kent mated to Hops, a Mainspring bitch, has produced Rip Rap and Maid of Kent and several other great ones. Now if I am able to read the signs, Mr. Stoddard considers the Mainspring blood has something to do with this, and hence his desire some time ago to secure a couple of young bitches by that most famous of pointers, Mainspring. The readers of this column will remember my advocating this same idea over one year ago. My words at that time were to pay more attention to your brood bitches; you cannot secure great progeny from scrub or worthless bitches, no matter how great the sire—as a rule—there are few exceptions to this. I shall watch Mr. Stoddard's efforts in this direction, as I am confident he is on the right track.

Sports Afield is becoming rather dudish in tone and make-up. Our "Friend the Dog" department is degenerating which I am sorry to see. "The wheel" and other parts are given more space and evidently more care; very little original writing for the dog now a few stale clippings and a drop in now and then is all that is served up monthly. A desire to compete with "Outing" seems to be the proper caper.

Old Forrest and Stream has emerged from her Rip-Van-Winkle sleep and is coming under the wire weekly in fine shape. Friend Lacy is proving the right man in the right place despite the yelps of the horde of mangy curs at his heels, more energy and common sense in one minute than the entire crowd of oracles, Can Can included.

Is it not about time kid "Washington" and others were making a fuss once more over the Irish Reds? Friend Hubbard, of Broken Bow, Neb., has got the Irish five in a high degree also the retrieving of high class dogs. Keep up your licks, all you chaps, great and small, follow the bell sheep every mother's son of you and in five years from now won't field trial dogs and field trial methods be fearful and wonderful to behold? Change the name now, don't wait, call them (excuse my audacity) Bird Coursing and establish telephone communications in every direction with operators to shout "Lost dog!" Then tell all the poor deluded mortals of sportsmen that they are conducted soley in their interest and for the sole purpose of bringing to the front the very best dogs for sportsmens' use and they poor chumps will believe you? They always do, for has not the American Field said, "that no man is qualified to judge of a field dog's performance, no matter how many years of experience he might possess in the field and with field dogs." To judge a field trial you must be inspired, so to speak, experience and horse sense goes for naught. Excuse me I am weary and must rest.

The coming Derby this January at Bakersfield should prove a good one. Let every one take the time necessary and attend and should you do so once, why you will go again if you are able to navigate. Come now, try it just this once, and I will say no more.

Now here we have it. (?) Here's a sample of brains. (?) Mr. Bryson had the audacious cheek to ask the English Oricle (?) a few sensible questions in a late issue of the American Field. Note the reply.

Mr. Bryson is not a careful reader. I never claimed that the Tennessee dogs could not run heats at a higher rate of speed than English setters. On the contrary, I know that Tennessee dogs have been lost to sight for hours, so fast have they run. But I do claim that no genuine lover of dogs will ruin, or try to ruin a breed to establish a race of sprinters. My argument is that the sprinters can be obtained without exterminating the English setter proper. These can be given a new name and classes can be provided for them at dog shows. Furthermore, men like the twin J. M. T.'s can be engaged to judge them, and the farce can proceed without doing much harm to the English setter—the shooting dog. Rather strange it is that a full reply to Mr. Bryson's letter will be found in my notes of last week printed simultaneously with Mr. Bryson's.

Here is another sample:

The individual who reported the Los Angeles dog show for the Breeder and Blackguard made a bold bid for "Mason's" style, but heavens how he slaughtered the dogs! It will be news to foxterrier fanciers that Belmont Volunteer is "pinched in muzzle." Next!

"A bold bid for Mason's style!" Heavens, this is the most unkindest cut of all. Mason's style indeed. (?)

There were going to be so many dogs at the California shows that folks were beginning to fear they could not be benched. "Jim" was to "draw" as judge, ne'er did before. The two shows, San Frrncisco and Los Angeles, did not have 400 dogs!

No Mortimer can not draw just a ltitle bit? Let his nibs tell it. Takes Mason to do that. (?) Flies or Fleas. He also seems very much exercised because Mr. Crowell has not seen fit to answer that gas bag effusion which he proudly and egotistically terms a scathing letter, hence the following, under a pen name ashamed to own his own although a fine one it is!

Mr. Ananias Russell Crowell has not yet answered that scathing letter of Mr. Mason's in this journal, April 22. Can it be answered? I should say not. Try the "gentlemanly silence" racket, Mr. Crowell, and get "sympathy," and above all remember that "it is un-American to state facts.

A fine person indeed to start harping on things American and un-American! A person to read his wild jabberings might for one moment believe he was an American and in love and sympathy with things American. Can the leopard change his spots? the zebra his strips? the skunk his odor? or the snake is poison? If so, then such as he are in sympathy with things American and Americans. Yet when they once arrive here in America you could not by any means once induce them to return to h'old Hingland. One would also presume that a person possessed with a cell or two of grey matter would know that a fact is a fact, be it true or false. Now try for one moment to comprehend it. I trust my readers will pardon the liberty I have taken with these details, but really the bray is in need of being cur-tailed.

Who will be the next victim to purchase another English crack? Is it not a pity that some of the judges (so called) could not follow suit, otherwise we will have them always here in this "blarsted" country.

Lynn, Mass., has suffered lately from a hydrophobia scare. The alleged mad dog, 'tis said, bit about thirty or more persons, and the newspapers are anxiously awaiting developments. Often have I seen a poor dog suffering from epilepsy brutily murdered by fanatics. I am thoroughly a non-believer in rabies, and a greater part of my life has been so situated as to be conversant somewhat in this respect.

Speaking of diseases brings me once more to an anatomical as well as a physical bon mot of Klam-Klam's, here it is as a quotation from Dalziel which he evidently endorses—"The chest must be capacious and the room obtained more by depth than width to give full action to the heart and lungs." (Italics mine). Heaven but this is physiology with a vengence. Carpenter, Huxley, Bernard, Flint, Yeo, where are you? We will next expect a learned thesis on pathology!

Well, who has accepted Mr. Watson's proposal for a quartette race? Now don't all speak up at once.

ALOIN.

Methods of Breeding.

The questions arising in the kennel world are numerous but back of all else lies the all important one of breeding. If the future of field sports is to be enhanced at all such enhancement must come from the increased pleasure to be derived from entering the field with a superior dog and by this means to make the most of the circumstances presented. In current, Forest and Stream Mr. B. Waters, of Chicago, treats the question of breeding as follows:

"The breeding of setters and pointers with a view to their improvement in form and working powers engages the attention and best efforts of a large humber of sportsmen in this country, and it is a fact, judging from their writings and methods of breeding, that their theories are practically the same. The most important consideration appears to be to have the greatest number of winning ancestors in the pedigrees, the only consideration being that the ancestory are winners, the full value thereof being acquired in a catchy pedigree which will suit the market promptly, breeders knowing from long experience that such pedigrees sell their stock quickly and well.

Many breeders point with pride to the fact that the pedigree of some dog or dogs traces back to the same dog or dam through perhaps a half dozen different lines of blood in the ancestors. They do not specify wherein such breeding has any advantages; but it sounds nice to report the name of some famous winner a number of times in a pedigree, his good qualities inferentially being distributed throughout the ancestry and fixed wherever his blood occurs. This naturally results in the selection of dogs for breeding purposes which are winners and whose parents were winners, the only consideration being that they were winners, the purpose being to build up a good selling pedigree, the quality of the produce being of secondary consideration.

That most men who imitate this method truly believe in its soundness, there is no doubt. Everything in the doggy world tends to prove the correctness of it, under the established order of things. At every turn one meets with evidence of the firm establishment of the popular ideas of breeding. The names of a few dogs constantly recur in pedigrees, and if there be a strange name in them, though the dog possessing it may be of the same race and the purest blood, such would be called "outcross" by men who pose as authorities. There is more humbug about the pedigree theories of breeding, as practiced in this country, than in all other doggy matters combined.

A dog, simply because he or she is a winner (and that is all which is usually considered), may not be all desirable as a sire or dam. He or she may be deficient in intelligence, or hard-headed, or lacking in endurance, or rattle-headed, or highly nervous, etc. How many breeders know anything whatever of the winners they breed to, aside from the one fact that they have made winnings? Many times owners send their bitches a thousand miles, perhaps, to be warded by dogs they never saw, their data being a pedigree table and the dog's record. They cannot possibly know anything of the dog's temper, intelligeuce, energy, disposition, manner of work, endurance, physical formation, etc., all necessary to know if one breeds dogs intelligently.

That inbreeding has injured the setters of this country I firmly believe. and this with all deference to the eminent authorities who differ from me. The injury is shown in many cases both physically and mentally, mostly the latter. This is shown by the large number of dogs which are highly nervous, or rattle-headed, ones which work with no plan or judgment, although they may keep very busy in their aimless fashion. Such dogs are difficult to train and never improve beyond a certain point, as they are not intelligent enough to manage their work. They have no plans of their own and have to be directed constantly.

It may be said in reply that the dogs at field trials show good capabilities and are intelligent. Such dogs, it should be remembered, are the picked lot of all the dogs bred, and many of these are not intelligent. The exhibition of what is called bird sense is becoming rarer every year. The cool judgment, the skillful management in being in the right place and working all details to the advantage of the gun, the knowledge and memory shown in working out the grounds intelligently in searching for birds are not seen in dogs of to-day as in those ten years ago.

Inbreeding, no doubt, up to a certain point, will establish more uniformity of type, although it can be carried to extremes, resulting in weediness or weak constitutions. It does not follow, however, that all cases of inbreeding will produce uniformity of type. Because certain lines of blood result in such uniformity, it does not follow that some other lines will do so. On the other hand, some families which are not inbred, have great uniformity. It is a notorious fact that the English setters of to-day are a most unsorty lot, varying greatly in form, size, color and coats. This is apparent at any bench show.

There is another feature about breeding which is misleading and tends to obstruct the best development of the breed. This is making an invidious distinction between the inbred dogs of fashionable pedigrees and all others. The distinction is made between "hot blood" and "cold blood," and "blue blood" and "native" or otherwise, which is simply nonsensical. The Llewellin, which is the favorite strain in this country, is simply a family of English setters, the origin of which was not as good as that of many families then in existence. The blood of Duke and Rhœbe, both short in pedigree, was crossed on Laverack blood, and Laverack's test of a dog's merits was in actual work, that being what he considered the most important data in breeding. Laverack's pedigrees are open to a great deal of suspicion, and if they are correct, they are certainly most marvelous. At all events, they have been the subject of much controverty and contain inconsistencies which have never been explained. This is not brought forward to cast any reflection on the merit of the dogs, for Laverack's system of breeding or on system produced good dogs. It is mentioned to show that the jargon about hot and cold blood, etc., is absurd. As applied to horses, such terms have a meaning, but dog breeding, particularly in this country, is a thing of yesterday compared to horse breeding.

These remarks are not to be understood as implying that there are no good well-bred dogs. There are such. The motive is to call attention to the prevailing bad theories of breeding.

The best way to be satisfied and to be thoroughly pleased with a gift, say of a watch, which is to be sprung on one as a surprise (?) is to go to the jewelry stores and pick out the gift yourself so that your friends' sacredly guarded secret may be left with full force to flash upon you at the proper moment It leaves one in a position to be thoroughly surprised, you know. Under such circumstances the recipient should be genuinely surprised by receiving a leather medal on which should be engraved the picture of a government mule with brazen cheeks and a loud, sonorous bray. The latter might be represented by the illustration of gradually enlarging rings of a metalic nature. A watch received as a special token of modesty should be too reticent to even tell the time; should cover its face with its hands, you know.

The Bay View Kennels' new litter of English setter puppies (Lee R.—Belle Gladstone) are as fine a litter as has been thrown in this State for many a day. The sire Lee R. (Rodney—Phyllis II) comes from the best of blood. Count Noble and Dashing Novice are his sires side, while Rake, Ruby, Leicester and ch x Petrel indicate the purity of his dam's side. Belle Gladstone (ch Gladstone—Zell) represents Royal I and Pride of the Border.

The puppies are healthy, strong and finely marked and we doubt not but they will prove a valuable addition to this section of the country.

Geo. W. Deberham, of this city, has purchased from C. Burgess Partney, England two foxterrier bitches that are now on their way by sailing vessel. The first of these is "Partney Chip," by Partney Donovan, out of Satchel, by Partney Flavour ex Nell. Partney Donovan, by Pitcher ex Lonely. The second bitch is Rose, by Tip ex Lill, by Rocket ex Wasp. Tip, by Rocket ex Nell. With these two, together with Frisco, Joker and Golden Gate, Mr. Deberham will have one of the leading foxterrier kennels on the coast.

Mr. P. D. Linville informs us that he has just received news from Sheriff E. D. Gibson, Los Angeles, that the highly prized English setter Blood Royal, sold by Mr. Linville to Mr. Gibson in January last has just died. Blood Royal was litter brother to Flake L. and Dottie Day, whose performances in the Derby last January won such favorable comment at Bakersfield, the first-mentioned winning second in an exceedingly close contest of great merit. He was a handsome dog of great promise.

In this issue Mr. John Heffernan offers his splendid rough-coated St. Bernard, Grand Chancellor (22,053), for sale. In so doing Mr. Heffernan is moved by a practical motive in favor of improving and spreading this breed on this coast. His only desire is to secure, in place of Grand Chancellor, a bitch of equally good breeding, to the end that the best stud dogs may become of practical service.

Dr. A. DeMonco, of Salt Lake, has entered a pointer puppy, liver and white, Helter Skelter (Sargeant Glenn ex Trot II.) for the Coursing Derby and will forward his nomination at once so that she may be trained on California birds. This action is most commendable and should encourage our local fancy very much. The sportsmen of the Rockies are at a loss for game birds else the regions of Salt Lake and Denver would not be without annual meetings of this nature.

Mr. James Mortimer sailed on Saturday last on the steamer Alaska for Europe. The object of Mr. Mortimer's trip is for the improvement and benefit of Hempstead Farm. If critical observation, enhanced by a wealth of experience fail to bring profit from his visit it will be because the conditions are unfavorable. We wish him a pleasant and profitable journey.

In handing us a copy of his letter of resignation as President of the California Kennel Club Mr. E. P. Schell stated that he did so in a proper light on subjects connected with the club which we commented upon in last week's issue.

Mr. E. A. Rix is negotiating for a number of fine Collies, among which are Fordhook's Smilax and Fordhook's Paragon. The dogs will probably be brought on during the coming month.

J. B. Martin, of this city, has for disposal a splendid litter of foxterriers by Woodale Rustic ex Blemton Rupture. They are nicely marked and are exceedingly well bred.

Fred Lees, Esq., son of Captain Lees, is about to take up greyhounds and has already purchased one from Hugh McCracken.

ROD.

Tarpon Fishing in Florida.

April last found me on the coast of Florida in quest of fish and pleasure. In company of my boatman and fisherman (a man who loved the life for its own pleasure besides the bread and butter in it), we rode along the ocean shore and finally came to anchor opposite the mouth of an inlet that ran from the ocean into a long river, which ran a mile or so back from the ocean, and mostly parallel with it, says a correspondent in Shooting and Fishing.

It was in the late afternoon of a clear day; the tide was still running out from the inlet, but was almost turning. The round moon was well above the horizon in the east, but looked cold and colorless, dominated by the yet bright rays of the setting sun. We were in the midst of life and motion. At times the fins or tail of a shark would emerge from the water, or a school of cavellas or of Spanish mackerel would pass along, and occasionally the huge dark head of a sea cow or manatee would be visible. Soon my sharp-eyed boatman, in an excited manner, exclaimed, "There he is!" and looking as his finger directed, I saw the glistening silver side of a tarpon as he swam rapidly near the surface.

I seized my Heckscher rod of noib wood, and adroitly cast the mullet on my hook as bait, just ahead of the "Silver King," but he paid no attention to it. Soon these fish were breaking all around us. They had evidently come in from the ocean beyond, in quest of food. At times they would pass quite clase to our boat, but in vain I cast to them my bait; they would not take it. My boatman said they would not strike until the moon was strong on the water, and as the departing rays of the sun was still to be seen, I desisted from my efforts.

I had not long to wait. Almost at once the sun was succeeded by the moon. The transition was a magical one, and day was night without a break. The full moon was obscured, and the waters sparkled and danced in its rays. The tide had turned to flood, and was running strongly, and the waves were breaking noisily over the reefs and shallow places around us. Our boat was a small row boat, and was tumbling and pitching about in the current most uneasily.

Again I made a cast, and my bait had hardly fallen when, with a rush and splash it was seized by a tarpon. A quick jerk of the rod to hook him was followed by his giving a great leap straight into the air, so that with head erect, his tail was at least four or five feet above the water; then with distended mouth he gave such a shake and snap of the head that hook and mullet went flying in different directions, many feet away.

The tarpon have no teeth, and their mouths are of tough, strong bone, so that only in the angles of the jaw or in the tongue can the hook easily penetrate. A slight ridge around and just inside the upper lip may sometimes arrest the point of the hook, and, by good luck, may then be forced through the bone or tough cartilage. Unless well hooked, the angler has small chance of securing his prey, but if the hook remains after the first few terrific leaps and shakes, he has about an even chance.

I have another bait, and after a few casts, another strike, the jerk and splash of which is met by a quick movement of the rod. For a few seconds the reel sings along, and then stops, for the fish now makes his leap high into the air, and falls with a heavy splash back again into the water. My companion cannot help exclaiming "What a beauty!"

Again the reel merrily hums, and then another leap and still another. How fiercely he shakes his head, and how lustrous and beautiful he appears in the bright rays of the moon. Back in his native element he dashes off on a long, mad run, and the reel sings that music than which there can be none more heavenly in the ears of the sportsman. The flood tide is running strongly now, and he has to labor and strain against this, as well as the steady spring of the rod in my hands, and so his pace grows slower and slower and then stops. He has taken but a few hundred feet of line, but the effort must have been terrible, for too exhausted to maintain his position he now slowly gives way to the steady and relentles pull on him as you wind up the reel slowly, and most watchfully. Soon you think he must be close to the boat, and you peer excitedly into the moonlit waters to catch the first glimpse of his shining sides, so near by, but he has seen you first, and with a rush he is off again, and the reel again sings its praises to his prowers.

In this way the fight goes on until at last, nearly dead with exhaustion, he is brought, rather floating than swimming, alongside the boat, and you see exultingly how big and strong and beautiful he is. The moon's rays scintillate and glisten from his sides like gems. The boat is small and unsteady, pitching and tossing in the rough waters, and how to get him into the boat is quite a problem. With the aid of two gaffs the feat is finally accomplished, and the huge fish falls his length along the bottom of the boat. Time is too precious to attempt removing the hook, so the line is cut, another hook attached and passed through the head of a mullet and cast into the water—at not thirty feet from the boat it is seized. The same, or similar leaps and runs and experiences take place, and to the noble fish in the boat is added a companion bigger even than he was.

After this I have many strikes but all escape sooner or later, and I wonder at my luck in having taken the first two so quickly. One I lose is a very large one for he passes in one of his mad rushes close to the boat, and seeing us, makes a beautiful leap and is off. For consolation I resolve to try again, although the night is passing and the muscles are some tired. I shall always be glad I did so, for I captured this time one of the kings of the tribe. At his first great leap we saw he was a monster, and finally when alongside the boat, we hardly knew how to make room for him in it. When at last we slid him over its side and he fell on top of his two companions, we could realize his size, for the others seemed small by comparison. His head rested between my legs at the stern of the boat, and his tail between the legs of my companion, near the bow. The next morning we found our catch to measure and weigh as follows:

One weighing 160 lbs. and 5 feet 10 inches long.
One	"	87	"	"	5	" 6	" "
One	"	195	"	"	7	" 0	" "

This last one I will give further particulars about as I believe he was one of the largest ever taken:

[illegible]	inches around gills.
42½	"	" stomach.
13½	"	" last dorsal fin.
10½	"	" tail.

When taken from the water he must have weighed close to 200 pounds.

The following night I killed two other tarpon—one of 105 lbs. 5 feet 8 inches; one of 85 lbs. and 5 feet 7 inches.

Catching Fish By the Tail.

Oakland, June 1, 1892.

An article in last week's Breeder and Sportsman, "Clubbing Torpid Fish," recalls an experience of the writer several years ago in the Nooksachk Valley, in the northwestern county of the State of Washington. Sumas creek, which rises in British Columbia and paralells the boundery line, is a tributary of the Frazer river, and drains thousands of acres of swamp land on both sides of the 49th parallel. Several good-sized creeks empty into the Sumas, and are in turn fed by smaller streams, the outlets of the swamps. The latter are shallow, filled with brush and fallen timber. The "holes" are not more than two feet deep, and many "bars" are formed by the action of the water. A salmon seeking a place to spawn is a dauntless traveler. They go up the larger streams and then into the branches, and swim, jump, wiggle and flounder through the holes and over bars and logs as far as they can go. In the fall of 1879, the first year of my residence in that section, word was received that the salmon were running up "the creek" in large numbers. "The creek" was about two miles distant. Accompanied by an old gentleman who had speared fish in Eastern waters I started for the fishing ground, each of us armed with a hastily-improvised gaff. Arriving at the stream we found the salmon very plentiful, and traveling up stream as fast as the numerous obstacles would permit. We each stationed ourselves on a log crossing the stream and waited spear in hand, for a fish to make a target of himself. We had not long to wait—they came thick and fast. Whether our aim was too uncertain, or the salmon were too rapid for effectual work, I can not say, but we managed to miss all of them. Just above where I was standing was a wide bar, over which the fish floundered, and then into a hole on the other side. While watching them wiggle over this I noticed the tail of one sticking out from under a log in the hole. Making my way up to where it was I waded in and, catching Mr. Fish by the tail, gave a quick jerk and landed him on the bank. My success at this mode of catching salmon was a signal for my companion to forsake his gaff, and "wade in" too. Following the salmon in their course, and nabbing one when ever we could get a good "tail-hold," we traveled up stream about two miles. We were overtaken by two neighbors, who had come to the creek armed with pitchforks, but who soon followed our mode, when they saw how successful it was. And it was exciting, too. Many a fall did we get, and many a time did we get a fish by the tail, and after an exciting tussel let them go, simply because we could not hold on to them long enough to get them ashore. Into the next hole they would go, and into the hole we went after them. Finally we started home. Gathering up our fish as we went along, and stringing them on willow withes, we found that we soon had more than we could carry, so we took to the water again and dragged our catch after us as far as a clear stream permitted, lifted them over and pushed them under logs until finally we reached our starting point. We could not drag them over the ground, so we had to get a wagon to take our fish home in. We had fresh fish for several days and had salt fish all winter. The combined catch of the four of us amounted to over 300 fine salmon. Finback.

The angling in California has never been better than that presented this season. The chief wonder is that certain streams and famous resorts should still continne to furnish the means of sport, after being fished continually season after season by the multitude of anglers from this city.

The Lincoln Gun Club's Tournament.

On Sunday June 12th the Lincoln Gun Club will hold its open tournament at the club's grounds at Alameda Point. Eight matches have been arranged, the first of which will be at twenty-five targets, five traps, entrance $4, guaranteed purse $20. There will, no doubt, be a most pleasant season of sport at that time.

THE FARM.

Where We Were Boys.

D'you mind the mountain farm, old boy, where you an' me was kids?
An' how we laid o' summer nights an' heard the katydids,
An' whippoorwills a-pipin' out and fiddlin' 'mong the stooks,
An' how we usen't dare to speak for fear we'd raise the spooks?
Can't you mind the springhouse still, where all the milk's was kep',
An' how our little toes would ache, a-standin' on the step?

Our house was neat an' tasty, the barn was full o' hay,
A-purpose so as me an' you could romp a rainy day.
What fun to climb fer huckleberries, tip-top of the hill,
An' set our traps fer rabbits in the meadow by the mill!
An' don't you know that moss-grown trough, deep in a forest glade,
Where tinkle, tinkle, went the spring, a sing-in' while we played?

Somehow I took to hankerin' to see the farm again,
An' view the spots that seemed so bright before we two was men.
Ez frisky ez a colt I clum the dear old hill once more—
I wish to God I'd stayed away; my heart is sick an' sore.
The farm, old boy, was dead an' gone—the bones was scattered round;
I felt like in a graveyard, where ghouls has tore the ground.

The chimbley's fallen off the house, the barn's without a roof;
The springhouse shed is tumbled in—its full o' leaves an' stuff.
Where mother used to set her crocks down in the spring to cool,
An' turn an' kiss us when we'd come a-bouncin' home from school.
The wind sweeps through the stable, an' the stall where Old Nell died
Is filled clean to the manger-top with snow that's blowed inside.

A great big lump come in my throat, thet cough drops couldn't cure
I turned to hunt the moss-grown trough and spring so cold and pure,
I found the trough upon its side, and rotted quite away;
The spring was dried—I dunno why, but I jes' couldn't stay,
Fer't seemed so sad an' lonesome there, an' voices filled my ears
That you and me hain't heard at all fer morn'nt twenty years.

I couldn't somehow trust myself to go back past thet scene,
But sneaked away along the creek—I never felt so mean,
Sence when our little blue-jay died, an' we tried hard not to cry,
An' made a drizzling failure at it, blubbering on the sly,
I hain't a-tellin' what I done a-comin' down thet road,
But when 'twas over, like, I felt relieved of quite a load.

I'm never goin' back no more t' thet graveyard of a place,
Fer spooks walks there in broad daylight thet I don't care to face;
I'd ruther treasure up them scenes, afore the place was dead,
An' hang 'em round like pictures on the inside of my head,
An' ef any man should ask me: Where's the farm you once lived on?
I'll say: It's gone to Heaven, where the dear old folks is gone.

Raising Calves by Hand.

I sold one of the best veal calves, and it had new milk only one week. It was the first calf of a Jersey heifer, weighed at six weeks old 140 pounds, and brought the best price. I did not keep the mother's milk separate, but I estimate that she made five pounds of butter a week during this time and we can count about $6 net profit from feeding the calf by hand rather than letting it suck, and in these days of low prices this is not to be overlooked. I shall never again let a calf suck after three days old. I have no trouble to teach a calf to drink since I adopted the rule of allowing it to suck three days. In that time its bowels are cleared out, it developes a healthy appetite, and as it is soon ravenously hungry it takes to the milk at once. For many years I practiced taking calf from cow soon as born, and I had no end of trouble to teach it to drink. Many farmers think a hand-raised calf must of necessity be scrawny, pot-bellied, long haired and unthrifty. When so, it is the fault of the feeder. I have proved in perhaps fifty cases that addition of oilmeal to skim-milk will make it as good for a calf as new milk. Not every calf on skim-milk and oilmeal will do as well as if it sucked the cow, for many careless feeders will give the calf cold milk at times, feed it too much, and again not enough, and will vary the time of feeding so that sometimes it will be several hours longer between meals than at others. The one word "regular" covers the secret of success, and it must be applied to temperature, amount, time and quality of food. Begin with half a gill of oilmeal (I have always used the old process and prefer it), pour a pint of boiling water over it and stir till it is smooth and then stir it into the milk. Increase the quantity gradually up to about a gill and a half by the time the calf is three weeks old, and if it is for veal, feed this amount daily as long as you keep it.

If you are raising the calf, begin sprinkling wheat bran in its trough at three weeks old, and when it gets to eating bran well, gradually reduce the quantity of oil meal, and when the calf will eat a pint or more of bran at a feed, you can discontinue the oatmeal. If you are raising the calf, or keeping it till more than four weeks old, give it little hay each day. Good, bright clover or fine second-crop hay is best, and the calf will soon learn to eat it with great relish, and it will regulate the bowels and prevent danger of scours. When the calf is to be sold for veal, teach it to eat shelled corn as soon as possible. A calf will usually begin to eat corn at three weeks old if it is put in a trough, and in a week or two will eat two or three ears a day, and it will be a great help to it. A young calf has very strong digestive powers, and you will never see a whole grain in its excrement as you do in that of older cattle, and, by keeping the calf a month after it begins to eat corn, it can be made very fat. Remember, if the calf is to be raised, bran is much the better food, as it furnishes the material to build up bone and muscle rather than fat.

One thing more of importance: Keep the calf clean. Use plenty of bedding; clean out its stable often, and never allow it to lie in a wet or filthy place. I prefer sawdust for bedding to almost any other material, but corn or wheat chaff or straw will answer, if renewed often enough. Every farmer should have some box-stalls with permanent feed troughs and small racks for hay in which to feed young calves. A stall 4 by 6 feet is large enough, and I prefer a V trough, as the calf can eat its food clean better in it than in a flat-bottomed trough. I have noticed that a calf that runs with its mother in pasture rarely makes so gentle a cow as the one raised by hand and accustomed to being fed and handled; and the only cows I have had give me any trouble for years have been those raised with the cow. I think that an intelligent use of the skim milk ought to give the dairyman a profit of not less than $15 a year from each cow whether fed to calves or pigs, but it will give greatest profit to the man most careful in using it.—WALDO F. BROWN.

A Big Creamery.

Vermont claims the largest creamery in the world. It is at St. Albans. The building is three stories high and has 9,000 square feet of floor surface. The first floor is used for receiving the milk, separating the cream, and churning. In the second story is the cream-room, in which are ten tanks, with a capacity of 600 gallons. Tubs, salt and boxes are stowed on the third floor. The milk of 12,000 cows is made into butter here, 10,000 pounds of butter being the daily product. A carload of salt is used by the creamery every two months. Sixty persons are employed, including a chemist, whose business is to ascertain by tests how much the milk of different herds is worth. His test is made in the following manner: "He carefully measures a small quantity of milk into a flask, adds acid to take out the curd, and puts it into a centrifugal machine to bring out the butter fat. After revolving for a few minutes at 1,000 revolutions a minute the butter fat has risen into the neck of the flask, where the percentage can be read easily on the graduated scale. The average of butter fat in the milk is a trifle under 4 per cent, but the extremes are 3.25 and 4.75. This method demonstrates almost absolutely butter-making qualities of a herd, and will raise the standard of cows wherever it is followed, as no dairyman will continue to keep cows that give poor milk."

Calves Scouring.

There is no money in raising cattle if the calves are not cared for. These young things are the foundations on which the big beef steer is built, therefore the importance to the beef interests of the country that the calf is carefully guided past the age of scouring free from any of these debilitating influences. Hand-fed calves are more subject to this disease than the suckling. The trouble can always be traced to some bad management in feeding or exposure. The preventive is of vastly more importance to the farmer than the remedy. Guard against over-feeding; it will not do to miss a feed and then gorge the calf by an over-feed; this deranges digestion and the calf is very soon noticed with less appetite, and a continuation of this kind of feeding is what makes the long haired, pot-bellied, sickly-looking calf; the calf that scours easily and gives you so much trouble in doctoring.

The calf should be fed at regular intervals and a fixed quantity given at each feed. The trough or bucket should be kept sweet and clean, not allowed to get sour and stink like an old swill barrel. Plenty of water should be provided at all times in the calf pasture. Should you have a calf scour one of the best and simplest remedies is raw eggs. The first appearance of scours in a calf should be promptly treated by dropping an egg down the calf's throat. The best way to do this is to get astride its neck, have the egg with shell broken off one end and hold its mouth open while your assistant empties the egg well back on the calf's tongue. A little practice will soon learn you the operation. A little wheat flour put into the milk is a good think and aids greatly in checking scours. The eggs are good for the calf, sick or well, and cannot be put to a much better use.

Buy Pedigreed Stock.

In the buying of breeding stock buy pedigreed animals, even down to the dog. The guarantee you receive by the pedigree does not injure the animal; on the contrary it is in its favor. It is not always the case that a thoroughbred animal, one of good pedigree, is an excellent animal, or will prove a valuable sire. He has more in his favor, however, than the animal of similar appearance who is of doubtful breeding or relationship. We often hear such expressions as "I want the animal, you can have the pedigree. Give me an animal to suit my ideas and I don't care whether he is pedigreed or not; pedigree cuts no figure with me: it's the animal I want."

These men don't mean what they say. Their expressions would lead you to believe that they would just as soon have a good grade bull as a thoroughbred of equal physical development and general good appearance, when, in fact, they would not take a grade as a gift, if they knew it, to use for breeding purposes.

Pedigree, as it is presented on paper or registry does not have any influence on the crop of calves, and if the bull is all right according to our ideal, and we are satisfied that he is pure bred when we are making the purchase, possibly we would not care for the written evidence, yet if some one was to whisper in our ear, "Look out, that is only a grade bull," we would very soon change our mind on the animal. The facts are that pedigree is in demand; if we don't get it or don't demand it, we are very careful to know that it is accessible, that the animal is eligible to such evidence of family history.

The farmer should be more exacting in evidence of purity of blood of the breeding stock he purchases. Not only should he require a pedigree, but a certificate of sale and a certificate of registry. This would bring all representations of breeding down to rock bottom. The fraud and imposition so often practised on careless buyers by dishonest dealers and breeders would soon be cornered, and a better condition of the improved stock industry would follow.

Why Poor Stock?

One thing that we cannot understand, is why some men who are so particular about the crops they grow, buying the best implements, with all the lastest improvements, for their cultivation, growing the largest crops possible and harvesting them in the best manner, pay no attention at all to the sort of stock to which they feed them. It is an anomaly in our farm practice, something that cannot be explained on any reasonable or sensible basis, and yet we see it done every day. Men who would laugh at the idea of following so old a method as to cut their hay with a scythe, who would hardly use a mower except of the most approved pattern, will not keep cattle that are twenty years behind the times to eat their hay. There has been just as much improvement during late years in our farm stock as in the implements with which we cultivate our land, and it will pay the farmer even better to keep up with the modern progress in this line than in any other. Some say they do not believe in thoroughbred stock; then they should not believe in improved machinery, in drainage, in the silo, in the early maturity of fattening cattle, in growing of sheep for both mutton and wool, in any of the things that are helping to make our agriculture to-day a better agricultural than that of a generation ago. Some say they cannot afford any expenditure that tends toward better farming, for stock, and good stock, too, is the beginning and end of agricultural progress.

Success with hogs consists, not in feeding an all fat making diet, but in affording the elements which build the frame and muscle with a little heat and fat making food like corn. The hogs fed to clover from their earliest feeding days to within forty days of being shipped to the stock yards and have two feeds of corn a day with clover, will, in the estimation of the best feeders make the most and most desirable pork.

How to Raise Heifers.

"Right here," says M. King, in the Ohio Farmer, "I want to say a word about feeding those choice calves that are to build up our herd. I think it best for the cow, and decidedly best for the calf, to let the latter remain with the cow at least three days. I do not wish you to understand me to advocate letting the calf have all the milk for this length of time. Take all you can get twice a day, the calf will be sure to get enough. When you do take the calf away, the better way to have them in a stable and quietly drive the cow out, letting the calf remain, so she does not see you take it from her. Keep it where she can neither see nor hear it, if possible. Leave it alone for twelve hours. Offer it some milk warm from the cow. It will generally suck the finger and about the next feed it should drink alone. Give one-half skimmed sweet milk until two weeks old, when it will make a better animal for the purpose you are raising it, if feed sweet skimmed milk with the addition of a very little oil meat or wheat bran, better, in fact, than if fed on whole milk. This manner of feeding will give a growthy calf of large eating capacity, which is very desirable in a cow. We all know that the more a cow eats the more butter she will make. She needs a certain amount to supply her body, and all over and above that she puts into the bucket. Feed a calf on fresh milk and very rich feed, and it will get into the habit of laying on flesh, and it will be hard to get rid of this characteristic in the cow. It is a safe rule to discard any cow that gets fat while in full flow of milk. You may be certain her mild is deficient in butter fats."

To Exterminate Ants and Weevil.

The following is taken from Bulletin No. 14 of the Mississippi Agricultural Station: "Bisulphide of Carbon. This is a volatile liquid, the fumes of which are very destructive to animal life. It is an explosive substance, and for this reason should be used with care. If kept away from fire, however, it can be used with comparative safety. It is used to destroy ants with much success. A hole is made in the hills by means of a round stick or crobar and a small quantity of the bisulphide is poured into it. The whole is then filled by pressing the earth around it, and as the fumes of the bisulphide penetrates the hill the ants will be effectually destroyed. It is also effectually used in destroying grain weevils. If it is put into the center of the bin by means of a tube the fumes will soon destroy all grain insects or grain weevils which may be within the bin."

Dairying will pay, the croakers to the contrary notwithstanding. There are a few people going out of this industry and going into other pursuits, but it is not because it has not paid. Some allege this to be the reason, but it is scarcely true. It is true that it may not pay, as their advanced ideas of what profit should be are inclined to think it should, but it is one of the best industries in the State nevertheless. As evidence of this we have only to cite that no one has ever yet failed in it, and no one has ever yet gone out of the business poor. Some get tired of the confinement, the hard work and close attention it entails, and in their prosperity concluded that these things are too small for them to engage in, but all are bound to confess that it has always been a source of fair profit. It requires a great deal of hard work, is very confining, and those who follow it cannot become wealthy in a season, but it is the surest and best industry in the whole list of rural pursuits for a poor man not afraid of work to engage in. The market can never be overstocked and a first-class article invariably commands the extra price. Hundreds of the best people all over this State have made their start at dairying, and hundreds more will lay the foundation of fortune by the same method.

In raising pigs, as well as all other kinds of stock, the selection of the sire and dam has very much to do with the amount of profit realized. To begin with it is quite an item to secure good, healthy, vigorous sires and dams, if you want strong, active and rapid-growing pigs. After you have the pigs it is much easier to maintain a healthy, vigorous growth than it will be to start them again if they are once stunted. In order to meet with success the right start must be made. This can be done by selecting the right kind of breeding stock. The male, invariably should be a thoroughbred. He should in addition, possess individual merit with vigor enough to transmit his good qualities to his offspring. To increase this value in the offspring, sows of the same breed as the male, which have been carefully selected, should be used. Yet there can be a good grade of pigs raised if a full-blood boar is used on a well-selected lot of well-matured grade sows. Immature breeding lessens the vitality and if kept up is certain to show the effect in weak and puny pigs.

A MAN who keeps his fence repaired, his gates swinging on their hinges, his barn doors hung, his buildings painted, farm machinery out of the front yard, brush and boards and straw in proper places, is likely to find many other desirable conditions attending him. His crops come out in the best condition, and he gets a good price for them. His tools last longer, and he saves money. His whole business management is careful, and he makes money. Things look nice around the house, and his wife wears one or more bright smiles. He is the man who, whether he is a millionaire or not, is always in a position to enjoy himself. Don't consider this superficial. There is philosophy in it, and wisdom, too.

The creamery is a public benefactor. It begins the work of caring for the milk product at a point at which it can be met by every man who cares to take advantage of its facilities. It puts it in the power of every man to know exactly what he is getting for his dairy product. It puts the business on a cash basis. It affords its customers the satisfaction of knowing that the product, intelligently cared for in their own hands, when transferred to the creamery, carries with it a value of its own, which is built upon to the best possible advantage and enhanced through the instrumentality of that co-operative institution. It educates the public taste to a higher standard. It inculcates system in every household within the scope of its influence.—T. J. Hitte.

A TEACHER from Kansas found in Toronto, Canada, the most wonderful four corners in the world. They are occupied by a church, the governor-general's palace, a university and a saloon, "representing education, legislation, salvation and damnation."

A SCOTCHMAN who wanted to sell some bees inserted the following advertisement in the local paper: "Extensive sale of live stock, comprising no less than 140,000 head, with unlimited right of pasturage."

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

HOME AGAIN. "The merry month of May." Anno Domino 1892, has been full of incidents to me; the measure heaped with enjoyments, the only disagreeabilities being the weather, so different from the "glorious" of the past eighteen May months that it is difficult for our folk to appreciate the opposite conditions which prevailed. Snow, rain, an absence of sunshine for nearly the whole period; twenty-seven days of cold, gloominess, dull dreariness—so far as weather could bring—depression, mud, water, or, rather, a liquid which had the fluidity of water in some degree, but so mixed with various-colored earths that there was little resemblance to the "bright, sparkling" raindrops which fell from the ever-present, overhanging clouds. The whole country, at least that portion of it which approached a level, submerged; the hills so thoroughly soaked that when the soil had a mixture of clay it was of the consistence of mortar. Cold rains, too, a little more caloric in the atmosphere than prevailed during the three-feet snowfall at Cheyenne, but with frigidity sufficient to keep the buds from swelling and retard the blossoming of the earliest flowers a month beyond the usual time.

Twenty-seven days of gloom, two days of comparatively spring weather. Not the springtime of California—the bright February days when the morning sunbeams gild Tamalpais, and there is a blaze of glory in the evening, from the portals of the Golden Gate to the far-off western horizon—an ocean of brilliancy. Not the March and April days, when the pastures are green and the hillsides are clothed with masses of flowers, and the foals—big, lusty fellows—are gamboling around their dams, and the grain is waving in the fields, and the later-flowering fruit trees redolent with perfume; spring verging into summer ere Mayday is reached; Flora, triumphant with her sister goddess, Pomona, ready to play her part in distributing joy and happiness over their favored dominions. A day in May, anywhere from the first to the last of the month, in California, should not be selected for comparison with those of the East, and even the finest of June days in the Orient will fall behind. And yet the two days mentioned were such glad intervals in the monotone of clouds, wet and general dreariness that, like "angels' visits," they were welcomed with rapture, and are now recalled with pleasure.

On the trip eastward snow followed the rain at Green River, sleety at first; as the train gained a higher elevation it came in soft flakes, but so thick that trees were shadow-like only a few yards from the track, and at Cheyenne there were three feet of the "beautiful," which had fallen in a few hours. There was plenty of rain along the Platte; the Missouri was swollen, boisterous and turbid. Still the rain fell, and the DesMoines was seeking new channels. The upper Mississippi was not so easily put out of bounds, and from Davenport to Dubuque there were only occasional showers. That night, however, the floodgates were opened wide, and for many hours it seemed as though old Pluvius intended sending it down in sheets in place of mammoth drops. A short let-up which gave the opportunity of visiting Highland Farm in a close carriage, and the old guardian of the floods was kind enough to shut the gates while Nutwood and his many fine descendants were led from their stalls. But in return for this favor, to make amends, perhaps, for so much complacency, he changed the programme. Thunder rolled down the ravines, echoing from the bluffs, crashing among the steeples and chimneys, while the forked lightning leaped in every direction. One poor woman was killed in the midst of her children, and to an ear which was unused to this elemental artillery, an eye unaccustomed to electrical pyrotechnics, it seemed that there was extreme danger in every discharge. The heavy rainfall was followed by a breaking away of the clouds, and the day following gave glimpses of the sun, and there were blue patches of sky and a clearer air. Only for one day and part of another, and again there was gloom. Plows had started on the hillsides during the brief interval, and the few furrows were striped across the fields. There were hopes of getting the corn planted when the leaves on the crab-apple trees were the size of a mouse's ear, but that was a fanciful vision, as the rain came day after day and kept coming till the smaller streams were magnified into rivers and the low lands into lakes. The moon changed and kept changing, and the optimistic prophesies which foretold better weather with the first quarter, and surely better when the full, bright disc was turned towards the earth, were vain illusions. Neither dark or bright of the moon availed, and the middle of May was a thing of the past when there came well-grounded hopes that springtime had really put in an appearance.

On the 17th of May I reached Binghamton, N. Y., and in the neighborhood of high noon was on the way to Silver Lake, thirteen miles away. A warmer day than any of its predecessors since the month came in, and the meridian sun was only partially obscured by light, fleecy clouds. The driver "talked horse" and descanted on the grand results which were to follow the building of the kite-shaped track on the banks of the Susquehanna, and though the short journey occupied nearly three hours, the change of temperature was so gratifying, and noting the changes which had taken place in the twenty-four years which had elapsed since the route was travelled before took away the irksomness of the slow progress. The next day was still fairer. A row from the foot of the lake to the "point" and back, recalling every little cove, every tree which grew there more than fifty years ago, and which are yet in full vigor; it was a grand boon that the scenes of my boyhood and early youth were reproduced at so favorable a time. In harmony with my recollections, the bright days being more forcibly impressed on the memory than the dawn of a late spring or the discomforts of "dreary November," the clear sunlit water, more in accordance with the "pleasures of memory" than the reflection of dark clouds and pattering raindrops raising bubbles on the surface. Of all the small lakes I ever saw this is the gem, and a description of it which I wrote twenty-five years ago is still accurate so far as the natural beauties are concerned. The fine villa was destroyed by fire, and the south end of the lake is now the most attractive feature, and a month or so later the laurels and rhododendrons will be in full bloom, and then the picture of long time ago will be reproduced. It is copied from Horse Portraiture and may not be out of place in an outline sketch of my late trip.

A little lake—so small, indeed, that its length hardly rivals with the width of your majestic stream—(the Mississippi)—nestling among emerald hills. The hill in the background is covered with a dense growth of hemlock, the dark green of which is relieved by the bright hue of the deciduous trees, now in their most brilliant garments, while tall pines shoot their spires from the summit away up in the blue firmanent. The hill to the right is carpeted as thickly with grass as the famed pastures you have described; groups of scattered trees breaking the uniformity, with large dark-colored rocks beetling from the side in bold relief. Large flocks of sheep are grazing on the sides of the hill, the lambs playing and gamboling as if every minute of their existence was too precious to be lost. To the left the hills slope gradually, forming a little valley through which the outlet runs. Away in the distance, as far as the eye can distinguish, the hills swell into magnitude enough to be called mountains, and it is difficult to tell where land and sky meet.

Not a breath of air ruffled this fairy sheet the morning of my arrival; and the hills, woods and sky were reflected from it as faithfully as the most polished mirror gives back the form that stands before it. The few fleecy, snow-white clouds that hung motionless away in the zenith looked just as distant in the depths of the water, and almost gave you the sensation of being above the clouds, looking down on terrestrial scenery.

The beach is white sand, almost rivaling the snow in fairness; its contour on the wooded side is a sweeping curve, while that towards you is broken into bays and inlets. All the way round the lake the underwood is of dense growth, and both the broad-leaved and common laurel extend quite to the water's edge. I cannot picture the bloom, though I doubt if the Vale of Cashmere ever equalled the brilliant display. Large crimson masses of flowers in gorgeous profusion, alternated with as abundant blossoms of snowy white, so heavy that they fairly laden the twigs, and rest on the silver water. At the foot of the hill, where the cattle and sheep are grazing—or rather on a slight eminence this side—is an irregularly constructed Italian villa. The irregularity of the structure makes it more in harmony with the scene. The western wing is surmounted with a dome and cupola. To the east the building is not so high, and above the centre is a large conservatory, the glare of the glass mellowed by the climbing plants inside. On the very eastern extremity rise two square turrets, between which is a colossal statue of an antlered buck, the attitude being that of watchful rest. Along the south wall of the building is a sort of battlement, forming supports for marble statues, representing nearly all the gods of Heathen Mythology. They were sculptured in Italy, having been captured by a privateer when on their way to adorn the park of some English nobleman, and are of rare workmanship. The lawn in front of the building extends to the coppice that makes such an appropriate setting to the pellucid water. A carriage-road is cut in a sinuous form through the turf of the lawn, and vases and statues are interspersed beneath the trees. The road leads to a summer-house on the bank of the lake; the house is ornamented with representations of fish and fruit beautifully carved. Towards the lake there is a ballustrade, several steps leading from it to the water; tiny boats are moored there, the white sails hanging listlessly against the masts. A walk leads from this summer-house adown the bank, the laurel meeting overhead, and forming an arch of wondrous beauty. Looking up, there is nothing to be seen but a canopy of brilliant-colored flowers, intermingled with polished dark-green leaves. The walk leads to the point of land that forms the bay on the eastern shore, which sweeps round in a sharp curve to the left. At this point is another ornamental summer-house, but on a different plan from the larger. The lower part of it is hidden from the house by a group of pines, though when you ascend the stairs to the upper story you are more entranced than ever with the different views seen from that point. Every inch of the lake is under your eye, and through openings in the trees detached pictures—any of which, if truthfully depicted, would make a reputation for an artist—are visible. The house is only partially in view, the portion seen being that which makes the most beautiful background to the sylvan picture. The section of the lawn seen through this vista is perfect in its details—trees, shrubs, flowers, vases and statuary, all being in the very best places for effect. You turn to another opening in the pines, and the turrets, dome and images on the house stand in bold relief against the western sky."

Many old-time happenings on this lake and the neighboring woods should be worthy of a place in the Rod and Gun department of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as it was a famous place for shooting and fishing—hundreds of deer brought to their end in its crystal waters, and in it and another lake a few miles away there was a variety of trout, only found in them, which grew to a large size and so game as to afford fine sport for the angler.

That was the second fine day of the journey, but that succeeding it was so cold that a heavy overcoat and robes were necessary accompaniments to the drive. Heavy rains again; the wires told of snow in the New England States, and it was almost too cold to snow in on the Pennsylvania hills. Rain in New York, rain on Long Island. Fortunate in meeting Mr. L. J. Rose, I had a guide to Gravesend, for the changes which have taken place in the twenty-one years since my last visit made a guide, if not an actual necessity, a great comfort.

A "slushy" track, horses and jockeys mud-splashed and woe-begone. The fine adjuncts and the inspiring strains of Levy's band were insufficient to overcome the dreariness, and even the cheers which greeted the victors sounded lugubrious to one who had to walk briskly on the brick esplanade to keep up a fair degree of warmth. Hearty they were, however, and in such a volume that rain and cold could not repress the ardor or chill the enthusiasm of the Eastern devotees of the turf. With thousands to witness the racing on a day when there were so many discomforts, I could fully understand what immense concourses should gather in favorable weather. On the following day there was constant rain, and yet the account came that thousands were in attendance.

From 3 P. M. to 6 o'clock of the next morning is all the time that is necessary to make the journey from New York to Meadville, and I was congratulating myself that the few hours which could be passed there would be rainless. Drizzling at first, a pronounced rainfall succeeding, and yet I saw much to interest which will be noted hereafter. Sunol never looked so well. Maturity has done a great deal, and the trim miss has become rounded into full form, a form which, with the exception of the ultra slope in the hip, is hard to excel.

Chicago again, and again rain and lowering clouds. Garfield Park a sea of mud. The best illustration of the state of the course is the time recorded there, three-quarters of a mile in 1:46. I saw a race of a mile and seventy yards, and that was run in 2:22½, with two California-bred horses a good many lengths behind the winner and the rest of the field a long way behind them.

But notwithstanding the drawbacks of rain, mud and cold and the general dreariness which overshadows the whole country, it was easy to see that with good weather the attractions are sufficient to bring immense crowds which attend the races. Large purses and liberal additions to stakes insure good horses, and that is the corner-stone of the edifice. But the superstructure must be in harmony with the foundation, and all the other adjuncts in keeping to make a perfect whole. The racecourses I have seen in the East, viz.: Gravesend, Washington Park and Garfield Park, are not lacking in essentials, and those which I only know from published accounts and the universally eulogistic oral descriptions are on a par with those I have visited. Morris Park and Monmouth still grander in their appointments.

Nearly as aggravating as the weather was the oftentimes repeated remark, "This must remind you, Mr. Simpson, of your California winters, the rainy season, you know." Men who are reasonably well-informed regarding this section of the country think that from the time the fall rains commence until the advent of the dry season every day rain falls. When I answered that in all my eighteen years sojourn on the coast I had never known one-half as many consecutive days rain as were met in this month of May, there was a look of surprise, if not incredulity. That it was an anomalous condition, something outside the experience of the oldest inhabitant, is beyond question, and yet the most favorable springs on the east side of the Mississipi are not to be compared to the average of ours. Put the months of March, April and May in the East in juxtaposition wit January, February and March here, and California will win the stake

I cannot let this occasion pass without acknowledgement of the many kindnesses which were shown me. In every place visited the recipient of favors for which I can never hope to make an adequate return. In this way there was a golden lining to the blackened clouds, sunshine which warmed the heart, an enjoyment which far surpassed physical comfort. As long as memory retains its seat the recollection will be cherished and the remembrance bring a joy which is beyond expression in words.

THE EPSOM DERBY.

Sir Hugo, a 40-to-1 Chance, Captures the Great English Event.

LONDON, June 1st.—Derby day, the great day of all the year in the English turf calendar, opened cold and cloudy, but later the skies cleared and an immense throng was present when the classic turf event was run. The members of the royal family were absent, being in mourning for the Duke of Clarence, and for the first time in the history of the race Parliament refused to adjourn. Since the Duke of Westminster's Orme was scratched Baron Hirsch's filly La Fleche has been the favorite in the betting, with Rose's colt Bonavista and Colonel North's colt El Diablo well thought of. The rain last night put the course in fine condition.

The horses got away at 3:30 this afternoon. M. Camille Blanc's colt Bucentaure (French-bred), by Saxifrane, out of Benise, made the most of the running until the mile and a quarter, where Lord Bradford's Sir Hugo, by Wisdom, out of Manoeuere, drew to the front, and coming on, won by three-quarters of a length; La Fleche, by St. Simon, out of Quiver, second, one length before Bucentaure; St. Anglo fourth. Thirteen horses ran.

Betting before the start was forty to one against Sir Hugo. Time of the raee, two minutes forty-four seconds. Sir Hugo was ridden by Alsopp. The crowd at Epsom was the largest gathering in many years. Peter Jackson, the colored pugilist, was among the spectators, and attracted much attention.

The Derby race was instituted in 1780, being named after the founder of the stake, the Earl of Derby. Sir Charles Bunbury's Diomed was the winner (in the year 1780), and was imported to Virginia in 1799 when twenty-two years old. He died the property of Colonel Hoomes, of Virginia, in 1808 at the age of thirty-one years, and was the sire of many famous horses in America, amongst the number Sir Archy and Duroc. Diomed was by Florizel (son of Herod), dam Sister to Juno, by Spectator; second dam Horatia, by Blank (son of Godolphin Arabian); third dam by Childers. Other Derby winners imported to America were Saltram, winner in 1783; Spread Eagle, 1795; Sir Harry, 1798; Lapdog, 1826; Priam, 1830, and St. Blaise, 1883.

1882	Duke of Westminster's Shotover
1883	Sir F. Johnstone's St. Blaise
1884	Mr. J. Hammond's St. Gatien
1885	Sir J. Willoughby's Harvester
1886	Lord Hastings' Melton
1887	Duke of Westminster's Ormonde
1888	Mr. Abington's Merry Hampton
1889	Duke of Portland's Ayrshire
1890	Duke of Portland's Donovan
1891	Sir F. Johnstone's Common
1892	Lord Bradford's Sir Hugo

Found at Last.

The great need that all horsemen have felt for a private track whereon their colts and fillies can be trained by competent men at a low price has been found at last. Gilbert Tompkins has expended a large amount of time, labor and money to bring to perfection a race track that would answer every requirement, and the beautiful mile track he has just had finished is in everything creditable. He will make a specialty of conditioning, balancing, developing and training horses, and the swimming tank has already proved itself to be one of the greatest aids for this purpose ever discovered Read the advertisement and if you can possibly spare the time, go over to the farm, and we can assure you that you will be convinced that all that has been said about this training and developing farm are not exaggerations.

Entries Close.

Entries for the free-for-all colt stakes to be trotted for during the meeting of 1892 at Oakland will close next Monday, June 6th. While there are so many promising two and three-year-olds in this State the owners cannot let this opportunity pass for making entries at this association. The track will be in most excellent condition, and the association is composed of enthusiastic horsemen who are going to make their fall meeting a great success.

Ripans Tabules cure nausea.

HOOF-BEATS.

LEE SHANER left Petaluma last Tuesday for Salt Lake with a string of trotters and pacers.

VOUCHER, 2:22, has been sold to a gentleman in Rochester, New York. He will go east next week.

IN the 2:25 class pacing advertised for the Golden Gate Fair the purse offered is $800 instead of $300.

GUIDO won the races at St. Louis within seven days, showing that he is still one of the most useful horses in the country.

WHILE there are fully six times more trotters than pacers, 298 "side wheelers" have beaten 2:20, against 442 trotters of a like speed.

THE splendid winnings of the Sir Modreds, Midlothians and Darebins at the East should boom the Rancho del Paso yearlings to be sold in New York on the 13th and 14th of June.

PROF. E. P. HEALD'S Dexter Prince mare at the Souther Farm is trotting fast, and would go inside the charmed circle if given an opportunity. We expect to see a number of meetings held at this beautiful track this fall.

THE two-year-old bay colt, Lew Martin, by Gano, dam Armeda Howard, has been sold by Mrs. C. Thomas to L. H. Titus, of Los Angeles, Cal., for $2,500. The colt was a winner at St. Louis, and has quite a prospect for a high-class race horse.

AT a meeting of the Boa d of Directors of Eureka (Cal.) Jockey Club, they decided to have bookmakers and charge $65 per day. Indications point to a very successful meeting. Excursions will be run every day from the country during the week of the meeting.

JAMES B. FERGUSON, the popular starter, will ship from his Kingston Stud, Lexington Ky., in June, nineteen of the finest-looking yearlings that ever left the Bluegrass. Two fillies, one a black and the other a bay, by Longfellow, are said to be among the finest that ever looked through a bridle.

J. B. FERGUSON'S chestnut mare, Trophy, foaled 1882, by Alarm, out of Delight, she out of Vesperlight, by Childe Harold, etc., foaled on Saturday, May 21st, a bay colt (full brother to Wadsworth) by Longfellow. Wadsworth is undoubtedly one of the best three-year-olds seen in the Western country for years.

A. H. COHEN, of Alameda, recently received his credentials as a director of Agricultural Association No. 1 from Governor Markham. Mr. Cohen is an enthusiastic horseman, and is thoroughly conversant will all the needs and demands of owners and breeders of stock. He is the right man in the right place, and will be a valuable officer wherever he is placed.

THE Canadian stallion Alvin, 2:14½, recently trotted an eighth over the Detroit track to a cart in 16 seconds, a 2:08 clip. He was never in such good form at this season as now, and his owners think he will be equal to any contest that he enters. He has been entered in all important stallion stakes in the States, and will likely meet such cracks as Allerton, Axtell and Delmarch before the season is over.

THERE was quite a scare about glanders in and around Watsonville last week. The supervisors appointed Dr. F. W. Skaife, of this city, and Dr. W. E. Wadams, of Santa Clara, to investigate the so-called infected stables. These gentlemen visited every one in and around the city, and ascertained that there was no truth in the report. The few animals that were sick were suffering from influenza, and were rapidly recovering.

A SALE of yearlings, the property of Daniel Swigert and George H. Clay of Lexington, Ky., began in New York on the evening of June 1st. The highest prices paid were by W. L. Powers, whe gave $10,000 for a bay colt by Longfellow—Ballet; a brown colt by Tremont—Margherite, to William Lakeland, $2600; a bay colt by Tremont—Tincture, to Phil Dwyer $2,400, and a bay colt by imported Glenelg—Florida, to W. Strauss, for $2,100.

MATT STORN followed up his good win at Denver with Centella and Top Gallant by capturing the rich Pacific Coast Stakes with Hermitage, two-year-old bay colt by imp. Friar Tuck, out of Mistake, by Wildidle; second dam Katy Pease, by Planet. This is the first one of the Friar Tucks to win, but it was a rattling good one, and Mr. Storn is to be congratulated on his victory and on making good his prediction—that he would race the first winning Friar Tuck, as he did the first Mariner.

A STRONG movement is on foot, it is rumored, to secure a tract of land in Fruitvale large enough to build a first-class race course of an entirely new shape, a handsome and capacious grand-stand, and to have beautiful grounds surrounding the same. We only hope the rumor will be verified, and that we shall have a place of this character that Californians can pride themselves on. Fruitvale is an excellent spot, sheltered from the strong winds that blow in from the mighty Pacific, and the climate cannot be improved upon.

W. CLARK, of Eureka, Humboldt county, called in to see us Wednesday; he reports everything very prosperous there. The members of the Eureka Jockey Club have been working hard to make their big race meeting commencing on the Fourth of July a success. The track has received a coating of clay, and is in splendid condition. The new track harrow arrived safely, and has been doing good work. Some twenty new box stalls have been built, and everything will be done to make horsemen and their strings of trotters and runners comfortable.

WE are informed that immediately after the Golden Gate Fair meeting in Oakland is concluded the lessee, Benjamin Wright, of the Galindo Hotel, will have the homely and cluttered-up grand stands torn down and in their stead erect buildings that will be at once a credit to Mr. Wright, things of beauty and joys forever. The fences will be in shape by the time the Fair opens, in all probability, and necessary work is already being done on the track. The new lessee has the reputation of being an energetic, progressive, practical man who has had considerable experience in the line of conducting race meetings, and let us hope that he will have all the success that his enterprise certainly entitles him to.

LAST Thursday Yo Tambien, by Joe Hooker—Marion (therefore half-sister to Emperor of Norfolk and El Rio Rey), won a good mile race at Latonia, while Dollie McCone, her stable companion, was second in another event. Geraldine scooped in the coin for R. Porter Ashe at Denver on the same date in a half-mile dash. Montana ran second to Prince Henry, and, according to all accounts, the former could not have lost had Hart ridden the Holly horse with his accustomed spirit.

BALDWIN'S Galindo is very high in flesh, and it will take hard work to fit the gray for his engagements. In fact, all the Santa Anita horses are behind hand in their training, having been confined to walking exercise ever since their arrival by the condition of the track. The stable has re-engaged "Pike" Barnes, who will do most of the riding, while Stanford, an Australian jockey, will wear the second colors. The two-year-olds by Emperor of Norfolk are good lookers.—New York Spirit of the Times.

THE meeting of the Oregon Breeding and Speed Association at Salem, Or., commenced last Thursday, and the events were quite interesting to the large crowd that assembled. Cyclone won the three-quarter-mile dash, Altus second, Held third. Time, 1.1 ¼. 2:25 pace—Blondie won, Captain Mount second, Zephyr third. Best time, 2:34½. Quarter-mile dash—Red Dick won, Mamie S. second, Little Dexter third. Time, 0.23¾. 2:30 trot—Belle S. won, Hamlin second. Best time, 2:36.
